DAVID C. COOK.

Miss Frances E. Willard calls David C. Cook "a man of providence," and he certainly has had a remarkable career. Commencing without capital, at the foot of the ladder, his great building in Lake View, at the city limits, scarcely suffices to produce the thirty-one Sunday-school periodicals which, in the space of a few years, have secured a regular circulation of upwards of four million copies, or the unparalleled aggregate issue of upwards of thirty.six million in a single year, and the large number of Sunday-school library books, of which one million copies have already been sold. Beginning in 1874 with a single periodical, with his office in his hat, he now receives an average of 800 letters a day, and has probably the largest publishing business in the West. He is emphatically a self-made man, and a man who, at the age of thirty, has achieved success in the best sense of that word.

For Mr. Cook has not been content with mere material success. Mr. Charles Dudley Warner, in his essay on the newspaper, says that the object of every periodical is to make money for its owner. But we thoroly and heartily believe that Mr. Cook had a motive higher than mere money-making in establishing all of his thirty papers. And who shall compute the good that has been done by placing his cheap but good and healthful Sunday-school literature in the hands of those who are unable to buy the more expensive and often trashier books and papers? For Mr. Cook's publications that we have seen are pre-eminently healthful. Every article in his periodicals, every book that he publishes, is selected with singular discrimination and good judgment. We would sooner choose his list of five-cent Sunday-school books than any other list (even of $1,50 "juveniles") that we know of, and we are well acquainted with the list of every American publishing house. We should judge that the publication of these five-cent books alone would work a revolution in Sunday-school libraries. One of these books can be given to every scholar in school at less annual expense than the old loaning system involved.

Mr. Cook has always been a "Sunday-school man." At the early age of twenty-two he became superintendent of "Everybody's Mission School," located near Mr. Moody's church in Chicago, where he was engaged in business. He became so attached to this school as to leave his home on the "West side," and secure a boarding place near the school, on the "North side," and the school soon numbered over 600 members. From Mr. Cooks reply to a note addressed to him by Miss Willard we take a few passages to show the growth of the Sunday-school idea in his mind;

"So absorbed was I in this school that, though closely engaged in businees, I spent all my evenings and Sabbaths in its service, visited every member, conducted prayer-meetings, aided in a night school for young men, sewing school for girls, and regularly had charge of a meeting called the 'Children's church.' The children were largely of foreign parentage, fully one-fourth Roman Catholic; some were vicious, and I was obliged to use considerable ingenuity to accomplish my ends. I have had persons come to the mission purposely to kill me; I was twice knocked senseless. and on several occasions have been in considerable danger of losing my life. The front of the mission building has been completely covered with mud, again and again, and many of the windows broken.

"During the whole existence of the school as a mission we never received a penny from the church with which I was connected, nor from any other, nor did we ask it. I became responsible for the expenses of the school, and paid its deficit, which amounted from $400 to $600 a year. My chief trial was being so situated that I could give but little time to the school except evenings and Sundays. In connection with several other schools I had been buying an illustrated English magazine for the School, which had proved a great help in holding the scholars in regular attendance, on which, in 1875, a duty was imposed, making it cost nearly one-third more. This seemed too much to pay, and I conceived the idea of clubbing with other schools and publishing a similar magazine myself, thus saving expense. This being agreed to by the other schools, in January, 1876, the first number of the Sunday School Gem made its appearance as a paper in magazine form. This was my first introduction to the Sunday-school world as a publisher.

"In 1876 quite a revival swept over our city, and many of the members of my school seemed to have been drawn to Christ. This was the most encouraging result since the organization, but later I was very much surprised at the want of stability on the part of those who had professed a change of heart; they seemed so lacking in religious knowledge on which to build up a firm Christian character. This called my special attention to the shallowness of Sunday-school instruction, and I set about instituting means of improving it. I tried various lesson helps and numerous little plans with the scholars, all having in view the securing of more lesson study. No quarterly, however, seemed gotten up with the idea of home study in view, so I added several pages of special notes to those used, together with a card for marking lesson credits, etc., and tried it for one quarter; but the matter of the quarterly seemed to need altering to work well when used for home study. Therefore, for the second quarter of the year I determined to get up a quarterly especially for the mission, which was called "Everybody's Sunday-School Lesson Book." In addition to lesson notes, etc., prepared with home study in view, it contained songs, This was the first of the plan of combining the song-book with the lesson help, which is now so popular. In order to help me pay the cost of type-setting, etc., I sent a few samples to schools, offering the quarterly at nine cents instead of twenty-five cents, then the lowest at which quarterlies were sold elsewhere. The returns from these samples were amazing, and before the year was out the book had a circulation of nearly 50,000. The many encouraging reports in regard to home study in schools that had used my simple little quarterly, as also the success of its use in my own school, led me to believe that if I could devote my whole time to supply the needs of the Sunday-school, I could do work that was not then being done by any one. I arranged my business so as to do this, and since 1877 the Sunday-school world has seen something of what I have been able to do single-handed and alone, without the backing of a single established publishing house or the endorsment of a single society, and relying solely on the merits of my helps.

"My first Scholars Quarterly—a small twelve-page publication—afterwards appeared as a sixteen-page, then a twenty-four-page, and finally as a thirty-two-page, each page more than twice the original size, yet with no addition to the price. We first printed it on cheap paper; now on the best we can buy. I have dropped prices or increased size, or both on every one of my publications since first issues. I found that I could add to the lesson interest by introducing lesson hymns. This was an immense expense, for the cost of getting choice original hymns written, and of music setting, is great. I found, by a series of five grades of quarterlies in place of one, I could easier induce home lesson study; so I spent five times the money on editorial labor for these that it would cost for one. I found that teachers' helps were needed to correspond to the five grades of scholars helps, and these were added. I saw also that the non-grading of Sunday-school papers was a drawback to schools, and so launched into the field papers in five grades, ranging from adult to primary. Added to this, I have pretty well settled the "library expense" question by publishing Sabbath-school library books at a uniform price of five cents apiece, yet in better and more lasting style than the ordinary books. A score of co-workers and writers of the highest merit, with six assistant editors, are regularly employed, representing four different evangelical denominations. One hundred and seventy writers of note have been engaged during the past year, among them such names as Rankin, Rand, Atchinson, Drs. Blackburn, Swartz, Todd and Bullard, Pansy, Hope, Ledyard, Chellis, etc.

"My career as a publisher has been one of constant and increasing success; each year my trade has more than doubled on the previous one, so that two years ago I was able to build a publishing house of my own, and fit it up with the finest labor-saving machinery. This enabled me to live through the rise in paper which occurred last year without advancing my very low prices, and will enable me to still lower prices in the future. I have built in connection with my publishing house at Lake View, in the suburbs of Chicago, a Sunday-school room and hall, where I have a school of some 450 members, and a church organization, and where I am still testing various plans and methods of work before giving them to the public."

In addition to his Sunday-school publications, and rivaling them in importance, are his Temperance issues—what he calls the "Temperance Revolution." Mr. Cook's ambition in this class of his publications, as in the other, is to publish the very best matter at the lowest possible price. The matter in these books is largely original, being prepared strictly under Mr. Cook's supervision, and is carefully selected and revised before being sent to the press. Mr. Cook's publishing house is especially designed to work upon the "Revolution" plan. It is fitted up with the finest snd best labor-saving machinery that money can buy. Its large double-cylinder presses and lightning folders and stitchers are the ne plus ultra of mechanical art. Almost all the work is done by this improved machinery on the premises, so that every possible expense is avoided. By doing things right on the spot and directly under his own eyes, Mr. Cook is enabled to dispense with many of the varied expenses that the publisher who has to get his work done by outside parties, who make a percentage out of it, are subject to. On his large two-revolution cylinder presses he turns out as many as four four-page illustrated Sunday-school papers, and of the very largest four-page forms he prints two entire papers at each impression. He has a folding machine capable of folding 140,000 papers a day, and in fact, from the time the paper enters the house from the mill until it is turned out a finished book or pamphlet, it has been almost entirely manipulated by machinery. Mr. Cook employs a large staff of engravers under a skillful and accomplished artist, all his stereotyping is done on the premises, and, in fact, he is entirely independent of any outside help in his publishing business.

Mr. Cook's sole business aim is to supply the best literature at the lowest prices consistent with safety and profit.

Some idea of the magnitude of the business which has been built upon this idea, may be gathered from the fact that 625 tons of second-class matter was mailed last year at a cost of $25,000 for postage.

Although the Temperance Revolution, as Mr. Cook calls it, has been established less than six months, it has issued eighteen monthly papers, three weekly papers, three quarterlies, and forty-seven 5 cent books, besides various miscellaneous requisites, such as pledge rolls, pledges, certificates, etc.

The Sunday-school department of the business is much more extensive than the Temperance department, and taken together, make a publishing business whose growth is unparalleled in the history of literature.—Chicago Alliance.

COLLEGE CITY, CALIFORNIA.

College City is the name of a beautiful village in Colusa Co., the location of Pierce Christian College, in one of the greatest wheat growing districts in Cal. The town is noted for being the only Temperance town in Northern Cal., if not the only one in the State that is protected from the rum traffic by an act of the Legislature.

There being no saloon nor influences of that kind within three miles of the town—Here is a college under the management of President James C. Keith, a christian gentleman of ability and experience as an educator, assisted by 5 other experienced educators.

It is also a fact worthy of note that not one of the teachers in the college uses tobacco. There are two commodious brick buildings in a campus of 10 acres of ground, fenced, and enclosing a number of ornamental trees.

The attendance this year will number about 140, representing different parts of the State. A full course of study is arranged in all the various branches usually taught in colleges.

The founding of the college has resulted from the bequest of a large tract of land left by one Andrew Pierce about ten pears ago. Additions are being made to the present endowment, and by this means the tuition in the college has been reduced to such a nominal sum, that it can easily be reached by every one. Board is unusually low. The citizens are an enterprising, moral class of people, and take pupils into their homes and give them pleasant surroundings. A large and flourishing Lodge of Good Templars meets in the College building. There is also a flourishing order of the A. O. U. W.

The town is situated a few miles from the Coast Range Mountains, and is one of the healthiest locations in the State. J. DURHAM.

College City, Feb. 1882.

The danger of sending boys to a college that is within easy reach of a grogshop cannot be over-estimated. The writer knows familiarily of an academy whose professors and teachers have for 40 years always been total abstainers and professors of religion, and the community and neighborhood far and near, a highly christian and moral people. But there were always one or two hotels near by that sold liquor, and to them the trade they could get among 100 to 150 boys in the college was all important. The consequence was in spite of all the vigilance of the officers—which never can be any obstacle to the smuggling of rum, when there is rum near at hand—quite a number of the sons of excellent christian families learned to be hopeless drunkards at that Academy, who could not have done so at home. Preachers and lawyers and merchants were educated there and turned out well, but the rum serpent crawled in and bit the death wound of many a fine, talented, promising youth, who has since died an outcast or lives a hopeless sot. In about four weeks of 1879, there were 15 students expelled from that institution because they had been supplied with brandy and preferred expulsion to telling who had furnished it.

It is therefore urgently commended to any who have boys to send to school, to consider well the advantage of a college where YOUR BOY CANNOT BE MADE A SOT. People are often governed in the choice of a school or college by the question of the religious denomination of its managers. But there are ten boys, who, during their attendance at such institutions, learn habits of intemperance and vice, for one who becomes a proselyte to another sect. And while the latter is not at all likely to be harmful if it occurs, the other is an ever recurring danger and of the most woful nature.

Revolution Temperance Literature.

New goods, adapted to new methods of work, at fabulously low prices—making. as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been.

OUR GREAT "KNEE-DEEP" OFFER.—Contracts taken to sow every town "knee-deep" with temperance literature at 5 cents a head, without any labor on the part of society or individual, by means of our Class Papers and post-office delivery system. The greatest need in temperance work is scattering temperance literature! The greatest difficulty, doing it systematically, thoroughly and yet cheaply. For Five Cents we will address, wrap and mail singly, direct to individual, regularly each month for a year, any one of the below named temperance papers, each for a special class of readers or work: 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The S. S. Superintendent. 7. The S. S. Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. The Prohibition Banner. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. The Home Protection Monthly. 13. The People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper.

Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which especially designed. Each published monthly, and though small in size, contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book.

HOW IT WORKS.—1st. It is only a nickle. Subscriptions are never refused; you have only to ask. As many subscriptions can be taken in a day as you can see persons. Societies or individuals can look after this work. 2d. Fifty cents sends a paper every month for a year to ten different persons, so many will subscribe both for themselves and for friends. 3d. Societies can not adopt a better plan of thorough distribution of temperance literature than to set apart a fund to send one or more of our 5c. papers to each individual in the town. Thus for $5.00 they can reach 100 persons each month for a year. A whole town of 500 families can be reached every month for a year for $25.00. Besides, you need not give away, subscriptions can be taken from everybody you can see, and hosts will give in small sums to send to others when it is seen that a little goes so far. For 20c. we furnish the TEMPERANCE ENGINEER, a book with blanks for canvassers for the papers, for securing lists of names to send to, free, and with space for alphabetical entry of 3,400 names, classified so as to give a fund of valuable information for society in prosecuting its work, as well as to help in systematical plan of ordering class papers—an invaluable book for all branches of temperance work.

WONDERFUL SUCCESS.—In three months these papers have reached a circulation of SEVENTY-THREE THOUSAND COPIES, monthly. Hundreds of towns are trying the plan—read what workers say of it:

Hon. James Black, of Pennsylvania: "As soon as I can find the time to arrange, I will put your 'knee-deep' plan of distribution into action. The plan is practicable, and if adopted and persevered in, will revolutionize any community. The plan is very simple, economical, and will be effective."

R. Thompson, G. W. C, T. of the I. O. G. T., Grand Lodge of California; "I had heard how wonderfully cheap you proposed to supply temperance literature, but did not realize until I examined that such a good quality was furnished."

Uriah Copp, G. W. C. T. of the Grand Lodge of Illinois: "I most heartily endorse them."

Theo. D. Kanouse, G. W. C. T. of the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin: "Your temperance papers, so sharp, so short, so cheap, so sound, giving in condensed form and in ten minute doses (more than we can get from some other sources from multiplied columns and days' reading) are first-class."

Hon. John B. Finch, of Nebraska: "Your work will do more to help our cause, if supported, than all others combined."

A. S. Bostwick, Past G. W. C. T., I. O. G. T. of Pennsylvania: "You have discovered the great want of to-day."

DATES OF MAILING.—Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 17 and 18, first week of month; Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, second week; Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, third week; Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, fourth week. Subscriptions received up to the 25th, beginning with month in which order is sent.

OTHER WAYS OF USING.—We provide hooks, with card attached to each so as to show above it, bearing the words, TAKE ONE—cost in lots of five or more 6 cts., postpaid. The "class papers" for distribution in this way are furnished at 25 cts. per 100 copies. Several hooks may be put up in a place, each for a special paper, the hooks refilled with papers from week to week, a later issue being added each month. Papers come ready punched for use on the hooks.

SPECIMEN PAPERS.—We will send one each of all the above papers—eighteen papers in all—on receipt of 10 cents.

2c. STORY BOOKS.—We are putting up choicest and most thrilling and telling of 75c to $1.50 temperance story books in large newspaper form, one whole book in a paper, illustrated on first page, for 2 cts. a paper when bought in lots of twenty-five or more. One issue each month. Three are now ready. Sample of all three for 10 cents.

This is a new force; people will read for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or can be distributed gratuitiously in various ways.

TEMPERANCE POSTERS.—To tack up in stores, depots and other public places; large print, each with a bit of choice, telling temperance matter, 12x14 inches, on good, white paper. No. 1. Have You Insured Your Boys? No. 2. The Licensed Saloon Illustrated. No. 3. Important Notice. No. 4. The Rum Deception. No. 5. Startling Statistice. No. 6. The Right of Prohibition. Price, in lots of twenty or more, assorted, ½c each. Samples of each for 10 cts., postpaid.

THE POPULAR TEMPERANCE LIBRARY.—One new book each month. Costs but 60c for a year's issue (12 numbers).

No. 1. DRINK, FROM DRUGS.—A book that cannot fail to arouse the American people to the gigantic swindle now being perpetrated. The writer offered $10,000 by a leading brewer to keep still. Liquor not only doctored but made entirely from drugs. Extracts from a whole library of secret books, giving receipts for making and doctoring claret, port, sherry, champagne, whisky, brandy, gin, rum, etc., all out of one barrel, and made at less than 25c a quart. Wine that never saw grape juice—cider that never saw apples—beer factories in place of breweries—ale without barley or brewing—whiskey from arsenic—millions of gallons of liquor that pays no revenue tax. A wholesale liquor-store in a ten foot square cellar. This book is no mere toy, but an exhaustive work.

"One of the very best temperance documents for general use."—(Christian Standard.) "A complete and thorough exposure."—(Delaware Signal.) "The book contains a fund of information." (Morning Star.) "A most exhaustive work, and treats the subject with vigor."—(Observer.) "Deserves a wide circulation."—(Journal and Messenger.) "The most wonderful book ever brought before the public."—(Reading Star.) "Ought to be read by every minister and Christian."—(New Jersey Gazette.) "A complete exposure; get the book and circulate it."—(St. Louis Presbyterian.) "Statements sufficiently terrible to startle the moderate drinker as well as the immoderate."—Zion's Herald.)

No. 2. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND THE SOBER CITIZEN.—An able and telling work, by Rev. J. H. Sherman, which brings out the effects of the liquor traffic in a new light. The following are some commendations of the first edition: "The author drives the nails of conviction through and clinches them."—(New York Christian Advocate.) "Speakers and workers in the temperance field will find valuable aid in this pamphlet. It is crowded with convincing facts."—(Zion's Herald.) "One of the ablest reviews of the drink curse ever issued from the press."—(The Morning and Day of Reform.)

No. 3. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND CRIME.—Leaves from the diary of an old lawyer. By Hon. A. B. Richmond, member of the Pennsylvania bar. A book of intense interest, rivaling the famous "Diary of a physician," and, in its truthful, terrible pictures of the power and crime of intemperance, excelling the well-known "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room." The temperance issue of the present time is, Shall prohibition be partial or entire? shall the branches of the death-bearing tree be pruned and trimmed, or shall the tree itself be cut down and its stump be torn up by the roots? The answer of "Leaves From a Diary" is, "Cut down the tree, tear up the roots, leave not a shoot nor shred behind." It is certainly a very strong and eloquent volume. The book has been already before the public in high-priced style, and received high commendations. As printed in Popular Temperance Library form, it is somewhat abridged, but contains the cream of the book. We shall issue later the complete book in more expensive form. Press notices of first edition: "Full of touching incidents. We wish everybody would read it."—(Pittsburg Christian Advocate.) "We would place this book by the side of Judge Pitman's work, and then say, 'There is the best temperance library in the English language."—(Chautauqua Herald.)

No. 4. HOME PROTECTION.—A lawyer's view of it. By J. C. Wells, attorney at law. The question ably discussed from a lawyer's standpoint. A book of the times.

These books are "hot shot" for the enemy's strongholds. Other books of equal merit will follow monthly. All will be well adapted for use by lecturers, canvassers, agents, news dealers, train boys, temperance societies, etc. Price by the year (12 books), 60 cts. Single copies, 10 cts. Five or more to one address, 5 cts. each.

GREAT BOOK DISTRIBUTION OFFER.—Books sent by mail direct to individuals. Society sending us the names and addresses of parties and book wanted, sent to each, saves society distributing, books more likely to command reading, is more systematic, costs less, etc. We will send any two or more of our 5c books to separate addresses for 8c each; five or more 7c each; twenty-five or more 6c each; fifty or more 5½c each; one hundred or more 5¼c each; two hundred or more 5c each.

BANDS OF HOPE.—Cheapest offer yet is our offer to induce organization of Bands of Hope among the children. We furnish a library of 52 choice $1.00 to $1.50 temperance story books put up in ordinary book form, only printed on lighter paper with smaller margins and in paper covers (really stronger books than the more expensive), for 5c each, or the 52 books for $2.50. Also two weekly Band papers at 2 1-2c a quarter; a lesson and song quarterly for 3c. Certificates, pledge-rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc., all so cheap that penny collections of Band more than pay all expenses. Specimen of everything necessary for comple outfit for Band sent postpaid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving new and simple methods of running Bands, running them either with or without teachers, etc., sent free.

We are getting out many other publications besides those advertised above. General circular, free. Please say where you saw this. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madison Street, Chicago.

A GREAT TRIUMPH.

THE HISTORY AND FEATURES OF THE STUDEBAKER WAGON.

As an illustration of American industry, wrought out and brot to the most perfect system that has ever been devised for the manufacture of the modern wagon in any portion of the world, we produce on this page a cut of a portion of the celebrated manufactory of the Studebaker Bros, Manufacturing Co., at South Bend, Ind. The upper cut, showing a structure whose exterior has the appearance of some grand opera house or bank building, is only the repository and manufactory for the landulet, barouche, phaeton, buggies of every description, and light and fine vehicles that are used by our merchant princes, hackmen, horsemen and pleasure seekers in city, town and country, plantation, ranch and farm, from Maine to Mexico. The exquisite finish, excellence and artistic taste displayed in this branch of their business is such that large repositories have been established in Chicago and other great centers for the sale and display of this class of goods.

The lower engraving represents the main portion of the Studebaker Bros. Co.'s Wagon Works, which now, with buildings, sheds, drying houses and accessories, cover twenty-seven acres of ground, to which they have added the last year fifty-eight acres more. The main buildings are four stories high, built of brick, and in architectural design and finish, with turrets and smoke-stacks, represent a scene of beauty and progress that is part of the historyof this country. As we view this labyrinth of American industry, we fail to grasp its immensity, unless with yard-stick and pencil we measure and count. There are over seventeen acres of flooring; over 10,000,000 bricks in the main buildings; over 1,000 horse power in steam engines; over 2,000 feet line shafting, not including countershafts; over four miles belting; some of which is thirty-six inches wide, and over 1,200 men, molding and fashioning the Studebaker wagon, with sunlight by day and the electric light by night. Steadily has the demand and sale of this wagon increased; and as surely preparations have been made to meet the demand. In 1880, 26,000 wagons were sold, and last year, 1881, the sales exceeded 28,000—the largest number of vehicles manufactured and sold by one firm in one year in the United States or any other country.

It is marvelous beyond precedent in the history of a wagon manufactory to see in the packing and shipping department and side tracks at South Bend, Indiana, trains of railroad cars built by the Studebaker Bros, for their own use (larger and wider than the ordinary baggage car) filled with boxed carriages and heavy wagons of all kinds, and marked "Afghanistan, Quartermaster's Department, British Army;" "Egypt," "Syria," "Sandwich Islands," "Australia," "Cuba," "Paris," "San Francisco," and to towns and cities in all parts of this country.

In the year 1852 Clem Studebaker and Henry Studebaker opened a small wagon shop in South Bend, Indiana, in which they managed to turn out two farm wagons during that year, one of which is in use now. During 1874 their loss by fire was 2400 wagons and property valued at $300,000; but the indefatigable brothers soon built on a larger scale than before. In 1880 the Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing Co., consisting of the following brothers; Clem Studebaker, President; J. M. Studebaker, Vice-President; J. F. Studebaker, Secretary, and P. E. Studebaker, Treasurer, had facilities for, and did build and finish, a wagon or carriage on the average for that year at the rate of 100 a day or one every five minutes, counting eight working hours a day. Their combined capital at the commencement was $66. At this time it is millions. For these fabulous results there must be a cause, and it may be well for us to stop and enquire what it is. In this connection we shall refer back to the first "Studebaker" wagon ever built.

John Studebaker, the father of the present Studebaker Bros., after six years of an apprenticeship in Gettysburg, Pa., in the wagon trade, commenced business for himself, and built a new wagon for farm purposes, whose contour and style has only been improved by his own boys. The wagon was made as well as intelligent mechanical labor could make it. It laid the foundation upon which he amassed a considerable fortune, which was swept away by the betrayed confidence of a friend. Through these dark days he trained the sons in the art of knowing the strength of wood when combined with iron, and making a neat, tasteful and easy-running wagon that would last in use a quarter of a century. That knowledge, to which has been added all that inventive genius, science and modern improved machinery could do, has made their name a household word, and their achievements in keeping with the grandest triumphs in art and the great inventions of the nineteenth century. In view of the possibilities and grand results of well-directed and intelligent mechanical labor in this country, as shown by this great American firm —who started in life as poor, practical mechanics, and for over a quarter of a century have steadily continued in the same business, only to swell into greater proportions and develop the modern perfected wagon—no motto could be more appropriate than that over the main door of the largest wagon manufactory in the world:

"Labor Omnia Vincit."
"Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co."

STUDEBAKER CARRIAGE MANUFACTORY, SOUTH BEND, INDIANA.

It is often said by men who have used the Studebaker wagon, "I have not had $5 expense on my 'Studebaker' in five years." "That Studebaker gearing of mine has worn out two bodies and is good yet." "I save one-fourth of a horse-power on every 'Studebaker' wagon I use." Having this reputation we will endeavor to show why and how it was obtained:

First—The best of timber of every class, and especially that of Indiana, is used.

Second—Every stick of timber is seasoned from five to seven years, and the entire woodwork is saturated in boiling oil to render it impervious to moisture.

Third—The wood passes triple inspection and is tested by machinery and worked by selected and the best skilled mechanics in the world, who work with such precision that if you gather up distinct parts of the wagon made by different persons, they will be found to fit with almost the nice precision of the works of a Waltham watch.

Fourth—The patent bevel edge, projecting tire saves the paint on the felloe, and consequently on rocky roads and ruts protects the wheel.

Fifth—The skeins are set by a patent skein setter, which takes exact pattern of the inside of the skein to which the axle is to be fitted, thereby making a true fit and a perfect running wagon. These parts are also made of selected iron, very heavy and fitted to such an exactness that the farmers of Sacramento and Stockton can exchange wheels with impunity.

Sixth—The Studebaker is the only wagon in which the slope shoulder spoke is used, which are driven in by a "Tom Sayers" trip hammer, and the tires shrunken on by lowering it all at once on a horizontal platform; making a wheel that will last as long and longer than other parts of the wagon.

Seventh—The hubs are all bored true, then the skein boxes are turned on an iron lathe to fit, and pressed in by hydraulic pressure of 150 tons, insuring a perfect joint and allowing no oil or water to soak in, as the case is when the boxes are wedged in.

Eighth—All the thimble-skein wagons have the Studebaker patent skein and truss axle, which greatly strengthen these axles. These improvements cannot be found on any other wagon.

Ninth—in painting these wagons only the pure lead and best oil is used; no cheap mineral or adulterated lead are allowed on a Studebaker wagon.

STUDEBAKER MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S WORKS, SOUTH BEND, INDIANA.

Tenth—Every piece of timber and iron and steel is subjected to inspection and scientific tests by the most skilled mechanics, and if not up to the standard is rejected.

Eleventh—They make the best wagon that improved patents of their own or others that can be used to advantage, and will not allow any wagon to pass from their works unless it bears the old and reliable brand. "Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing Co., South Bend, Indiana,"

Twelfth—The Studebaker wagon is the acme of perfection, accomplished by the combined mechanical talent and inventive genius of two generations.

It has been and is the ambition of this great American firm to make a wagon adapted to the wants of every locality, and to have the whole world for a market. They have traveled in different States and counties to gain information as to the requirements of different localities. Over twenty years ago the Vice-President, J. M. Studebaker, was a resident of California, where he as a practical mechanic, fashioned, built and studied the best manner to construct a wagon for the Pacific coast. His store of knowledge was carried back, where improved machinery could be had to fill this demand. From time to time the different members of the firm, J. F. Studebaker, Secretary, and Superintendent of the carriage department; P. E. Studebaker, Treasurer, and Clem Studebaker, President, have visited this State. The President has made frequent visits, extending as far back as 1868. During the past season he traveled extensively on this coast as far north as British Columbia and as far south as Mexico, and with prophetic vision saw that the varied industries, resources and future greatness of this western empire would demand increased carriage facilities.

The large and increased sale of Studebaker wagons in California for 1881 and further demand induced the Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing Company to enlarge the Pacific Coast branch, and to select San Francisco as the distributing point, with agencies in all the principal cities and towns. A repository was opened at 31 Market street, and a large warehouse secured near the railroad depot, Fourth and Townsend streets, for storing their goods. The Studebaker railroad cars were immediately switched up to the five-story shipping and storage apartments at South Bend, and their own cars were filled with all classes of vehicles for the "Pacific Coast Branch House."

The fiat has gone forth and will soon be passed along the line from Alaska to Arizona and to the Islands of the Sea, that the teamster, farmer, drayman, hackman and horseman can have a Studebaker wagon. That landaulet and rockaway, buggy and barouche, three and four spring and platform spring wagons, farm and freight wagons, wide and narrow tires, header trucks—in fact everything that runs on wheels and enters into the developement of this Western slope, will be kept in stock, and is now ready for distribution at 31 Market street, San Francisco, to those who wish to secure a wagon, cart or carriage made by the "Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing Company, South Bend, Indiana."

We have endeavored to show how the Studebaker wagon is made, its superiority and the growing demand for their modern perfected wagon. Their success and the results have been attained by following one rule, viz: They make a safe, durable, easy-riding, light-draft vehicle, adapted to every business and suited to the tastes and requirements of a progressive age; and sell them at fair prices.

The Studebaker wagons and carriages have entered the broad field of competition at county and State fairs; the United States Exposition, 1876; World's Great Fair, Paris, 1878, and won first prizes and silver medals; but the best award is the increasing demand each year in the industrial fields of America.

The French Government has a Studebaker army wagon on exhibit in the great National Military Museum in Paris.

As a nation we are proud of our national achievements in science, art, mechanical excellence, and improved labor-saving machinery. No better illustration of the way the genius of Americans meets the necessities of this age can be found than the triumphs of the Studebaker Bros.

In the history of this great American firm, who have followed one line of business for 30 years, and are bound together and as closely allied in their prosperity as in their boyhood days, we have a commendable example of American progress and enterprise. If so much has been accomplished in the broad field of life by these four brothers, whose only legacy from sire to son was mechanical skill, industry and strength of purpose, in so short a time, every American youth and middle-aged man can take heart and with confidence move on where broader fields and better opportunities for honest, well-directed mechanical labor are brought to view as each new railroad penetrates the stillness of the forests, or opens to industry the rich valleys of the West.—Sel.

R. THOMPSON, G. W. C. T.

TO THE EIGHTEEN THOUSAND GOOD TEMPLARS OF CALIFORNIA.

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS:—I am pleased to have this opportunity to talk with you individually, thru this twenty thousand edition of our RESCUE. My faith has always been strong, but our success, as an Order, has exceeded my most sanguine expectations. We are succeeding by an aggressive policy. We are a vast army of united workmen banded together for a most noble object. We can but get the united respect and co-operation of our entire philanthropic and Christian population. The good and true are bound to come with us to drive intemperance from our State. The experience of the past is giving us a more perfect system of work and the seed heretofore sown is beginning to bear fruit. I wish to remind you dear reader, that individual effort is the power that we must mainly depend upon for future success. It must be the work of the many. This must begin by our personal example. Consistency is nobleness of soul showing itself upon the surface. If always true to good principles we can but be strong. Nothing that is hurtful can be right. The good is not only not harmful, but always beneficial. From our drinking customs come more than three-fourths of all the crime and misery in our midst and this crime and misery must continue as long as our drinking customs remain. Our mission is to stop this kind of devastation and woe and to do it we must feel our personal obligations in the matter.

Every outlook gives us stronger hope. There is really no ground for discouragement. More and more the people of our State are with us. Never so willing to aid us as during the present year. Our Home for Orphans is now caring for about one hundred and thirty homeless little ones and does us great credit. What a contrast? The liquor trafic is making orphans and we are feeding and clothing them. The liquor trafic is placing us upon their black lists and we are supporting their orphans on the same terms as we do our own. Theirs the work of destruction, ours that of salvation. This is an irrepressible conflict. One of the two must go to the wall. Can we doubt which? California should be Eden before the fall, and would be could we banish intoxicants. Every year we gain, every month we grow stronger, every day the moral and religious elements are writing more legibly the doom of king alcohol. Our lecture field is doing a noble work; our RESCUE is better than coin; our forces are more perfectly united and determined than in any past year; our lodges are more numerous and efficient. More than three hundred and sixty subordinates are now united under our banner! Our effort to close dram shops on the Sabbath is greatly helping our cause! We are more determined and hopeful for the dawn of a better day is at hand. Let us arouse and ever be on the alert to aid in every possible way this glorious cause. You have done nobly thus far and, now, with the blessing of God, let us go firmly onward to victory and peace.

Fraternally yours, R. THOMPSON, G. W. C. T.

FROM OREGON.

JUNCTION CITY, Feb. 5, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—As the battle wages fiercer between the hosts of Temperance and those of Alcohol the more noise the old demon makes; the more he wriggles and squirms and lies about everything good that is done. The failure of the "Amendment in Kansas" is their great cry; yet their cry of failure only assures all thinking minds of its success and I say all hail noble Governor St. John! would that we could boast of a governor like him.

I am glad to report that the order of Good Templars is advancing rapidly in this jurisdiction, and not they alone, for the cause of Temperance in general is gaining ground as never before. The Constitutional amendment petitions have been pressed with energy in many localities, and the result has been very satisfactory indeed. The petitions already sent in to headquarters show over seven thousand signatures of the very best men and women of our land, praying the Legislative Assembly to allow the people to vote on this question on its own merits, apart from any other issue.

The State Temperance Alliance which will meet on the 15th at Salem, will take steps toward presenting and pressing this matter before the next session of the Legislature in September.

Col. J. T. Long of Kentucky, has just finished his second month's work with even greater success than at first. He has organized 8 new lodges and reorganize three more, 11 in all, with a charter membership of from 18 to 88, the average being about fifty.

About eight hundred members have been added to the Order directly, besides the increase of lodges since his visit to them. I cannot give the particulars of his work at each place without occupying too much space. The Colonel is a fine speaker, a thoro Good Templar and a heart and soul prohibitionist and his labors here are telling for us as the work of no other man has ever done before. His appointments for this month are already made and duly advertised and the friends of temperance in each locality where he is to speak are kindly invited and earnestly solicited to assist in giving him a good hearing and to co-operate with him in forwarding the temperance cause.

Lodge Deputies and others concerned will please take notice that I have removed to Eugene City which will be my address in the future.

J. E. HOUSTON, G. Sec.

COMING.

Miss Lucia E. F. Kimball of Chicago, one of the ablest and most accomplished speakers, writers and organizers of the National W. C. T. U., is soon coming by invitation to the West and probably to the Pacific Coast. She is Superintendent of the Sabbath School Work of the National W. C. T. U. "One of the ablest etc.," is what Miss Willard says of the talented lady who has been chosen among all those magnificent women workers, to take in charge that very important matter of introducing temperance lessons into the Sunday schools.

The W. C. T. U. of this State will derive a new life from the visit of Miss Kimball and the cause of temperance will surely be largely benefitted. The Good Templars and every genuine friend of temperance and Christianity should use every effort to give her a cordial welcome and to make her presence with us productive of a generous harvest of good influences.

Miss Kimballs address is 644 West Monroe St. Chicago. Will California and Oregon exchanges please announce the expected visit of Miss Kimball?

PROFITS OF RAISIN CULTURE.

The Chronicle says:

"A small vineyard of raisin grapes is in this State the poor man's friend. This is demonstrated by the success of the growers of raisin grapes in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties. We do not mention other counties only from a want of that exact information essential to a statement of much value. The Riverside Press (San Bernardino) presents the figures in detail of what was accomplished there in 1881, 1880 and 1879, in this line by the owners of small vineyards. One grower in 1879 realized 90 cents net on every vine, which was about $600 per acre; another 70 cents, or $464 per acre. In the last-named instance the vines were but four years old; which makes the production most astonishing. The Press does not say how many acres this vineyard contained. It does say, however, that it was well tended. Let us assume that it was three acres, and figure on that assumption:

	Expenses.
Cost of land at $100 per acre	$ 300
Cost of inclosing land at $40 per acre	120
Cost of preparing land, $8 per acre	24
Cost of 2000 vine-roots at 5 cents	100
Planting, at $10 per acre	30
Cultivating at $10 per acre for four years	120
Total outlay	$ 694

Here the Chronicles arithmetic went adrift but when corrected it reads thus:

	Income.
Three acres, fourth year, at $464 per acre net	$1392
Deduct total expenses for the four years	694
Net earning	$ 698

The net earnings from one crop over all the costs and expenses for four years was $698 or $174,50 a year. After the fourth year for the next fifteen years the production will increase from year to year, and the net profits are to be ascertained by deducting from the gross amount of sales the costs of cultivation and pruning—say $20 per acre, the cost of picking the grapes, of the boxes for the raisins, of curing and packing. Another example supplied by the same paper will explain these details of cost. It is that of a vineyard of six acres, which in 1881 yielded 1190 boxes of raisins, sold for $2275. The expenses were $775.

That is $129 per acre. The gross earnings were $379 per acre. Deduct expenses and the net earnings were $250 per acre, or $1500 for the vineyard of six acres. The age of the vines in this vineyard is not stated. If they were but four years old the net profits in one year paid the costs of the land at $100 per acre, together with all the expenses for the four years, and left a balance of $18 66 per acre in favor of the owner. In other words, the vineyard's one crop paid for land and all expenses, with $18 65 over, and every year after that will pay at least, $1500 net. In this case, too, all the labor was hired. Of course a poor man with a family would avoid that, the heaviest item of expense. There is reason for the belief that a well-selected and well-attended vineyard of raisin grapes after the seventh year is good for a net profit of $400 to $500 per acre per year. Five acres of this sort of property would be worth more to the owner than 160 acres of the best wheat land in the State in the course of five years' cultivation."

Thus we see that there will be in the future no good reason for prostituting the beautiful vineyards of the State to the business of promoting debauchery and brothelry, crime and pauperism. With a government railroad built to Omaha, the grapes that will not make first class raisins could be disposed of in the Eastern markets fresh, at even a larger net profit to the producer than the raisins yield. And when the canning industry is perfected and real wine, unfermented, wholesome, nourishing and delicious is put up for table use at a reasonable cost, every product of the vine can be utilized to better advantage than making drunkards; and the refuse skins etc., may be used to produce all the alcoho that will be found necessary for preserving dead bugs and snakes and making varnish.

In Chili, in July their mid winter, there are fresh grapes in the market which seem to have been hung up in a cool place and thus preserved in the cluster. They are a little shrunken but would readily sell for ten or twelve cents a pound here at Christmas.

IN MEMORIAM.

Cambria Lodge, No. 445, on Jan. 28th, adopted resolutions memorial of Bro. Abraham Ludlow recently deceased, the first to be called from its membership. The lodge bears testimony to his excellent record and tenders sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

OBITUARY.—James Harlow died of pneumonia, in Bloomfield, Cal., Jan. 30, 1882, aged 57 years, 10 months. For four years he has been a member of the M. E. church. Lived most of his life without God and without hope in the world. Thru the piety and consistent life of his wife he was led to believe in the Christian religion, and gave himself to God. He has always been a warm advocate of the cause of temperance, and in his life belonged to the different orders. When he died, he was W. C. in the I. O. G. T. of this place. In his death the order will suffer a great loss. He was firm in his principles, unwavering in his purpose. Having once decided, nothing could turn him from the path he had chosen. His religion and temperance principles cost him loss of friends and dislike of foes; but none of these things moved him; neither counted he his life dear to him so that he might finish his course with joy.

The lodge passed resolutions of sympathy and condolence. He leaves four children and many friends to mourn his loss. C. G. MILNES.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

San Gabriel has launched a Band of Hope, 11 adults and 20 juveniles. And the wine makers dont like it. A good many more things will happen ere long which they wont like, but after a while they will be thankful that they were not permitted to engulf themselves and their country and their children in a sea of debauchery and misery as the wine interest would have it.

Subscribers this week. Vallejo 1; Wilmington 1; Gilroy (J. W. Tomasson) 3; West Virginia 3; Marysville 2; Davisville 1; Pine Grove 1; J. W. Webb (San Bernardino 16, Riverside 20;) Clipper Gap (W. Crowhurst) 1; Garberville 5; Porterville 1; Jonesa Lodge 6; Woodland 1; Oakland 1; 63 in all.

Mr. John S. Woolsey of Gilroy invents every best kind of labor-saving machine that is wanted round a ranch from making cheese to suiciding gophers. He has a machine that presents irresistible attractions to gophers and squirrels. Send and enquire.

Oregon.—This week a small package of sample Rescues of the 16th goes to every lodge in Oregon and Washington Ty. It is cheering to hear of Col. Long's success there and it is hoped something will henceforth appear in this paper specially relating to Oregon. Our cause and our army and our warfare are one. It is hoped the Oregon Good Templars will endeavor to make use of the Rescue in the furtherance of their work. Subscribers are asked to send for it; not to help the Rescue, but to make the Rescue a useful help to them and their work.

The Pacific Business College is an institution that every one should send his boy to for a most necessary business education, if he expects the man to keep up with the coming woman—and thousands of our girls should take a course of instruction there too, if they intend to keep as far ahead of the ordinary male tobacco soaker as the coming woman hopes to and can.

Studebaker the wagon man was left out of the list of advertizers last week; it was missed because it was a whole page; next week it will be the text of a little sermon to the boys.

How much better and more useful M. C. Hawley & Co's ad and pictures look than the quack medicine portraits and whisky bottles which are used to ornament some of the family journals.

Carriages.—Look at W. P. Miller's advertizement on page 270. Go to Stockton to get an artistic light carriage and patronize a Good Templar who employs sober labor and sober skill to put his work together. If you want a two ton wagon to carry a hundred pound load, dont go near him, he cannot suit you there; but if you want a hundred pound wagon that can carry a two ton load he can supply you if any one can, with just what you want.

David C. Cook's new catalogue is the first catalog that has ever come to hand that is interesting reading of itself. Every person who has an interest in seeing this country rid of the horrible murderous crime of drunkard-making and crime-breeding should send for this circular which will be sent free. It contains full instructions for the ordering and distributing of the most useful temperance literature. This can be done at a tenth of the cost of old methods and the trifling expense need not be borne now as formerly by the distributor. Everybody will be willing to pay for them. Send to D. C. Cook 148 Madison St. Chicago.

The Sunday law was defamed Monday evening by J. L. York ex-assembly man of Santa Clara, who tried to lecture against it at Dashaway Hall. He said he was not a candidate again because "it made a thief and liar of a man to go to the legislature." He was candid in telling his own experience thus far and added "no man could be elected if he told the truth." His audience was Marx P. Shetzel the gutter buzzard of the league of outlaws and 29 other people. With the above prelude he opposed Sunday and prohibitory laws. He and Mark P. and the 29 are a formidable army to confront. It is a very difficult point to decide whether some men are more wolves in sheeps clothing, or sheep in wolves clothing.

W. D. Comstock, Corner 5th and K Streets, Sacramento.—Most unfortunately the printer in setting up the advertisement of Mr. Comstock for the edition of the 16th, took the K street in the copy for M street and the copy-holder in reading proof did the same. And more unluckily notice was not given of the error till the first side of this issue was printed and had repeated it. Will the reader please peruse the ad. carefully thru this time and substitute at top and bottom a K for that wicked M, call on the proprietor, tell him you know it was done on purpose, but that you will buy half a dozen chairs, a sofa and a bureau just to punish the Rescue and make him even.

Canada has been so overun with wildcat mutual aid societies and their agents that an act has been passed compelling any institution professing mutual insurance there to make a large deposit with the government before they can do any business. There have been no national associations started yet with their head quarters in Alaska, but we may expect soon to hear of the Providential Aleutian Alaska Fur Sealers National Benevolent and Fraternal Whalebone and Walrustooth Mutual Protective Association; charter fee only $100, entry fee only $10. Dutcher and Watson Agents for Cal.

West Virginia has failed to pass a two-thirds vote in favor of submitting a constitutional prohibitory amendment. In the assembly it had forty votes against twenty; but required 44. As usual there were four or five rats who were depended on, but they skulked and declined to vote at all; which was exactly equivalent to voting no. Such miserable tallow dips of men are more to be despised than the open dogcollared slaves of the dramshop.

Riverside Lodge branches out with 20 subscribers for the Rescue and a picture of Mrs. Hayes for their hall. They advertised Bro. Webb's lectures too, in most liberal and effective style. By the way a family of very good citizens in Canada who intended removing soon to Boston, but are attentive readers of the Rescue, have almost made up their minds to come to Riverside in preference. They will doubtless send a committee of one to see it this summer. Tell us something good from Riverside every time. It is a worthy ambition to endeavor to have a Pacific Coast Boston with all the many objectionable features of the original kept carefully trimmed out.

Cannot be helped:—Some good friends will wonder their communications have not appeared in this paper of late. They must be comforted with the assurance that each one of them is not alone but in a large and respectable company, and it is impossible to stow a bushel of the best material in a one quart basket. Pens, inkbottles, books, table, are smothered under loads of manuscripts and the only place for any body to find room and get square justice done him is on the subscription list; communications for thatdepartment are always given a prompt and most patient attention at any sacrifice.

Livermore Lodge has lately had a public meeting of unusual interest; installation followed by musical program and readings from the local temperance Star Mr. Langan editor. The new W. C. T. is principal of the public school Mr. J. T. Mc Donald. It is always an especial pleasure to note the fact that so many of the teachers of California are setting a good example to their pupils and so thoroly comprehending and so admirably acquitting themselves of the grave responsibilities which devolve upon them.

The fastidious salad-maker who insists on having genuine imported olive oil will be horrified to learn that a large portion of that delectable article is manufactured from cotton seed oil, exported to Europe from the Southern States. He will, however, be able to sympathize with the lover of genuine imported French wines when he finds that a large portion of them are made of glucose, potatoes, rotten apples, dried prunes, dates, figs, raisins, currants, red beets, and worst of all the flowers of the bassia tree, which, when properly dried, form in connection with water and sugar an excellent base for the manufacture of artificial wine. During November and December 250,000 bales of bassia blossoms were imported into France and converted into French wine, much of which swill is drunk by knowing Americans under the impression that it is the pure juice of the grape.—Chronicle.

What nonsense it is to complain of the bassia blossom and glucose wine. It will make men and women as drunk as the wine made from rotted grape juice; it will make them fight as quick, steal as quick, lie as quick as the other. It is just as good as any to make people do any thing mean, nasty, wicked or cruel and what more do people want of wine? Let us do justice to everybody—tell the truth and let people steal and lie on bassia and turnip juice (they cant adulterate them) and let the grape be used as food, the way God made it to be. A grape of the most luscious variety is not a particle superior when rotted and putrid to the rotten turnip or rotten apple or cabbage and the alcohol produced from its decayed sugar is precisely identical with that of the rotten turnip and apple.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

BY B. W. RICHARDSON, M. D., F. R. S.

IV.—ALCOHOL AND PRACTICAL ABSTAINERS.

Again, we have traced out that this agent acts just as do other such agents. Men of science have come by a common consent to this position, that there must be a certain point when the quantity must not be taken beyond that point. There is not a single physician living, who is a thotful man, not a man of any moment in the scientific world of thot, or of literature bearing on science, or in debate, who would not tell you candidly and honestly at this day that there must be a very strict border drawn as to where this influence must stop. Twenty years ago men did not think of a limited quantity at all. "Oh!" says the man who wishes to please all parties and preach moderation—to those who abstain and those who take a little—"you may take a little, but it must not exceed the physiological quantity," no more than you can by your good health dispose of without injury to yourself. "You may take one and a half ounces of alcohol, if you like, in twenty-four hours." That means a very minute quantity indeed. It would be represented by two or three glasses of ale. "You may take that in the twenty-four hours, but you must not exceed that quantity. If you do, then you run the certain risk of slipping into disease." Now we have brot the matter down to a very fine point indeed, and some even reduce the quantity still lower. One of the most distinguished men in this kingdom, who was presiding where I was speaking the other day, said that when he went out hunting or to public gatherings the most he could take was a teaspoonful of this spirit. I said, "Practically you are an abstainer." "Yes," he replied, "but that just prevents me declaring myself." There are thousands who, knowing these facts, actually take a small quantity to avoid being called abstainers, waiting until the cause gets greater strength and power. Still this is a hopeful position.

CONSISTENCY.

BY W. C. KING.

The second assertion by ihe Congregationalist was: "Alcohol, * * in its natural combinations etc., is assimilated and digested.

What are its "natural" combinations? Will the editor of the Congregationalist please tell us where in nature's domain alcohol is found? It is no more a product of nature than gunpowder. It is the result of chemical action—the product of decay. How often this has been repeated and how well known to the world; and yet we read in such a paper as the Congregationalist of its "natural combinations."

"But," says our editor no doubt, "I find it thus in my light wine." Will alcohol in wine differ from the vital element in whisky? If distilled can they be distinguished one from the other? How does God give us the grape juice in its natural combinations? Examine a bunch and you will notice they are arranged on a stem—each with a nearly airtight covering called the skin. Within is the pulp, a large portion of which is liquid. To secure wine, this must be rudely crushed and the liquid pressed or drained out. We will then have grape sugar in solution in water. Allowing this to stand exposed in a high temperature for some time, a chemical change will take place; the particles of sugar torn asunder, carbonic acid gas allowed to escape and oxygen, hydrogen and carbon will unite, forming alcohol. If we will not interfere with this process of decay, in due time an acid will take its place and eventually this will escape and sediment and water alone remain.

By the use of artificial means, we can stop the chemical change, retain the alcohol, clarify it and have what our editor calls its "natural" combinations.

Was ever a more delusive falsity disseminated? Had we allowed the pulp to remain in the covering provided for it, we would have had no alcohol.

God placed that airtight covering around it for the definite, distinct purpose of preventing this very change.

Man thwarts His purpose, undoes His work, rots the sugar, has only the water remaining that was furnished in the luscious grape, which holds in solution the fiery poison he has gained by destroying a valuable element. Leaving the grape as God made it, you may rot a million bushels and not find one drop of alcohol among them all.

Leave the apple as nature furnished it, covered with its air excluding skin and you will have no hard cider.

How taxing to the patience to find exploded theories thrust upon us from a source where only assistance might be justly expected. But exploded theories alone are not all that is found in the above, but assertions not true to facts as well. Alcohol has no natural combinations—they are all artificial. From first to last, its production is the result of the destruction of nature's useful products. Its very birth throes are a knell of death and decay—hence its nature is evil and only such; therefore the results around us are effect following cause.

This being true, what folly to strive to place it on a plane with beefsteak, claiming that it is only injurious when used to excess. The claim that it is assimilated and digested is most conclusively answered in the extract from Dr. B. W. Richardson's last work to be found in another part of this paper. Notice especially his closing words.

And now need I affirm that my object in reviewing these words has only been an unprejudiced love of truth? No lover of humanity can observe the attitude of many wealthy churches and influential organs of the same toward this noble cause without keen pain. If aid to us can not be deigned, why abet our enemies?

PUBLIC OPINION.

ED. MAIL:—Thirty-seven new Lodges of this Order have been established the current year, commencing Oct. 1st, and the Order has 362 lodges and over 18,000 members in this state, and all pledged to reform the morals of the different communities in which the Lodges are situated, and are entitled to the active support of all moral persons in their laudable efforts in this direction. Come, join hands with those who are willing to make personal sacrifices to create a sentiment that shall scatter to the four corners of the earth the outlaws who have banded themselves as a "League of Freedom." Yes, they offer us such freedom as their avarice and greed for gain would bring our children and our neighbors' children under their system of saloon education, which does nothing good, nothing but pander to their appetites and interest. They would override every moral, social, patriotic and business consideration that they might fatten on the proceeds of the traffic which makes night hideous and the Sabbath a gala day. Industry and intelligence pay the bills of ignorance, idleness and vice. And oh how long shall it be so! "Love of God, love of country, love for your fellows, love for yourselves, should move all in this matter. And now is the time. Let us be up and doing while the day lasts.

GOOD TEMPLAR.

A HORRIBLE CALLING.

The opinion of the utter vileness of the occupation of a bar-keeper and liquor seller, held by one of themselves, was lamentably emphasized in the recent suicide of Albert B. Woods at Colusa. (By the way, his name resembles very closely that of the writer of this item.) This young man of twenty years, was engaged about six months ago as night clerk in the "Colusa House," where he became warmly attached to a young lady residing at the hotel, whom he frequently accompanied to church etc. Later, he was "promoted" to bar-tender, and the young lady, while reminding him that she regarded him with no less favor, thot he had not best continue to escort her to church while he was tending bar, as it might subject her to unpleasant comment.

He coincided with her, but fell into a morbid melancholy on the subject of his degradation to the occupation of a bar-tender, and made it a subject of frequent conversation, saying at times, "See how low I have fallen." Beside he became very intemperate. On the 4th of February, he escorted his lady friend from the skating rink to the parlor of the hotel; was intoxicated, mourned over his miserable calling as usual and shot himself.

Every one will sympathize with the young lady whose name is innocently associated with this sad occurrence. But it may be in order to suggest to those who may ever happen to be able to exert an influence upon young men, that much happier results will follow that influence if it is employed to discourage them from ever accepting such degraded and criminal and devilish employments.

OTHER STATES.

Nebraska will doubtless very soon follow the example of Kansas; Iowa is ready to pass a constitutional amendment before the end of the year. The assassination by the rum sellers of Col. W. B. Smith in Omaha, clerk of the U. S. Court, because he was enforcing the law, has arroused much indignation against the traffic.

The sentiment is growing very fast in the Southern States in favor of prohibition, and we may expect to have many of them passing a constitutional amendment sooner than the polititians expect. Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana and some others have largely reduced their rum licensed area already. West Va. proposes to make no exception in favor of "sacramental wine." The M. E. church leads there and the Baptist and others follow in the line of prohibition.

Pennsylvania is to have a two days state temperance union meeting in its legislative assembly hall. Delaware and New Jersey are actively at work also.

Massachusetts is petitioning for a temperance amendment. The sweet influences of Harvard College carried Cambridge for license lately. Worcester, the home of John B. Gough for about thirty years, has gone for license. But Newton and Auburndale where the people never allowed a grogshop, voted against license 1349 to 153.

All the governors of New England States are civilized men; they are total abstainers; they live on a higher moral plane than a good many Indians, Germans and Irish of the lower types of those nationalities.

New York too, is clamoring for a constitutional amendment. All the indications point to a speedy dethronement of the horrible reign of the rum seller with his body guard aud trainband of thieves, tramps, murderers, idiots and paupers.

LIQUORS AT THE UNIVERSITY.—The habeas corpus case of Joseph McClain was argued and submitted yesterday afternoon in the Supreme Court. McClain is contesting the validity of Section 172 of the Penal Code, prohibiting the sale of vinous or alcoholic beverages within a mile of the University grounds at Berkeley, and contends that it is objectionable to four sections of the Constitution, besides being repugnant to the fourteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution.—Chronicle.

It is strange that we cannot have a law at all that drunkard makers disapprove of. All other classes of men must bow to the law of the country; but the people who are licensed by law to outrage man and woman and childhood, are not disposed to acknowledge any other law than that particular one which licenses them to commit crime. And it is not to be expected that licensed murderers are going to obey the law of men who protect them in the defiance of the laws of God and of justice and common decency.

The grogshop and gambling house league has lately made two important captures; the chief clerk of the light house Commissioner and the clerk of the Quartermaster's department have been detected in extensive robbery of the funds in their charge. Time that drinking clerks and drinking employees were removed from all public and private trusts. Thousands of the men who have robbed their employers by forgery and theft, would have gone thru life honored and honest and respected but for the infernally seducing and debauching effects of moderate drinking cultivated.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

The W. C. T. Union adheres without a thot of wavering to the fact that all that is needed to bring about prohibition is to make the long suffering people realize the cause of their suffering. We are often asked "What are the aims of this organization, and what are the results?" The aim of this society is to convince people that they can be free, and as we consider the power of the press boundless, we have devoted much time to both daily and weekly papers, to papers secular and religious. The columns of all have been open to us, To none have we been more heartily welcomed than to those of the RESCUE.

We believe this subject to be of paramount importance. If the question of the near future is to be—temperance or intemperance then let the daily papers discuss it as they would any other topic of vital importance. Our aim is to convince the public that it is of vital importance. The papers of our State reach hundreds of thousands of homes and this matter is discussed by the fireside where all great reformations begin. We are confident from the numberless letters received that the press is doing its part in setting before the world the need of reformation on this subject. We do not mean merely reforming drunkards as is often supposed, but we do mean reforming those who are so constituted that they feel quite safe if their own families are temperate. We endeavor to impress upon all, that as patriots and Christians we must arouse to the evils about us if from no higher motive than that of self preservation. A prominent lawyer said to me recently, "One reason so many cases are decided in favor of the liquor sellers is that whenever a case on their side is to be brot up, the court room is thronged with their friends and the very support they are receiving on every hand influences those who are to give their decision. This public support for or against the cause has always been felt, hence we are aiming to make temperance people more pronounced, more fearless, so that a man taking his stand on the temperance question may know that he will be supported at least by the presence of the friends of the cause.

We are aiming more and more to form public opinion. That we have also been successful here is apparent in many quarters. A wise General never reveals his stroug points until the battle is over and if the onlookers seeing only his weak points begin to censure him he still works on, carrying out his plan which is known only when the victorious banner floats from many a citadel. There are points in our work that will be known only by the results. There is earnest prayer and earnest work.

The time for aggressive action on the part of those in public life has arrived. The day for half way measures if it ever existed is a thing of the past; there is a power that will be felt more and more in the years to come. The quiet unseen power behind the throne has ever been the most potent, therefore if the W. C. T. U. does not come to the front on public occasions, none the less is it sowing beside all waters. We have sent tens of thousands of circulars to teachers, pastors, editors, to all moulders of public thought, asking them to give expression to their convictions.

We are aiming to convince the world that at some point each life touches some other. A gentleman on the Hudson, not fancying the way temperance work was conducted proudly drew himself back affirming haughtily, that it was a subject which in no way interested him. An hour later when his half drunken coachman was unable to control the horses he was driving, and his only daughter was thrown to the ground and maimed for life he decided that intemperance did affect him. Men of clear heads and warm hearts are needed in this work.

When President Arthur was a candidate for the Vice-Presidency, in writing an acceptance of his nomination, it is stated that he said "It seems to me that the rules which should be applied to the management of the public service may properly conform to those which regulate the conduct of successful private business men. This assertion applies with equal force to temperance workers. It is high time that Christian people ceased holding themselves aloof saying, "This temperance work is very well for those who are interested in it, but temperance people are fanatical." If they are calm and successful workers let them aid rather than look stoically on and criticise. Suffering will arouse one out of a half stupor. Must we all suffer before we are wide enough awake to save others. There are perhaps thousands of us who have never felt the sting of the serpent in our own families, but there are tens of thousands, hundreds of thousands on our coast who have felt it, whose lives have been blighted by this evil, and one might as well have told Frederic Douglas as he lay bruised and bleeding beneath the hot Southern sun with the marks of the slave-drivers lash upon his quivering flesh, to speak calmly on the subject of slavery. There were men who did not need to know by their own sufferings what slavery meant, they knew that the weak must be protected by the strong and right boldly by pen, pulpit, press and sword they wiped out the stain. We have no fettered press to-day, but we have fettered tongues, fettered not so much thru fear, we believe, as thru indifference. This subject has been too much an outside thing. We believe it should be voted upon like lying, stealing, profanity, then possibly people would be more cautious about taking the steps that ultimately end in drunkenness.

Thirdly we are aiming to make people more intelligent regarding this matter. It has been said that there is no subject upon which so much has been said, and so little information given, as upon the subject of temperance. Addresses are made, and the audiences are convulsed with laughter or moved to tears and go away thinking something ought to be done on this matter, but they are not told what to do, and the matter is soon forgotten. They are told that liquor destroys mind and body and soul but as that was a self evident truth of which they had daily illustrations they were not in the least interested in that. Now we aim to show how it destroys mind body and soul, how liquor eats up the brain, stomach and——God only can tell how it acts upon the soul.

We are resolved that the next generation shall know more regarding this evil, its origin, the effects of different kinds of liquors; that they shall be so well informed that when they reach manhood they will be able and willing to assert themselves, and not stand with closed lips, through ignorance or for fear of giving offense to some one who has a vote. It is said that a law of Pytbagoras prononnced every free man infamous, who, in questions of public interest did not take sides. Let public opinion become such that no man can hereafter be neutral on this subject; he must array himself on the side of temperance or intemperance. If this generation cannot tell where they stand, we intend to so instruct the next that they will know.

Ours is a work of prevention. Many time honored workers in this cause have found that the energy spent in reformation will tell infinitely more in saving the young. Dr. Cuyler recently said, "The past of my life has been largely spent in the work of reformation; God helping me, the future shall be spent in the work of prevention."

We are organizing the children into juvenile societies, we design introducing the same songs, into every society thruout the state. And in the years to come have a grand children's jubilee in San Francisco, whither the people shall come as the Jews went up to Jerusalem centuries ago. These children are not only to learn songs, but learn to read such books as, "Drinks from Drugs," sent out by David Cook's Chicago Temperance Revolution Publishing House; a house that is working a revolution by its temperance literature, published so cheap that all may own it. They will know that "wine" means drugs, and be more cautious regarding its use than their parents were, who learned only by sad experience.

All classes aid us in this work either consciously or unconsciously. The most staunch defender of his right to sell liquor, is sorry indeed to see his boy drinking day by day, and so throws no obstacle in our way of saving the children.

We have had at every point the kind co-operation of the Good Templars as well as of the churches. This work, begun at the East in prayer, has been blessed from Maine to California. It is utilizing the power of Christian women, which has been such a blessing in all ages in the church and world. It is a power that feels no fear, that knows no doubt, that believes, that if all the powers of earth combine there can be no defeat, for,

"Behind the dim unknown,
Standeth God within the shadow keeping watch above his own."

President W. C. T. U.

A GOOD SCHOOL.

One of the great problems of family life is where to find a school to wnich you feel you can safely send a child, when it needs educational advantages that your own neighborhood does not afford.

I think I know of one and, unsolicited, I say now what I intended saying when I spoke in the RESCUE of my visit and lecture at Gilroy, Santa Clara Co. I had for many years been personally acquainted with Miss Severance and her sister, of the Young Ladies' Seminary of that town, learning to esteem them and the school very highly when I lived and labored there as a pastor. When last in that place, I took an early opportunity of visiting the school, and was forcibly reminded of the thoroness, comprehensiveness and good judgment displayed in the course of study and the manner of teaching. This, combined with the kindly yet firm discipline, and the homelikeness of the school, under the management of the scholarly and Christian lady whose name it bears, makes it a safe and desirable place for girls away from home. That temperance, from principle and enlightened scientific convictions, will be both taut and practiced, those who have read Miss Severance's writings in the RESCUE and elsewhere will need no assurance from me. I may add that I show my faith by my works; our daughter has just left home to become a pupil in the school.

J. W. WEBB.

The above is heartily endorsed. The pupils of Miss Severance in addition to the advantages of competent and faithful instruction, will have before their eyes a model of womanly excellence which cannot fail to exert a wholesome influence upon them thru life.

BRANDY BRAINED LITERATURE.

An editor of a newspaper not a thousand miles from here, having received a jug of brandy and a pamphlet, first tasted the brandy and then read the pamphlet and here is an exact copy of what he printed. "We have received a pamphlet containing a report of several examinations made by certain medical, chemical and philosophical gentlemen relative to the character of the celebrated — brandy. It appears from the statements of these recognized experts that this brandy is the most this, that, and the other of all the samples submitted to them. And we don't doubt it in the least. How they found it all out, and what they mean exactly and what the precise difference amounts to, we shall not at this time explain—as our chemistry is a trifle shaky. But we do know that — brandy is a mighty soothing medicine to take especially on an empty stomach or after eating or between times, when you can get it, etc. He goes on to say that the brandy is produced in San Jose, and the proprietor's qualifications as a gentleman are principally from his being rich, and that "he would rather destroy a thousand gallons than sell one that is not perfect."

This may be a good advertisement for the brandy man of San Jose; it shows at least that the brandy will affect the brains of an editor, and like other liquors it will cause murders, sufferings and distress.

D. G. W. C. T.s COMMISSIONED.—The following commissions have been issued and forwarded from the Grand Worthy Secretary's office during the past week:

LODGE DEPUTIES.

Mrs. Fannie Shepard for No. 455, Georgetown.
O K Jones for No. 138, Willows.
W E Gallison for No. 175, Mariposa.
Henry Smith for No. 433, Red Bluff.
F J Rhoades for No. 183, Cosumnes.
Jno. McMillan for No. 464, Garberville.
E A Beardsley for No. 473, Savannah.
J B Clothier for No. 461, Birds Landing.

DEGREE TEMPLARS

J H Ashbrook for No. 198, Tehama.

P. G. W. C. T's.—California has but three living members within the order who enjoy the distinction of being Past Grand Worthy Chief Templars, and they are as active to day in the cause as before they received their honors. The ranking, P. G. W. C. T., is Dr. C. S. Haswell of Lodi, who served as G. W. C. T. for four years, from 1863 to 1867. During last term, he served his subordinate lodge, Lodi No. 189, as W. C. T., and is of course its present P. W. C. T. The next is Capt. Albert D. Wood, who served as G. W. C. T. during five years, from 1869 to 1874 and is the present editor of the RESCUE. The next and present P. G. W. C. T., of the Grand Lodge, is Bro. Will D. Gould of Los Angeles, who served as G. W. C. T. for two years from 1877 to 1879. This brother has just been installed, and is serving his lodge, Merrill No. 299, as W. C. T. Truly by their fruits ye shall know them.

THAT HUNDRED DOLLARS.—It appears that the one hundred dollars contributed by Mr. David Jack of Monterey, to the Good Templars Home for Orphans, was not especially solicited by Sister Stevens, but in her plea for the Order and its work, and when describing the good accomplished by the order in its Home for Orphans, that Mr. Jack was moved to the extent of promising Mrs. Stevens a check for one hundred dollars for the Home Fund during the time she was lifting her collections, which promise was made good and the money paid to Mrs. Stevens, who in turn paid it over to the Grand Lodge. It is hoped that the story of the one hundred dollars is now correctly stated and that many more hundred dollar contributions may thus be received. There is need of money to care for the orphans, and there are many who could follow the excellent example of Mr. Jack by going and doing likewise and scarcely missing the amount thus contributed. Next.

HUMBOLDT.—Humboldt Lodge of Eureka Humboldt County reports a membership of 124 and accompanies its quarterly returns and Grand Lodge tax, with a donation of $25 to the Home for Orphans Fund. The L. D., Bro. L. B. Kingsbury in transmitting returns says, "I have never seen the Lodge as prosperous as during past quarter. Have already initiated two this term, and have two more proposed. The lodge held a public installation again this quarter which proved a pleasant affair. Some of the members rendered the drama of 'The last leaf,' which was well received by the audience which filled the hall, after which we had refreshments and singing."

PERSONALS.—During the past week the Grand Lodge office was favored with calls from the following members of the Order: Col. C. N. Goulding, Grand Lecturer, who was hors de combat and en route for San Francisco for repairs and treatment. The brother returns at once to the field however as per published announcement elsewhere. Bro. D. K. Zumwalt, P. G. W. C., chairman of the Grand Lodge Finance Committee, of Visalia Lodge No. 48. Bro. E. R. Drew, W. S. of Elk Grove Lodge No. 248, Elk Grove. Mrs. M. J. Johnson of the newly formed lodge at Clarksville, El Dorado County.

GLEANINGS.—According to L. D., Bro. Rev. Geo. Morris of West End, Alameda Lodge is progressing finely. Whilst the returns of the lodge show 43 members, initiations since swell the number up to 60. A prosperous and useful career seems before them.....Coulterville Lodge of Mariposa County has its hall nearly paid for and promises to be one of the permanent institutions; organized but last September, it may well be said to have already achieved a partial victory, and classed as getting along "finely," as reported by its L. D., Bro. John W. Reed.....Donner Lake Lodge of Truckee, is still flourishing and contemplates opening a free reading room soon, as a means of keeping young men and others out of the saloons and slums. So says the L. D.,Bro. Wm. Douglass.....Lodge in a highly flourishing condition; members alive to the work and outsiders interested," is what Bro. A. W. Mock, L. D. of Garberville Lodge, Humboldt County writes.....Murphys Lodge of Calaveras, has passed the "hundred notch," reporting 101 members. The L. D., Bro. A. J. Cooke, is proportionately jubilant and says the lodge proposes to "hold the fort" and pick off the enemy as opportunity offers. The Lodge owns its hall which was recently dedicated, and the lodge is declared to have been anchored and is prepared to stay in Murphys.

Gleanings.—Brentwood Lodge of Contra Costa holds its own and receives a membership from the better class and firmer principled, as reported by the W. S., Bro. Rufus Smith. They continue to watch and vigilantly prosecute saloon keepers who violate the Sunday Law.....Fairfield Lodge of Solano Co., according to the L. D., Bro. A. W. Vance, is in a very flourishing condition and proposes and promises to make itself more so during the current quarter.....Rising Sun Lodge of Camptonville Yuba Co., is in the ascendant. It reports a decided gain in membership and L. D., Bro. Wm. Moore assures that the Lodge commences its new term under the most favorable auspices.....The newly organized lodge at Clipper Gap, Placer County, is reported by its L. D., Mrs. H. M. Ferris, as prospering and with an encouraged feeling to go on in the good work ..... Castroville Lodge of Monterey shows a gain of a dozen good members during the past term, a full treasury and the L. D., Bro. A H. Longley writes hopefully that the Lodge is gaining and has succeeded in closing the saloons on Sundays..... Bro. Geo. W. Hopkins, L. D. of North Star Lodge at Arcata Humboldt County writes, "Our Lodge is now on the sure road to prosperity. After a weekly arrest of six saloon keepers of this place and vicinity for five weeks in succession they are now effectually closed on Sundays. They thot it sport at first, but have learned differently."..... Enterprise Lodge No. 356 of Guernville Sonoma County is an enterprising institution. It has a free reading room under its management, which is well patronized. On the night of installation 7 candidates were initiated and 4 more are to travel the same sober road. Open temperance meetings are held once a month and invariably attract crowded audiences. All of which is gleaned from the report of L. D., Bro. N. E. Manning.....According to Bro. J. E. Murphy, L. D., Vesper Lodge, of Guadalupe, Santa Barbara County, still prospers. The saloons are closed on Sundays and will so continue from prudential motives. A "Law and Order Leag" has been organized with James Morse as Pres. and J. E. Murphy Sec.....Snelling Lodge of Merced Co. is in a prosperous condition, writes the L. D., Bro. Geo. W. Smith, showing a gain of membership all of whom are regular attendants and manifest a deep interest in the cause .....Paradise Lodge of Tehama County is reported by its L. D., Bro. C. S. Jobe as more prosperous than at any time in its previous history. By fall they propose having the entire community enrolled upon the register of the Lodge.

Bernard House, Vallejo, Feb. 6, 1882.

Pursuant to call of the G. W. C. T. the Executive Committee convened and was called to order at 8:30 o'clock P. M. Upon calling the roll there were found to be present G. W. C. T., Robt. Thompson of San Francisco; G. W. V. T., Mrs. E. P. Stevens of San Francisco; G. W. T., Dr. I. S. Halsey of Vallejo; G. W. S., Geo. B. Katzenstein of Sacramento. Absent P. G. W. C. T., Will D. Gould, of Los Angeles; G. W. C., H. S. Graves of West Butte. The minutes of the previous meeting held October 31st. were read and duly approved.

A communication from P. G. W. C. T., Bro Will D. Gould announcing his inability to attend the present meeting was read and ordered noted upon the minutes. The G. W. S. presented a report, of which the following are the more important points:

QUARTERLY RETURNS AND MEMBERSHIPS.

The largest file of quarterly returns received in the office of the G. W. S. of this State was that for the term ending October 31st last for which term there have been received returns from 326 Lodges, reporting a membership 16,841, add to this the 914 members admitted into the 38 new Lodges organized since the date above given and we have the largest membership yet recorded in this jurisdiction viz: 17,755 which at the present date has without a doubt swelled to a round 18,000 members. This calculation is exclusive of all delinquent Lodges, only such as filed bona fide returns being counted as "live Lodges."

The following lodges have notified me of their failure and surrender of charter viz: Nos. 100, 110, 162, 271, 292, 317, 371, 438 and 468, in all 9. The following Lodges have so far failed and neglected to file quarterly returns for the term ending October 31st last. Nos: 101, 106, 118, 142, 159, 173, 205, 240, 282, 287, 306, 383, 394, 395, 436, 439, 443 and 466 in all 18. Some of these are known to exist, but the majority probably "sleep the sleep that knows no waking," at least I have failed to arouse them sufficiently to report their condition. (436 and 453 have since reported.)

NEW LODGES

Since the last meeting of the Executive Committee, or during the months of November, December and January 38 new lodges have been organized. Of these the Grand Lecturers organized 31 as follows: Bros. Hughes 15, King 6, Crowhurst 4, Goulding 2, Webb 2 and Mrs. Stevens 2. The others were organized one each by Bros. Culver, Hawver, Katzenstein, March, Powers and Wales and Sister Mayhew.

The appended exhibit shows the location, date of organization, number of charter members, and the organization of each lodge reported:

CALIFORNIA LODGE NO. 7.

In November last I received a communication from the L. D. of No. 7 proposing to settle their account upon the basis recommended by the Finance Committee, at the last session of Grand Lodge p. 99 printed journal, provided I would give a receipt in full to date. I replied under date of Nov. 24, stating the Finance Committee had fixed the date of settlement July 31st and I had no authority to exend that date, however to settle the matter I proposed to anticipate an endorsement of my act and assumed to say that I would settle upon the basis proposed by them, by giving a receipt in full to date, upon their compliance with the terms proposed by the Finance Committee; up to date I have had no further communication or reply from said brother or lodge.

RIPON LODGE NO. 315.

January 16 I received a communication from Bro. W. A. Crowell, W. S. of Ripon Lodge announcing the destruction by fire of all the lodge work, furniture and paraphernalia of the Lodge, and asking upon what terms a new set of lodge work would be sent them. The lodge was organized but six weeks, having been organized Dec. 5, by Sister Stevens. Under the circumstances I thought it wise to send a full set of lodge work, (duplicating that sent them

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

THE CHINCHA ISLANDS.

NUMBER SIX.

In the Vivanco Revolution, a good many lives were lost and much damage was done, to enable a gang of villainous capitalists in New York to make dishonest, piratical plunder and to enable a pack of Peruvian traitors to overturn the elected government of their country and handle its funds. After the Islands were recovered by President Castilla, Mr. Sartori went on a mission in the interior, with private verbal instructions and a written slip of paper from Vivanco, the rebel chief. He was captured by Castilla and informed the writer that he swallowed the paper which might have consigned him to death as a spy. Mr. Castilla dismissed him after keeping him a prisoner three weeks, saying his being a citizen of the U. S. saved him from the punishment due a spy, as Peru was not able to wage war with this country. Mr. Sartori then went to Lima and had the unblushing effrontery to present a claim of $240.000 against Peru for false imprisonment. That was a fair sample of the way a good many American citizens have prosecuted claims for ill-treatment and false imprisonment, when the only injustice committed was the failure to hang or shoot the rascally claimant.

The capture of the islands by the Vivanco and New York freebooters, put a stop for many weeks and months to the loading of the vessels chartered by the government. More than 100, perhaps 150 of them were congregated in 1857, awaiting the slow movements of the native authorities. Taking bribes to load some vessels quickly and make others wait, was never countenanced by the government, but the officials always yielded to the sweet influences of a bag of dollars. The captains of English ships used always to do a little sly game with the less civilized officials they had to deal with. A bottle of rum or half a dollar to an underling and a dozen of first class turnip juice wine, or a demijohn of brandy to a superior, were always legitimate expenses in the disbursement accounts of an English captain. Beyond this limited area of bribery the English skipper never ventured; the Swede, German and Frenchmen were innocent of even that much liberality and were rated accordingly.

But American genius elevated bribery into a financial science. If an American ship was refused admittance into a crowded European dock or the dockmaster said there was not water enough for her to enter, a private enquiry was made as to how much money would thin the crowd or deepen the water, and the ship was pretty sure to be at work next day with her cargo going out or coming in. So at the islands, the Americans would offer $800 to $1600 to have their ships loaded quickly and there was always somebody to take the bribe.

The captains who paid $1000 cash and saved thereby perhaps $3000 or more of time and wages and board of crew, etc., thot they were very smart and their owners thot so too. But altho it looked so, it was a grand mistake. It was a present dishonest gain to be compensated by and by with a tenfold loss. After a few years of this system of bribery and many changes of officials, a Baltimore American was placed in charge of the shipments of guano. He found that all ships over 800 tons register had agreed in chartering to allow 93 running days for loading. Then he introduced a rule that every ship should pay from $30 to $50 a day, for every day saved of the 93; those who would not pay had to see out the last day of all that time. So, many shipowners that made money once or twice by bribing officials, were every year for ten or twelve years thereafter, obliged to pay $1500 to $2000 for the time they might have often saved free of expense but for the bribery system.

When a large fleet of vessels were at the Chinchas, there was sometimes a very pleasant society. Many of the captains had their families and relatives with them. The ship that had ladies on board had lots of visitors, and as most of the ships could get little cargo after noon, the evenings were long and passed very pleasantly. Thanksgiving, Christmas and July 4th were duly honored and once a year there was a regatta. Beside there were extraordinary occasions to which due honor was accorded. In 1854 the English captains gave a grand ball and party in honor of the fall of Sebastopol, and the French captains had a dinner on a more economical scale a few days after. After dinner and a good deal of champagne on the first occasion, a model of Sebastopol with its walls and towers and defences made in heavily frosted cake by an artistic confectioner cook in the fleet—was raised aloft with appropriate ceremonies and smashed in pieces on the deck; and there was a great time of rejoicing and hand shaking and waving of glasses and handkerchiefs and enthusiasm. A few days afterward news came that Sebastepol had not been captured and it resisted for a full year later.

In 1866 there was a regatta in October or November; it was a holiday in honor of something and no cargo was delivered. Many of the captains contributed $10 or $15 to have the show a creditable one. There were quite a number of prizes and a large number of competitors for them. One of the contributors gave his $15 on the express condition that it should go toward hiring a good band which could have been easily obtained.

But the committee appointed to make the preparations concluded to have no music but a fife and a guitar and to put the band money into champagne etc. So far as the consumption of drink went it was a success; but a few of the parties interested were very much disgusted.

It was a custom when a ship arrived to render every assistance in getting her berthed and moored safely and well. An officer and a boats crew would come from several of the ships which were not receiving cargo and render this assistance. When a ship was ready to sail, similar assistance was given to raise her anchors, haul out of the fleet and set sail in readiness for the coming breeze which always set in at about 9 to 11 A. M. All the captains friends were expected to breakfast on board that morning and say good-bye. These breakfasts were got up in style second only to Delmonico's on some of the fancy ships, and in many of them whose captains came from Eastern temperance homes there was on that morning an open wine room tolerated and practiced on the ground that "in Rome one should do as Romans do."

On the morning after the great regatta a clipper ship was going to sea and a large company assembled as usual at breakfast. One of those present read from a manuscript prepared the evening before a full report of yesterday's regatta, amplified and embelished with a spiritcd but good natured caricature of the drinking formalities which had been so conspicuous. It pretended to be an extract from the London Times cable report, contained letters of excuse from John Bright, H. W. Beecher, Louis Napoleon and the Pope, etc.,etc. It excited bursts of laughter and quite a number of people were employed for several days making copies of it; it was also translated into Spanish, and was afterward printed and had a wide circulation.

It was a very remarkable provision made for the exhausted and impoverished soils of many European countries, that these guano deposits had been forming for so many thousands of years. That on those little insignificant islands and some others in the Pacific and a few places on the coast of Africa, there should have been such fabulous stores of material for the fertilization of the fields of the farmers of far distant climes.

On those Chincha Islands, reckoning the guano worth only $40 a ton on the spot, there must have been $400,000,000 worth. And in all the other deposits of Peru, there must have been nearly an equal quantity. It is now of inferior quality and difficult to get at as well.

One would suppose that a country which was moderately prosperous before, might have become wealthy with such a grand income. It might have had a mercantile navy of its own, railroads and every species of internal improvement needed in the country. It might have developed all its mineral and other resources; but it did nothing of the kind.

It developed more drinking, gambling and fomented revolution, rebellion and war. The public revenues were utterly squandered right along: new debts created and new loans at ruinous discounts loaded on the country, till in 1875 the end of the game came. Peru vainly tried to borrow 15 million dollars to pay the balance of that years interest and her paper money went down to about 13 cents per dollar. Railroads had been built by Meiggs for which the Government had probably issued bonds covering five times their cost and then only two or three short lines paid working expenses.

To complete their downward march to destruction they went to war with Chile and got beaten in every engagement. And now the only hope for the future of Peru is that Chile may undertake the management of its finances, keep its people from civil war and try to make something of the utterly ruined country; ruined by easily acquired wealth and the wine cup and card table. The leag of freedom had possession of Peru and killed it.

THE DOINGS OF RUM.

Mrs. W. F. Craft says in the Banner, if she could make pictures on all the bridges as they do in Lucerne, Switzerland.

"I would draw the first picture: A miserable room, with a group of half naked hungry children huddled close about a little fire. Over in the corner of the room is a closet, with the door left open. There is nothing in the cupboard to eat.

In the second and third. A beautiful home, a mother sick in bed, a beautiful little boy waiting at the door for his papa. The father comes in so drunk that he does not know what he is doing. He strikes his little boy and kills him. Two graves—one of the little boy who was killed and the other of his mother, who died when she heard what had happened; a man, the father of the little boy being taken to an insane asylum.

In the fourth, fifth, and sixth. A little boy learning to drink wine and eat brandy-sauce at the dinner-table. The same boy grown to be a young man, drinking in a saloon with other gay young men. The young man in prison, expecting soon to be hung for murder committed when he was angry and half-drunk.

In the seventh. A miserable bloated woman, who has just died in the street, being carried off under the direction of some policeman. A crowd of rough people are gathered about, pointing their fingers at her, laughing and calling her names. She once lived in a happy home, was a good woman, little children loved her and called her "mother." She learned to love strong drink by taking it when she was sick.

In the eight and ninth. A minister standing in the pulpit of a large church and preaching to a great crowd of people who are listening with eager faces to hear every word. The same minister dying in a drunkard's home, with no one but a servant by him to speak a kind word.

In the tenth. A man lying dead in one corner of a large field, a pistol grasped in his hand, with which he has shot himself, and a whisky-bottle lying on the ground beside him.

The series of pictures I would like to paint on bridges where people would be obliged to look at them is not yet done, but I cannot make any more now. If you will try you can think of many more yourselves. Draw some frames on your slates and fill them up with thot-pictures about the doings of rum."

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

BAND OF HOPE DIRECTORY.

A number of Bands have been reported, since the revised list was published, and several changes in the names of Supt's; but as it is too much of a task for the printer to change the directory every week your patience is asked for a few issues. In the mean time, any corrections will be gladly received, that when the time arrives for changing, the list may be made perfect.

In regard to numbers, it is hoped no Band will feel aggrieved at the change which may have been made. As the list heretofore published in RESCUE was without numbers, and no reliable list was to be obtained, there was only one course to pursue—to re-number them as reports were received at this office.

There are in the State 105 Bands receiving supplies from the Grand Lodge. The average membership is 53. There are 11 Bands whose membership reaches 100 or over,—viz:—Woodland 250; Red Bluff, 227; Sacramento, 200; Healdsburg, 182; Modesto, 170; Lodi, 152; Central Stockton, 150; Ventura, 144; San Jose, 130; San Diego, 110; Home Vallejo, 100.

A number of other Bands will soon reach 100 as their reports show. About sixty Bands have been organized since the first of Oct. All over the state an interest is being taken in the juvenile work, and every mail brings letters of inquiry, and letters asking for supplies for new Bands. The conviction has forced itself upon every thinking Good Templar, that our hope lies in the children. And the time has come when this branch of the work must be actively pushed. Out of five adults, who are reformed, four are supposed to fall—but the reverse will be true of the children, nay more, out of fifty carefully trained in the Band of Hope, and taken into the Lodge at the proper age, probably not one will fall. A lady of large experience, says she has never known one thus trained, to form habits of drinking in after life.

TOBACCO.

In a recent visit to a lodge for the purpose of organizing a Band of Hope, it was suggestive to see the number of young men, who owned themselves slaves to tobacco. Many of them said they could not give it up and every one of them refused to attempt so difficult a task.

And it is obvious that unless a great struggle be made these young men will be bound by the chains of habit to this vile weed thru their lives or if they make the effort and conquer the habit, yet for years and perhaps always, the appetite will remain a constant source of trouble. Now it is so much better to go forth into manhood free; and aside from the moral and physical aspect of the matter, financially it makes a great difference to a young man whether he starts with this expensive habit. Men who have used cigars for twenty or thirty years have smoked up quite a respectable bank account. So let us teach the young around us never to form those habits which are both injurious to their moral and physical natures, and detrimental to their prospects in life—and are so hard to break up when once formed. M. E. RICHARDSON.

BOY'S SHOULD LEARN TRADES.

In all countries the workingmen boast that they form the backbone of the nation. Without entering upon the vexed question of who form the working classes, we think the most independent man in the country is he who learns a good and useful trade. Compared with him the poor clerk, salesman, and even many of the professions, have no calling or position that can bear a moment's comparison. If they thoroly master their trade, good workmen need never fear starvation; they will be always able to make a living. If trade is dull at one place they have only to change to another. Parents in most countries who are a little well off are too much disposed to turn up their noses at the trades, and instead of teaching their boys one of these, give them a first-class education, and then comparatively throw it away by putting them to what they falsely consider the more respectable employment of a clerk or salesman, that in general does not command half the remuneration. If parents would consult the future welfare of their children they will teach them trades. "Can do is easily carried about," and if their circumstances render it necessary for them to depend upon the labor of their hands, they can start the better in business in that trade on their own account; or, if a reverse of fortune should happen, they 'will have the power of earning a livelihood at their fingers' ends.—Scottish American.

A PAYING INVESTMENT.

The following is related of Father Stephen Paxson:

"He was offered at one time, on account of his extensive acquaintance with the West, and his integrity of character, a partnership in the purchase of Western lands. The offer was declined, because it would divert him from the Sabbath-school work. In after years, the gentleman who had made the offer showed him a memorandum that the lands had produced a revenue of $50,000; but Father Paxson, drawing his note book from his pocket, pointed to the record of 50,000 children gathered by him into Sabbath schools, and triumphantly exclaimed, 'I would not alter the record, nor change the investment.' "—Sel.

RESCUE THE CHILDREN.

Do not be frightened from this effort to rescue the children by the talk of those who say it is an injury to children to make them take the pledge. Those are persons who strain at the very tiniest and microscopical of gnats, while they will daily swallow the most monstrous of camels. We have in England, it is said, 600,000 drunkards. Well, now, as those unhappy drunkards go too often prematurely to a drunkard's grave, who is it that fills up the gaps? The gaps are filled up by those who are now sweet and innocent children—merry and honest boys and girls. God grant that no sweet and innocent children of ours shall ever go to add to the number of that fearfully recruited army. But it is recruited from those who are now the innocent children, the boys and girls of somebody—of human beings who have hearts like ourselves. Let us struggle, therefore, to save them.

The late Cardinal Wiseman said, "Give me the children of England, and in twenty years England shall be Catholic." I say, "Give us the children of England, and in twenty years England shall not only be temperate, but,"—and the words seem to open a vista of progress and prosperity such as we can hardly conceive—"England shall not only be temperate, but shall be a nation of total abstainers." Well, now I ask you, ladies and gentlemen, is it really an injury to induce children to take the pledge, or is it an injury with heartless prejudice and callous obstinacy to leave them exposed undefended to all the terrible temptations and enormous evils of driuk? It seems to me that if we can succeed in saving them from that, we may laugh to scorn the ridiculous notion that we do them harm by inducing them to give up that which they naturally do not like, and which can be nothing to them but a source of peril and ruin.—Crusader.

"THE REST IN TOBACCO."

A mother handed to her son,
When work of summer day was done,
Some silver coins—two, three or four,
And said, "Go to the village store,
Bring sugar and a little tea,
And mind that both of first class be—
"And get tobacco for the rest."

And so it is, I sat and thought,
Of such as this the world is fraut—
A little useful, good and pure,
A little wisdom to endure,
A little love for noble mien,
A little sweet, a little clean—
"And then tobacco for the rest."

A little sympathy for those
Bowed down by human cares and woes,
A little friendship for a friend,
A little cheer to scarcely blend
With fading brother's eking hope
A small, cool touch to help him up,
"And then tobacco for the rest."

A little spent for great reform,
To lift the life of man, and warm
A little for the gospel seed,
A little for the Temperance seed,
For placing vice beneath control,
For man and his age-living soul,—
"And then tobacco for the rest."

A little kindness in the home
Where kindred spirits go and come;
A little love-light in the eyes,
A little joy born of the skies;
A little sacred sweetness there,
A little touch of Eden fair,—
"And then tobacco for the rest."

"DONT BE HARD UPON HIM."

The spirit of the Master, who on the cross prayed for his cruel tormentors, was exhaled by a poor woman of whom Canon Wilberforce tells this anecdote:

Not long ago there was in my parish one of the bravest, purest and brightest of the wives of the workingmen I ever saw. All through her married life she had been praying for, bearing with and forgiving the man who had sworn to love and cherish her.

A short time ago he set his seal upon years of cruelty by raising his foot and kicking her savagely, and three hours after she had gone, "where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest."

The last words she spoke were whispered into my own ear—"Don't be hard upon him when I am gone. He is so kind when he doesn't drink.

They laid the little form of her prematurely born infant by her side, and her four other little ones followed to the grave one more victim to the arch-fiend Rum.—From the Youth's Companion.

SENSIBLE GIRLS.

A number of Maine girls have formed a protective union and adopted a series of resolutions for their government. The following extract from the constitution and by-laws gives a very fair idea of the nature, aims and objects of the society: "That we receive the attention of no self-styled young gentleman who has not learned some business or engaged in some steady employment; for it is apprehended that after the bird is caught it may starve in the cage. That we will promise marriage to no young man who is in the habit of tippling, for we are assured that his wife will come to want and his children go barefooted. That we will marry no young man if he is not a patron of his neighborhood newspaper, for it is not only a strong evidence of his want of intelligence, but that he will prove too stingy to provide for a family, to educate his children or encourage institutions of learning in his community."—Ex.

SOMETHING BEYOND.

An infidel who has been successful, financially, wrote above his office door the other day, "Life is a failure if there is nothing beyond." He has learned that earthly possessions are perishable, and is appalled at the thot of severed ties.

This life is, indeed, the saddest of all sad failures, if it is the sum of our being. We need an eternity; this life is enough for our differences and our heartaches, but not enough for our love. We need the never ending years that lie beyond. In our heart of hearts we are glad because of the promise—"I go to prepare a place for you." In the fulfilment of that promise we shall hear again the patter of the feet and the voices that were lost to us long ago. If silver hairs do not become brown or golden again, "over there," it will not trouble us, for each face will be radiant with immortal youth.—Golden Rule.

TRAIN THE SCHOLARS.

Yet, while nations are perishing, the schools of the nation are silent about their destroyer and the destruction. A hundred years ago our fathers struggled for national independence and won it with their blood. Patriotism put the story into every text book where it could be told or referred to, and as a result largely of that fact the children grew up a generation of patriots. A more terrible enemy than the armies of George III. has invaded our beautiful country and is now in almost full possession of our territory and our institutions. The schools should again serve their country by training every boy and girl to hate and oppose the invader, and help expel him from the land. Rev. GEO. K. MORRIS, A. M.

SAVED BY A TRACT.

At the recent meeting of the New York Christian Home for Intemperate Men one man a Presbyterian minister's son, related his experience, and told how he was reformed by reading a tract which had been handed to him. It was a little thing, but God uses the little things to help carry forward His Kingdom. Unbelievers may sneer at tracts and call them worthless, but thousands can testify that they have been instrumental in the salvation of their souls. The users of tracts in the effort to reform a lost world will continue their blessed work.—National Temperance Advocate.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

THE TEMPERANCE ALMANAC is out for 1882 with its usual large amount of useful information and reliable statistics. Contains 72 pages; list of the leading societies of temperance, and has a capital department for the children—ten cents single copies or $1 per dozen. Send to J. N. Stearns, 58 Reade Street, New York.

A few National Temperance Almanacs can be supplied at the RESCUE office; a 10 cent stamp will get one, and that is the cheapest way of remittance. The volume for 1832 is, as usual, full of good matter.

A FEW copies of the Proceedings of the recent National Temperance Convention at Saratoga, for sale at this office, 25 cents each; sent free by mail. Every Good Templar ought to have one.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

LETTER FROM TEXAS.

SOMETHING FOR CALIFORNIA GOOD TEMPLARS TO THINK ABOUT.

There are in Sulphur Springs, population 3,000, four lodges, representing as many different mutual aid secret societies. All of these lodges have a large membership. There are also a number of lodges of one of the orders in the country. The writer of this is a ruralist, also a well known total abstinence man. Not long ago an organizing officer of one of the orders mentioned, dinged into my ears, for two mortal hours, the advantage that would accrue to me by taking membership in a lodge shortly to be organized in my neighborhood. Because I was an abstainer my "chances would be 50 per cent better than if I were a moderate drinker, and taking membership in a country lodge, away from the saloon influence would add another 25 per cent." I was told that a majority of the city members were non-abstainers; that many of the members of the K. of G. C. were good solid drinkers after taking membership just as they were before. I knew that. I knew too that a good strong admixture of total abstinence men and very moderate drinkers added to the order would be several per cent in favor of the solid and immoderate drinkers. I dont know why temperance people should help to pay $100 charter fees, heavy dues and death assessments in an order made up mostly of those more or less addicted to the use of strong drink, when they can just as well associate together and receive an even 100 per cent of the benefit to be derived. What need have the Good Templars of California of any other beneficiary society than their own order presents them. There are no extravagant charter fees; the controlling power is not far off. The writer does not admit that a beneficiary attachment to the order of Good Templars is a benefit to the order, whatever it may be to individual members. The life a Good Templar ought to live is worth of itself a thousand per cent more to those sought to be benefited, than membership in any mutual aid society whatever.

There is this difference between the K. of G. C. and the I. O. of G. T. The former is built upon self as its chief corner stone, with temperance as a side issue. The I. O. of G. T. was organized and is maintained solely for the purpose of inculcating the principles, and advocating the practice of total abstinence, and educating its members and the people generally up to the point of legaly exterminating the liquor traffic. Mutual aid is neither part nor parcel of its main object, will never help as a chain to bind the membership of the Order together for one minute. So far as its influence on the Order is concerned, if it is not neutral it seems to me it must be harmful. Few things are neutral.

Jerome W. Henderson.

It is conceded that a mutual aid system, a regalia, a password, a ritual exercise will not at all help to bind such men as Bros. Henderson. John B. Finch, S. D. Hastings and some thousands of men and about all the active women engaged for life in the thick of the temperance contest. There are thousands whose devotion to the canse would continue to the end, thoro and sincere and fervent, had there never been a temperance organization of a higher type than the most ancient open society with a six months pledge.

But every society that has added something to the simpler forms of its predecessors, has been found more effective in attracting co-operation and inciting a permanent interest and attachment on the part of its members. There seem to be good reasons for supposing that temperance societies should obey the law of progress and add to their proselyting instrumentalities, while using every legitimate means to solidify and securely anchor to them every conquest of individual or community which they once bring into their circle.

Because all converts to temperance do not become unselfish missionaries, the beneficiary elements are found to be useful. The grandest feature of the early system of the Sons of Temperance to attract a membership and make its growth permanent and irresistible, was its benefit system; but the devil became excited just then, and stirred up cheap John and they abolished the benefit system and all but choked to death that grand old order, which under progressive and rational leadership might have rendered the formation of any other temperance society or order entirely unnecessary forever.

Next the I. O. G. T. was similarly wounded almost to death. A cheap John party, innocently blinded with the benevolent motive of making the Order so cheap that everybody could come in, made it so cheap that none but the dyed in the wool reformers cared to stay in more than the first quarter. Inexperience and a superficial mode of reasoning led a cheap john party to turn their energies to abolition of the forms, ceremonials and services of the Order, in place of building it up higher and stronger, and the lamentable result is wofully apparent in the skeleton ribs that only remain of many once opulent and influential jurisdictions.

We have seen thousands of Good Templars join other orders because of the Mutual Aid or sick or funeral benefits—and thousands, unlike Bro. Henderson in that respect, have dropped the Good Templars and adhered to one or two and even three other societies, all less congenial to them, except in the matter of the benefits. They value most that society which, if they are suddenly removed, will turn over $1,000 or $2,000 to their bereaved dependants.

We cannot cure Good Templars, especially new recruits, of that feeling and do not desire to. But we want to give them a better Mutual Aid at home. and to keep them from uniting their forces with societies who protect the saloon keeper's ravages upon human life and repair the damages he does. And after a careful study it is difficult to perceive any possible harmful result to come from furnishing each other with a Mutual Aid at half the price we should have to pay outside.

There is more ground (it is suggested) for believing that if there were other societies unfavorable to temperance, which could without detriment distribute among each 50 of their members a sewing machine, a cheese press, an Estey organ, a wind mill, a Studebaker wagon and an encyclopedia,—and we could without detriment or departure from principle provide them with just the same advantages at half the fees and assessments—we had much better do so than have them forsake us and either become neutral or ally themselves with the enemy. And even if we were all steadfast unto death, like Bro. H. to the order for the sake of the cause alone, we should be wise to have temperance colonies, co-operative Good Templar stores, and oh, that we could build a Good Templar railroad to the Atlantic.

THE ROWDYISM OF OUR LARGE TOWNS.

One of the darkest features of our time is the huge proportion of brutal lawlessness that prevails. Thousands of ignorant and drunken roughs curse the social life of our large towns. They are mainly sons and daughters of that phase of our social life which is identified with the drink traffic; with the gambling and the low brutal infidelity that mocks at God, righteousness, and every form of law. In Northampton, where the doctrines of infidelity and such horrible books as the shameful "Fruits of Philosophy" have undermined home relationship and social purity, it is simply shocking to walk in the principal streets of that town, especially on Sunday evenings, and to hear the filthy language that is expressed by hundreds of mere boys and girls who have during the last fourteen years, been corrupted by the scandalous teachings of the Infidel School. Speaking with a leading tradesman in that town a few months since, he said:—"Had you lived amongst it as I have, and seen the gradually-increasing brutality of the young people as I have, you would be as I am, overwhelmed at the present condition and future prospect." We notice, in last Monday's issue of the Daily News, the most awful articles we ever read, giving an account of the hideous carnival of licentiousness that disgraces London night after night, and now we hear of Sheffield roughs attacking General Booth and the Salvation Army in the most brutal fashion.

How long is law to be trodden under foot? How long is licence to assume the name of liberty and ride roughshod over truth, godliness and righteousness. ?

Here we are in the midst of lawlessness, violence, shame and brutal blasphemy. Is nothing to be done? Is the legislature powerless in England as well as in Ireland? There is no time to lose, and these are not days in which the government can afford to slight the gathering forces of the brutal and lawless and infidel Mobocracy.—Church Commonwealth.

The infidelity to be complained of is all in the grogshop. If every individual in christendom believed most implicitly in the most literal interpretation of the bible, and in the most orthodox Christianity—there would be just as much ruffianism, crime and brutality under the system which prevails in Christian countries of licensing dens of drunkenness and blasphemy and vice and sin to ply their hellish business in every corner and cellar and dive, night, noon and Sunday, corrupting and poisoning the morals and souls of our boys, of our men, and diffusing moral poison into every home and into every department of the moral field.

Without any apology or defense for the schools or doctrines of infidelity, one may question whether the infidelity of the infidel schools and infidel books has had anything whatever to do with the brutality, demoralization and crime that is becoming so dreadfully rampant and all-intrusive. But the grogshop does fulfil all the conditions that produce crime and filthiness of every description, and it also destroys all respect and consideration for God or man.

There are thousands of infidels, (men who do not believe at all in the system of Christianity or who do not believe in the existence of a God) whose moral conduct in all other respects is stainless—who are as far from brutality and ruffianism and actual crime as the church members. To be an infidel by no means indicates a ruffian or an outlaw, altho it indicates a mental condition that seems truly lamentable to the writer.

But there is a brutish infidelity begotten of the dramshop and the winery and the beer swillery, which hates every principle of good, whether in God or man, which abhors virtue in woman, which loves to corrupt childhood and girlhood and to poison every spring of peace and innocence—which hates every thing good and pure because it is good and pure, and clings to the bad, not because it can love it or love anything, but because it recognizes the bad and the nasty in every thing as part and parcel of itself.

That brutality and criminal depravity and monstrous deformity dont come from infidel doctrine, from Sabbath breaking, from disobedience to parents, from Mormonism, from heathenism—but it is the natural fruit of the grogshop; common-sense would beforehand enumerate and delineate every feature and every degree of every depravity as the expected certain fruit of the dramshop, on the day it is opened to prosecute its thousand times worse than Satanic work. And the dramshop is not supported by the votes of infidels in theory so much as by the Christian votes which are cast into the ballot box of the old parties, who derive their revenues from the sale of the human blood and the female virtue of their own citizens.

Let us trace the evils around us and in us to their proper source, and then they may be remedied; to blame upon infidels a system of crime and bloody heartless cruelty, which exists only in christian rum-drinking and government-mantrap civilizations, and from which the nations that are all infidel, all heathen, all Mahomedan, all Mormon are almost entirely free, is to help to perpetuate the evil. And there is one word more, the few little places where there is no dramshop and the civilization is christian with an admixture of theoretical infidelity, there is an entire absence of crime and brutality. The civilization of christianity is all sufficient if divorced from the rum system which is only Satan worship. Where the two are in alliance, the civilization is the most barbarous and brutal the world has ever produced.

WINE.

Bro. L. C. Renfro expresses in the Pacific Methodist his surprise at the attitude of Bro. J. C. Simmons on the question of the wines of the Bible and declares that he differs from nine-tenths of the Christian scholarship of the day. There are always some people who surprise us with a singular opinion on some subject, which we do not expect from them. Perhaps Bro. Renfro would have put it more correctly, had he said nine-tenths of the Christian scholarship which has personally examined into the matter: for there is a good deal of scholarship which has never done so, but has depended on the oracles delivered by those no better posted than themselves. When the discovery of the circulation of the blood was promulgated, many medical men of learning and experience summarily and even spitefully denied the new doctrine on sight, because they had never been taut it in their education, and their positive assertions, found on prejudice and ignorance on that particular point, deceived and wronged many worthy, learned and honest men who depended on on their known scholarship and abilities and innocently adopted their errors.

It is only justice to admit that, for all men who were taut in their youth as most of us were, that wine was a natural product and provison made for us by an allwise Creator, to be used in moderation and thankfulness, and as a healer of disease—and that the Bible and St. Paul commended it and Christ used and on one occasion made a large quantity of it by a miracle—it is quite natural to believe that fermented wine, as it appeared to them, has presented a tremendously strong case in its favor;—quite natural for them to adhere to that belief when they read or are told that the most eminent scholarship has decided that the wine in question was alcoholic; that only a third class scholarship and temperance fanaticism doubted their position;—quite natural for them under these circumstances to satisfy themselves that Christ had a right and some to us incomprehensible reason for using, making and enjoining the use of something which is now the chief emblem of the worship of Satan; which science declares to be a fraud upon nature, a lie and a poison: which common experiences denounces as a snare to sin and death, a blasphemy of God and the vilest and meanest curse that ever afflicted this earth. Quite natural in the light of old customs and opinions to overlook these latter points and to continue to venerate what they for long years have invested with a sacred character. Quite natural to be deceived and misled by teachers and authoritis whom they believe capable and honest but who are not.

But it ot to be a very sturdy eye-opener, to remember that about every sincere enquirer into this matter, who has either investigated it himself, or attentively read the completely conclusive and unanimous, evidence of the large number of grandly competent and excellent scholars who have made the fullest research—has learned with unbounded satisfaction and without a disturbing doubt, that the Bible is entirely exonerated from the slightest complicity with the sinful abuse and perversion of the fruit of the vine, and that in this point as in all others Chrisianity and science and common sense are in most perfect accord.

BEER?

Atlantic Monthly.

It has been discovered that beer cures intemperance. It has also been discovered that beer causes intemperance, and does not cure it. The British Parliament discovered in 1830 that beer would cure the evil. Forty years later the Church Convocations of Canterbury and York, both proved that beer was one of the chief causes of intemperance. Literary men are now discovering that beer is an antidote. One of them says, "He would do a priceless work in the Lord's vineyard who should teach the English lower classes to drink lager beer."

Thus we have two beer discoveries. (1.) Beer cures intemperance.. (2.) England drinks too little yet and is not cured. But Professor Levi tells us that in 1866 England drank 7 pints of proof spirits and 37 gallons of beer and ale for every man, woman, and child. The spirits in the ale he estimates at 27 pints per head.

So England drinks about four times as much alcohol in beer as in spirits. This suggests two questions: (1.) does English intemperance come from the one-fifth of her alcohol contained in the strong liquors, or form the four-fifths in the beer? (2.) If 7 gallons of beer per head is not enough to cure, how much beer does the Lord's English Vineyard require?

Now on the other side. In 1869, after 39 years of fostering legislation had quadrupled the use of beer, the English church undertook to ascertain the causes and extent of intemperance. The Convocation of Canterbury sent letters of enquiry to judges, chief constables, officers of police, recorders, coroners, chaplains, and governors of prisons, and workhouses, and to others who were qualified to answer.

The evidence obtained from 2223 witnesses enabled the Convocation to say that the Parliamentary Beer Act of 1830 was one of the foremost and most prolific causes of intemperance, the testimony on this point on the part of those most competent to judge being emphatic and unanimous.

This report was published and forwarded to the Queen with the endorsement of the Upper House, with 2223 extracts from the evidences furnished. Some years later, the Convocation of York made a similar report based on the testimony of 2711 witnesses which was still more emphatic in relation to the disastrous effects of beer on the people of England. We now know about how much beer England has used for the last half century and whether or not it has cured English intemperance."

That is a good and useful article, and it is as authentic in every particular as is the fact that President Garfield was assassinated. Would it not be more creditable to the journals of this country to give general currency to such most important truthful statements, than to publise reports of the failure of prohibition in Maine and Kansas, and of as much drunkenness there as ever? Reports which everybody knows are utterly false, and everybody knows too, that they are coined by scoundrels who lie for coin, and by men who live on the robbery and murder of their fellow men, and are liars of necessity.

The people of England of 1830, among them the Duke of Wellington and Lord Brougham, were honest in believing that the free use of beer would diminish intemperance. Those who, after seeing the devastation wrought by the accursed poison in this country for the last 20 years, prate of beer doing service in the Lord's vineyard are either the most sniveling hypocrites, or the most idiotic of imbeciles.

READINGS ON BEER.

A 5 cent pamphlet of 48 pages prepared by Miss Julia Colman, Superintendent of the Lit. Dep. of the W. N. C. T. U. It is a compilation of tracts on beer in the style of the Union hand bills which appeared last year in the RESCUE, of which about 60 have been issued. It is a most useful work and it would be difficult to find any work of greater utility for general circulation, seeing that so many people in this State believe that beer is a wholesome and harmless drink. They should be taught that it is the most filthy, debauching, insidious and devilish snare to vice and crime, and harlotry that exists in the known world. And they should know that it is made of the most deleterious, poisonous, crazing and nasty ingredients, and got up with an especial aim to produce an ungovernable thirst for more beer or more alcoholic drink.

Among all the list of malefactors the makers and sellers of beer are the worst and most deadly enemies we have to encounter.

Address Miss Julia Colman; 76 Bible House, New York city. Any of the tracts in the pamphlet can be had separately at $1 a thousand. Let us awaken our people to the horrible nature of the vilest of all poisons.

THE CAUSE IN MENDOCINO COUNTY.

Your much appreciated organ makes its regular weekly visits, cheering our hearts with the tidings of the prosperity of our cause and the progress of our principles. We endorse the RESCUE's platform on the Temperance question and congratulate its constituents in having such an able exponent to advocate their interests. We consider the Organ of our Order an honor to journalism, a credit to the temperance army and a power for good in our State and country. We fear its real worth is not fully understood, or its subscription list would be double what it is at present. No politician of any shade can live without a paper to uphold his views and defend his platform but many of our temperance friends are only half-hearted in the subject because they never take a paper to tell them how the work advances along the line. In the war-period with what anxiety men kept posted by reading. Have we no anxiety about the exterminating war we have undertaken against the demon of drink? We are glad you have nailed your colors so high. Keep them there. The man who would wish them lowered is not only a traitor in our ranks but lacks in the patriotism and loyalty which constitutes true citizenship and the virtues which ensure noble manhood. Since you have unfurled the Banner of Prohibition, all over the Union, keep it steadily floating before the people; continue to press its strong claims and righteous demands. Temperance has a claim to present and a plea to make and though like the rising orator, she may be hissed, she has a "say" and the world is bound to hear it.

Your work is a herculean task but we will try and sustain your hands and second your efforts by preparing sentiment and opinion in our lodges, for the grand rally we are to make in the name of the Lord God of Battles and the rights of humanity in 1885. Or as soon as ever we can act in concert and strike for the right.

In our usual lodges in this county we are not making a flourish of trumpets, but we are nevertheless alive to the importance of the great work. When I came to the county in 1869, it could only boast one lodge, Mount Nebo at Point Arena, organized in 1868. That lodge had a rough road and much opposition but still it upholds the temperance banner waving. All honor to the temperance band true to their principles, the banner lodge of Mendocino County. The next lodge was instituted at Ukiah, the county seat, in 1878. That lodge is a powerful organization exercising a healthy influence among the community. At its instigation the saloons and stores lately closed on the Lord's day and now quiet reigns on that day of rest in that queen city in the Mountains of the North. Eight long years then passed. Local option was discussed and carried in the mean time, but the battle of principles and the potent forces of conviction in the minds of our people gave us not that law, and hence it was only a dead letter in our statute book. The next lodge organized was at Willits a small country hamlet in Little Lake Valley.

The year 1880 was a memorable year in our county. No less than 12 lodges were organized, one for each month in the year. All along the sea coast from the Southern boundry of the County at Gualala to Westport, about 75 miles, there is a continuous chain of lodges, each working in a common cause and striving for the overthrow of the common enemy. They come in order as follows: Gualala, Pt. Arena, Manchester, Navarro, Albion, Little River, Mendocino City, Caspar and Westport. At Navarro, Caspar and Westport, there are halls built by the lodges, in which they meet.

At some future time I may be able to give some particulars of the work in each of these.

Yours fraternally, J. S. Ross.

FROM RED BLUFF.

ED. RESCUE:—Col. Goulding closed his course of lectures at this place last evening.

The first was delivered Sunday evening in the Presbyterian church, subject "Who sells for cash and who pays the taxes" was handled in a masterly manner and gained the heartiest applause.

The lecturer brings to his work a mind enriched by education and extended travel in foreign lands together with a thrilling personal experience, thus giving him a power which he wields with certain and sure success. The lecture at the Baptist Church was even more largely attended and was listened to with marked attention. The manner in which saloon keepers manufacture behind the bar those abominable stuffs called liquors, was shown up in its true light.

Last evening at the M. E. Church the audience far exceeded the seating capacity of the church—and the enthusiasm was unbounded—The subject was "The Remedy for these things." Of these lectures the press of this city has spoken in the highest terms. The cause of temperance has been greatly helped by the visit of Bro. Goulding and he will receive a hearty welcome in Red Bluff should he come again.

Thank God our cause in California will soon be on a footing where we can dictate our terms and we will not much longer be compelled to submit to the dictatorial mandates of the whisky men.

Yours in F. H. and C. C. C. BATEMAN.

The above has been condensed for lack of space.

THE people of Haywards talk of putting up a $50,000 fruit cannery. Certainly there can be but one opinion as to the good policy of such an enterprise judiciously carried out. If the dens and deadfalls of Haywards could be shipped off to Siberia and the yearly expenditure in them devoted to the fruit cannery business, every foot of property there would double in value inside of four years.

SAN FRANCISCO DISTRICT LODGE WORK.

Sisters and Brothers of San Francisco:—Another session of our S. F. District Lodge has passed. And the fact has been demonstrated that tho poverty may not be a crime, it is a very inconvenient condition of things to find the responsibility of the aggressive work of the City resting upon our District Lodge with a Treasury and no Treasure.

How much better it were for the membership of this District to place our District Treasury upon a firm financial basis. With from three to five hundred dollars on hand the District Lodge could and would so guard the interests of our generous order that no Lodge would be necessitated or allowed to surrender for lack of funds or members. Those requiring assistance would promptly receive it and new Lodges would spring into life, till in a comparatively brief time we would be recognized in the Grand Lodge sessions and respected deservedly. Let us ponder this matter earnestly with a spirit of solicitude for the prosperity of our cause and order and be prepared at the next session of our District Lodge to propose and decide upon a financial plan for future work. If the hands of the Executive Committee of the Grand Lodge were fettered as are ours, the work in the State outside of San Francisco I imagine would prosper but little. With one thousand dollars per year properly expended (the Grand Lodge furnishing as it will a lecturer free of salary to us) we can in two years increase our numbers to five thousand, would it pay?

The fact that some one Lodge may have money in hand or a large membership does not warrant it in standing aloof and crying "look at us," "we have had no Grand Lecturer or outside aid and we dont want any," neither does their prosperity excuse them from the assistance of less fortunate Lodges. In fact if they ponder carefully their obligations and wish to abide thereby, from such will come the first and most hearty response to a fraternal call for aid. Make a power of our District Lodge and the good work, (in this City controlled politically by the Hell immigration business) will go on. Leave the work to the Grand Lodge and nothing will be done and why? Because those who represent the G. L. are exerting all their energies in the other counties and have all they can do and should they endeavor to grapple with the devil in his home they must drop all other work, for this field is more vast than three times the rural territory and the victories fewer, and harder to win. Also the financial and numerical gains would make a less glowing report, to a superficial observer.

Now, Sisters and Brothers and all, a word more. A Lecturer has been employed to assist us and will begin his labors in March. Let us contribute what we can to the success of the meetings and in some measure redeem the Pledge too often thoughtlessly broken. Our reward will come as sure as we yearn as we all do for an immortality which we do not understand. Asking pardon if I have said nothing worth reading, I remain as ever Fraternally Yours,

Chas. E. Naylor, Dist. Treas.

SAN JOAQUIN CO. DISTRICT LODGE.

Met at Lodi Feb. 3rd. Attendance large and a very pleasant session. Eleven Lodges reported, nine of which had delegates present. Five Bands of Hope are existing in the county but only two were reported. Lodges all stated to be gaining many and losing few members. Ripon Lodge lost its outfit by fire and has been assisted to recover but needs more help.

Dr. Haswell was present and rendered helpful and inspiriting service as he always does. The saloons closed at time of last session are now reported in full blast owing to the work of the State leag of ruffianism. Much business transacted and a public meeting with good program in the evening. Next meeting at Stockton May 17th. The space of this number being so limited, the above is condensed from a full report by the D. Sec. Bro. E. L. Moore of Stockton, which concludes with a notice of the usual excellent repast furnished, which he thinks should always be provided, to enable delegates to avoid the necessity of patronizing whisky resorts—even altho a charge should be made for refreshments. He also hopes to see the subject of Home Protection a matter of full discussion in future sessions.

SCOTLAND.

The report of the Scottish Permissive Bill Association for 1881 shows a marked increase of interest in the work. On no other question is there such unanimity among the Scottish members of parliament as there is on the Local Option Law. They voted in June last 43 to 5 in its favor; the majority on the whole vote being only 42. The Association was instituted in 1858 and has reason to be gratified at the result of its labors. The members are all paying ones, the lowest payment being 25 cts. The following summary is given by the Secretary R. Mackay.

In 1879-80 5483 subscribers and 122 Societies, Templar lodges, etc., contributed to the funds of this association the sum of $8,434. One subscriber gave a special donation of $500, making a total of $8,934.

In 1880-81 5695 subscribers and 135 societies contributed to the funds $9271, showing an increase of 212 subscribers and 13 societies, and an increase in the amount of funds of $837 on the ordinary income of the Association, a most encouraging indication of the growth of public sentiment in favor of the objects of the association. R. Mackay, Secretary.

Placerville, Feb. 5, 1882.

Ed. Rescue:—I send with this a copy of our leading county paper, the Mountain Democrat, I thot it might interest you to look over its items. In the first two local colums, you will find six jubilant articles promising us unlimited blessings to flow from a "new whisky boom." In the midst of this glittering display of county news, you will find a little item "shot." The light and tripping measure in which this is written, almost conceals from the reader the crude truth it contains. I will translate.

Last Wednesday night, about fifteen young men met at one of our very numerous gin shops, and became so drunk that all manhood and decency were forgotten. About midnight, they sallied forth to astonish the town. Fearing they might not make their influence felt by hoots and howls, one of the number used a pistol to increase the noise. Result? one poor foolish comrade perhaps dying; one loving sister called from a distance to minister to him, suffering most bitter grief and shame. And fourteen strong young men so cowed and horror stricken at their own work, that they sought the refuge of a lie to hide it, and might have succeeded in shifting the responsibility of the shooting but for a slight mistake. The window they broke and stated that a chinaman resented with a shot, was in an unoccupied house.

One glimmer of hope shines thru the gloom; this bad beginning of their "new whisky boom," may check its "wild fire" course so poetically promised.

C.

Away off in Africa.—It is cheering and pleasant to receive the semi-monthly visits of the Rescue's most distant exchange, the Templars Standard of Grahamstown, South Africa. It is so far away, that the last number dated Dec. 23, (the Southern Midsummer), has been 44 days on its voyage.

Glad to see it is in its fifth year, has a very healthy appearance, and gives no uncertain sound. Rum and tobacco are the same everywhere. The Standard counts up rum's most startling doings of the day in its vicinity: "A native carrying a package of clothing from the depot to his master, made drunk and robbed—An Englishman seen naked in delirium tremens and found dead the next day.—A Kafir drunk on a train in motion, thrown out by two soldiers.—Body of a young English woman found drowned: fact revealed that she was under influence of liquor at time of death; verdict wilful murder against parties unknown.—A young man drinking freely week days, cuts his throat Sunday morning.—Driver and fireman of an engine fined: engine not arriving, station master walked out on the track; found both men asleep drunk, and engine standing still; accident would have very soon occurred."

Much like American work of rum, and the Standard has the following on

THE OFFENSIVENESS OF SMOKERS.

"The odor of tobacco is offensive to the majority of people, notably to those in delicate health. Most smokers carry this odor in their breath or clothing and leave it behind them wherever they go. Their persons and garments become saturated with it. I marvel that any gentleman permits himself to thus pollute the air of parlors, offices, concert-rooms and churches. Wonder that a husband can willingly doom his wife or dauter to constant contact with a fetid breth. Amazed that clergymen will venture into sick rooms on errands of spiritual consolation, inhaling these nauseating fumes. (Do they really do that?)

Add to this the impoliteness with which most smokers puff in the street and public places, caring not into whose face of a lady or stranger their foul smoke is wafted; driving non-smokers out of waiting rooms and ferry-cabins and depriving them of their rights. If a man should spit in the glass of water I am putting to my mouth, my smoking friends would say I served him right to knock him down. But is it really much better when passing me they spit their tobacco smoke into the air I am about to inhale? I can set aside the glass of water but have no choice about the air. If the use of tobacco were a new thing now, good society would not tolerate ti."

Bro. B. H. Hoag reports lively times in the lodges in Yolo Co; new lodge at Binghamton; Dixon, Woodland, Davisville and Dunnigans all active and increasing and interesting.

An English writer makes a good point on Paul's advice to Timothy, so often quoted as an inspired command to all men to drink wine. He says it was addressed by one man to one single man and he was sick and the wine whatever kind it may have been, was as a medicine. But he says if people are such sticklers for obedience on this point, why dont they literally obey the command given to the churches in four epistles and in one to all the churches "salute one another with a kiss."

Bro. R. Smith of Brentwood, reports his and Lily Lodge on the war path about the Sunday Law. Two cases are to be tried but as the wife-beaters leag feared justice might be done if the cases were tried near home, they had them removed to Antioch where they hope they may find a perjured court or jury. What a pity Guiteau had not been able to get his case removed to Alaska; the Indians there being the jury and rum plenty might have aquitted him.

Kansas.—J. W. Stephens of San Bernardino, Cal. writes to the Nationalist of Manhattan, Kansas, that no one who is well fixed in Kansas ought to leave it for California. He thinks $2.50 a day in Kansas, will support a family better than $3.50 to $4 here, when all expenses of purchase and cultivation of land are considered. If we had a Kansas law well enforced in California, and Kansas had our system of rum and polygamy and gambling, there would be a stampede from there to this state. But as things are at present, however much one may desire to see good, sober settlers come to California, it would be a cruelty to induce them to come from Kansas.

Brentwood Lodge took last year 12 copies of the Rescue addressed in a roll to the Lodge. That gives about one tenth of the time and labor in this office in mailing, that is employed in writing the names on each paper. It is no trouble at all to send away 500 copies in that way compared with the other. But it is not recommended as a good plan; when a lodge takes from 6 to 10 papers, they are nobodys in particular and are often left lying round unused, and some one or more of the members have to see to them. Much better for the lodge to have each paper go for the year addressed to the one individual or one family. In that way it will be much more serviceable. That is what Brentwood Lodge is doing this year and wisely. Same time when a lodge has open entertainments or public meetings, it might be a good idea to order with ten days previous notice 50 to 100 copies of the Rescue for general distribution. They will be supplied in that way to one address for $2.00 per 100.

There is a revivalist movement of large proportions carried on by the Salvation Army in England. The workers of this army are assaulted and abused and persecuted by the rumsellers there to the utmost of their ability and daring, and their organs declare that the War Cry, journal of the Army, is next to the Alliance their greatest enemy. The liquor sellers and their business do not seem to have ever suffered from religious revivals in California or to be in the least disposed to quarrel or interfere with them at all in this country. The Salvation Army are evidently at war with the kingdom of Satan.

At a recent rumsellers conference, means were discussed of counteracting the destructive influence of the War Cry upon what they call "the trade."

A correspondent sometimes seems to think a communication to be printed must be on gilt edged card board, ruled and bordered, of immense size and weight—and sometimes an article comes thus: first page on a sheet of letter paper, second on the margin of an old newspaper, third on an undertaker's business card, fourth on a three cornered piece of old shirt collar, fifth on the blank spots on a restaurant bill of fare, between the ducks and pies and pickles, sixth on the address side of an old postal. These are extremes. The printer and the editor breathe a silent blessing on the writer who makes plain words and punctuates and uses plain, cheap paper; such as the Rescue is printed on is the best. Glazed paper of any kind is an abomination, especially if a pencil is used. Pale ink, made of blackberry jam and rain water plays torpedo with the most heavily armor plated serenity of temper.

Revolution Temperance Literature.

New goods, adapted to new methods of work, at fabulously low prices—making. as we hope, the lan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ver has been.

OUR GREAT "KNEE-DEEP" OFFER.—Contracts taken to sow every town "knee-deep" ith temperance literature at 5 cents a head, without any labor on the part of society or individual, y means of our Class Papers and post-office delivery system. The greatest need in temperance ork is scattering temperance literature. The greatest difficulty, doing it systematically, thor-ughly and yet cheaply. For Five Cents we will address, wrap and mail singly, direct to in-ividual, regularly each month for a year, any one of the below named temperance papers, each r a special class of readers or work: 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The S. S. Superintendent. 7. The S. S. Worker. 8. The atholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. The Prohibition Banner. 11. The Saloon urse. 12. The Home Protection Monthly. 13. The People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 5. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper.

Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which especially de-igned. Each published monthly, and though small in size, contains over 6,000 words in an issue, ly 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book.

HOW IT WORKS.—1st. It is only a nickle. Subscriptions are never refused; you have only ask. As many subscriptions can be taken in a day as you can see persons. Societies or in-ividuals can look after this work. 2d. Fifty cents sends a paper every month for a year to ten ifferent persons, so many will subscribe both for themselves and for friends. 3d. Societies can not dopt a better plan of thorough distribution of temperance literature than to set apart a fund to nd one or more of our 5c. papers to each individual in the town. Thus for $5.00 they can reach 100 ersons each month for a year. A whole town of 500 families can be reached every month for a ear for $25.00. Besides, you need not give away, subscriptions can be taken from everybody you n see, and hosts will give in small sums to send to others when it is seen that a little goes so far. or 20c. we furnish the Temperance Engineer, a book with blanks for canvassers for the papers, r securing lists of names to send to, free, and with space for alphabetical entry of 3,400 names, assified so as to give a fund of valuable information for society in prosecuting its work, as well as help in systematical plan of ordering class papers—an invaluable book for all branches of tem-erance work.

WONDERFUL SUCCESS.—In three months these papers have reached a circulation of EVENTY-THREE THOUSAND COPIES, monthly. Hundreds of towns are trying the plan—read what orkers say of it:

Hon. James Black, of Pennsylvania: "As soon as I can find the time to arrange, I will put your knee-deep' plan of distribution into action. The plan is practicable, and if adopted and persevered , will revolutionize any community. The plan is very simple, economical, and will be effective."

R. Thompson, G. W. C. T. of the I. O. G. T., Grand Lodge of California; "I had heard how onderfully cheap you proposed to supply temperance literature, but did not realize until I ex-mined that such a good quality was furnished."

Uriah Copp, G. W. C. T. of the Grand Lodge of Illinois: "I most heartily endorse them."

Theo. D. Kanouse, G. W. C. T. of the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin: "Your temperance papers, o sharp, so short, so cheap, so sound, giving in condensed form and in ten minute doses (more han we can get from some other sources from multiplied columns and days' reading) are first-class."

Hon. John B. Finch, of Nebraska. "Your work will do more to help our cause, if supported, han all others combined."

A. S. Bostwick, Past G. W. C. T., I. O. G. T. of Pennsylvania: "You have discovered the great ant of to-day."

DATES OF MAILING.—Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 17 and 18, first week of month; Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, econd week; Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, third week; Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, fourth week. Subscriptions eceived up to the 25th, beginning with month in which order is sent.

OTHER WAYS OF USING.—We provide hooks, with card attached to each so as to show bove it, bearing the words, TAKE ONE—cost in lots of five or more 6 cts., postpaid. The "class apers" for distribu ion in this way are furnished at 25 cts. per 100 copies. Several hooks may be ut up in a place, each for a speciai paper, the hooks refilled with papers from week to week, a later ssue being added each month. Papers come ready punched for use on the hooks.

SPECIMEN PAPERS.—We will send one each of all the above papers—eighteen papers in ll—on receipt of 10 cents.

2c. STORY BOOKS.—We are putting up choicest and most thrilling and telling of 75c to $1.50 emperance story books in large newspaper form, one whole book in a paper, illustrated on first age, for 2 cts. a paper when bought in lots of twenty-five or more. One issue each month. Three re now ready. Sample of all three for 10 cents.

This is a new force; people will read for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incom-arably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each umber punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or can be istributed gratuitiously in various ways.

TEMPERANCE POSTERS.—To tack up in stores, depots and other public places; large rint, each with a bit of choice, telling temperance matter, 12x14 inches, on good, white paper. No. Have You Insured Your Boys? No. 2. The Licensed Saloon Illustrated. No. 3. Important Notice. o. 4. The Rum Deception. No. 5. Startling Statistice. No. 6. The Right of Prohibition. Price, lots of twenty or more, assorted, ½c each. Samples of each for 10 cts., postpaid.

THE POPULAR TEMPERANCE LIBRARY.—One new book each month. Costs but 60c or a year's issue (12 numbers).

No. 1. DRINKS FROM DRUGS.—A book that cannot fail to arouse the American people to he gigantic swindle now being perpetrated. The writer offered $10,000 by a leading brewer to keep till. Liquor not only doctored but made entirely from drugs. Extracts from a whole library of ecret books, giving receipts for making and doctoring claret, port, sherry, champagne, whisky, randy, gin, rum, etc., all out of one barrel, and made at less than 25c a quart. Wine that never saw rape juice—cider that never saw apples—beer factories in place of breweries—ale without barley or rewing—whiskey from arsenic—millions of gallons of liquor that pays no revenue tax. A whole-ale liquor-store in a ten foot square cellar. This book is no mere toy, but an exhaustive work.

"One of the very best temperance documents for general use."—(Christian Standard.) "A com lete and thorough exposure."—(Delaware Signal.) "The book contains a fund of information." Morning Star.) "A most exhaustive work, and treats the subject with vigor."—(Observer.) "De-erves a wide circulation."—(Jou nal and Messenger.) "The most wonderful book ever brought be-ore the public."—(Reading Star.) "Ought to be read by every minister and Christian."—(New Jersey Gazette.) "A complete exposure; get the book and circulate it."—(St. Louis Presbyterian.) "State-ents sufficiently terrible to startle the moderate drinker as well as the immoderate."—Zion's Herald.)

No. 2. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND THE SOBER CITIZEN.—An able and telling ork, by Rev. J. H. Sherman, which brings out the effects of the liquor traffic in a new light. The ollowing are some commendations of the first edition: "The author drives the nails of conviction hrough and clinches them."—(New York Christian Advocate.) "Speakers and workers in the emperance field will find valuable aid in this pamphlet. It is crowded with convincing facts."—Zion's Herald.) "One of the ablest reviews of the drink curse ever issued from the press."—The Morning and Day of Reform.)

No. 3. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND CRIME.—Leaves from the diary of an old lawyer. By Hon. A. B. Richmond, member of the Pennsylvania bar. A book of intense interest, rivaling he famous "Diary of a physician," and, in its truthful, terrible pictures of the power and crime of ntemperance, excelling the well-known "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room." The temperance issue of he present time is, Shall prohibition be partial or entire? shall the branches of the death-bearing ree be pruned and trimmed, or shall the tree itself be cut down and its stump be torn up by the oots? The answer of "Leaves From a Diary" is, "Cut down the tree, tear up the roots, leave not a hoot nor shred behind." It is certainly a very strong and eloquent volume. The book has been lready before the public in high-priced style, and received high commendations. As printed in Popular Temperance Library form, it is somewhat abridged, but contains the cream of the book. We shall issue later the complete book in more expensive form. Press notices of first edition: Full of touching incidents. We wish everybody would read it."—(Pittsburg Christian Advocate.) We would place this book by the side of Judge Pitman's work, and then say, 'There is the best emperance library in the English language."—(Chautauqua Herald.)

No. 4. HOME PROTECTION.—A lawyer's view of it. By J. C. Wells, attorney at law. he question ably discussed from a lawyer's standpoint. A book of the times.

These books are "hot shot" for the enemy's strongholds. Other books of equal merit will ollow monthly. All will be well adapted for use by lecturers, canvassers, agents, news dealers, rain boys, temperance societies, etc. Price by the year (12 books), 60 cts. Single copies, 10 cts. ive or more to one address, 5 cts. each.

GREAT BOOK DISTRIBUTION OFFER.—Books sent by mail direct to individuals. So-iety sending us the names and addresses of parties and book wanted, sent to each, saves society istributing, books more likely to command reading, is more systematic, costs less, etc. We will end any two or more of our 5c books to separate addresses for 8c each; five or more 7c each; twenty-ve or more 6c each; fifty or more 5½c each; one hundred or more c each.

BANDS OF HOPE.—Cheapest offer yet is our offer to induce organization of Bands of Hope mong the children. We furnish a library of 52 choice $1.00 to $1.50 temperance story books put up n ordinary book form, only printed on lighter paper with smaller margins and in paper covers really stronger books than the more expensive), for 5c each, or the 52 books for $2.50. Also two eekly Band papers at 2 1-2c a quarter; a lesson and song quarterly for 2c. Certificates, pledge-rolls, ledges, reward cards, badges, etc., all so cheap that penny collections of Band more than pay all xpenses. Specimen of everything necessary for comple outfit for Band sent postpaid on receipt of 5c. Paper giving new and simple methods of running Bands, running them either with or without eachers, etc., sent free.

We are getting out many other publications besides those advertised above. General circular, ree. Please say where you saw this. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPER-ANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madison treet, Chicago.

The Long Red Mangel Murtzel Beet

Is the most profitable crop a farmer can raise for feeding hogs and cattle. It is very crisp and sugary, hence a great fat-producer in hogs, and splendid for milk cows. Produces immense crops, even on clay and adobe soils, when well cultivated. Every farmer should plant it, and plant largely this dry year. Look out for old and inferior seed, as there is much on the market. Address, PROF. W. C. DAMON, Napa College, Napa, Cal.

G. W. S. OFFICE.

The duties and cares of the G. W. S. office since the commencement of the current year, Oct. 1st, have been decidedly onerous. From Oct. 1st to Jan. 31st, there were received, filed and answered 1738 letters and 355 postal cards; a total of 2093 communications. The receipts of the office during the same period, were received in 713 items, aggregating $12,079.28 of which $5421.06 was on account of the Home for Orphans Fund; $5,086.55 General Fund, $1126.67 Lecture Fund and $445 Charter Fee Fund. There was disposed of during the same period, 221 items of 397 form books; 130 of 2984 blank forms; 135 of 2643 constitutions; 37 of 824 Subordinate Ode cards; 37 of 446 music ode cards; 103 of 737 clearance cards; 15 of 15 receipts of evening books; 9 of 9 constitution roll books; 28 of 28 roll call books; 21 of 37 subordinate rituals; 41 of 105 officers cards; 10 of 22 trial blanks; 11 of 11 Chase's Digests; 4 of 4 Good of the Order; 6 of 32 Temperance Chimes; 1 of 2 Ripples of song; 20 of 3300 seal wafers; 1 of 1 degree book; 1 of 12 degree ode cards; 2 of 200 pledge cards. Aggregating 833 items of 11809 pieces of supplies sent out on orders and sold (charged) for $1227.25.

There were sent by mail 1432 packages; by express, 125 packages. There were issued 427 Lodge, 44 State, 39 District, 19 Special and 13 Degree Templars, D. G. W. C. T. Commissions, or a total of 542 commissions. Outfits of Lodge supplies, together with charter, etc., were made up for and forwarded to 42 new lodges organized. The journals of proceedings of Grand Lodge 182 pages, was issued during the same period, carefully revised and 900 copies mailed. Seventy-eight warrants have been drawn, disbursing $16451.46.

Quarterly returns from 331 lodges have been received, revised and carefully filed. The vote of 284 lodges on the change of regalia question have been received, verified and filed. Donations have been received, recorded and cared for from 78 lodges, individuals, etc., aggregating $368.95, on account of literature dime collection. Thousands of quarterly and other circulars have been mailed, besides the various and other sundry duties of the office, including the keeping of an open account with each lodge have been carefully attended to.

The report was considered seriatim, and approved and adopted in all its parts.

Sister M. E. Richardson, G. S. J. W., submitted her report as follows:

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN:—DEAR BRO:—I here write my report for the quarter ending Jan. 31. There were 67 Bands of Hope reported to me by Bro. Bramall. Of this number 20 have failed to respond to circular, and have given no sign of life, up to date, No. bands organized in Oct., 9; in Nov., 14; in Dec., 16; in Jan., 13; total, 52.

Of the bands organized since Oct. one has died and as I learn this evening one has never lived. The first was organized by Bro. P. Powers in Marysville, and has recently been re-organized on a surer footing by same brother. The latter organized (?) at Kingsburg, Fresno Co., by Bro. King. I learn by letter from supposed Supt. never had a being; he was asked to organize and carry on a B of H. and refused. In addition to bands above reported, I have been corresponding with friends of the cause, and have recently sent supplies for organizing 11 bands which will doubtless be reported in a few days. In Nov. mailed 59 packages containing 123 rituals, 1,592 badges, 44 letters, 66 postals. In Dec. mailed 44 packages containing 171 rituals, 950 badges, 33 letters 28 postals. In Jan. mailed 171 packages containing 3,684 rituals, 1,616 badges, 133 letters 86 postals. Total, 374 packages containing 3,978 rituals, 4,158 badges, 184 letters 180 postals. Have also mailed about 150 circulars to Supt's. B of H. and 370 circulars accompanied by new ritual to to L. D's. also 338 circulars to Sabbath School Supts. Have promptly filled all orders when supplies have been at hand, and in all cases have immediately answered all letters. Have endeavored to discharge my whole duty. Have sent 200 old rituals and 100 badges to the Gen. Supt. J. W. of Oregon, for which I have not yet received payment, as she has ordered 125 more badges which as yet I have not been able to spare.

Respectfully submitted, M. E. Richardson.

The G. S. J. W. also presented her financial statement showing an expenditure of $161 26 for miscellaneous expenses, which together with $100 due her for salary, made her account $261 25. She had received advances amounting to $200, and had sold supplies amounting to $2 35. Leaving the amount due her in settlement $58 91. The account was audited allowed, and a warrant ordered drawn for the amount found to be due.

A communication was received from C. E. Naylor and Frank Storer D. S. of the San Francisco District Lodge, setting forth the need of special work in that district etc. The communication was received and ordered placed on file.

It being understood from information presented by the G. W. S., that Bro. Col. J. T. Long of Kentucky, now lecturing in Oregon, would soon return eastward and was possibly open for an engagement during the month of March, it was

Resolved, That the G. W. S. be directed to correspond with Col. Long and secure his services if terms can be agreed upon and if employed, that he be stationed at San Francisco for local work in and about the metropolis, and that he be placed under the immediate direction and control of the District Deputy, and committee of the San Francisco District lodge.

A petition was presented from citizens of Alturas, Modoc county, asking for a charter. Correspondence was also presented from officers of Alturas lodge No. 149.

After due consideration it was unanimously agreed to grant the charter to J. L. Kerr, and his associates as prayed for.

A communication was received from Cap. A. D. Wood editor and publisher of the RESCUE, showing the average copies of the paper published weekly during the previous quarter to be 3 467, the first week being 3,360, the last 3,600. The average cost per issue was $100 48. The total cost of publication for the 13 weeks was $1,306 23. The receipts aggregates $687 30, leaving a deficiency of $618 93. There was due the paper for advertising and subscriptions $193 80.

Bills were presented and allowed on account of publication of the RESCUE during the past quarter as follows: Deficiency in publication, $618 93. Editors salary, $450. Services of office assistant, $75.

Upon motion duly made and carried a warrant in the sum of $1,143, was ordered drawn in favor of Cap. A. D. Wood for deficiencies and publication of the RESCUE during last quarter.

A supplemental communication was received showing subscriptions received by Grand Lecturers during the past quarter as follows: King, 151; Mrs. Sterens, 133; Webb, 93; Hughes, 10; Crowhurst, 3; Goulding, 1; Total, 391.

A communication was received from J. N. Stearns Secretary of the N. T. S. and P. H., in answer to the G. W. S., relative to certain lines of temperance literature ordered distributed at the last session of the Grand Lodge.

The financial condition of the Grand Lodge not being such as to warrant the undertaking of the distribution of the books named at this time, the matter was temporarily deferred, and the communication of Prof. Stearns ordered on file.

A bill was presented from George Bramall for $51 45 for postage and expenses incurred in the distribution of temperance literature under direction of the G. W. C. T. Upon motion duly made and carried the bill was allowed and referred to the G. W. C. T. for payment with a recommendation that Brother Bramall be allowed $25 for his services.

The G. W. C. T. reported having employed Bros. Culver and Babcock for a few days for points needing immediate assistance, and to which the regular lecturers could not be sent, because of previous engagements. Action approved.

The G. W. C. T. presented bills and vouchers for various expenditures under his supervision, aggregating as follows:

Distribution of Temperance Literature	$253 85
Lecture field work	217 00
Juvenile work, for rituals etc	134 05
G. W. T. C. Contingent expenses	239 85
Total bills by the G. W. C. T.	$844 75

The accounts were audited allowed, and $700 having already been drawn in advance, upon motion duly made and carried; a warrant was ordered drawn for $144 75 in favor of the G. W. C. T.

The reports of the six Grand Lecturers were examined and passed. The aggregate expenditures and salaries of the six regular Grand Lecturers was $3,640 48. The aggregate receipts from collections and charter fees was $2,076 82, leaving a deficiency of $1,563 66 which was furnished from the Grand Lodge Treasury.

After a general review of the work for the past quarter in which all was found very hopeful and satisfactory at 2 o'clock A. M. the committee adjourned.

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN,
Secretary.

WM. CROWHURST.

As promised last week we continue our report from Roseville. Sunday night found the school-house, though quite large, thoroughly packed, and parties standing outside. By request, the occasion was turned into a Sunday Law mass meeting. Rev. Bro. Gregory presided and read the Decalogue, emphasizing the fourth commandment. At the close of the address, the Justice of the Peace arose and endorsed all that was said and made quite a good and telling speech. He was followed by a leading merchant, and then by a good earnest sister. She was preceded by a saloon-keeper who promised to close on Sunday if the others would. A vote of the audience resulted in all but about eight persons promising to unite in enforcing the law in that town. An agreement was afterward drawn up and freely circulated for signatures. The people here are earnest and determined in this matter. On Monday night, both degrees were conferred and a thorough exemplification of all the unwritten work was given and the Lodge felt that time had been valuably used and extended a hearty request to us to "come again." On Tuesday, a gentleman introduced himself as a "saloonatic" and then introduced a semi-saloonatic as the Constable, who very kindly placed a little document in our hands. This proved to be a bill of three dollars for the use of the school-house, fire, etc. The people used the school-house, the church purchased the lights, and Bro. Ferguson supplied the wood. We simply refused to pay, and referred the matter to the Lodge. Now as the minister gave his time to the Lodge and allowed us to use the school-house instead of himself at that hour, it is not likely that the Lodge will acknowledge any right to pay. The whole matter was mean and underhanded. If the school trustees wanted rent, they should have presented the bill as any other persons would have done. But the cowardly way of placing it in the hands of the constable, showed the animus of the liquor traffic, especially as no charge had ever been made for the school-house before. But this was a temperance lecture and it contained too much truth for a whisky-selling trustee.

At Rocklin, two meetings were held, at one of which a saloon-keeper promised to sell out his business and have nothing more to do with the traffic.

lister Mills is earnestly at work. Several names were proposed in Lodge meeting.

Penryn turned out good audiences and enjoyed the two evenings work. Newcastle, rain, snow, cold!

We were kindly received and entertained at the former place by Bro. S. A. Wood and at the latter by Bro. G. D. Kellogg.

Newcastle, Placer Co., Feb. 12, 1882.

C. N. GOULDING.

Wednesday the 1st I made my bow before a Tehama County Audience at Tehama, also on the 2d, a fair audience the first and a large audience the second evening, found the lodge holding its own and gaining slowly and working under the most discouraging surroundings, contending with six saloons population probably 350; in fact whisky has full and undoubted controll of the place, on the 3d, went to Red Bluff and assisted at the installation of the officers for this quarter, found the lodge there prospering numbering nearly 200, with a large surplus fund in the Treasury, which will be expended on their new hall, which is needed, as the lodge is rapidly increasing; on the 4th drove 32 miles to Pinckney (Shasta County), lectured in the evening and at the close of my lecture organized a lodge with 32 charter members, George Moore L. Depty. I had written to Dr. T. F. Winsell of Balls Ferry to go and organize this lodge but being busy he could not leave his "Ranch" and I was obliged to make the trip, this lodge has good prospects, and will be heard from in the future, up early on the 5th drove to Red Bluff and at 3 P. M. addressed the Band of Hope numbering 200 members, and at 7 P. M. commenced my labors in the Presbyterian Church. A Union meeting. Revs. Mayhew, Woodward, Bateman and McPherson occupying seats on the platform, this formmable array of Clergy rather disconcerted me for a moment, but knowing that they did not expect me to discuss the question of temperance from a theological standpoint, and knowing that they were heart and soul in the work, the embarrassment soon passed away and I presented as best I could the claims of temperance, the audience was large and enthusiastic, every seat in the large church being occupied and standing in the isles. Monday evening in the Baptist Church, was but a repetition of Sunday evening, and Tuesday evening in the M. E. Church, long before the hour of meeting every seat was occupied and hundreds turned away unable to gain admittance, it was indeed a "boom for temperance" and trust it will result in good for our Order, to the Press ("Cause and Sentinel") the excellent choirs and the citizens generally, am under many obligations. A splendid collection of $52,50 was one of the features worth special mention; it is to be regretted that the meetings could not be continued but previous appointments in the county prevented, on the 8 came here (22 miles) lectured in the school house 8th and 9th to large audiences. The lodge here was at one time in a flourishing condition but local dissensions and bickerings crept in with the usual results; shall return here on the 24th. I go from here to Henlyville, Elder Creek Church and as announced will write as opportunity occurs.

Riceville, Feb. 11, 1882.

J. W. WEBB.

SAN BERNARDINO. It is pleasant for a lecturer to come here, for they treat him quite handsomely. Judge Boren drove over to Colton, where passengers leave the cars, to meet me with his buggy. The committee of arrangements were at the hotel to receive. I stopped at Starke's Hotel, because it is commodious, clean, comfortable and quiet, and has no bar. The committee, consisting of Dist. Deputy H. C. Brooke, Lodge Deputy, "Dick"—I beg his pardon, R. H.—Curtis, and P. W. C. T., Col. Paris, posted me as to status of lodge and cause, and acted as a very efficient escort or body guard, to and from the lectures. Good full house at Congregational church Saturday night, pastor and two other preachers present, Bro. Rev. Walter Featherstun, brother to the District Lecturer in the North, opening with prayer. Bro. Lehman, W. C. T., presided; excellent music by the choir. On Sunday afternoon Bro. Brooke and I addressed the Band of Hope, well conducted by Bro. Switzer, formerly of Virginia Grand Lodge. Children did well with ritual, singing and reciting. At night the church was crowded; fourteen dollars was contributed toward the general fund of the order. On Monday night met with lodge which has an average attendance of 100 and reports 234 this quarter. We confidently expect a large number of initiations as the result of the lectures and so Merrill Lodge of Los Angeles, Golden Rule of San Diego and San Luis Obispo Lodge, must look well to their laurels. Went through subordinate and degree work, gave an address and had short speeches from several, notably Sister Rowell who was a member of the first lodge here, started by the "Boys in Blue." Tuesday, Judge Boren drove me to the school of Bro. M. V. Wright, a Baptist minter and a most ardent and persistent speaker and worker for the order, at old San Bernardino. School sang for us and I gave them a long talk against intoxicants and tobacco. At night not a very large but a patient audience whom Bro. Wright, Bro. Boren and I addressed. The town members will get some members from here, I think, as the place is not yet ready for a lodge. Wednesday, visited town school and addressed on "the twin evils," four departments; the teachers are Good Templars, as indeed the Co. Supt., Dr. Rosseau, and almost every teacher in the county is. Again Judge Boren drove me out, this time to the W. C. T., Bro. Ball's District, and I spoke on the old themes for half an hour, to 65 pupils. For fuller information, Sr. Bennett asked a number of questions about tobacco, and the young men and boys listened most respectfully to the answers. At night a good audience to whom I made a strong plea on temperance generally and for a lodge particularly. Gave Bro. Ball a form of application, and he is sanguine of getting sufficient names; then Bro. Brooke, D. D., will institute. Thursday, Bro. Ball took me to two more suburban schools to address; temperance teachers more than willing I should speak against tobacco as well as liquor. Also visited the Principals department in town, and then the Colton school, 3 miles off, to interest the pupils and prepare the way for my lecture on Saturday. At night, lectured to a crowded house in Congregational church, on "Blunders." Obtained names for lodge.

Friday, went to the Mount Vernon District, spoke to the school, two departments, and at night had a full attendance, good music, best of attention; obtained subscribers to RESCUE and sold 25 Cook's books and got several names for Lodge. Bro. Rowell, formerly of Arizona, interviewed me at request of the Lodges and brethren of that Territory urging me to use my influence with the Executive Committee of the Grand Lodge to send them a Lecturer. There are several lodges and a number of points where others could probably be instituted. Phœnix Lodge has just initiated its one hundredth member, but Prescott Lodge is suspended unless State Deputy Rev. Bro. Adams, has succeeded in reviving it. Rev. Bro. Bovard whom the Good Templars specially sent to Grand Lodge to try and secure some lecture aid made strong representations to the Committee on good of the order and that Committee recommended that Arizona be not overlooked. I have written to the Lodges in Arizona to "Hold the Fort" till the Executive Committee can do something for them and also to Bro. Thompson in whose hands the matter is placed.

San Bernardino Lodge has a number of good speakers who could do efficient service in extending the membership and public sentiment by occasional visits to adjacent localities and open meetings in town. I have earnestly plead for some systematic plan of volunteer work between the visits of Grand Lecturers which may be relied on as often as the means and number of Lecturers at the command of the Executive will possibly allow. I might mention Revs. J. T. Ford, Walter Featherstun and Law; District Attorney Captain Rowell, lawyers Col. Paris, Harris, Allen and Judge Boren, also M. V. Wright, H. C, Brook and R. H. Curtis, teachers and probably others besides a good number of lady members who are good singers, essayists, and readers. Elections are coming on and the Sunday Law and Temperance are going to be prominent issues. Now is the time to work up an earnest interest all thru the county, developing such a sentiment that Christians, moral men and temperance people will be ready to work at the primaries, conventions and the ballot box. With anything like systematic and persistent effort from this time till Fall, San Bernardino Co. can be carried for sobriety and able and competent State, County and Municipal Officers and Sunday Law so may it be. A boy lecturer, Geo. E. Tilton, lately from the East, aged eleven years is widely advertised to deliver an address on Temperance, here, on Sunday night. He is said to be quite a prodigy. Much good may he do and long may he live to do it. We can't have too many workers. I expect to send you 20 subscribers for the RESCUE.

HILLSBORO, Or., Feb. 6, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—Probably it would be well for some one to inform the readers of the RESCUE of the progress our Grand Lecturer, Col. J. T. Long is making in the jurisdiction of Oregon—in the interests of the I. O. G. T.

Since he began, Dec. 1st, '81, up to the 1st inst., he has organized ten or eleven new lodges, and reorganized several, thereby adding to the roll of members between seven and eight hundred; which, considering all things, is a good showing, for so sparsely settled country as Oregon, and in the winter season at that. The influence of his lectures is not confined to localities which he visits only, but to all lodges in the jurisdiction. They hear of his success and take new interest; applications multiply and enquiries are made as to the workings of the Order, by those who think they will join sometime. One good feature of Col. Long's work is, that he has drawn into the work, many prominent and leading persons of the communities and of the state where he has lectured. Therefore, I feel very much encouraged for our cause. With the growing interest for the temperance question both in the temperance societies and out of them, we hope to carry the state four years hence for prohibition. In this locality, there is a growing interest for prohibition, many signing the petitions who heretofore had talked against it. The president of the State Temperance Alliance, Dr. J. W. Watts, informed me some weeks ago, that petitions had been sent in then, aggregating upwards of six thousand names and I anticipate, when the Alliance meets on the 15th inst., the number will double that.

Hillsboro Lodge No. 17, for the term just closed, reports one hundred and twenty-seven members in good standing, sixteen suspended, of which I think one half will pay up and be re-instated; which, considering the population of the town,—460—is a fair showing.

Brothers and sisters, wake up; "day is breaking;" stand firm, be steadfast, and victory will be ours.

CHAS. T. TOZIER, G. W. C. T.

THE USUAL edition of last week was mailed on time and the last of the 22,560 were ready rapped and addressed for mailing on Saturday. But an entirely unforeseen obstacle arose. Only a limited quantity of extras are allowed to be sent in one week by mail without being stamped which would have cost 12 cents a pound. Therefore as many as could be sent were despatched by mail: then all those which could be sent at a reasonable rate by express were so disposed of on Saturday. Again on Monday all that were allowable in this week were sent by mail and a few packages must remain till early Monday morning 27th. The delay of the late ones is entirely due to a recent ruling of the officials of our venerated Uncle Sam:

WHEN you order goods from San Francisco cash grocery 519 Post St. say whether to be sent by freight or express. Make checks or P. O. orders payable to H. A. Smith. Full particulars about ordering and general price list sent on application.

G. W. S. OFFICE.

The duties and cares of the G. W. S. office since the commencement of the current year, Oct. 1st, have been decidedly onerous. From Oct. 1st to Jan. 31st, there were received, filed and answered 1738 letters and 355 postal cards; a total of 2093 communications. The receipts of the office during the same period, were received in 713 items, aggregating $12,079.28 of which $5421.06 was on account of the Home for Orphans Fund; $5,086.55 General Fund, $1126.67 Lecture Fund and $445 Charter Fee Fund. There was disposed of during the same period, 221 items of 397 form books; 130 of 2984 blank forms; 135 of 2643 constitutions; 37 of 824 Subordinate Ode cards; 37 of 446 music ode cards; 103 of 737 clearance cards; 15 of 15 receipts of evening books; 9 of 9 constitution roll books; 28 of 28 roll call books; 21 of 37 subordinate rituals; 41 of 105 officers cards; 10 of 22 trial blanks; 11 of 11 Chase's Digests; 4 of 4 Good of the Order; 6 of 32 Temperance Chimes; 1 of 2 Ripples of song; 20 of 3300 seal wafers; 1 of 1 degree book; 1 of 12 degree ode cards; 2 of 200 pledge cards. Aggregating 833 items of 11809 pieces of supplies sent out on orders and sold (charged) for $1227.25.

There were sent by mail 1432 packages; by express, 125 packages. There were issued 427 Lodge, 44 State, 39 District, 19 Special and 13 Degree Templars, D. G. W. C. T. Commissions, or a total of 542 commissions. Outfits of Lodge supplies, together with charter, etc., were made up for and forwarded to 42 new lodges organized. The journals of proceedings of Grand Lodge 182 pages, was issued during the same period, carefully revised and 900 copies mailed. Seventy-eight warrants have been drawn, disbursing $16451.46.

Quarterly returns from 331 lodges have been received, revised and carefully filed. The vote of 284 lodges on the change of regalia question have been received, verified and filed. Donations have been received, recorded and cared for from 78 lodges, individuals, etc., aggregating $368.95, on account of literature dime collection. Thousands of quarterly and other circulars have been mailed, besides the various and other sundry duties of the office, including the keeping of an open account with each lodge have been carefully attended to.

The report was considered seriatim, and approved and adopted in all its parts.

Sister M. E. Richardson, G. S. J. W., submitted her report as follows:

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN:—DEAR BRO:—I here write my report for the quarter ending Jan. 31. There were 67 Bands of Hope reported to me by Bro. Bramall. Of this number 20 have failed to respond to circular, and have given no sign of life, up to date, No. bands organized in Oct., 9; in Nov., 14; in Dec., 16; in Jan., 13; total, 52.

Of the bands organized since Oct. one has died and as I learn this evening one has never lived. The first was organized by Bro. P. Powers in Marysville, and has recently been re-organized on a surer footing by same brother. The latter organized (?) at Kingsburg, Fresno Co., by Bro. King. I learn by letter from supposed Supt. never had a being; he was asked to organize and carry on a B of H. and refused. In addition to bands above reported, I have been corresponding with friends of the cause, and have recently sent supplies for organizing 11 bands which will doubtless be reported in a few days. In Nov. mailed 59 packages containing 123 rituals, 1,592 badges, 44 letters, 66 postals. In Dec. mailed 44 packages containing 171 rituals, 950 badges, 33 letters 28 postals. In Jan. mailed 171 packages containing 3,684 rituals, 1,616 badges, 133 letters 86 postals. Total, 374 packages containing 3,978 rituals, 4,158 badges, 184 letters 180 postals. Have also mailed about 150 circulars to Supt's. B of H. and 370 circulars accompanied by new ritual to to L. D's. also 338 circulars to Sabbath School Supts. Have promptly filled all orders when supplies have been at hand, and in all cases have immediately answered all letters. Have endeavored to discharge my whole duty. Have sent 200 old rituals and 100 badges to the Gen. Supt. J. W. of Oregon, for which I have not yet received payment, as she has ordered 125 more badges which as yet I have not been able to spare.

Respectfully submitted, M. E. Richardson.

The G. S. J. W. also presented her financial statement showing an expenditure of $161 26 for miscellaneous expenses, which together with $100 due her for salary, made her account $261 25. She had received advances amounting to $200, and had sold supplies amounting to $2 35. Leaving the amount due her in settlement $58 91. The account was audited allowed, and a warrant ordered drawn for the amount found to be due.

A communication was received from C. E. Naylor and Frank Storer D. S. of the San Francisco District Lodge, setting forth the need of special work in that district etc. The communication was received and ordered placed on file.

It being understood from information presented by the G. W. S., that Bro. Col. J. T. Long of Kentucky, now lecturing in Oregon, would soon return eastward and was possibly open for an engagement during the month of March, it was

Resolved, That the G. W. S. be directed to correspond with Col. Long and secure his services if terms can be agreed upon and if employed, that he be stationed at San Francisco for local work in and about the metropolis, and that he be placed under the immediate direction and control of the District Deputy, and committee of the San Francisco District lodge.

A petition was presented from citizens of Alturas, Modoc county, asking for a charter. Correspondence was also presented from officers of Alturas lodge No. 149.

After due consideration it was unanimously agreed to grant the charter to J. L. Kerr, and his associates as prayed for.

A communication was received from Cap. A. D. Wood editor and publisher of the RESCUE, showing the average copies of the paper published weekly during the previous quarter to be 3 467, the first week being 3,360, the last 3,600. The average cost per issue was $100 48. The total cost of publication for the 13 weeks was $1,306 23. The receipts aggregates $687 30, leaving a deficiency of $618 93. There was due the paper for advertising and subscriptions $193 80.

Bills were presented and allowed on account of publication of the RESCUE during the past quarter as follows: Deficiency in publication, $618 93. Editors salary, $450. Services of office assistant, $75.

Upon motion duly made and carried a warrant in the sum of $1,143, was ordered drawn in favor of Cap. A. D. Wood for deficiencies and publication of the RESCUE during last quarter.

A supplemental communication was received showing subscriptions received by Grand Lecturers during the past quarter as follows: King, 151; Mrs. Sterens, 133; Webb, 93; Hughes, 10; Crowhurst, 3; Goulding, 1; Total, 391.

A communication was received from J. N. Stearns Secretary of the N. T. S. and P. H., in answer to the G. W. S., relative to certain lines of temperance literature ordered distributed at the last session of the Grand Lodge.

The financial condition of the Grand Lodge not being such as to warrant the undertaking of the distribution of the books named at this time, the matter was temporarily deferred, and the communication of Prof. Stearns ordered on file.

A bill was presented from George Bramall for $51 45 for postage and expenses incurred in the distribution of temperance literature under direction of the G. W. C. T. Upon motion duly made and carried the bill was allowed and referred to the G. W. C. T. for payment with a recommendation that Brother Bramall be allowed $25 for his services.

The G. W. C. T. reported having employed Bros. Culver and Babcock for a few days for points needing immediate assistance, and to which the regular lecturers could not be sent, because of previous engagements. Action approved.

The G. W. C. T. presented bills and vouchers for various expenditures under his supervision, aggregating as follows:

Distribution of Temperance Literature	$253 85
Lecture field work	217 00
Juvenile work, for rituals etc	134 05
G. W. T. C. Contingent expenses	239 85
Total bills by the G. W. C. T.	$844 75

The accounts were audited allowed, and $700 having already been drawn in advance, upon motion duly made and carried; a warrant was ordered drawn for $144 75 in favor of the G. W. C. T.

The reports of the six Grand Lecturers were examined and passed. The aggregate expenditures and salaries of the six regular Grand Lecturers was $3,640 48. The aggregate receipts from collections and charter fees was $2,076 82, leaving a deficiency of $1,563 66 which was furnished from the Grand Lodge Treasury.

After a general review of the work for the past quarter in which all was found very hopeful and satisfactory at 2 o'clock A. M. the committee adjourned.

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN,
Secretary.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

WM. CROWHURST.

As promised last week we continue our report from Roseville. Sunday night found the schoolhouse, though quite large, thoroughly packed, and parties standing outside. By request, the occasion was turned into a Sunday Law mass meeting. Rev. Bro. Gregory presided and read the Decalogue, emphasizing the fourth commandment. At the close of the address, the Justice of the Peace arose and endorsed all that was said and made quite a good and telling speech. He was followed by a leading merchant, and then by a good earnest sister. She was preceded by a saloon-keeper who promised to close on Sunday if the others would. A vote of the audience resulted in all but about eight persons promising to unite in enforcing the law in that town. An agreement was afterward drawn up and freely circulated for signatures. The people here are earnest and determined in this matter. On Monday night, both degrees were conferred and a thorough exemplification of all the unwritten work was given and the Lodge felt that time had been valuably used and extended a hearty request to us to "come again." On Tuesday, a gentleman introduced himself as a "saloonatic" and then introduced a semi-saloonatic as the Constable, who very kindly placed a little document in our hands. This proved to be a bill of three dollars for the use of the school-house, fire, etc. The people used the school-house, the church purchased the lights, and Bro. Ferguson supplied the wood. We simply refused to pay, and referred the matter to the Lodge. Now as the minister gave his time to the Lodge and allowed us to use the schoolhouse instead of himself at that hour, it is not likely that the Lodge will acknowledge any right to pay. The whole matter was mean and underhanded. If the school trustees wanted rent, they should have presented the bill as any other persons would have done. But the cowardly way of placing it in the hands of the constable, showed the animus of the liquor traffic, especially as no charge had ever been made for the school-house before. But this was a temperance lecture and it contained too much truth for a whisky-selling trustee.

At Rocklin, two meetings were held, at one of which a saloon-keeper promised to sell out his business and have nothing more to do with the traffic.

Sister Mills is earnestly at work. Several names were proposed in Lodge meeting.

Penryn turned out good audiences and enjoyed the two evenings work. Newcastle, rain, snow, cold!

We were kindly received and entertained at the former place by Bro. S. A. Wood and at the latter by Bro. G. D. Kellogg.

Newcastle, Placer Co., Feb. 12, 1882.

C. N. GOULDING.

Wednesday the 1st I made my bow before a Tehama County Audience at Tehama, also on the 2d, a fair audience the first and a large audience the second evening, found the lodge holding its own and gaining slowly and working under the most discouraging surroundings, contending with six saloons population probably 350; in fact whisky has full and undoubted controll of the place, on the 3d, went to Red Bluff and assisted at the installation of the officers for this quarter, found the lodge there prospering numbering nearly 200, with a large surplus fund in the Treasury, which will be expended on their new hall, which is needed, as the lodge is rapidly increasing; on the 4th drove 32 miles to Pinckney (Shasta County), lectured in the evening and at the close of my lecture organized a lodge with 32 charter members, George Moore L. Depty. I had written to Dr. T. F. Winsell of Balls Ferry to go and organize this lodge but being busy he could not leave his "Ranch" and I was obliged to make the trip, this lodge has good prospects, and will be heard from in the future, up early on the 5th drove to Red Bluff and at 3 P. M. addressed the Band of Hope numbering 200 members, and at 7 P. M. commenced my labors in the Presbyterian Church. A Union meeting. Revs. Mayhew, Woodward, Bateman and McPherson occupying seats on the platform, this formmable array of Clergy rather disconcerted me for a moment, but knowing that they did not expect me to discuss the question of temperance from a theological standpoint, and knowing that they were heart and soul in the work, the embarrassment soon passed away and I presented as best I could the claims of temperance, the audience was large and enthusiastic, every seat in the large church being occupied and standing in the isles. Monday evening in the Baptist Church, was but a repetition of Sunday evening, and Tuesday evening in the M. E. Church, long before the hour of meeting every seat was occupied and hundreds turned away unable to gain admittance, it was indeed a "boom for temperance" and trust it will result in good for our Order, to the Press ("Cause and Sentinel") the excellent choirs and the citizens generally, am under many obligations. A splendid collection of $52,50 was one of the features worth special mention; it is to be regretted that the meetings could not be continued but previous appointments in the county prevented, on the 8 came here (22 miles) lectured in the school house 8th and 9th to large audiences. The lodge here was at one time in a flourishing condition but local dissensions and bickerings crept in with the usual results; shall return here on the 24th. I go from here to Henlyville, Elder Creek Church and as announced will write as opportunity occurs.

Riceville, Feb. 11, 1882.

J. W. WEBB.

San Bernardino. It is pleasant for a lecturer to come here, for they treat him quite handsomely. Judge Boren drove over to Colton, where passengers leave the cars, to meet me with his buggy. The committee of arrangements were at the hotel to receive. I stopped at Starke's Hotel, because it is commodious, clean, comfortable and quiet, and has no bar. The committee, consisting of Dist. Deputy H. C. Brooke, Lodge Deputy, "Dick"—I beg his pardon, R. H.—Curtis, and P. W. C. T., Col. Paris, posted me as to status of lodge and cause, and acted as a very efficient escort or body guard, to and from the lectures. Good full house at Congregational church Saturday night, pastor and two other preachers present, Bro. Rev. Walter Featherstun, brother to the District Lecturer in the North, opening with prayer. Bro. Lehman, W. C. T., presided; excellent music by the choir. On Sunday afternoon Bro. Brooke and I addressed the Band of Hope, well conducted by Bro. Switzer, formerly of Virginia Grand Lodge. Children did well with ritual, singing and reciting. At night the church was crowded; four teen dollars was contributed toward the general fund of the order. On Monday night met with lodge which has an average attendance of 100 and reports 234 this quarter. We confidently expect a large number of initiations as the result of the lectures and so Merrill Lodge of Los Angeles, Golden Rule of San Diego and San Luis Obispo Lodge, must look well to their laurels. Went through subordinate and degree work, gave an address and had short speeches from several, notably Sister Rowell who was a member of the first lodge here, started by the "Boys in Blue." Tuesday, Judge Boren drove me to the school of Bro. M. V. Wright, a Baptist minter and a most ardent and persistent speaker and worker for the order, at old San Bernardino. School sang for us and I gave them a long talk against intoxicants and tobacco. At night not a very large but a patient audience whom Bro. Wright, Bro. Boren and I addressed. The town members will get some members from here, I think, as the place is not yet ready for a lodge. Wednesday, visited town school and addressed on "the twin evils," four departments; the teachers are Good Templars, as indeed the Co. Supt., Dr. Rosseau, and almost every teacher in the county is. Again Judge Boren drove me out, this time to the W. C. T., Bro. Ball's District, and I spoke on the old themes for half an hour, to 65 pupils. For fuller information, Sr. Bennett asked a number of questions about tobacco, and the young men and boys listened most respectfully to the answers. At night a good audience to whom I made a strong plea on temperance generally and for a lodge particularly. Gave Bro. Ball a form of application, and he is sanguine of getting sufficient names; then Bro. Brooke, D. D., will institute. Thursday, Bro. Ball took me to two more suburban schools to address; temperance teachers more than willing I should speak against tobacco as well as liquor. Also visited the Principals department in town, and then the Colton school, 3 miles off, to interest the pupils and prepare the way for my lecture on Saturday. At night, lectured to a crowded house in Congregational church, on "Blunders." Obtained names for lodge.

Friday, went to the Mount Vernon District, spoke to the school, two departments, and at night had a full attendance, good music, best of attention; obtained subscribers to Rescue and sold 25 Cook's books and got several names for Lodge. Bro. Rowell, formerly of Arizona, interviewed me at request of the Lodges and brethren of that Territory urging me to use my influence with the Executive Committee of the Grand Lodge to send them a Lecturer. There are several lodges and a number of points where others could probably be instituted. Phœnix Lodge has just initiated its one hundredth member, but Prescott Lodge is suspended unless State Deputy Rev. Bro. Adams, has succeeded in reviving it. Rev. Bro. Bovard whom the Good Templars specially sent to Grand Lodge to try and secure some lecture aid made strong representations to the Committee on good of the order and that Committee recommended that Arizona be not overlooked. I have written to the Lodges in Arizona to "Hold the Fort" till the Executive Committee can do something for them and also to Bro. Thompson in whose hands the matter is placed.

San Bernardino Lodge has a number of good speakers who could do efficient service in extending the membership and public sentiment by occasional visits to adjacent localities and open meetings in town. I have earnestly plead for some systematic plan of volunteer work between the visits of Grand Lecturers which may be relied on as often as the means and number of Lecturers at the command of the Executive will possibly allow. I might mention Revs. J. T. Ford, Walter Featherstun and Law; District Attorney Captain Rowell, lawyers Col. Paris, Harris, Allen and Judge Boren, also M. V. Wright, H. C, Brook and R. H. Curtis, teachers and probably others besides a good number of lady members who are good singers, essayists, and readers. Elections are coming on and the Sunday Law and Temperance are going to be prominent issues. Now is the time to work up an earnest interest all thru the county, developing such a sentiment that Christians, moral men and temperance people will be ready to work at the primaries, conventions and the ballot box. With anything like systematic and persistent effort from this time till Fall, San Bernardino Co. can be carried for sobriety and able and competent State, County and Municipal Officers and Sunday Law so may it be. A boy lecturer, Geo. E. Tilton, lately from the East, aged eleven years is widely advertised to deliver an address on Temperance, here, on Sunday night. He is said to be quite a prodigy. Much good may he do and long may he live to do it. We can't have too many workers. I expect to send you 20 subscribers for the Rescue.

Hillsboro, Or., Feb. 6, 1882.

Ed. Rescue:—Probably it would be well for some one to inform the readers of the Rescue of the progress our Grand Lecturer, Col. J. T. Long is making in the jurisdiction of Oregon—in the interests of the I. O. G. T.

Since he began, Dec. 1st, '81, up to the 1st inst., he has organized ten or eleven new lodges, and reorganized several, thereby adding to the roll of members between seven and eight hundred; which, considering all things, is a good showing, for so sparsely settled country as Oregon, and in the winter season at that. The influence of his lectures is not confined to localities which he visits only, but to all lodges in the jurisdiction. They hear of his success and take new interest; applications multiply and enquiries are made as to the workings of the Order, by those who think they will join sometime. One good feature of Col. Long's work is, that he has drawn into the work, many prominent and leading persons of the communities and of the state where he has lectured. Therefore, I feel very much encouraged for our cause. With the growing interest for the temperance question both in the temperance societies and out of them, we hope to carry the state four years hence for prohibition. In this locality, there is a growing interest for prohibition, many signing the petitions who heretofore had talked against it. The president of the State Temperance Alliance, Dr. J. W. Watts, informed me some weeks ago, that petitions had been sent in then, aggregating upwards of six thousand names and I anticipate, when the Alliance meets on the 15th inst., the number will double that.

Hillsboro Lodge No. 17, for the term just closed, reports one hundred and twenty-seven members in good standing, sixteen suspended, of which I think one half will pay up and be re-instated; which, considering the population of the town,—460—is a fair showing.

Brothers and sisters, wake up; "day is breaking;" stand firm, be steadfast, and victory will be ours.

Chas. T. Tozier, G. W. C. T.

The usual edition of last week was mailed on time and the last of the 22,560 were ready rapped and addressed for mailing on Saturday. But an entirely unforeseen obstacle arose. Only a limited quantity of extras are allowed to be sent in one week by mail without being stamped which would have cost 12 cents a pound. Therefore as many as could be sent were despatched by mail: then all those which could be sent at a reasonable rate by express were so disposed of on Saturday. Again on Monday all that were allowable in this week were sent by mail and a few packages must remain till early Monday morning 27th. The delay of the late ones is entirely due to a recent ruling of the officials of our venerated Uncle Sam:

When you order goods from San Francisco cash grocery 519 Post St. say whether to be sent by freight or express. Make checks or P. O. orders payable to H. A. Smith. Full particulars about ordering and general price list sent on application.

SPEECH OF GOVERNOR ST. JOHN AT BROOKLYN, JANUARY 22, 1882.

MR. CHAIRMAN AND CITIZENS.—It affords me a great deal of pleasure to have the privilege of addressing so many citizens as we have here to-night in this temple erected to the honor and glory of God. upon a subject so closely interwoven with Christianity that we cannot separate one from the other without doing manifest injury to both. While it is true a citizen may be in favor of temperance and not be a Christian, yet I claim that no citizen can be a Christian and not be in favor of temperance. No greater truth was ever uttered than by Abrahcm Lincoln—when he said that "the Government cannot exist half slave and half free." No less a truth is contained in the declaration that this Government cannot exist half drunk and half sober. It must of necessity eventually become all one or all the other. If this be true it then becomes the duty of every lover of his country, of every lover of humanity, of every Christian thruout this land, to put forth every effort in his or her power to make of this a sober nation. The use, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is either right or it is absolutely wrong. There is no neutral ground to be occupied successfully by any one. If it is right it is wrong to impose a heavy license or excise tax upon the business—If, on the other hand, it is wrong, no ammount of license or excise money can ever make it right. It then being, as I contend, absolutely wrong, it should be prohibited and never should have given to it the sanction of the law. If the men and boys of this country are to be destroyed by the use of intoxicating liquors, I say in God's name let them be destroyed in violation rather than by the sanction of any law. I come here to-night to talk to you upon a subject that is in no sense political, or, in other words; it is not a partisan question. The platform of temperance is as broad as the universe. Democrats, Republicans, Greenbackers, men of all political creeds and relegious creeds, can can stand upon that platform. We have here to-night with us the honored governor of Georgia. While Georgia and Kansas differ politically, upon this great platform of humanity, thank God! not only Georgia and Kansas can stand, but the entire North and South can stand, and I look forward to the day when this question of temperance shall do more to blot out—in fact, it is doing more to blot out any prejudices that ever existed between the North and the South than any other question that has ever arisen in this country. We are told that it is necessary that dramshops should be legalized in order to control them; that from them is derived a great revenue. I love my country, I hope, as well as almost any citizen can; I honor our flag; but if there is any one criticism more severe than all others that I would pass upon the Government under which we live it is that it is paying a great national debt to-day—a debt sealed by the blood of our bravest and truest men—by deriving a revenue from that which everyone knows to be wrong. It is better, it seems to me, if we desire to control an evil to prohibit it rather than directly or indirectly sanction it by law. I am persuaded from what I have seen to-day in New York—and I am told that under the law saloons are not permitted to be open on the Sabbath; or, at least, it is in violation of law if they are kept open—I am persuaded by what I have seen to-day in this city, or, in fact, from what I have seen in all the cities of the East, that the law here and elsewhere fails to control them, fails to regulate them, but that they trample the law under foot here as they do elsewhere where they have the sanction of the law given to them and protection thrown around them. Now then, if it is wrong, there is but one way to do, and that is to blot it out, drive it from the land. No individual, no nation ever was successful in going into partnership with that which was wrong, and a government, let it be city, State, or national, that undertakes to derive a revenue by giving sanction of law to that which is wrong will reach a period in its history when it must crush that evil that is thus sanctioned or by

THAT EVIL BE CRUSHED.

Yes, but they tell us that we cannot prohibit, we cannot blot it out, we caunot drive it from the country. I remember when we had human slavery in this country that that was the cry all over the land. Five years before slavery went down, before it was destroyed, it perhaps had greater influence than it ever had in the history of this Government; but the time came and it was blotted out just as every evil can be blotted out. If the American people will take hold of it as they ought to; if they will array themselves against it, if they will be brave, we can rid this Government of almost any great evil in our midst. It is a sad commentary upon the civilization in which we live if we in this day and age are to acknowledge that there exists in our midst anything the power of which for evil is greater than the power of the whole people for good. In Kansas for years past we have been battling with this evil. In 1879 the Legislature of that State by a unanimous vote in the Senate and a vote of a little over two-thirds in the House, submitted an amendment to our state Constitution to the vote of the people, by which it was proposed to for ever prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage within the borders of that State. That amendment, when the people reached it at the ballot-box in November, 1880, received 8,000 majority. The next step to be taken was the election of a legislature that should pass laws for its enforcement. When the legislative body came together in January, 1881, after twenty days' consideration of our present prohibitory bill by the committees on temperance, when the question was brought to a vote in the Senate our present prohibitory law received thirty-two in its favor to only seven against it. In the house of representatives it received 100 votes to only 23 against it. This was accompiished after a struggle lasting nearly two years in our State. During that time, remember, we had a great power to contend with—the power of the combined forces of the whisky ring not only of Kansas but of this nation. New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, all the great populous cities of this country, sent money there to use against us in that campaign. The rum force was thoroly organized, and, let me tell you, citizens, its members are always united and harmonious. A State organization was formed in opposition to prohibition. That organization consisted almost entirely of active members of the great body of distillers, brewers, and saloon-keepers of the State. I remember when they held a State convention in the city of Topeka, the very first resolution adopted by that organization was that they opposed prohibition, not from a whisky standpoint, but opposed it from a temperance standpoint; opposed it because they knew that it would increase the manufacture, sale, and use of intoxicating liquors in Kansas. Just imagine if you can, a delegation of one hundred and twenty-five saloon-keepers in State convention assembled, with great tears shed at the thought of the increase of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor that would be caused by prohibition in that State. One of the leaders said to me: "We propose to defeat that amendment to the constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks. We have not only the influence of every saloon-keeper, brewer, and distiller in the State, but we have more; we have at our command $100,000 or more to thro into the campaign." One hundred thousand dollars would seem like a very small sum in a campaign in the State of New York, but when you come to a Western State, with only a million population $100,000 thrown into the campaign. when the friends of temperance were poor and had but little money to bring to bear against it, was an immense sum to be combated by us. "Yes," said I to him, "it is true you have every brewer, distiller, and saloon-keeper, and the influence that stands behind them throughout the State, on your side, and you have $100,000 at your back, and it makes a strong case for you. While that is so, we have with us every true man and woman, and God Almighty is on our side, and we are ready for the battle." * * * Others said that it prohibited the sale of even intoxicating liquor for the purpose of curing snake bite. It never did cure snake bite except upon the principle that the whisky was more poisonous than the snake. The whole fraternity to the cause of the Church and Christianity. Men to whom the church had been a sealed book for a score of years said that taking away sacramental wine was trampling on the guarantee of the Constitution, which provided that they should be permitted to worship God according to the dictates of their conscience. The fact is our law does not interfere in any way with the question of sacramental wine. * * * I have my own opinion about this question of sacramental wine: No one is responsible for it but myself; no political party or temperance organization is responsible for it. I believe that fermented or intoxicating wine is no better in the church on the communion-table than it is in the saloon on the bar. I do not believe that the Savior of mankind intended that we should take intoxicating liquor of any kind and put it to the lips of a reformed man and say, "Here, brother, drink this in remembrance of me." The next objection made to the prohibitory law was that it was absolutely ruining the State. All over the East publications were made in the leading dailies purporting to come from Kansas, that the State was being depleted, that business was destroyed, in fact, that the law was the greatest disaster that had ever occurred during the history of Kansas—worse than the grasshoppers and the drought, and all other calamities that have befallen us. I went to the records; the assessment roll for 1881, under prohibition, showed that the valuation of personal property alone was $10,243,000 greater than it was in 1880 under free whisky rule, and a little over $4,000,000 greater increase than any previous year in the history of Kansas. Now we want to be ruined in that way. New York will not object to be ruined in the same way. The next cry was that immigration had stopped, and it was ruining the railroads; so I concluded I would make some inquiry and see whether there was any truth in that assertion or not. Just before I left Topeka, on last Monday, I applied to General Manager C. C. Wheeler, of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe Railway Company, for a statement showing the earnings of that road for 1880, under our old license system, and of 1881, under the adopted prohibition. He informed me that in round numbers the year 1880 showed earnings for that road amounting to eight and a half million of dollars. In 1881 twelve million dollars was the sum earned by that road, an increase of nearly 50 per cent, in a single year. All the railroads in the country can stand that kind of injury at the hands of prohibition. I have seen published during the last two weeks in the papers of New York, Brooklyn, and Philadelphia a statement purporting to have come from Kansas, in which it is asserted that not less than 40,000 citizens have left Kansas and settled in Southwestern Missouri since our prohibitory law took effect. I desire to state here to-night that there is not a word of truth in that statement; but that during the past eighteen months in population at least 100,000, and that increase is made up of the very best citizens we ever had come to our State. It has been composed of that class of people who build schoolhouses, who build churches, who establish Sabbath-schools, who help to build up and make a State strong and vigorous and worthy of the respect of the civilization of the world. We are also told that this law has entirely stopped foreign emigration to that State. You would be made to believe from many of the reports that one-half of our population is foreign. We have the least foreign population of any State in the West except Indiana. Our foreign population amounts to only about 11 per cent., but in justice to the foreigners—because it is a libel on every foreigner that comes to the country to intimate that he comes here with no higher ambition than to get drunk or have the privilege of making his neighbor drunk—I want to say that foreigners come here to build for themselves homes, and not alone to engage in the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. Take the county of McPherson, in Kansas, one of the grandest counties in that State, with a population of nearly 20,000. Established only twelve years ago, it possesses the greatest percentage of foreign population of any county in Kansas, yet it gave 1,220 majority for prohibition. "Yes," said some, "that majority was made up of the American vote." Not so, for the reason that the entire American vote but little exceeded 1,220. Now let us see a moment. I went to the records giving the vote of the six townships in that county having the greatest foreign vote, and I found that those six townships gave the greatest majority for prohibition; and in the township of Lindsborg, in that county, in which is situated the little village of Lindsborg, with 600 population composed almost entirely of Swedish settlers, out of 237 votes cast, 225 were for prohibition. Men talk to me about it driving away foreign emigration! A few months ago I was at Kansas City, Missouri, and I saw there five families, all Germans, just come from the old country. A gentleman went up to a man who was with them, and who seemed to be interpreter for them, and said. "Where are these Germans going?" "They are going to Kansas," was the reply. "Why," said he, "people are not going to Kansas, for the reason that they can get no lager-beer there; no intoxicating liquors are permitted to be sold." The interpreter talked to one of the old Germans a moment and then turned to the gentleman who had just addressed him and said: "They request me to say to you, sir, that they are not going to Kansas for lager-beer but they are going to Kansas to secure homes for themselves and families, and that their experience in their own country has taught them that there is more real happiness in one well-regulated home than there is in all the lager-beer ever manufactured." I said to myself: "God bless those German families! they are welcome to Kansas." Kansas opens wide her doors to the downtrodden and oppressed of every nation. We have no sentinel at our portals to inquire where a man was born or to what political party he belongs. We care not whether he is black or white, rich or poor. If he is honest and willing to put forth an effort to make for himself and family an honest living we say: "God bless you! our doors are open wide; you are welcome." You will notice in these publications in relation to the migration from Kansas into Southwestern Missouri—you will notice that the reason given why these great bodies of citizens mov from one State to the other is prohibition, yet in thee very next sentence assure you that they are selling more whisky in Kansas to-day than ever before. One of the wholesale whisky-dealers, in a report made to the Kansas City Journal in September last, said—"While prohibition has injured our trade in Kansas, it has lessened our expenses." And why? "Because," said he, "we no longer send agents through Kansas to solicit busines, because it don't pay." It seems to me that if there is more whisky sold now than ever before they would certainly send agents, because they send to other States around there. Now, then, if it were true—which it is not, but suppose it is true—that there are 40,000 people, or any other number, who have left Kansas and gone into Southwestern Missouri, will they better their condition very much? No, Why? Because Missouri to-day is moving on to prohibition just as surely as the rising and setting of the sun.

BECAME SUDDENLY CONVERTED

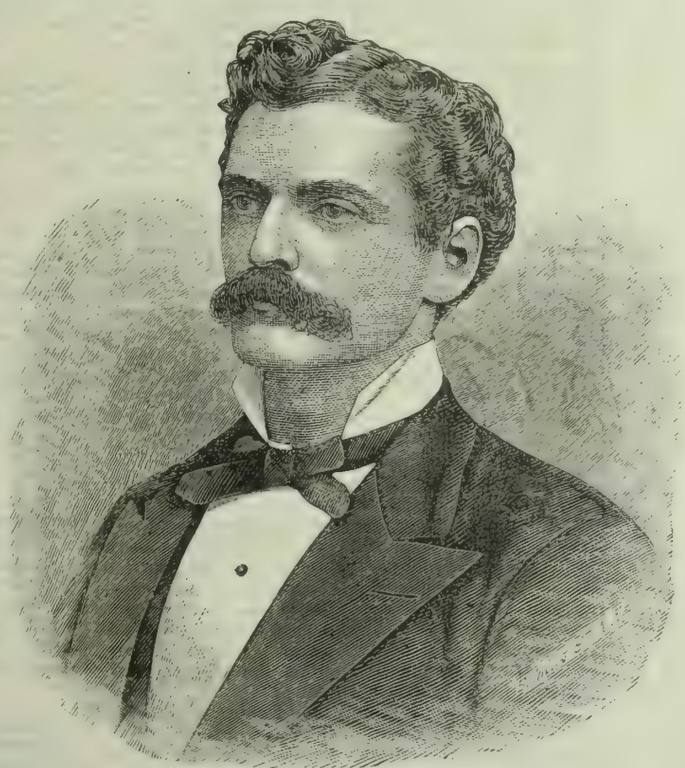
VOL. XIX. SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1882. No. 18

GEORGE B. KATZENSTEIN.

BY THE G. W. C. T.

We propose here to give a sketch of George B. Katzenstein, our present Right Worthy Grand Templar. In doing so, we shall keep in mind that, so far as the public are concerned, it is more useful to know what fitted one for advancement, than simply to know that he was advanced. Success is not an effect without a cause.



George B. Katzenstein was born of French parentage, in the city of New Orleans, State of Louisiana, on November 28, 1848, where he resided until he was four years of age, when his parents with their family emigrated to California, and located at Marysville, Yuba County. The business engaged in by the family was that of keeping a hotel, and in those early days (1853) no one thought of keeping a public house without keeping in it a public bar. The "Ohio House," on the foot of D street, was no exception to the general rule of early California life, and the proverbial bar was there. Wine and beer were as common upon the table as tea and coffee; but he withstood this temptation, and at thirteen years of age (March, 1862), joined Morning Star Lodge, No 25, I. O. G. T., at Marysville. His consciousness, even at that early age, told him that "moderate drinking was nothing if not incipient drunkenness."

He was educated in the city schools of Marysville. Apt and ambitious, his progress was rapid, and his teachers found it difficult to keep him busy. He, on one occasion, went home and requested that he should be sent to a private school, so he could be kept employed. As a boy, he was by choice a worker. He sought employment in a store, for odd hours, and wended his way from school to his employer's place of business daily. This constant application, aided by a malarial district, finally broke down his health, and he was compelled to leave the valley of his boyhood and repair to the mountains for change and rest. Before following him there, it may be well to dwell for a moment upon those traits of character that yet characterize him as a man. He seems, as a child, to have settled back upon his own consciousness of what was proper and just, rather than to adopt the views of those about him. This was shown in various ways. His parents had resided for years in the Southern States, and naturally looked upon the subject of slavery from a Southern standpoint. He never agreed with them on that subject, but held, and advocated the opposite opinion. The same independence of mind was shown in regard to the use of intoxicating drinks. His parents held to the custom and notions of their native country; but he condemned the use of all intoxicants, and was independent enough to act regardless of his surroundings. Instead of falling in with the notions of the past without questioning them, he followed his own judgment. We also find him showing, in those early years, another trait of character that strongly marks him as a man. He had method in all his work. He was regularly at school; regularly at the store after school hours; regularly at lodge after he joined. In short, he was a painstaker, and would for that reason be classed, by Carlyle, as a genius. This natural love of order and system has been so developed that he can accomplish in his present position, as Grand Worthy Secretary of the Grand Lodge about double the amount of business ordinarily done by one man. We also find in these early years indications of that clear insight and general comprehension of things which in his manhood enables him to do the proper thing, at the proper time. In all society matters he is master of the situation. You can hardly conceive a mind better fitted for the numerous emergencies that arise in fraternal organizations, than that of George B. Katzenstein. In the Lodge at Marysville he became acquainted with William H. Mills, Esq., who subsequently became G. W. S. and G. W. Counselor of the G. L. of California and is now the manager and publisher of the Sacramento Record-Union.

We find him at sixteen starting out in business for himself. For a time he was in mercantile pursuits, in Meadow Lake, in Nevada county, about six thousand feet above the level of the sea, with John Landis, now a wealthy citizen of Wheatland, Yuba county, California.

The mines failing, he removed to Grass Valley, where he joined Sylvania Lodge, No. 12, and became the W. C. T. before he was 17 years of age. Health returning he returned to Marysville, rejoined Morning Star Lodge, and as a delegate entered the G. L. before reaching his nineteenth year.

Immediately after Grand Lodge he started from Marysville for the Southern part of California to accept a position as clerk in a mercantile house; but on reaching Sacramento called to see Mr. Mills, and was induced to remain in his employment. He has ever since that year, 1867, been employed in the Grand Secretary's office. The Grand Lodge at that time had but little business, and Mr. Mills was engaged in the insurance business with a Mr. Rowland, Post-master of Sacramento city. Mr. Katzenstein was soon admitted to the firm, and they conducted business under the firm name of Rowland, Mills and Katzenstein. Mr. Rowland died, and Mr. Mills being offered the management of the Sacramento Record, they sold out their insurance business. From the time he became connected with Mr. Mills he held the position of Grand Worthy Assistant Secretary. At the G. L session of 1871, Mr. Mills declining a re-nomination, Mr. Katzenstein was elected G. W. S., and has been re-elected to the same position every year since.

During the four years that he had acted as Assistant Secretary he had become so perfectly familiar with the duties of that office that he was at once qualified to overcome all the many difficulties pertaining to it.

His influence on the Good Templar Order of California can never be fully comprehended. He started to be sure, under favorable auspices. He had experienced workers to counsel and encourage him; but had he not had inherent worth fitting him for the position, and that too in a remarkable degree, he could not have developed into a man with few to equal and none to excel him in his present field of labor.

Since Bro. Katzenstein became connected with the Grand Worthy Secretary's office our membership has trebled, and our income has quadrupled; yet all the business connected with his office has been run smoothly and correctly

On his appearance upon the Grand Lodge floor for the first time he met Miss Ida M. Richards, of Siloam Lodge, No. 2. When he subsequently joined that lodge, the two became Worthy Marshal and Worthy Deputy Marshal. The result may be easily guessed. This estimable lady became Mrs. George B. Katzenstein on the seventeenth of January, A. D. 1869. Three boys — William, George and Albert—gather with father and mother around their evening meal, each to gladden the whole family by kindness and love. William was named for Mr. Mills, Albert for Capt. Albert D. Wood, the present editor of the RESCUE, and George for his father. These boys are all members of the Band of Hope, and the brothers and sister of Mr. Katzenstein himself are constant workers in the Good Templar Lodge. Few families brought up in a California hotel can equal this showing. One of his brothers married one of the orphaned daughters of Rev. Jabez Walker, a Past Right Worthy Grand Chaplain, and a Grand Lecturer in California.

There was a strong desire on the part of those who had attended the Right Worthy Grand Lodge, that some one competent member of our Grand Lodge should be elected to represent us in the Right Worthy Grand Lodge, year after year; and after consultation, Mr. Katzenstein was the one who found it possible to go, and in 1876 was elected a delegate. The Grand Lodge authorized the Executive Committee to pay his expenses, less the amount received from the R. W. G. L.

As the time to attend the session arrived, our lamented Brother Walker and his wife were both upon their death beds, within a few miles of Sacramento; and they and their four daughters so demanded his attention that he had to forego the pleasure of attending the session of the R. W. G. L. held at Portland, Me. In Grand Lodge session of 1877, Mr. Katzenstein declined nomination as delegate; but in 1878, on the resignation of Prof. William Crowhurst as delegate, the Executive Committee elected Bro. Katzenstein.

Space will not allow extended details. The Grand Lodge of California had gained an excellent standing in our noble Order, and it was known that Mr. Katzenstein had been one of the active agents in placing it thus prominently before the Good Templars of the world—and on his appearance in the R. W. G. L., he received a hearty welcome. He was instrumental in organizing the G. W. Secretaries into an Association, by which they could compare their various manners of keeping the books and managing their offices. He was appointed upon the most important committees in the R. W. G. L., but declined all elective offices until at the session of 1881 he was elected and installed R. W. G. Counselor. The R. W. G. Templar, Theodore D. Kanouse, of Wisconsin, resigning, Brother Katzenstein was unanimously elected to fill that office, and thereby became the head of an Order numbering nearly half a million. California rejoiced at the promotion of her favorite, and on his return from the R. W. G. L. tendered him a public reception at the city of San Francisco, at which Dr. R. H. McDonald, president of the Pacific Bank, presided as chairman, and R. Thompson, the Grand Worthy Chief Templar of California, made the speech of welcome.

He has the love, respect and confidence of all who know him.

THE ARMY OF THE "LEAGUE OF LIBERTY."

BY REV. J. A. MC MILLAN.

There's a host that moves along,
Six hundred thousand strong,
Through our land;
Ever moving, downward moving,
Ever downward, downward moving
With a quick unsteady motion,
In a turbulent commotion,
Never stand.
And this host is still advancing,
With a savage war-hoop dancing,
In a restless dire ambition
To incur the full fruition
Of their woe.
But the foe,
In this invading host,
Is a hideous spectral ghost.
Now enchanting, now alluring,
Now with fearful oath adjuring,
Now with fetters more enduring Binding fast,
Till at last
In a wretched, lost condition,
Yielding honor and position,
Soul and body with volition
To the enemy is cast.
How they swagger and they swear
And their curses fill the air
While a cry of deep despair
Leads the van;
And they fight with hate so bitter
That for savage beast twere fitter
Than for man.
Hear them yell! how they yell!!
And the echoes back from hell
Strike our ears,
While unsteadily they march
Through the years;
With staggering gait they march
O'er our fears.
Are they human now, or devils?
As their sottish drunken revels
Multiply.
O, what mockery their laugh!
As their beverage they quaff.
They are not men but demons
Writhing in delirium tremens
Ere they die.
And they're dying, O they're dying!
Sixty thousand souls are dying
Every year:
Victims of a nations folly,
Lost to everything that's holy,
Left only fear.
Doomed of God, by friends forsaken,
Neath the sod is refuge taken:
God, themselves, the nation, all
Are constant losers by their fall.
'Tis only hell that ever gains
By this, a nation's violent pains.
And the lost, in this yearly
Holocaust, cost us nearly
All the nation's worth in gold;
One vast sacrifice untold
Offered to the god ambition,
For political position.
But the victims of these slaughters
Once were cherished sons and daughters
Of our land;
The good, the brave, the true, the fair,
Have all contributed their share
On demand.
And recruits are still enlisted,
While our cries are still resisted
For redress:
But our children still are tempted
And their murderers exempted,
By the License Law protected,
By the "priests of Baal" respected,
Have success.
Let us rise in Sovereign might,
Let us dare to vote the right;
Let us show that we can fight
At the polls;
Let us prove that right, not might,
Still controls.
Up, then, every man and woman!
Up to arms!
If you have a heart that's human
Take alarms!
Hear the bugle's clarion note—
Forward! armed with sovereign vote.
To stop this ghoulish glutton's gloat,
Votes are charms.
If you wish to win the fight,
"Trust in God," and vote the right.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

BY B. W. RICHARDSON, M. D., F. R. S.

V.—ALCOHOL AND ATHLETICS.

Twenty-one years ago it was a common belief that men did more work when they took a little drink—not a little, for I think I am wrong there, but when they began with a little and went on, and great feats were performed constantly by men when they were taking the drink—they thot the taking of the drink was the necessity for the feat. Science showed that there was no strength got by alcohol, that it was perfectly impossible that that which did not build up the tissues of the body, did not supply water, warmth or vitality to the body, could give strength to the body, and numbers began to try it independently of science, and so two favoring currents set in. Now, what are the facts? To all men who are going into training for rowing, racing, long walks such as Mr. Weston takes, firing, and the like, whatever they are going to do with regard to training for these pursuits, they discover the advantage which they get if they altogether abstain from the use of this degrading and debasing physical agent.

VI.—ALCOHOL AND BRAIN WORKERS.

Another advance has been made with regard to mental work. I remember the time when it was considered necessary to write at night that a man must prime himself with a glass of wine or spirit. Here again our scientific works comes into play, and we have been able to show positively that nothing is so injurious to mental work and capacity as for any one to lace himself up with strong drink, under the idea that he is assisting himself. All our medical authorities in this day proclaim that the general fact, and they proclaim it from the reasons which are most fearfully standing out day by day in the most glaring colors, and on the most unmistakable lines. The very best of men (such is the evidence) have fallen, from this idea, that being engaged in mental or artistic work, they would gain assistance from that agent which, of all others, is to them the most enticing and the most perilous. It is this class that most readily succumb. Their nervous tension is great, the brain is great. The brain is an organ rich in fluid. The little excitement is for the moment very pleasant, but it is not an excitement that can be kept up by repeating the least quantity; more must be taken each time, and then the whole system in these men becomes absolutely saturated (and the term is scientifically correct) with this destructive agent; and so they fall, and in my time I have seen artists of the highest class, musicians of the highest class, writers of the highest class, and the best members of my own profession, and the clerical profession, and the legal profession, fall in spite of themselves, in spite of all you can say to them, because upon their susceptible, refined, nervous organization this is of all others the most deadly, the most mortal of poisons. This impression has had its influence all thru society, but whether there is a great reaction in favor of the simple lines of nature or not, this is quite certain: that the evidence that should lead to such reaction is now fairly and fully before the world, and it has been put before it by the labors of those who have worked on the scientific basis during the past twenty years.

WHAT IS A TEMPLAR?

The Knights Templars were a religious and military order, whose specialty was the protection of the Holy Sepulcher, and of pilgrims resorting thither. Their first name was "Poor Soldiers of the Temple of Solomon," which was afterwards shortened into "Templars." The "Holy places" being frequently in the hands of the Mahometans, pilgrims needed defense and help while visiting Palestine, and this the Knights Templars afforded.

What is a Good Templar, and what the objects of his defense and aid?

As the Knight Templar was one consecrated to a life of bravery, chastity and goodness, so the Good Templar is one devoted to acts of goodness, purity and truth.

The Knight Templar defended the Holy Sepulcher from profane desecration. The Good Templar defends that Temple of the Holy Spirit, the human body, from the pollution of intruding evil, and, in himself, and others, from whatever would destroy it, rembering that, "if any man destroyeth the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are;" and he also seeks to recover it to higher uses when, peradventure that temple has been taken possession of by the enemy, arguing thus: "What agreement hath a temple of God with idols? for we are a temble of the living God; even as God said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them;" and singing with the poet:

"Costly is the temple our God has made;
On its inner altar we our gifts have laid;
Nought must enter in to soil or to degrade.
For the Spirit dwells within.

"Welcome to our hearts! Welcome to thy throne!
We would have these temples, Lord, to be thine own.
Shield us from the tempter, blessed Spirit, come,
Make our hearts thy constant home."

The Knights Templars fraternized with each other, and lived together in the same house; so the Good Templars fraternize in their lodge, pledging to each other perpetual unity.

As the Knight Templar took under his protecting care the pilgrims to the sacred places of Palestine, so the objects of the Good Templar's defence are the pilgrims of temperance on their way to Self-Control and Purity; and as the former escorted his sick and abused proteges into his Jerusalem hospital, so the Good Templar extends his hand to those who may have fallen by the way, invites them to his lodge home, and there surrounds them with the means of recovery and safety.

And, lastly, and financially, as the Knight Templar defended his pilgrims from the extortions of the greedy Mahometan, so the Good Templar sees to it that the money of himself and friends is not diverted from its legitimate uses by the avaricious and tempting liquor-seller, to be used by him in his own support, and in keeping up his gaudy bars and saloons—his dens of destruction.

ALCOHOL'S DOINGS

For one week as reported in a single daily paper.

1 A suicide is found after having taken morphine with a flask partly filled with whisky.

2 A man very much under the influence of liquor is soon afterward found dead, having finished with strychnine.

3 A man shot and killed in a saloon row.

4 A man shoots himself while under the influence of liquor, and before death said he had no idea why he had done it.

5 One drunken man shoots another, seemingly for pastime.

6 One man stabs another in a saloon; several shots fired in the same row.

7 A woman had her head badly cut in a saloon.

8 A drunken man shoots and kills a chinaman, claiming when sober that he could not remember doing it.

9 A man stabbed in a saloon.

10. A man arrested for drunkenness sets fire to the jail.

11. A man gets a divorce on the ground of his wife's drunkenness.

12. An eight-year old boy dies from the excessive use of liquor.

13. A prisoner suffering from delirium tremens attempts suicide.

14. A drunken mother with a two-year-old babe in her arms is arrested.

15. Two women sent to the Insane Asylum; intemperance in the use of alcoholic drinks are cause of insanity.

16. A woman committed to the county jail for habitual drunkenness.

17. A man found dead, verdict, "chronic alcoholism."

18. A young girl arrested and lodged in jail for drunkenness.

19. A man wounded in a saloon.

20. An intemperate man commits suicide.

21. An intoxicated Indian beats his wife to death with an ax handle.

22. One drunken man shoots and kills another.

23. A man in mere drunken wantonness shoots and kills another.

PLYMOUTH, CAL., Feb. 12, 1882.

Summit Lodge is still fighting the enemy. Altho we have lost members we have also gained some. The lodge is made of good tough material, the kind that will go thru the fight and remain whole when it is ended. So far the saloon-keepers have defied the law, but they will find out that the "Leag of Freedom"—Leag of Free-born law-breakers—cannot run Amador County in the future, as they have done in the past, to suit themselves. Our cause is fast gaining ground in this Co. and will continue to do so. Bro. H. R. Hughs G. L., has done good work in this county, long may he live and labor, and may his shadow never grow less. The Plymouth Literary and Debating society issued cards announcing their second public entertainment, the question for debate is Resolved—That the Chinese on this coast are more injurious to the people than alcoholic drinks. Now this seemed a one-sided question for how can any person of common sense for an instant think that the Chinese are one tenth as injurious to the people of this Coast as alcoholic drinks. Without saying any good of them they are a blessing as compared with alcoholic drinks. So it seems to me.

According to the RESCUE, there are now only two counties in this state without lodges. Alpine and Inyo; are there not some persons in those counties with backbone enough to start lodges? The Plymouth Reporter—official organ of the League of Freedom—has been and is trying to annihilate the temperance cause. The editor says: "The fact that members of Congress will be chosen at large at the coming election appears to us to be a good opportunity for the temperance people and anti-monopolists to do some effectlve 'weeding out.' But whether these elements combine or nominate separate tickets, or act individually, the final result will be the same. They will be led by fanatics, or rogues in the employ of unscrupulous politicians, and those who follow the former will sooner or later discover that the American people will not trust the affairs of government to the crotchety pranks of chronic reformers. The death-knell of any effort at purification was sounded when the temperance people opened fire on liquor-dealers to force on them the adoption of a repugnant law," and some more nonsense, which shows that the editor doesn't know what he is talking about.

I presume he thinks that he will stand no show to be the official organ of the people he calls "fanatics and rogues." If "it required a high order of brains to abuse people," the editor of the Plymouth Reporter could not do it. How long, Oh! how long, will this blighting scourge curse our fair state? not long is the hopeful answer of every true Good Templar—or I might say, every true American citizen of California, who has the welfare of the state at heart. Ere long, prohibition will be the law; prohibiting men to sell poison to their fellow man; prohibiting men to grow rich by making many homes desolate; making murderers and thieves, leaving hundreds of innocent women and children to starve or wander about the streets homeless and friendless; filling prisons and poor houses. Yes, right must conquer, and before many years our beautiful state will know what it is to be free. GOOD TEMPLAR.

DRUNKEN LAW-MAKERS.

Read these statements from "The Pittsburgh Despatch" of Dec. 24th. "Murray," the Washington correspondent of that paper is the writer. "During the short time our congress has been here it has elected a speaker and organized the House—the Senate was already organized—and introduced in the neighborhood of 2,800 bills and resolutions, and been drunk half the time. If it did not appear absolutely necessary for a new congress to fool away just so much time at the beginning of every session I should say that these three weeks preceding the holidays are merely wasted, and the $5,000 a day they have cost the government are dollars squandered without profit. * * * * * I saw a couple of Pennsylvania congressmen the first week of this session, reeling around the bar-rooms, brimming over with "executive business." One of them was followed around by his wife, who fished him out of a low dive, an object of pity rather than censure, and led him staggering through the streets to his rooms. The passers-by who turned to look at the melancholy spectacle laughed lightly, as we are all apt to do—a drunken congressman is such a common object. It is not more common now than heretofore.'

The political influences that give us such lawmakers cannot always triumph. Somehow and somewhere the disciples of the Lord Jesus, whether Republican or Democratic, will get ashamed of voting such men into office; and they will abandon the parties that take up such candidates. This better time may be long coming; but it will come. Drunkenness wont always make laws for the Great Republic.

One of the two drunken "Pennsylvania congressmen alluded to, is, as we understand, from Allegany county. Behold your work, ye voters in the Republican party, and glory over it—if you can! You didn't want to throw your votes away; but is not a vote worse than thrown away that puts the drink devil to making laws?

The real criminal is the voter who under the party lash, votes for such men. He may teach temperance. He may pray temperance. He may petition for temperance legislation. What folly! He ruins all his teaching and praying, and petitioning, by the men whom he puts in office. Will drunken legislators make us safe and wise temperance laws? Will the devil make laws against the devil? What folly! Let the craze end! Down with party, Up with principle! —Pittsburg (Pa.) Advance.

"A WISE WORD to temperance workers" is the heading the Chronicle put over a quotation from the Christian at Work, which taking for granted that the Sons and Templars and Blue Ribbons and Rechabites, in place of fighting intemperance, are engaged in a Kilkenny cat scratch, bite, howl and spit scramble with each other "about the color of a badge" or something of equal importance, says:

"The out-and-out Prohibitionists fight the Local Optionists, and the Local Optionists and Prohibitionists unite their forces to whip the "Moderates," who, with the valiant Crosby for a leader, are fighting the foe of intemperance in their own way.

"Meanwhile, intemperance increases, and faith and hope grow dim, and the spirit of evil chuckles and laughs in his sleeve over these self-destructive foes. How long must we hear vituperation and invective and every form of intemperate speech from platforms professedly devoted to temperance? Let us get out of this. Let the temperance leaders, writers and speakers carry temperance into their thought and utterance, as well as into what they drink. Let us stamp out and utterly extinguish the petty crimination and recrimination going on in the temperance ranks. We have had enough of it all these years. It is high time it was stopped."

Christian people who are not Christians for the loaves and fishes and dollars to be coined out of a pious life, will lament that the Christian at Work at this stage of the war is on the outside and opposite side of the temperance reform. When it represents as a temperance man, Dr. Crosby, whose Boston lecture the rum legions of satan are distributing by the million as their strongest weapon against Christianity and temperance, it displays a sad ignorance, wilful or otherwise.

Those professors of Christianity who lament that temperance people do not go in with Dr. Crosby's anti total abstinence principles and practice and doctrines, are pretty sure of getting credit for "a wise word" from the Chronicle and all the friends of the rum license system, of which they have no reason to be proud.

The Christian at Work displays a lamentable ignorance and darkness, wilful or otherwise, when it represents the temperance people as divided and hostile to each other. It is a great mistake for a great religious paper to make, to include Dr. Crosby and the brewers' congress, and the wine dealers organs as branches of the temperance organizations.

It would be in equal good taste for the RESCUE to administer a "wise word" to the Christian sects, because they decline the valiant leadership of the Rev. Bob Ingersoll, who is fighting the foe in his own way. The latter occupies exactly the relation to Christianity and the bible that Dr. Crosby does to the cause of temperance and the bible authorities on that subject. It is a pity that all religious instructors should not be able to speak of the temperance reform from the inside, so they might deliver themselves intelligently.

TO MRS. LUCY HAYES.

Could I of garlands frame a song,
With rhyme and rhythm sweet and strong,
The words should be
Inscribed to thee
For my dear country-woman's sake;
And prompted thus I undertake
To gather but a fragrant thought,
With words of gratitude unwrought:
And what a million voices say,
Shall be the burden of my lay.
What chivalry is thine!
To dare the reign of wine,
Enchantress of the courts
And queen of royal sports;
Through ages without date
With dance and song elate;
Where courtier, king and lord,
The purple wine have poured.
But thou brave-hearted lady fair,
With queenly air
Hast checked a courtly crime with prayer,
A thousand mothers for defence
Stand by thy queenly influence.
Columbia's homes
And State house domes.
Shall never lose thy words of cheer
Rung out in all our nations fear,
A new emancipation waits
The civic crowd within our gates,
And studded well shall be thy crown
With precious jewels of renown.
—Rev. Dwight Williams, in Our Union.

KANSAS:—When the new law went into force in Kansas last May, the RESCUE called for fifty first class liars to employ their talent in proving the failure of prohibition there, and pointed out their various fields of industry. It is with a feeling of no ordinary degree of gratitude and appreciation that this journal publicly recognizes the alacrity and courtesy and self-sacrificing devotion with which the whole fifty have responded to the call, and have thrown themselves heart and soul into that heroic labor of love. They have proved everything demanded and more. Headed by ex-governor Robinson who, (with a consistency and devotion worthy of the martyrs stake, if not of the martyr's crown,) they declare has always been an earnest temperance worker from "prohibitory Boston," they have proved (1), That drunkenness in Kansas has increased to an appalling extent. (2) That much more liquor is sold now than formerly. (3) That a doctor cannot buy a drop of liquor in the State for a dying consumptive patient. (4) That a shocking injustice is done to the churches who cannot get a drop of intoxicating liquor for communion. (5) That the liquor business was never so prosperous as now in Kansas. (6) That since all sales of liquor have ceased in the State 40,000 people have emigrated from it. (7) That owing to the largely increased sale of liquor, crime has become terribly rampant. (8) That because there is not even a glass of beer to be purchased for love or money in Kansas, the German immigrants dont go there any more. (9) That Missouri is getting rich selling whisky all over Kansas. (10) That it is no use sending an agent to Kansas from Missouri to sell liquor, for they wont buy a drop, and that has killed business there dead. (11) Saloons doing a capital business all over the State. (12) Business dead since all the saloons closed up. (13) Prohibition is an utter failure all over Kansas and dont at all stop the sale of liquor. (14) The prohibitory law is so injurious to somebody, that the liquor dealers and brewers are willing to spend five or ten million of their own money to have it repealed, and keep people from getting so abominably drunken on that prohibitory law. And they are $5,000,000 afraid it will pass in Iowa too. Good, kind, liberal, devoted, noble rumsellers!! kind, obliging, artistic, heroic, esthetic, double-turreted, three-decker, hundred-tongued lie-pedlars!!! Try again, keep it up.

RIVERSIDE.—E. R. Pierce and wife were arrested at this place by U. S. Marshal Poole, for selling liquor to Indians, last Sunday night. They have long been more than suspected, but were too sharp to be caught. The whole community feels relieved that they are on the way for trial in San Francisco. Liquor-sellers often boast that prohibition does not prohibit, but if this pair should be convicted, heavily fined and imprisoned, they will begin to realize that there are cases where it is not much of a failure.

LIVERMORE and some other places have a "curfew ordinance" which clears the streets of all children under 16 years of age at 7:30 in winter and 8:30 in summer. It is said where enforced to have excellent results, and the Encinal calls for its enforcement in Alameda. It is to be lamented that so many people care little or nothing how their children are raised.

D. G. W. C. T.'s COMMISSIONED.—The following commissions have been issued and forwarded from the Grand Worthy Secretary's office during the past week:

DISTRICT DEPUTIES.

Rev. A. K. Crawford, for Monterey Co., Salinas.

LODGE DEPUTIES.

Jasper W. Blair, for No. 385, Yountville.

B. B. Dobbas, for No. 450, Greenwood.

VOTE ON CHANGE OF REGALIA.—The following additional Lodges have filed their report of the vote upon the change of regalia, as directed by the R. W. G. L. and G. L., with the G. W. S. to date viz: Nos. 12, 105, 150, 191, 226, 259, 278, 330, 408, 427, 458, 472.

The total result in this jurisdiction to date is as follows: Number of Lodges reporting their vote 294. Membership present at the time of voting 6,119. Voting in favor of a change 338; voting against any change 5,358. Not voting 423. Average attendance at Lodges voting nearly 21.

DUARTE.—Bro. James W. Webb reports another new Lodge organized at Duarte, Los Angeles Co. on the 21st ult., and in the organization of which he was assisted by Bros. Gould, Graves and Quinn. The Lodge commences with 30 charter members, and will meet on Thursday evenings. A. T. Taylor, of San Gabriel is L. D.

FORTY-SEVEN.—Since the commencement of the current fiscal year (during the past five months) forty-seven new Lodges, have been organized under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of California.

BANNER LODGE.—So far as reported, Merrill Lodge No. 299 of Los Angeles is the Banner Lodge with a membership of 258. San Luis Obispo Lodge No 444 comes in as a good second with a membership of 240, while San Bernardino makes an excellent third with a membership of 235. These three should make a good race for the supremacy at the time of the next report.

MERCED.—Report says that Sister Emily P. Stevens Grand Lecturer, has a difficult field in Merced, but that with her usual application and persistence she overcame all obstacles and at last accounts secured forty names for the Lodge which may be considered a good showing for any community.

LITERATURE FOR THE FREEDMEN, etc.—Since last report the following lodges have added their names to the list of those willing and desirous to contribute the amount of literature due them by reason of the "Dime Collection," to the literature committee of the R. W. G. L., for distribution among the freedmen of the South, etc.: Star of Hope No. 32; Salinas 131; Woodbridge 139; Valley Ford 156; Tehama 198; Cedarville 230; International 291; Twilight 331; Seaside 354; Crystal 417; Montecito 428; and Georgetown 455. The value of all the literature thus contributed is $102.47. Sixty-four contributing lodges have so far requested their contributions to be forwarded as above, leaving but twenty-seven lodges yet to hear from. The total amount realized by the "Dime Collection" as acknowledged in detail, heretofore, is $381. 70. If there are collections not yet reported, they should be forwarded without further delay, as the matter will be closed and remittances made during the coming week.

COL. J. T. LONG.—A telegram received at the G. W. S. office, announces the acceptance of the terms proposed and Col. Long will enter the employ of the Grand Lodge of California for a short term, commencing the 20th inst. The Colonel's efforts will be confined almost exclusively to San Francisco and adjacent points as he will be placed under direction of the Executive Committee of the San Francisco District Lodge. Daily nepspapers are not much given to praising the efforts of temperance lecturers, but a recent issue of the Oregon Daily Statesman says of Col. Long: "This eloquent speaker lectured again last evening at the M. E. Church, to a crowded house. The Colonel is certainly the best temperance lecturer that has ever visited our city. He has a wonderfully rich, deep, penetrating voice, that thrills one with its melody. His delivery is good, and his earnest manner and grand word-painting make him eloquent in the extreme. At times the audience were spell-bound as the words of burning eloquence burst upon them. Such men as Col. Long are a grand help to any cause they champion."

PERSONALS.—During the past week the Grand Lodge office has been honored with calls from the following members of the order. Grand Lecturers, Bros. C. N. Goulding and W. C. King, who were en route to their appointments; the former to Tehama County, the latter to Tulare.....Bro. D. G. Tilton of Harmony No. 172, Sutter County.....Bro. E. F. French of Star of the Plains No. 184, Florin.....Bro. D. P. Coon of Success No. 366, Knights Landing, but now an honest granger in Sutter County.....Mrs. J. Finch and Bro. O. Finch of the newly organized lodge at Forest Home Amador County..... Bro. Peter Engle of Marysville lodge No. 25, Marysville.....Bro. D. Hogins of Newcastle Lodge No. 339, Newcastle, and Bro. F. Wilson of Winters Lodge No. 165, Winters.

GLEANINGS.—Old Denverton Lodge No. 239 of Solano County continues to bear aloft the standard of the order as it has done for the past fifteen years, and the Deputy, Bro. C. E. Garfield reports a continued interest and good attendance.....Bro. J. T. Brown, D. D. of Capay Lodge No. 419 Yolo County, writes hopefully saying: The temperance sentiment is rapidly gaining ground here; Sunday law generally observed, consequently no arrests yet for violation of Sunday law. Gained during the quarter 18: initiated, 9; reinstated 9. Are making an effort to have a hall of our own; but I cant get the members to subscribe for our paper. Have distributed all literature that came to hand.....Bro. Rufus Smith of Brentwood Lodge No. 116, reports an interesting and rousing open meeting on the night of the 21st, the house being full to overflowing on "inside and out," as the brother reports. A programme of literary and musical exercises was presented. At the close of the meeting eleven names were secured of persons desirous of uniting with the lodge and order.

GOOD TEMPLARS HOME FOR ORPHANS,
VALLEJO, CAL., Feb. 6, 1882.

The Board of Trustees of the Good Templars Home for Orphans assembled and was called to order at 11 o'clock A. M. President Wm. Sims, presiding.

Upon calling the roll of Trustees the following were noted present: William Sims, President; Geo. B. Katzenstein, Secretary; I. S. Halsey, Treasurer; Robt. Thompson and Samuel Kitto.

The following Trustees were noted absent: A. G. Clark, R. H. McDonald and W. H. Mills.

A communication was received from Trustee R. H. McDonald announcing his inability to be present at this meeting and regretting his absence, which was ordered placed on the minutes.

The minutes of the previous meeting of the Trustees held Nov. 1st, were read and duly approved.

The Executive committee presented the minutes of their meetings as their report. The minutes were read and the action of the committee approved.

The Executive committee reported it not advisable to make any further negotiations in the matter of the purchase of certain lands, which matter was referred to them at the last meeting. Report adopted.

Kitto submitted a bid from D. G. Barnes of the Pioneer Plaining Mills for the erection of a water tank etc., as his report. Mr. Barnes proposed to erect a tank of two inch redwood, to hold 10,000 gallons placed on a suitable frame 25 feet high for $300, or a tank of three inch redwood, to hold 20,000 gallons with frame 25 feet high for $450, Also proposing to furnish a drawing of the frame he proposed to build, subject to the approval of the Trustees.

Upon motion duly made and carried the Executive committee were directed to accept the proposition and have a 20,000 gallon tank erected.

The Trustees then met in joint-session with the Board of Lady Managers who were announced and duly introduced.

The Treasurer submitted his quarterly report which was referred to Thompson. Kitto and Katzenstein, who after examination and comparison reported the report and vouchers back as correct.

A synopsis of the Treasurers report is as follows:

The conduct of certain boys in committing minor depredations was inquired into and satisfactorily arranged.

A donation of six handsome volumes together with a fine Mitchell's Atlas, all solicited for, and donated to the Home, by Mrs. McLellan of Benicia, was received and a vote of thanks unanimously accorded the sister.

Prof. Smith called the attention to the need of a suitable Library or book case in which to care for the books donated to the Home library. Upon motion the matter of providing a suitable bookcase for the purpose named was referred to the Executive committee.

The Executtve committee of the Board of Trustees was directed to have the building recently purchased, upon the Home grounds, renovated and prepared for hospital purposes, in the event of contagious diseases within the Home, at their discretion.

The Board of Lady Managers then withdrew and the Trustees took a recess for the purpose of examining the buildings and grounds and locating a site for the erection of the proposed water tank.

Upon reassembling it was decided by vote to locate the tank immediately in the rear of the main building and dining room.

The building and grounds were found to be orderly, clean and well kept. The health of the inmates good, no sickness being attributable to local causes, since the recent repairs, ventilation and plumbing.

At 3:30 the Board adjourned.

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, Secretary.

YOLO DISTRICT LODGE.

At its last meeting at Black Station, report of which came to hand far out of date, Yolo District Lodge had 10 lodges comprising a membership of 651, an average of 65. Two lodges Winters and Crysopolis have over 100 each.

Desire was unanimous to inforce the Sunday law, but the Leag of Freedom (so called) conspire to openly defy the laws of the State. Gain of the lodges last quarter 71, and a hope is entertained to report 1,000 at Grand Lodge session.

The per capita tax was raised to the legal limit, some desired to go higher but the law constrained. A collection of $8 60 for D. C. Cook's literature was taken, and the RESCUE was represented as a necessity to all temperance workers. Next session to be held at Cacheville April 7 and 8 when good progress is expected to be shown. Faithful lodge entertained the delegates most generously; organized less than a year ago it has over 90 members and expects 100 at its anniversary. The above is a skeleton of Bro. Winchesters very good report which came late and has only just now struggled out from under a mass of other "crowded outs" which have survived the recent rush of matter.

SUTTER AND YUBA.

The D. S. of that district means business every time. Bro. C. J. Covilland sends out a card calling upon all the lodges and bands of hope of the district to elect delegates and at once forward returns to the D. Sec., and adds the following which can be read and remembered to advantage by every good templar of this State and other States:

To all Good Templars in this jurisdiction, we would say: Lay aside other matters, if possible, and attend this session of the District Lodge, where your presence and assistance are needed that no means may be left untried and work be left undone whereby the grandest warfare that ever enlisted brave men and women, may be advanced. It is not by running away that battles are won, and success for the temperance cause will never be achieved by standing aloof from the fight and crying out against every movement made by Temperance workers.

Delegates should come prepared to fully represent the manner in which lodges and bands are working and the influence they are exerting on the community.

The business of the District Lodge will be greatly assisted by a division of labor; therefore let delegations organize to this end."

CALAVERAS DISTRICT LODGE.

The 6th session of Calaveras D. L. met with Charity Lodge, at Copperopolis Feb. 4th. A. J. Cooke, D. D. presiding. The following lodges were represented. Nos. 212, 229, 231, 312, 343, 345, 348, 361, 478, 407, and delegates were present from 3 Bands of Hope. Of the 19 lodges in this county 3 have suspended meeting, leaving 16 in good working order as follows:

Murphys 100 members, Big Tree 44, Mokelumne 38, Calaveras 36, Mt. Gate 38, Evergreen 29, Bear Mt. 27, Campo Seco 25, Hope 23, Golden 21, Mt. Rose 20, Garfield 25, Chapparal 20, Charity 20, Sparkling Water 17, Eldorado 15, Total 498.

There are seven Bands of Hope with a membership of 220. All the lodges have pruned down and carry no dead heads. The prize of $10 was awarded to Creighton Duffy, for the largest number of subscribers to the RESCUE and the same prize continued providing the highest number is not less than 10 names. R. B. Mallett was elected editor of Temperance column in Citizen.

The delegates and visitors were well received and handsomely entertained by Charity Lodge. Public meeting in the evening was well attended; excellent program, good singing by Sister M. E. Richardson.

The session tho not large was harmonious and profitable, and manifests the determined spirit of our members, who are sanguine that Old Calaveras will take and hold the front rank, in the war waged to redeem our Golden State from the thraldom and dominion of the liquor traffic.

Fraternally Yours, C. DUFFY, D. S.

Angels, Feb. 8, 1882.

OROVILLE, Feb. 13, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—Please announce that the next regular session of Butte Co. District Lodge will be held at Chico the third Wednesday in March (the 15th.) We have accepted the kind invitation of Samaritan Lodge 177 to meet with them. The ladies promise a lunch at noon and open meeting in the evening. A very pleasant and profitable gathering is anticipated, and it is hoped that our subordinate lodges will send out large delegations.

W. S. READ, Dist. Sec.

SANTA CLARA, Cal., Feb. 27, 1882. Rev. S. N. Ravlin, a Baptist minister in San Jose, has been giving a series of sermons to young men, in which he fearlessly denounced the liquor traffic; he spoke of the evils of intemperance in no measured terms, and condemned the infernal business in vigorous language.

Attempts were made during his series of sermons to burn his church, last Saturday evening the agents of the League of Fiends succeeded, and one of the finest churches on the coast was sacrificed on the altar of gin. A few weeks before an attempt was made to burn the M. E. Church in the same place.

Query: What age of the world are we living in?

STOCKTON.—A Good Templar Hall Association has been formed in Stockton, "to build, buy, lease or rent a suitable hall, and to furnish same to sublet it for society and public meetings that are not hostile to temperance." Capital stock $5,000 in 1,000 shares of $5 each: to be paid in full on receipt of certificate; no assessments to be made on stock, but if more money is needed more shares may be sold. In a very few days 180 shares were taken and it is hoped no difficulty will be experienced in filling up the full list.

Apply for stock to W. M. Waterbury Sec. That is what Good Templar Lodges ot to do everywhere; in place of paying an everlasting rent bill and having nothing permanent to show for it, they ot to make an early vigorous start to have a home of their own, in which every member of the Lodge will have a binding interest. Thus in place of a monthly drain of rent money, they could, in many if not most cases, have a monthly income from their own hall and this should be one of the principal agencies to make the I. O. G. T. the first and most influential of all fraternal and benevolent associations, first in numbers, first in financial resources, first in influence, first in the public estimation, first in the excellence and purity and nobility of all its acts and motives.

Two good temperance journals have just given thanks for safe conduct thru their first year of existence, the Temperance Review of Minn., and the W. Va. Freeman. Temperance people are learning more and more every year that a temperance edifice built of bricks wholly made of straw dont last. That the masses who drink must be educated about the drink before they will quit it, and must learn of the evils it does before they will vote it out. The first year it is not to be supposed these two journals have gained one-tenth of a fair circulation, for to get one-tenth of what you expect in that line is pretty fortunate; but it will doubtless be found that the cause has prospered better than ever before and the benefit will be apparent more and more every year, if proper support is given. In many states the Order of Good Templars is away behind the position it held 10 years ago, and it is safe to say the foremost reason in every case was a failure to keep up a temperance press. And so the state or organization that tries to progress without a literature to educate the people, is never going to get an inch further ahead than the farmer who makes the hoe and the flail do all his farm work.

IN MEMORIAM.

M. D. MERRICK. Readers of the RESCUE will much regret to hear of the death of Dr. Merrick, which took place suddenly last Sunday. He fell while walking in the street, was carried into a drug store and died in a few minutes there. He was W. C. T. of International lodge for this quarter and was at the Home Protection meeting on Saturday evening apparently in usual health and vigor. An autopsy revealed an affection of the heart. He was a very acceptable speaker, has been actively employed in the political campaigns of this State, has been an earnest advocate of temperance, ready to lend a helping hand at all calls, and last year was most of the time one of the lecturers of our G. L. with a successful record, having organized quite a number of lodges and created an active interest in the cause in many of the communities he visited. His death was wondrously sudden.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. ¶ The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

THE CHINCHA ISLANDS.

NUMBER SEVEN.

Callao, before the guano export commenced, was one of the favorite resorts of whaling ships. Fowls, fruits, vegetables and labor were very cheap; it was not far from good whaling ground. The climate and the free and easy habits of the people, the bull-fights and dances and the universal cock-fight added to its attractions as a resting and refitting elysium after a tedious cruise on the lonely waters of the broad Pacific.

But the discovery that a fabulous wealth was accumulated on their sea coast islands, and supposed to be inexhaustible—the sudden change from a harbor dotted here and there with a repairing whaler and a few coasters of antedeluvian pattern, to a busy active fleet of merchant ships of all nations, daily arriving and departing—made Callao suddenly a mart of important commerce. English, French, American, German merchants, traders, mechanics, etc., established themselves there, professing to aid and defend their own countrymen. But it was the custom of this witness and some others to advise a stranger arriving, thus, "if you can at all speak Spanish, deal directly with the natives; they will of course need all the watching you can do, to keep them from cheating you; but if you must have a foreign middleman, whatever you do, dont employ or deal with your own countrymen. A Frenchman or German or English or American will deal with some little mercy with other people's countrymen, for the sake of getting more of them as customers; but when they get fast to one of their own countrymen, who they believe was drifted by providence into their net, dont they sock it to them artistically?" The natives were willing enough but they did not know the routine of trickery like the foreigners. Yet they were apt scholars and in no way deficient in ambition or talent in that direction.

Of course all manner of eatables which had been formerly far in excess of the demand now rose and always remained at very high prices. Much labor was needed at Callao and at the islands and wages advanced to a very liberal figure. So many ships, so many sailors, so many people earning wages and spending money, of course attracted adventurers from Australia, California, from the Eastern cities and elsewhere. There were no preachers of the gospel or college professors or temperance lecturers who came there to stay—except two or three preachers who liked a glass of wine and the glass in that country soon got master and they had to leave. I never knew of more than two there and that was their history; perhaps others may have done better and fared better.

Of course in a seaport of such resources, the barkeeper and gambler and the sailor boarding master or sailor land shark were the most prominent and busy members of the community. There were rum holes and dance dens and gambling hells everywhere. There were gangs of men constantly employed to induce sailors to desert their ships. At night they prowled ronnd the ships in boats and took the men out over the bow; in the daytime they were everywhere in the harbor; if an officer in charge of the deck was not constantly on the watch his men, one or two or perhaps all of them were gone, and if they could reach shore or get on board a coasting craft, they were instantly concealed; no one would expose them. Ship carpenters and others would go out and steal sailors at night and get $10 each for them from the landsharks. Some captains, knowing their men would get away, got $10 apiece from the sharks and allowed them to bring a bottle or two of rum in the evening, talk a few minutes to the sailors, and go off with every one of them.

Perhaps the very next day they would ship those men on a vessel to Liverpool or Antwerp or New York, and get $60 or $75 each for them, the sailor receiving nothing for his voyage to Callao and back, except perhaps, $10 advanced him in the European port from which he first sailed, and a half-pound of tobacco and a drink or two of liquor while in the land sharks care, and four or five dollars at the end of his round voyage of 12 or 18 months. You may think that strange, but it has always been about so in San Francisco, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, etc., and is so to-day. In Callao, if a sailor ever rebelled or expostulated against going to sea again without any wages or clothes, the boarding master would settle the matter with a good hard wood club over Jacks head and back and nose, and Jack would go off contented; next year when he came back he would just take "one glass of grog" and then repeat a precisely similar experience. And so they do here in San Francisco every time if they take that one first glass.

On several occasions they took the sailors out of English ships that had only looked into the harbor without intending to anchor. One of these vessels calling at Callao to get a cask or two of water without stopping, had a small sized Welsh captain whose left hand was remarkably spry and hard too. A crowd of roughs came on board, and their leader, a prize fighting Irishman, said, "Well Captain, we want your sailors and we are going to take them with us, and you cant help yourself; for I am the second bully of Callao." "Yes?" said the captain, "possible? Second bully of Callao?" approaching the leader with the right hand extended; but that spry left hand went out like a lightning flash and the second bully was extended on the deck; the mates were on hand with heavers and bars, the thieves took to their boat and fished up their bully who was tumbled overboard head foremost. They pulled away with a great veneration for that little Welshman and his left sledgehammer.

These runners were villains and desperadoes of the vilest type. One was captured in the night by an American mate whom he mistook for a sailor and came on deck to help him get his trunk into the boat. The ship went to sea next day; they hove to outside the fleet, gave Dutch Charley six hard dozen on the bare back; then put him on board the outermost ship of the fleet and went to sea; nobody pitied the scoundrel and he met the customary fate of his kind about a year after; stabbed and killed by one of his comrades.

These characters did as they pleased and there was on shore a very small number of people who cared a cent what any man did for coin, so that his own pocket was not in immediate danger. And yet among these loose principled and no-principled men of all classes and nations, who neither feared God nor regarded man, perhaps there has been no place in the world where a shipwrecked captain or officer, a drink wrecked engineer, a played out resident, a friendless stranger or a widow or a helpless woman would receive such ready and certain and generous help, to send them to their far away home in England, France or the United States, not as paupers, but in first class style and comfort.

It was stated before that many ships used to be improperly loaded and some came there that were no longer able to stand bad weather when deeply laden. So the Peruvian authorities passed a decree that every vesel should pass a rigid survey and if not well caulked and in good condition, they should be obliged to do the necessary work at Callao before going to the islands.

It was soon reported to the captains that the three Peruvian Naval Officers who were the surveyors had to be bribed with an ounce ($17) each or the ship would be forced to caulk whether needed or not. And if it was ever so much needed the three ounces would let them off and they could do the caulking at the islands without loss of time as their laydays would count there and they could be taking cargo while caulking.

For years this went on; when a ship came in, one or more of the captains countrymen informed him of the state of affairs and kindly offered to take the three ounces and get the ship free of caulking which of course must never be whispered about, as the surveyors were high toned gentlemen. Some of the captains were so delighted with the success of their agent that it became a general practice to give him another ounce for his trouble and his kindness, which he modestly accepted after due hesitating reluctance.

One day a ship came in whose captain talked Spanish, and had been for some time on very pleasant relations with a Peruvian naval officer whom he had befrended, and who had made him acquainted with various other officers, the surveyors among the rest. His ship had been lately thoroly calked; but the naval calker, a colored man, who examined the ships for the surveyors declared she must be calked. The captain had been warned that such would be the case, but had refused to negotiate a bribe; he called the surveyors to look at an examination and they immediately passed the ship all right. When others enquired how much money he had paid to get off and were told of the circumstances, they called an investigation, as they do in Congress; and as one of the bribed negotiators had just been discharged by his employers, the truth came out.

The surveyors had never received a cent of the bribes; never knew such a thing was going on; our own beloved countrymen, the foreigners had put up the whole scheme each in the interest of the ships of his own country. They each kept the three or four ounces they got, and gave the old calker when he went on a day's survey, a list of the ships who had paid and he was to pass, and of those which had not paid and he was to condem; and when he wanted very badly to borrow $5 or $10 now and then, he would go to one of his friends and get a little change out of their big hauls.

That ended the game, but the principal actors were not at all abashed when the defrauded captains nashed their teeth and upbraided them with their rascality.

STUDEBAKER.

A LESSON FOR THE BOYS.

Two weeks ago on page 252 there was in the RESCUE a history of the carriage factory of the Studebaker Brothers, in South Bend, Indiana, and there were pictures of their extensive buildings showing what an immense business they are doing.

It is a matter of some importance for you to know how and why people in Maine, and India, and California, and Europe should come to want a Studebaker carriage or wagon, when in almost every place there is a carriage maker across the way or round the corner, or in the next village, You may remember to have seen an old proverb that somehow gets out of fashion and is often kept in an outhouse or down cellar, or in the garret, and sometimes gets adrift and is altogether lost—but when one comes across it, so many people spell it out; and they speak of it approvingly and say, "Yes that is so," and turn it with its face to the wall and forget all about it.

HONESTY IS THE BEST POLICY

Yet wise, observant people are always noticing that it invariable comes out true every time. Fraud and cheat and lie may all pay better to-day and to-morrow and may be up to next Friday, and one thinks he has a doubly better thing than honesty: but then or soon after, the mask falls off, the fraud is exposed, the cheat is discovered, the lie makes a broad red stain mark all over the face and the enterprise is bankrupt. Character, manliness, honor, purity, virtue, self-respect and other people's respect, which are all pure gold, bartered off, all of them, for a second hand tin whistle that won't toot when you blow it.

Now the old parent Studebaker never turned that motto with its face to the wall: to keep it always face out, and hang it up at the foot and head of his bed and paste it in his hat and on the inside of the cover of his family Bible and of his dictionary and of all his account books and of his pocket book and of his photograph and autograph album, has ever been the smartest business transaction a man could undertake.

Studebaker Senior and his boys might have gilded their wagons all over and made believe they were pure gold; they might have painted them in the most gorgeous and artistic colors and styles, and might never have succeeded in selling a dozen in their lives. But they were not fools: so they prospered. First they determined to make their wagon or carriage of the best possible form for the convenience and profit of the purchaser; then they determined to make them of the very best wood and iron and other material: then it was necessary to have the most skilful and faithful and intelligent workmen so as to have the wood and iron put together, not in such a manner that a new one would have to be purchased next year, but so that they would last the purchaser as long as possible, and do him the most faithful service. And even the best material of paint and oil was carefully selected to cover them and preserve them as long as possible from the decay of rain and storm.

Their argument was this; let us furnish the very best wagon and carriage that can be made in the world: let us make it so honestly that it will stand more hard work, do more real service, and give more unbounded satisfaction, and last longer than any other in the world, and then people will come or send to us from all parts of the world for our work, and thus we shall prosper by helping all who deal with us to prosper, in place of being wronged by us. That was a simple matter, you may say, but really it was the rarest and strongest, and most precious common sense, and is the pure bible doctrine of success.

So when they sent out a vehicle it never ceased to be an advertisement to everybody that saw it, that the Studebaker concern was HONEST; no danger of rotten spokes, cracked springs or puttied breaks in their wagons. There may be others as honestly and faithfully made, but people are not sure of it. They are sure of the Studebakers, and to-day all round the world those mute carriages are proclaiming, not that the Studebaker family are handsome people, rich people, tall, or strong or witty, but that they believe and practice the old proverb, HONESTY IS THE BEST POLICY, and because of that everybody that wants to use a wagon gets that kind if possible.

Hanging up that motto over the door or saying it over, and sitting in the chimney corner, or astride the fence smoking, will not help you a particle. But practicing it with industry and economy, and a proper use of the common sense which God has given you, will insure a prosperous future for you all. And be sure to remember that it was not a mere chance that made the Studebakers such a success. Horace Greely, Benjamin Franklin, David C. Cook, Abraham Lincoln, President Garfield, and thousands of others have achieved the grandest success in every desirable direction, because they shaped their lives by that noble and precious gem of mottoes.

The reason the highly prosperous are not the large majority of mankind and the failures the scarce and scattered few, is, that the large majority turn that proverb face to the wall and pay their court to certain failure.

CRUELTY TO CHILDREN.

The children of kind, loving parents, reared in a pleasant happy home, must find it difficult to believe the awful cruelties to which other innocent children are daily exposed, in the homes where the parents are the victims of the bar-keeper or where the beer barrel or beer jug has become a frequent visitor.

You can find on another page an account of the appalling evils wrot by drink (mostly beer) in England. The cases reported of cruelty to children are only a few, because children never complain at the police office or have their parents arrested. One of those reported tells of a blacksmith in Shields who put his three year old daughter on the fire when he was drunk, and the poor child was three weeks in a hospital being cured of her burns. Another, that of a woman who left her five children in her home at daylight without food, and returned at midnight and beat them cruelly; she had done so for months; the children having to beg or steal their food, or starve when they could do neither.

It is not at all unlikely that this woman was once a kind, good mother; now she is what beer or wine or whisky has made her. Men and women of the kindest and best dispositions have been and are every year transformed by the satanic poison influences of beer and drink into the most savage, cruel and wicked monsters.

In the large cities of Europe, where one genera- of drunkards succeeds another, mothers have again and again poisoned or otherwise murdered their own children to be rid of taking care of them. Many a time parents have blinded or maimed their own babes so as to hire them out at a certain price a day to some bad women to beg with. Lots of people would give money to a woman who had a blind or crippled child in her arms; I did it often till I learned that these wretches hired their baby and had a grand gin spree at night on their day's collections.

It was discovered some fifteen years ago that drunken members of burial societies were in the habit of poisoning their own children to get the funeral benefits of 15 or 20 dollars, have a big drunk on the money and let the city bury the dead.

These are things which it were better innocent children should never hear of; if they had happened 100 years ago and could not happen again, it would be sinful to relate them now to youthful innocence; but the horrors and cruelties under which many hundreds of thousands of children are suffering woes unutterable of misery, sickness, starvation and death, are in full blast right now—not far off. And we have all the machinery set up in San Francisco and Sacramento and all over the State to produce as plenteous a harvest of crime and vice and woe all over this country as there is anywhere.

For that reason these horrible events are mentioned but not detailed to you. You are going to vote some of these days, both boys and girls, and you must be prepared to vote right. If any one objects to women voting that dont concern us at all; it would be idle to argue or discuss the question whether women ot to vote or not, because every body ot now to be able to see and know that they are going to vote sure and soon, and it will make no difference whether we like it or not.

So it will come to be your duty to vote and you will surely never give a vote to any man or any party that will not swear to destroy this infamous system of mantraps, which proposes and intends to buy and sell you boys and girls, just as they sell calves and sheep in the market, and as they dispose of rabbits and ducks and hens and pigeons in their coops.

You will vote to put a stop to the business of selling boys and girls to ruin, when you know the horrible atrocities that the beer sellers and wine sellers and whisky sellers are committing all over this country and Europe; when you know that they are causing rivers of tears and blood to deluge the world, and their only end is to bring to shame and vice and misery and death every innocent, virtuous, pure honest boy or girl that can ever be enticed to "look upon" the baits with which they have made their traps enticing or covered them up altogether.

POLICE WORK FOR JANUARY.

The police made 1910 arrests during the past month, and accomodated 129 lodgers in the city prison. Of the arrests, 859 were for drunkenness, 173 for battery, 29 for burglary, 60 for gambling and 109 for larceny. The remainder were principally for felonious assaults and misdemeanors of various sorts.

It may be safely assumed that every one of these cases was the work of the so called "league of freedom," the beer and whisky swilleries. It is well that the children should know this, that beer and liquor sent 1910 people to prison in one month in San Francisco for crime, and 129 for a night's lodging. No doubt every one of the arrests were for offenses committed under the influence of the liquor sold them, or else by people who have been degraded to a vicious life by drink. No doubt too, that every one of them was a tobacco lunatic, and that every one of the 129 who went to prison to lodge smelt very strong of both beer and tobacco. No Good Templars among all these. It is well to know that if this state had three millions of Good Templars in it and nobody else, one jail 10 ft. by 14, and one police judge and one police officer would suffice for all the lawlessness of the three millions in the whole state.

If you ask what policemen are for, the answer is to try to protect the people against the criminals whom the grogshop has degraded, robbed and crazed; but they only afford a very limited protection. If you ask what the police court and judges and lawyers have to do, it is principally to adjust the quarrels, redress a few of the wrongs and punish a small fraction of the crime produced by the beer dive and barroom. What are all the jails and prisons and two big penitentiaries for? to shut up one in a hundred of the murderers and thieves that were once innocent and honest little school boys, many of them the beloved sons of good mothers, but who went into the beer shop and bar room and wine factory, and were there entrapped, debauched and depraved. The asylums and poorhouses, houses of correction, industrial schools, hospitals? almost altogether to repair the ravages made by the manslayers of the dramshop; and all these things have to be supported by the hard labor of sober men, who have no need of any of these institutions.

OLD MEN QUIT; CAN'T BOYS?

I am continually gratified to find very old tobacco users quitting the filthy habit of smoking and chewing the poisonous and expensive weed. And I am correspondingly grieved and ashamed to hear beardless boys say "I ought to quit it and I want to, but I can't." At Savannah, when organizing the Band of Hope, both old men and young lads came forward and took our triple pledge, and many a heart was made glad. In Los Angeles county, an earnest Christian man told me how he stopped using tobacco. He had often "thought" he would and ought to, but never said absolutely "I will." He says he now sees the only way to quit is just—TO QUIT. Attending camp meeting a good deal was said against Christians using tobacco. (A healthy sign of religious growth now that our camp meetings, Conferences and Assemblies are speaking out against liquor drinking and tobacco using.) His conscience gave him trouble. He ought to stop, but it was no small undertaking after forty years persistent use. After returning home, while at work in his blacksmith shop, he obtained his own full consent, went to the house and wrote in his diary: "By the help of God, this 21st of September, 1880, I quit using tobacco." He has never used it since, and now has no appetite for it. He had said nothing to his wife about it; she had been a smoker for over twenty years. Not long after, she went out to the smithy and said to him: "My conscience has been troubling me about tobacco using ever since camp meeting and even before. I have thought about it, and prayed over it, and am going to quit; now you can do as you like." With a twinkle in his eye and a joyful heart, he just opened his diary and pointed to the entry he had made there.

Now can any boy or youth who has foolishly allowed himself to begin using tobacco read this without blushing if he says "I can't quit?"

A boy has no more need to begin using the hurtful weed than has his sister, and no boy ought to say he can't break off a habit of months when men and women resolutely and abruptly stop after 20 to 40 years using. J. W. WEBB.

PLYMOUTH.

An incident of the "cheek" of the liquor dealers—or devil's agents—came under my notice not long since. Saturday morning, after District Lodge in Oleta, two liquor agents who had staid over night in Oleta, were preparing to leave when they saw a specimen of their work staggering along the street so drunk that he could scarcely walk. "Look there!" exclaimed one of his satanic majesty's servants, look at that man. A man must be getting down pretty low when he will make such a beast of himself. I wonder why men will get down so low." A young man from Summit Lodge who was standing by and heard the speech, replied, "If you men did not manufacture the liquor for them to get drunk on, they would not get down so low." The liquor dealer turned to the young man and observed, "You are right young man." I wonder he has been a liquor agent for years and dont know why it is that men will ruin themselves.

GOOD TEMPLAR."

SCENEGA, Feb. 11, 1882.

Scenega Band of Hope was organized by Bro. J. W. Webb, has about forty members, and under the supervision of Miss Kittie Conaway, cannot but succeed.

Scenega Lodge No. 221, organized by Bro. Levi Leland May 4th, 1879, has been kept up by the few earnest temperance workers of this neighborhood.

In one house here whisky was sold, but after the lodge started the seller said he "couldn't make it pay," and quit.

It is very rare to hear of a man getting "tight" in our vicinity. LORRAINE P. GUIBERSON.

HOW THEY ARGUE.

"Prohibition doesn't prohibit, because men sell liquor and get drunk where prohibition exists," say the friends of license.

Suppose we use the same argument in other matters; for instance:

Christianity doesn't christianize, because there are sinners in the world.

Wisdom doesn't make wise, because fools are still to be found.

Cultivation doesn't cultivate, because weeds still come up in the field.

Education doesn't educate, because it doesn't exterminate the ignoramuses that persist in such silly arguments as the above.—West Virginia Freeman.

LEGAL MURDER.—Last Sunday morning, the body of a negro, Amos Hampton by name, was found dead by the roadside, some twelve miles below Albany. The colored coroner of the county held an inquest, and all that was developed was that the negro, who was in good health, etc., had called in the afternoon at a cross-roads grocery and got a drink of whisky. That appears to have fixed him. He took that drink and quickly went off to die. The verdict was in accordance with the facts.—Georgia Good Templar.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

MAKE WHISKY PAY.

The Colusa Sun says, "Make whisky pay the expenses created by whisky," and the Yolo Mail says, "The maxim embodies a great deal of good sense and is based on sound reason."

And all the temperance men will surely join in an emphatic AMEN. It may be taken for granted that the most radical of us will consent to compromise right there, and as soon as the papers are signed and satisfactory bonds and guarantees executed, down will come the flags of Prohibition, Home Protection, Local Option and of all opposition to the beneficent institution which shall have thus placed itself on an equality with all other legitimate business and will pay all the expenses it creates.

That proposition puts the Kansas and Maine experiments away on the shelf as errors of a crude and undeveloped civilization. Temperance people would never have asked for prohibition, had they dreamed such an arrangement as this was possible. The first and fairest place to test this experiment is Lompoc. It is a clear field and the people there will offer no objection to its having an even impartial trial, for they are a fair and square community.

Now suppose having made an irrevocable treaty that "whisky shall pay all the expenses created by whisky," we open a saloon at Lompoc to be followed in time by as many more on the same terms, "as the needs of the community require" as they say in England.

First expense, for the saloon to meet will be one half the cash value of all the real property in Lompoc colony, for a permanently established grogshop will be immediately followed by that reduction in values.

Second expense will be the cost of removing at least one half the inhabitants to another home, either in this State or in some other where there is no grogshop.

Third expense; the damages assessed of these people leaving one home and migrating to another and increased cost of their new location.

Fourth expense; the return to the families of the laboring men who drink at the bar, an equivalent in food, clothing and comforts for all the money of which their protectors are robbed at the bar.

Fifth expense; the payment into the colony treasury of the lost time of all its inhabitants who loaf in the grogshop.

Sixth expense; the repayment of all the money lost in gambling by the patrons of the grogshop.

Seventh expense; refunding to the shoemaker, clothier, baker, grocer, milkman, carpenter, doctor, minister, milliner, painter, printer, bookseller and laborer, all the damages inflicted upon them by the loss of custom and the bad debts of those who frequent the saloon.

Eighth expense; payment to every wife whose husband is make a drunkard, of the damages annually inflicted upon her by leading her husband thru all the grades between a good, kind, honest protector and a besotted, useless, dangerous monster; said damages to be assessed by a sworn jury of 12 wives who will decide by the average of what each would consider a fair compensation for having her husband so debauched and satanized.

Ninth expense; compensation to every mother whose boy is seduced from innocence and honesty and led by the saloon into the various grades of vice and crime; damages to be assessed by a jury of 12 mothers who will award the average of what they each would consider a just and righteous money compensation for having the young hope of their homes blasted and bloated and changed into a felon and a jailbird.

Tenth expense; similar compensation to be similarly computed by a jury of 12 mothers, to every mother whose daughter the whisky vender has directly or indirectly led from innocence and purity to a life of shame and misery.

Eleventh expense; well there are just 90 more items in the bill of expenses which the whisky and beer and wine benefactor must provide for, and when that is satisfactorily accomplished and ratified the war is ended, peace will reign and the whisky seller and maker will have established a valid claim to respectability and perfect toleration. Surely they wont object to such a settlement of this difficulty which is assuming such a portentous aspect for them.

THE PERU AND CHILI MUDDLE.

Very frequently some great public scandal attaches to the whole American people, because of a gigantic scheme of fraud attempted or carried out by a little clique of rich men, who by the occasional injustices of blind fortune have escaped the convict doom which has rigorously overtaken so many men of a much milder type of scoundrelism.

The various land steals, the Union and Central Pacific grand sweeping robberies, the Star Route conspiracy, the gigantic whisky frauds, the continuous plunder of the Indians with the full knowledge and consent of our Government, have long disgraced this country. In 1856 and 7 money was subscribed by rich villains in New York to arm and help a revolutionary party to overthro the Government of Peru and make over the guano deposits to them at a nominal price per ton; about one fifth of its value. Thieves who do the stealing never get a good price for their plunder from the bigger thieves who receive the stolen goods.

And now what a disgraceful thing to have leading politicians engaged in a plot to embroil the nation in a scheme to interfere between Chili and Peru with force, and to rob them both to enrich a syndicate of freebooters of the most piratical type in New York. The most important feature of this conspiracy was putting the name of Hon. Wm. E. Dodge conspicuously in the list of Sindicators. A gentlemen who would not allow one of his dogs to take stock in any scheme with any one of the bona fide manipulators of the projected nitrate and guano filibustery. The claim that an American had a right of discovery in the guano islands is of course an entire fiction. Daniel Webster when Sec. of State was once deceived for a week or two by the representations of an unprincipled sharper, to assert such a claim, but he dropped it very hastily and people were amazed that so astute a statesman had been duped so far with such a shallow trick.

These freebooters should be medaled and their statues placed around that of Guiteau in the temple of infamy. The program of George Francis Train for the Government of the U. S. when he should be President, had one grand feature for which his countrymen should be grateful and he should be pardoned many of his follies; it was "Death to Thieves." That would not be a bloody ordinance as might seem at first superficial glance. It would be the saving of many thousands of lives every year. If the thief factories were extinguished which the hanging of from two to half a dozen of the leag of law-breakers would most conclusively effect—the rising crop of thieves could be saved from crime: the older ones could find better paying employment; whisky and beer being abolished, the temptation and the instigation to steal would both be done away with. The hanging of a couple of star route thieves, two or three congressmen, ex-cabinet officers, Indian commissioners, and swindling bankers along with Guiteau would put a stop to thieving by public officials forever in this country.

We could have a tremendous improvement in public morals, in the public welfare, a saving of a hundred thousand lives a year and a regenerated country, all at the nominal expense of hanging up for half an hour, say a dozen rotten human vermin, to whom death and a refuge under ground ot to be a merciful boon.

ANTI-MORMON MORALITY.

There are honest people who are profoundly moved with an earnest desire to abolish polygamy in Utah and elsewhere, and to whom that "peculiar institution" because it is far away, and they have not been accustomed to see it, looks far more hideous than the most horrible crimes, cruelties and debaucheries to which, from lifelong familiarity, they are comparatively callous and indifferent, altho the latter can be proved to be infinitely more abominable and wicked.

But there is nothing more disgusting than the hypocrisy of the drunken, lightfingered gamblers and debauchees who trade in politics, and clamor for the extermination of a system that would be polluted by their presence, that is entirely free from a dozen pet vices in which these political buzzards delight to bathe themselves.

The only result of Federal interference with polygamy in the past has been to persecute, annoy, harass, fine and imprison Mormons and to saddle upon them against their most earnest protests and efforts our substitutes for polygamy, the grogshop, the gambling hell, the debauched Sunday and the brothel; and the effect has been naturally to fortify and strengthen mormonism by inspiring mormons with a wholesom dread of the horrible pollutions thrust upon them and with a firm belief in the superior morality, christianity and thriftiness of their own system.

And seeing that these political-juggler reformers of mormonism who are so virtuous on the subject of legalized polygamy, would not one of them lift a finger or cast a vote to put down one brothel, one gambling-hell, one dramshop, in Washington, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, or anywhere—seeing they are entirely silent on the bloody human sacrifice of 100,000 citizens a year and the war which the liquor sellers wage against property, costing the country more than two billions a year—it is idle to give them credit for a particle of sincerity or honesty in the matter. It is very doubtful if they would ever try to do any other thing against mormonism than to thrust upon it a system like ours of tolerated, protected, licenced dens ofdrunkenness, vice and lewdness. Doutful in the extreme if any other solution of the question would be comprehensible to them.

The meanest point of this abominable farce is that they merely use it as a cloak to divert public attention from the temperance question and keep that out of politics till the end of 1884 at least. The Sunday theater and the variety theater and the beergardens of one of our large cities are cancer spots each one of them upon our civilization, worse than the whole mess of mormon immorality together. And not one of the clamorers against mormonism of any class, Talmage excepted, ever lifted a finger to discountenance Sunday theaters, an abomination the Christian churches could have abolished in one month any time the last twenty years if they had felt any interest in the matter.

APPALLING.

Near the close of 1881 the Alliance News of England asked its readers to send in accounts of the bad cases of crime, cruelty and accident thru drink which should occur in G. B. during the last week of 1881 and the first of 1882. The result was published Jan. 21 in the News and an 8 page supplement in all 41 columns of the width of those of the RESCUE and about an inch longer, in small type too.

Each item is an extract from a local paper and the whole has been classified as follows:

14 Homicides, manslaughters and murders.
15 Suicides; 8 attempted suicides.
15 Stabbing, cutting and wounding.
113 Permature, sudden or violent deaths.
5 Drink and public peril.
52 Rowdyism and violent assaults.
54 Assaults on policemen.
9 Cruelty to children.
64 Assaults on women.
14 Women drunk resulting in death or grievous harm.
355 cases in all of grevious and fatal crime thru drink, and in many of the cases of cruelty and assault, several persons were the sufferers or criminals or both; thus making the number much larger. And it must be noted that not one of these is a case of mere drunk and disorderly, drunk and incapable, found in the gutter and taken care of. The million of them who got drunk were not at all noticed; where 30 or 40 were sent to one hospital or infirmary to have cuts and bruises from falls and fights attended to, not one of such cases was included unless the circumstances were very serious.

The 355 cases are all horrible atrocities, especially the assaults on women and children, barbarous crimes of a refinement in cruelty and an intensity of unnatural beastliess that makes many of them unmentionable. The hundreds of thousands of women who only get their weekly allowance of kicks and beatings and black eyes and gashed heads, and did not get before the police courts, were not one of them mentioned. The countless thousands of children that miserably perish thru the neglect of drunken mothers and vile parents were not counted, unless they happened to be subjects of an inquest. And it is very evident that the 355 cases are a mere drop in the bucket of the woes inflicted in those two weeks upon their fellow beings by the most infamous leag of murderers and robbers that have ever cursed this world.

The Telegraph in commenting upon it pretended to believe and stated it to be the year's results of drink in 1881 and disposed of it as not so very bad after all. Were a similar record made in America it would probably be worse, except in the matter of cruelties to women and children; our people have not been fed on beer long enough and in such numbers as to produce the same proportion of barbarously brutal drunkards that are found in the beer swilling countries.

POLYGAMY AND PROHIBITION.

"An able critic" in the Minneapolis Review writes an able article which concludes as follows:

Fellows citizens, the ebullition of long pent up feeling concerning a sorrow and shame which really affects only a few thousand men and women in a far away wilderness, a comparatively small part of our ample domain, just and holy as it is, is but a tempest in a tea-pot compared with what would stir every patriot breast in all the land in contemplation of the greater slavery the rum power puts on men and women both. There is a growing felon on Uncle Sam's finger in Utah, which the government bayonet can lance. With the corruption of whisky the whole body politic is cancerous, the whole head sick, and whole heart faint. It is time we were awake about this imminent and monstrous evil.

Mormonism is responsible for a few assassinations and murders every year. Its whole record in blood during its growth from Joseph Smith's wild brain—a generation or more of disgraceful crime—is largely exceeded by the annual slauter of more than 60,000 men by alcohol. Of 125,000 Mormons less than 20,000 practice polygamy. More men and women are led into adultery and lewdness in one of our great cities by rum than in all the territories under the stars and stripes which are cursed by polygamy. More maids are debauched by drugged draughts, and led on to ruin thru passions inflamed by drink while conscience sleeps, than are sacrificed in the harems of Mormon profligates, making a Sodom of our fair West. More wives hearts ache in Minnesota than in Utah—ache harder and sorrow longer. More children cry for bread here than there. More honor is lost, more manhood sacrificed. The Mormon church avail themselves of Uncle Sam's munificence to give every believer a hundred and sixty acres of land. They tithe it, I grant you, but they protect it from the rumseller who would get it all for drink. That church would be a boon to this commonwealth which would take a tithe of all our possessions and rid us of the curse of the liquor trade. I do not underrate the horrors of the adulterous shame. I simply and solemnly declare to my fellow citizens that in protesting against a far away and local monstrosity we do not do all our duty. There is corruption here at home as costly and as dangerous as any known to history. It is an open question if rum does not make more lewdness in Minneapolis than Mormonism does in Salt Lake City. Hell is not beyond the Rockies alone. It is here. I can take you to its vestibule. Every pastor knows the skeleton in the closet which alcohol has laid bare. I wish I could say something to every lover of his kind thinking about this. Sentiment is made for temperance as well as for the sacredness of the family tie, by thot and discussion. Good women's hearts ache for orphans. The Home for the Homeless burdens sympathies already fearfully taxed. The sad tide of bruised and shamed womanhood flows into the Home of the Sisters of Bethany. Hospitals rise for the care of the wounded and maimed. How much of this stream of suffering and sorrow might be dried at its very source if good men and women would all help, rather than neglect the temperance cause? You may not stop all drunkenness, any more than all lewdness, but time and teaching, fearless discussion and honest voting, may put stars in the galaxy of pure and prosperous commonwealths. If the methods of the Reform Club do not please your taste, put your parlor to the use of such women as Mrs. Hunt, who will give you a better taste of life than Oscar Wilde's esthetics. Ask your school directors to put scientific temperance in the schools. Capitalists who would rid an avenue of saloons would get up a bigger and better "boom" for real estate than any other advertising. A temperance syndicate of the wealthiest citizens would add much more to stock and take more from taxes than any known combination. Real estate is not worth much in Sodom. Ask Lot if it be. P. T. Barnum says every saloon license revoked in Bridgeport. Conn., means $1,000 increase of valuation on adjoining property.

I put it upon your consciences, fellow-citizes, joining in the crusade against the foul fanatics of Mormondom, if it be not a farce to spend such disproportionate breath upon a heathen abomination in a distant territory, and lie supinely enslaved by a power which will be broken when patriots seize their opportunity and say it must dam the current of our progress and prosperity no more. Hail to the day when we shall have a temperance governor—a prohibition governor in Minnesota—who shall lead us in a movement that shall rid us of the curse of rum, as Gov. Pillsbury has set us free from the curse of repudiation."

THE DIFFERENCE IN NEWSPAPERS.

I have been reading the newspapers published in Los Angeles Co. for the past month or two and I notice one great difference in them. All but two are full of puffs and advertisements of mantraps, gin mills, otherwise called saloons, and are loud in their praises of wine and brandy making and have occasional sneers and jokes at temperance. The two that do not, are the Daily Times and the Mirror, Yarnell, Caystile and Mathes, proprietors, are Good Templars and the editor is superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday School. So of course, they are clean, decent temperance papers, without a word of praise for saloons, gambling dens or brothels. Nor have they any advertisements from the beer dives, rum-holes or flashy saloons. I heard that one ginseller did send an advertisement to the Times but the moment he found it was even printed at the "Temperance" Mirror Office he had it taken out. What a compliment to the proprietors, they were not his kind of men! Now if I were a resident of Los Angeles Co. I should subscribe for one of these papers in preference to any other, whatever my politics might be, as a consistent temperance man. Let us support our own kind; that is the motto of the rummies. Another paper published here is the Semi-tropical. It praises wine and brandy making as tho it were a good thing for the country. A Good Templar and Christian man said to me the other day, "I like that paper for valuable information it contains about orange and other trees and raisin grapes, etc., but it puffs up the wine grape growing so that I will write the editor to discontinue my paper for I am ashamed to send it back East to my friends whose coming out here nothing would be more likely to prevent than this very wine curse that he approbates and tries to make popular."

The last packages of the copies of the 16th, which were not permitted by the P. O. regulations to be mailed before without a 1 ct. stamp on each paper, were mailed to the lodges on Monday morning the 27th. Some of them will be 11 days late but it is hoped they will be distributed and used to the best advantage to extend the circulation of the paper. Every ordinary issue contains a much larger amount of reading matter and less advertisements.

Subscribers this week. Vallejo, 1; Portland, Oregon 1 (2 yrs.); Mariposa 7 (short term), C. H. Convers; Tulare City 1; San Jose (W. H. Gilmore) 4; Weaverville Lodge 6: Weaverville (G. B. The Ministers.—A postal or a letter frequently comes to the Rescue from ministers who desire to have their address changed, or who have something to communicate and take that opportunity to send a very kindly message of approval and good will and encouragement. It is not presumed the management of this paper exactly suits any one person in every particular; perhaps no two men, in an honest endeavor to best advocate the truth and the right, would exactly agree in framing all the details of the program. Therefore, the kindly wishes and helpful, sympathizing notes of good cheer, which, in their desire to sustain and strengthen the work, have overlooked and forgotten all the imperfections and short-comings of the worker, are warmly and most thankfully appreciated. This acknowledgement is desired to apply to the last 15 months right along, and to apologize for lack of time to make other reply in many instances.

The Home Circle is an out-spoken temperance paper and is the only journal published giving both wholesale and retail quotations of fine groceries and family supplies—send to 519 Post St. S. F. Cal. for sample copy which is sent free.

W. D. Comstock's Furniture Warerooms advertized in the two last numbers of the Rescue, are at the corner of Fifth and K Streets, Sacramento. Not on M Street as reported. Call and see them.

SPEECH OF GOVERNOR ST. JOHN AT BROOKLYN.

JANUARY 22, 1882.

No question before the American people to-day has such a hold upon the heart of the West as this question of prohibition. No longer ago than last winter the people of thirty States of this nation knocked at the doors of the legislatures and asked that the people be permitted to speak through the ballot-box upon this question. Politicians were cowardly. I desire to say to-night, if there are any politicians in this audience, that you had better be trimming your sails; you are twenty-five years behind the people on this question. You are not expressing or representing the public sentiment of this country, and the time will come when you will be compelled to take a position either for or against this measure, or get out of politics. You can not occupy a neutral position upon this question. I remember what they said, "Keep this question of slavery out of the platform; it will injure the party," just as they say to-day, "Don't agitate this temperance question; it will injure the party." I tell you citizens, that any party can afford to do right, and the party that is cowardly about this matter, the party that dares not take hold and endorse that which is right, must, in the very nature of things, eventually go down. How long would the Republican party have lived in the hearts of the people of this country had it continued the cowardly policy that existed in 1850? The Republican party never got a great and strong hold upon the hearts of the people until it grappled with this question of humam slavery and choked the life out of it. Nor will the Republican party, or any other party, ever continue, ever have power in this country any longer than that party dares to do right. I was told a year ago —and it was a cry against me—that if I was renominated on the Republican ticket it would endanger the success of the ticket in that State, simply because I was outspoken in favor of the policy of prohibiting dramshops. There were six other candidates before the convention. Notwithstanding all the talk about this weakening of the party, the people upon the first ballot in convention gave me more than two votes to one for the opposition.

THEN POLITICIANS TREMBLED

because the majority would be cut down, but my majority over my Democratic opponent was fifty-two thousand five hundred—twenty-one thousand greater majority than ever given before in the State for any governor. It was not I that rolled up that majority, but it was the principle that the people were voting for. I was talking a moment ago about this question of emigration and population, telling you how our population had increased. There is one spot in Kansas where we have lost emigration on account of prohibition—I always desire to be truthful, to be frank and fair in the discussion of any question—that is within the walls of the Kansas penitentiary. During the first eleven months of 1880, under free whiskey rule, there were sent to that prison two hundred and eighty-six convicts against only one hundred and seventy-five in the first eleven months under prohibition —a difference of one hundred and eleven. That is the only place where we have lost population on account of prohibition. I desire to submit right here a question to you men, to you fathers. I want you to explain it to your boys. Tell your boys, if you please, why it is that you enforce absolute prohibition in your prisons here in New York; why is it that we have enforced it in Kansas; why it is that we enforce prohibition in every State prison throughout the country; and tell me, if you can, a single reason why we should give the protection of prohibition to the thief inside the walls of the prison and withhold it from the honest man on the outside? We under our national laws, give the protection of prohibition to the Indians on the frontier. I have always been of the opinion that a white man, if he behave himself, is as good as an Indian. I ask you to tell me, if you can, why we should extend the protection of prohibition to the wild savages of the West and withhold it from the civilized white men of this country? Brooklyn, New York City, Philadelphia for years past have contributed large sums of money for sending missionaries to the wild savages on the Western frontier, and I am glad to be able to show you the harvest that is being gathered now from the seed that was sown by you years ago. I feel somewhat timid, embarrassed to come here from that Western country and talk to an audience in this city where the standard of civilization is raised so high, yet I know that not only New York but all the States between here and the West can learn lessons of morality and good government beyond Kansas, even in the territory where the Indians reside. I have here with me a letter from an Indian that I desire to read.

"EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, TAHLEQUAH, }
CHEROKEE NATION, Dec. 28, 1881. }

GOVERNOR ST. JOHN:

MY DEAR SIR: I observe by the public prints that you are engaged in the somewhat arduous struggle of stopping the sale of intoxicating drinks in your State. (Remember, this is from the Cherokee nation.) Among my people, under our constitution and laws, the manufacture or introduction of all liquors is positively prohibited. It is true that some little is smuggled in by lawless persons on the border, but the moral sentiment of the great mass of the Cherokee natien is against it, and such a thing as a public drinking saloon is unknown. Occasionally a post sutler sells it, although it is unlawful to sell it to Indians. It has often occurred to me that a habit which has been discovered to be so dangerous to Indians cannot be very good for the whites. You have therefore the well wishes of all good people in my country for success in your undertaking. The evil effects and great increase of the drinking habits of the country in the past twenty years surely call for the most energetic efforts from all good men for the arrest of this fearful evil. I subscribe myself, very respectfully, your friend.

JOHN BUSHYHEAD.

Governor and Principal Chief of the Cherokee Nation."

If you will bear with me just one moment I will read you one section of their law, an official copy of which I hold in my hand. Their entire prohibitory law consists of four sections. The first three prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor within that nation. It provides that the officers shall seize and destroy it, and imprison any one that they may suspect of having a knowledge of the presence of intoxicating liquors, and make them under oath disclose whatever they know about it. It provides a penalty of not less than $50 nor over $100 fine and six months' imprisonment. Here is what they do with a man after he has once been convicted and then persists in trampling the law under foot. It shows that the Cherokees have faith in the people:

"Every person after having been once convicted who shall persist in keeping a disorderly house for the purpose of gambling or vending ardent spirits shall be deemed to have forfeited his right of residence in this territory, and the people in the vicinity where such person may be may band themselves together and effectually destroy such place of vice and make such disposition of such incorrigible person as they may deem best to rid the nation of the evil."

Ah! do you regret, one of you, contributing to send missionaries to the Indians of the West! Would it not be meet and proper, if these Indians remembering your kindness to them in the past, should now send missionaries to Brooklyn and New York to teach you lessons on this great question and tell you how to rid the country of the evil. I have talked to you longer than I intended to, or ought to have done. I desire to say to you, for I have no time to go into statistics, which are dry—I desire to say to you that in the State of Kansas, in at least three-fourths of the State, prohibition is as absolute and as honestly obeyed and enforced as any other law on the statute-book prohibiting crime. In the larger cities, such as Atchison and Topeka, it is different, on account of the fact that the city governments, whose duty it is to see that the laws are enforced, are in league with the lawbreakers, and wherever you find the law-breaker and the officer of the same character, and in league together, it is difficult to enforce any law. But remember it is not the fault of the people. The time will come, at the next election, when that class of officers will be swept out of power, and when the next legislature convenes, in these cities, special provisions will be made for these city governments, for I desire to assure you that there is no spot in Kansas where there can be successfully inaugurated and maintained rebellion against the constitution and the laws of the people. We are having who violate the law outside of these cities. In the city of Salina there have been some twenty convicted in the last thirty days, one man fined $3,500 and $500 costs, and treated to the luxury of thirty days in the county jail. You cannot convince that man now, it matters not how eloquent or logical you may be, that prohibition does not prohibit in Kansas. Twenty others were convicted in the same county and fined $200, and nineteen counts in each indictment continue over their heads to insure their good behavior. This is simply an illustration of how the law is being enforced through the greater part of the State. I have right here a letter from the county attorney of one of the largest counties, in which he says he is glad to deliver to me, as a New Year's message, the information that the whiskey rebels in that county have surrendered unconditionally along the whole line. There have been $5,000 in fines collected at little less than $500 expense incurred by the county. Now then, these $500, under our laws, go into the school fund. Formerly the licence money in the rural districts went into the school fund and helped to educate our children. I was always ashamed of Kansas for that—that anybody should be educated by legalizing wrong. But we have revolutionized the whole system. We no longer educate our children that way; but educate them now by punishing wrong in that State. Now, just a few words to you men who vote—I wish I could say to you women who vote. If we could let the wives and mothers of this country go to the ballot-box on this question there wenld be no longer any necessity for great meetings like this; but it is to the men now I desire to talk—you who have the shaping of the destinies of this grand State —you in whose care are left the wife and children, you who have it in your power to protect or destroy—it is to you men that I desire to say a word. Remember when you vote your ballot that you are not only voting for your own fireside but voting for your country. You are voting for the boys every where. You cannot quietly fold your arms and say: "Am I my brothers keeper?" There will be a time when you will come to be judged by the great Creator of us all, when you will be held responsible for this moral cowardice that many men in this country are guilty of to-day. In one of the Western towns two or three years ago resided a widow who had a son sixteen and a daughter eighteen years of age. There had never been a dram-shop in that place until, some three years ago, the men petitioned the county organization to grant a license to open a dram-shop. The women are never guilty of such outrages. One was opened, and the boy who had been an exemplary boy from his childhood up, a regular attendant upon the Sabbath-school, soon was led astray, went in there to play cards. Boys, do not play cards. Let me tell you I never knew a boy in my life who was ruined by letting cards alone, but many a boy has been destroyed through the influence of cards. You older ones here to-night, to you let me say that it will do you no harm if you never play another card If you do not, you will not set an example that may sometimes lead astray younger ones who look to you as patterns. This boy went into card-playing and beer-drinking, and from that to drunkenness, and in less than fifteen months, in a drunken spree, killed a comrade. He was arrested, tried, convicted, and sentenced to be hanged. The day of execution came on, and it found his sister at the State capital before the governor, asking executive interference in her brother's behalf. The mother was in the prison cell watching, praying, comforting her boy as a mother only can. The hour of execution came on, and he was literally torn from his mother's arms as she fell fainting on the floor. He was taken to the gallows; the black cap was adjusted; the trap sprung; the rope broke, and he fell almost lifeless to the ground. As they raised him and the blood gushed from his nose and his ears, he, thinking of his mother last, said in a husky tone, "O mother! for God's sake have them hurry; won't you, please?" He ascended the scaffold again; the rope was adjusted; the trap sprung, and his soul was sent to the God that gave it. Men of Brooklyn, men of New York! for God's sake I ask you to hurry, hurry not to open more of these places of iniquity, but hurry to blot them out and drive them from our land. Be brave! Strike for your firesides and for your homes. Strike for a higher and a grander and a better civilization. From all the saloons of this great city there never flowed a blessing, not one. Curses and only curses have come from them. How long will you continue to give them the sanction of the law? Now, citizens, in conclusion, if I have uttered a single word that would tend to mislead one of your boys, or tend to mislead one of you to your injury—if I have said aught that shall lower the standard of civil government here, I desire to beg you pardon before I take leave of you. If, on the other hand, I have uttered a single sentiment here that tends to give us a better civilization, a better government, and encourage us to renewed determination to fight evil, come from whatever quarter it may, I am richly paid for coming here. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

SOME of the dailies are in a mortal agony of terror lest Peru or Chili should come and desolate this un. defended coast. Peru has not a gun and could not borrow a cheese knife, and Chili will be more likely to send her ironclads to batter down the North Pole than to molest a peaceful or powerful neighbor. Prepare next for a scare from King Kalakua, who is likely to make a conquest of this country at any time. People who desire to live in a country that protects its cowardice behind fortifications of bristling cannon, ought to remove to some of the old despotisms. It is hoped they will never see any more bullying demonstrations than exist at present on this coast.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

THE TEMPERANCE ALMANAC is out for 1882 with its usual large amount of useful information and reliable statistics. Contains 72 pages; list of the leading societies of temperance, and has a capital department for the children—ten cents single copies or $1 per dozen. Send to J. N. Stearns, 58 Reade Street, New York.

A few National Temperance Almanacs can be supplied at the RESCUE office; a 10 cent stamp will get one, and that is the cheapest way of remittance. The volume for 1882 is, as usual, full of good matter.

Revolution Temperance Literature.

New goods, adapted to new methods of work, at fabulously low prices—making, as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been.

OUR GREAT "KNEE-DEEP" OFFER.—Contracts taken to sow every town "knee-deep" with temperance literature at 5 cents a head, without any labor on the part of society or individual, by means of our Class Papers and post-office delivery system. The greatest need in temperance work is scattering temperance literature. The greatest difficulty, doing it systematically, thoroughly and yet cheaply. For Five Cents we will address, wrap and mail singly, direct to individual, regularly each month for a year, any one of the below named temperance papers, each for a special class of readers or work: 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The S. S. Superintendent. 7. The S. S. Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. The Prohibition Banner. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. The Home Protection Monthly. 13. The People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper.

Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which especially designed. Each published monthly, and though small in size, contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book.

HOW IT WORKS.—1st. It is only a nickle. Subscriptions are never refused; you have only to ask. As many subscriptions can be taken in a day as you can see persons. Societies or individuals can look after this work. 2d. Fifty cents sends a paper every month for a year to ten different persons, so many will subscribe both for themselves and for friends. 3d. Societies can not adopt a better plan of thorough distribution of temperance literature than to set apart a fund to send one or more of our 5c. papers to each individual in the town. Thus for $5.00 they can reach 100 persons each month for a year. A whole town of 500 families can be reached every month for a year for $25.00. Besides, you need not give away, subscriptions can be taken from everybody you can see, and hosts will give in small sums to send to others when it is seen that a little goes so far. For 20c. we furnish the TEMPERANCE ENGINEER, a book with blanks for canvassers for the papers, for securing lists of names to send to, free, and with space for alphabetical entry of 3,400 names, classified so as to give a fund of valuable information for society in prosecuting its work, as well as to help in systematical plan of ordering class papers—an invaluable book for all branches of temperance work.

WONDERFUL SUCCESS.—In three months these papers have reached a circulation of SEVENTY-THREE THOUSAND COPIES, monthly. Hundreds of towns are trying the plan—read what workers say of it:

Hon. James Black, of Pennsylvania: "As soon as I can find the time to arrange, I will put your 'knee-deep' plan of distribution into action. The plan is practicable, and if adopted and persevered in, will revolutionize any community. The plan is very simple, economical, and will be effective."

R. Thompson, G. W. C. T. of the I. O. G. T., Grand Lodge of California; "I had heard how wonderfully cheap you proposed to supply temperance literature, but did not realize until I examined that such a good quality was furnished."

Uriah Copp, G. W. C. T. of the Grand Lodge of Illinois: "I most heartily endorse them."

Theo. D. Kanouse, G. W. C. T. of the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin: "Your temperance papers, so short, so cheap, so sound, giving in condensed form and in ten minute doses (more than we can get from some other sources from multiplied columns and days' reading) are first-class."

Hon. John B. Finch, of Nebraska: "Your work will do more to help our cause, if supported, than all others combined."

A. S. Bostwick, Past G. W. C. T., I. O. G. T. of Pennsylvania: "You have discovered the great want of to-day."

DATES OF MAILING.—Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 17 and 18, first week of month; Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8 second week; Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, third week; Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, fourth week. Subscriptions received up to the 25th, beginning with month in which order is sent.

OTHER WAYS OF USING.—We provide hooks, with card attached to each so as to show above it, bearing the words, TAKE ONE—cost in lots of five or more 6 cts., postpaid. The "class papers" for distribution in this way are furnished at 25 cts. per 100 copies. Several hooks may be put up in a place, each for a special paper, the hooks refilled with papers from week to week, a later issue being added each month. Papers come ready punched for use on the hooks.

SPECIMEN PAPERS.—We will send one each of all the above papers—eighteen papers in all—on receipt of 10 cents.

2c. STORY BOOKS.—We are putting up choicest and most thrilling and telling of 75c to $1.50 temperance story books in large newspaper form, one whole book in a paper, illustrated on first page, for 2 cts. a paper when bought in lots of twenty-five or more. One issue each month. Three are now ready. Sample of all three for 10 cents.

This is a new force; people will read for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or can be distributed gratuitiously in various ways.

TEMPERANCE POSTERS.—To tack up in stores, depots and other public places; large print, each with a bit of choice, telling temperance matter, 12x14 inches, on good, white paper. No. 1. Have You Insured Your Boys? No. 2. The Licensed Saloon Illustrated. No. 3. Important Notice. No. 4. The Rum Deception. No. 5. Startling Statistics. No. 6. The Right of Prohibition. Price, in lots of twenty or more, assorted, ½c each. Samples of each for 10 cts., postpaid.

THE POPULAR TEMPERANCE LIBRARY.—One new book each month. Costs but 60c for a year's issue (12 numbers).

No. 1. DRINKS FROM DRUGS.—A book that cannot fail to arouse the American people to the gigantic swindle now being perpetrated. The writer offered $10,000 by a leading brewer to keep still. Liquor not only doctored but made entirely from drugs. Extracts from a whole library of secret books, giving receipts for making and doctoring claret, port, sherry, champagne, whisky, brandy, gin, rum, etc., all out of one barrel, and made at less than 25c a quart. Wine that never saw grape juice—cider that never saw apples—beer factories in place of breweries—ale without barley or brewing—whiskey from arsenic—millions of gallons of liquor that pays no revenue tax. A wholesale liquor-store in a ten foot square cellar. This book is no mere toy, but an exhaustive work.

"One of the very best temperance documents for general use."—(Christian Standard.) "A complete and thorough exposure."—(Delaware Signal.) "The book contains a fund of information." (Morning Star.) "A most exhaustive work, and treats the subject with vigor."—(Observer.) "Deserves a wide circulation."—(Journal and Messenger.) "The most wonderful book ever brought before the public."—(Reading Star.) "Ought to be read by every minister and Christian."—(New Jersey Gazette.) "A complete exposure: get the book and circulate it."—(St. Louis Presbyterian.) "Statements sufficiently terrible to startle the moderate drinker as well as the immoderate."—Zion's Herald.)

No. 2. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND THE SOBER CITIZEN.—An able and telling work, by Rev. J. H. Sherman, which brings out the effects of the liquor traffic in a new light. The following are some commendations of the first edition: "The author drives the nails of conviction through and clinches them."—(New York Christian Advocate.) "Speakers and workers in the temperance field will find valuable aid in this pamphlet. It is crowded with convincing facts."—(Zion's Herald.) "One of the ablest reviews of the drink curse ever issued from the press."—(The Morning and Day of Reform.)

No. 3. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND CRIME.—Leaves from the diary of an old lawyer. By Hon. A. B. Richmond, member of the Pennsylvania bar. A book of intense interest, rivaling the famous "Diary of a physician," and, in its truthful, terrible pictures of the power and crime of intemperance, excelling the well-known "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room." The temperance issue of the present time is, Shall prohibition be partial or entire? shall the branches of the death-bearing tree be pruned and trimmed, or shall the tree itself be cut down and its stump be torn up by the roots? The answer of "Leaves From a Diary" is, "Cut down the tree, tear up the roots, leave not a shoot nor shred behind." It is certainly a very strong and eloquent volume. The book has been already before the public in high-priced style, and received high commendations. As printed in Popular Temperance Library form, it is somewhat abridged, but contains the cream of the book. We shall issue later the complete book in more expensive form. Press notices of first edition: "Full of touching incidents. We wish everybody would read it."—(Pittsburg Christian Advocate.) "We would place this book by the side of Judge Pitman's work, and then say, 'There is the best temperance library in the English language."—(Chautauqua Herald.)

No. 4. HOME PROTECTION.—A lawyer's view of it. By J. C. Wells, attorney at law. The question ably discussed from a lawyer's standpoint. A book of the times.

These books are "hot shot" for the enemy's strongholds. Other books of equal merit will follow monthly. All will be well adapted for use by lecturers, canvassers, agents, news dealers, train boys, temperance societies, etc. Price by the year (12 books), 60 cts. Single copies, 10 cts. Five or more to one address, 5 cts. each.

GREAT BOOK DISTRIBUTION OFFER.—Books sent by mail direct to individuals. Society sending us the names and addresses of parties and book wanted, sent to each, saves society distributing, books more likely to command reading, is more systematic, costs less, etc. We will send any two or more of our 5c books to separate addresses for 8c each; five or more 7c each; twenty-five or more 6c each; fifty or more 5½c each; one hundred or more 5¼c each; two hundred or more 5c each.

BANDS OF HOPE.—Cheapest offer yet is our offer to induce organization of Bands of Hope among the children. We furnish a library of 52 choice $1.00 to $1.50 temperance story books put up in ordinary book form, only printed on lighter paper with smaller margins and in paper covers (really stronger books than the more expensive), for 5c each, or the 52 books for $2.50. Also two weekly Band papers at 2 1-2c a quarter; a lesson and song quarterly for 2c. Certificates, pledge-rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc., all so cheap that penny collections of Band more than pay all expenses. Specimen of everything necessary for comple outfit for Band sent postpaid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving new and simple methods of running Bands, running them either with or without teachers, etc., sent free.

Beet Seed.

I have made the raising of Beet Seed a specialty for several years, and have now on hand a choice lot of

MANGEL WURTZEL SEED,

Of the Mammoth Long Red Variety, which I offer for sale at the following low rates:

By mail.....50 cts. per lb
By express.....35 cts. "
Where 10 or more lbs are taken (by express)..... 25 cts. "

My Seed is Warranted to be Fresh, Pure and True to Name. Grown on transplanted and highly cultivated roots. The regular price of such Seed among seedmen is 10 cts. per ounce, or 75 cts per lb.

The Long Red Mangel Murtzel Beet

Is the most profitable crop a farmer can raise for feeding hogs and cattle. It is very crisp and sugary, hence a great fat-producer in hogs, and splendid for milk cows. Produces immense crops, even on clay and adobe soils, when well cultivated. Every farmer should plant it, and plant largely this dry year. Look out for old and inferior seed, as there is much on the market. Address, PROF. W. C. DAMON, Napa College, Napa, Cal.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:
Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

MRS. E. P. STEVENS.

The meetings in Merced resulted in forty names for lodge. On Sunday night a large audience crowded the church, but a fire alarmed them and the entire audience went to extinguish it; they succeeded, and many returned to the church, but the effect was disastrous upon the meeting. If the citizens of Merced were one half as zealous in putting out the liquid fires in their saloons, temperance would not be at so low an ebb. The Gilded Saloon there kept by one John Smith is petted and praised by many who profess temperance and religion. The failure to close the saloons on Sunday has injured the town materially. There is loss of confidence, and the saloonists are arrogant. Most of the fires latterly have occurred on Sunday, and in all instances resulted from drunken carelessness. There is little hope for a town that is not alive to the maintainance of law and order. When people ignore the laws of their State because they conflict with their prejudices or unholy licenses there is very little to expect from them. The Good Templars of Merced are holding their own. The lodge organized by Capt. Wood nearly ten years ago is really doing much for the cause, not so aggressive as in many towns, but it is to be hoped that education in temperance literature will succeed in maintaining and sustaining the laws of the State. At Plainsburg the status of the people is quite different. It used to be a place for Sunday horse racing, drinking, gambling. Four years since Bro. Isaacs State and District Dept., succeeded in organizing a lodge in Plainsburg. Many men who were supposed to be confirmed drinkers, joined and have made good citizens. It is needless to state the lodge has prospered, a good church has been built. The saloons are closed on Sunday. The town is now quiet and orderly. The minister is an active Good Templar and the teacher of the school has been one of the prime movers in Sunday closing. Only one meeting has been held here, but with good results. They will be contin ued until Friday, Dist. Dept. Isaacs is earnestly aiding me in this county. The approaching dry season makes the outlook a little dark but the people are undaunted and will devote their spare time to creating temperance sentiment by a liberal scattering of temperance seed in temperance literature which if well cultivated by the active Templars will yield, even in a dry season a fair harvest. Snelling will be visited on Saturday and Sunday.

PLAINSBURG, Feb. 22, 1882.

J. W. WEBB.

SAN BERNARDINO. Still working here and in suburbs, addressing every school I can find. Splendid lodge meeting; hardly standing room; must have been over 100 present. By request initiated several of the 20 proposed, partly the result of lectures. Bro. Curtis, L. D., installed new officers. Bro. Ball reports likelihood of the move we made at Warm Spring for a new lodge being successful. Obtained 16 subscribers for RESCUE; with any one going round town with me could have got many more, but a stranger is at a disadvantage. Sold many of Cook's five-cent books. Lodge Deputy Curtis takes 100 to sell, and Bro. G. T. Switzer, Supt. Band of Hope, ordered 50 for the young folks. Then the lodge voted $5 for 100 monthly papers, to go to as many families for one year. This brings the lodge to the front as one of the foremost in Southern Cal. in the matter of literature. Young Bro. C. A. Hart is laying aside a proportion of his earnings for the Home for Orphans. On Saturday had very small meeting at Colton; the editor of the Semi-Tropic gave free notices and I went over to the school and talked on Friday. Rev. Mr. Frotheringham opened with prayer, and our audience seemed interested.

LUGONIA is a beautiful semi-tropical place, fast settling up with intelligent and many Eastern people. Preached a practical temperance sermon in the morning on "Good Samaritan;" addressed Sunday school after taking part in bible class, and organized a Band of Hope. At night lectured on temperance and urged instituting a lodge; Bro. M. V. Wright seconded the plan, and we obtained 17 names. Being Sunday night and late, I was obliged to leave the matter for Bro. H. C. Brooke, District Deputy, to consummate. It is unfortunate to finish lecturing at a new place, where there is a likelihood of starting a lodge, on Sunday night. But I interested Bro. Brooke and he and others will not let the opportunity slip by unimproved. Bro. Wright announced a lecture at same place, and a series of lectures at his school in Old San Bernardino, during the next moonlight nights. At the Band of Hope a number of old gentlemen and some young ones took the triple pledge. Mr. Craft took me home to his widely known "retreat," a beautiful health resort with oranges, vines, walnuts, etc. He started wine-making some years ago, but soon found it was no business for a Christian man and abandoned it, and now finds a market for all his dried mission grapes. Brainard Brown kindly came eight miles to San Bernardino for me early in the morning and he was one of the first to give his name for a lodge. The list is with Bro. Shaw, an ex-lodge Deputy, and head of a temperance and non-tobacco using family, who will get more names and do all he can for the cause and new lodge. This locality and society, climate, water, productions and proximity to R. R., and the County seat can be conscienciously recommended, and it has no saloon or bar or store where liquor is sold, and only one winery kept, I understood by a Dr. Craig, a Presbyterian! Going back to town I called at Mill school, addressed the pupils and started a good Band of Hope.

H. R. HUGHES.

Since my last, I completed the organization of Union Lodge Clarksville, starting them off with —— members, and a good lot of officers. Visited Shingle Springs, got some names but they are not up for a lodge yet. Eldorado is doing well, and the band of hope flourishing. At Placerville a couple of hours. Lodge prospering. Pleasant Valley gaining members, and going ahead. Got into deep snow, got a terrible cold, had to forego the pleasure of meeting with Amador D. L., and pushed for home. Reached here late Friday evening, Saturday morning felt better, only 12 miles from Copperopolis, so I went to our D. L. and had a good session.

Next day assisted our General Supt. to organize Golden Rule band of hope at Copper. In the evening went to S. S. Valley, with Sister Richardson, got some names for a band of hope, and they got five names for the lodge.

I am to take a weeks trip with the sister and visit points in the lower end of this county that have been somewhat neglected, to help those lodges, and if possible organize bands of hope. We have 16 lodges in good working order, and 7 bands of hope, and we propose to get a good many more, to bless "Old Calaveras."

Since my last report I have made a tour of the southwestern part of Calaveras. Rain disturbed part of the program, but had some good meetings.

Sister M. E. Richardson accompanied me, and her singing was a feature of our meetings, and the "General" is developing quite a talent for public speaking. We had meetings at Campo Seco, Spring Valley, Evergreen and Stone Corral.

At the two last named places, the attendance was large and deep interest manifested in our band of hope work.

It is a great comfort to see old veterans of the "pipe and plug laying down their idols, and helping the children to start life in the correct way, free from slavish habits and poisonous practices.

The citizens of the "Chaparal" county have initiated a movement to have a tax-payers convention in June, and break up the status of existing political parties and give us a county government that will enforce law.

WM. CROWHURST.

Passing on to Ophir, we were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Carter, sister of W. C. T., Brother Curts, had two good meetings, although on the second night there was a Valentine Ball in town.

Then at Clipper Gap through which we looked to discover if possible where the people came from we had two good meetings in spite of rain, hail, snow, slush, etc. Ten propositions were received, and Bro. E. F. Cook, W. C. T. took a special private drilling in the "work." The Brother is earnest and shows the same good spirit as his father, Bro. Cook of Ceres.

At Auburn we found a wrong spirit existing among many who ought to be working for temperance and the elevation of the morals of that community. Among too many, there seemed to exist a desire for nothing but criticism; but our Good Templar District Deputy, Dr. J. C. Hawver, Sister Foster, daughter of Bro. Cook of Ceres, Sister Lardner, wife of the Placer Co. District Attorney, a young brother named Sawyer, and a few others are really desirous of doing some good and hence formed themselves into the committees referred to below. Following is a part of the report contained in the Placer Herald:

"Professor Crowhurst's labors here may be summed up as a success, when we consider that nothing at all has ever been accomplished in Auburn, by any effort in behalf of the cause of temperance." After referring to the opening exercises, it continues:

"The Grand Lecturer was then introduced to those present. His remarks extemporary, though very forcibly illustrating the position and condition of the great temperance question in this and other county seats and places of importance."

"On Saturday evening, the day having been stormy and the going very bad, the audience was no larger than on the evening previous." * * * * A committee of nine volunteered (at the request of the G. L.) to visit during the day following in various parts of the community and invite all to turn out and attend the meeting on Sunday evening. At the close of the lecture, twelve names were given for the lodge, while all were singing from leaflets provided by the Grand Lodge. On Sunday, the professor attended the M. E. church and was invited to occupy the hour usually devoted to the Sunday school, which he used in organizing a Band of Hope with about sixty names. Mrs. Ford was chosen superintendent. During the afternoon the plan of visiting by committees as many places as possible, including the saloons, was carried out. Over one hundred were present at the lecture in the evening. After the singing of several songs from the leaflets, led by the organ, Mrs. Fenton presiding, the Prof. was introduced who, in the absence of the chaplain (Rev. T. B. Hopkins, preaching that night at Ophir) offered a fervent prayer to heaven, and joined in singing an enthusiastic song, following for over an hour with a lecture on temperance, taken from a business standpoint, which was full of truthful, conclusive and convincing arguments, at the close of which the singing, with Miss Daisy Rackliff presiding at the organ, was evidence that the true spirit of earnestness and hearty approval had entered even the organ." * * * "During the singing eight more names were given for the lodge."

HOME FOR ORPHANS

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

When you call on any of these places please say you saw their Ad or card in the Rescue.

PAUL REIGER.—Two thieves made an attempt to rob him last week. It appears they heard he was advertising in the RESCUE and getting a big demand and handling big money selling his lemon sugar etc. So they laid for him, but were not very successful after all.

ADVERTIZERS.—It should be remembered that no bilks can get an ad. in the RESCUE at any price. The recent legal decision that a newspaser can properly sell its editorial opinions as well as its advertising columns, dont cover or affect the RESCUE. None of its columns can be used for anything but the truth.

YUBA.—Bro. Covillaud reports the D. L. work going on bravely, and District lecturers are a grand success. Nineteen lodges and 850 members grown in 15 months from 10 lodges and 460 members.

HAWAII.—Bro. J. J. Jones of Hilo offers to act as general agent for the RESCUE on the Islands. Hope he may meet with success. Hilo Lodge holds on well and talks of trying to organize other lodges. There ot to be 30 or 40 on the Islands, before they get drowned in the advancing torrent of rum.

ARCATA.—Bro. Geo. W. Hopkins of North Star, Arcata, reports a pretty vigorous war upon Sunday saloonatics, which has already been noted in the RESCUE. The lodge and the M. E. Church appointed committees who prosecuted each case and secured convictions in both Arcata and Eureka, till the lawbreakers were forced to close at least till the decision of Supreme Court. The people are fortunate there in having two Justices of the Peace temperance men and the M. E. Church and lodge are in the entire sympathy in the war against the outlaw leag. And nine-tenths of public sentiment outside of church and Temperance society is in favor of enforcement of law. The lodge at Arcata has 33 members 20 of whom are full degree. Bro. Hopkins expects it to make a good report at next G. L. session.

BROTHER HAWVER writes that a very profitable and spirited meeting of District Lodge is expected at Auburn, and the lodge there has started a fund to erect a new hall and reading room attached.

BOUND VOLUMES.—Bro. C. J. Lyon, of Angels Camp, writes that volume 18 of the RESCUE makes a book of valuable reading which he prizes very much and Bro. J. C. Hawver of Auburn says it is worth four times the price asked for it.

SUBSCRIBERS and renewals this week; Coloma (Maggie McBeth) 5; Los Angeles (W. D. Gould) 4; Columbia 2. San Francisco 4; Diamond Springs 1; Oleta (Dr. Addington) 2; Volcano 1; Ceres Lodge 10; Farmersville 6 and Visalia 2 (W. C, King) ; Merced 3 and Plainsburg 1 (Mrs. Stevens); Mariposa (Mrs. Converse) 3; Oakland 1; Seattle 1; R. B. Crosling, Glenville 1; Salt Lake City 1. Prairie Lodge 3; Total 51.

Y. M. C. A.—At 309 J. Street, Sacramento, the Y. M. C. A. recently organized, have opened a Free Reading Room for the young men of the city, the stranger and the homeless to spend a leisure hour, surrounded by good associations and influences." This is a most commendable enterprise, much needed in that city; it should have not the empty good wishes alone, but the active help and substantial sympathy of all good citizens. The RESCUE will be found there and hopes to add its mite to the sum of good influences which it is desired may always be in full tide of success there.

OREGON.—The G. W. S., Bro. J. E. Houston, has removed to Eugene City. The RESCUE of Feb. 16 was sent (a package of 25) to every lodge but 4 or 5 in Oregon; those few and each lodge in Washington Ty. and B. C. were supplied with twenty copies each of the issue of March 2. Owing to the large number of advertisements in 16 Feb. number its reading matter was much less than usual. Perhaps it would be a good investment for every lodge in Oregon, W. T. and B. C. to take right along for a year a club of 10 to 25 copies of the RESCUE. No use to try to get prohibition without a temperance press.

TROUBLE IN THE HOUSE.—When you see two able-bodied, stout limbed expressmen, tugging and swearing as they try for about an hour to get a clumsy, threshing machine up your neighbors steps, and see the sorrowful countenance of the poor invalid woman who expects to wear her life out at such a sewing machine as that—you wonder why her family had not seen the Light Running Domestic advertised in the RESCUE by J. W. Evans, 29 Post St. S. F. You dont want an ox-team to move the Domestic to the other side of the room, nor do the people in the next street imagine there is a thunderstorm every time you hem a handkerchief. Never any domestic discord where the Domestic Sewing Machine keeps the house in trim.

THE Chronicle says, "the wine crop of France of 1881 amounted to 752,000,000 gallons. In 1880, it was only 653,000,000 gallons. This increase is due to the crops of the east and the centre, the south being still ravaged by the phylloxera. In the departments where this pest prevails the destruction of vines has increased from 15,000 acres in 1880, to 40,500 acres in 1881. The cider produce of last year was 259,000,000 gallons."

That cider of course, will go to make champagne, and with the beets, turnips, potatoes, molasses, rum, glucose and benzine will amply fill the place of the grapes destroyed and make precisely the same article of wine as the finest grapes.

The Watchword says that in Warsaw since the recent disturbances occurred, the authorities have ordered all drinking places closed at 5 P. M.; the punishment for disobedience being 25 lashes. It would be very easy to maintain a prohibitory law or a Sunday law with that penalty attached. The saloon keeper has no objection to see his customer flogged or jailed or put in the chaingang, but he would not like to figure there himself.

NEW DEPARTURE.—Brother King has just set up a lodge organized a year or so ago that had only met a few times and toppled over. Now it starts into life with a copy of the RESCUE taken in every family of the lodge. We shall see if this new departure is not followed by vastly better results. If 100 lodges are organized in a given time and find nothing in Good Templarly but a ritual, a regalia and a per capita tax, it is the most natural thing that fifty at least of them should collapse the first six months, unless a lecturer comes along to set them up temporarily end up again. But 100 lodges properly organized, instructed, led to feel an interest in the furtherance of the cause thruout the nation, put in corresponding and sympathetic relations with all the other lodges of the state and all the other temperance agencies in the world, ot not to die out one of them nor ot they even to trim down as they call it, to half their membership. Sometimes a feud political or otherwise, or a crafty, evil disposed Judas has broken up a lodge without other aids; but if the records could be had of all the lodges whose members furnished themselves with a temperance paper from the first, and kept the practice up, the percentage of dead lodges or deal limbs from them would be found exceedingly slim; and the little that may be, would be due to the entire depopulation of their localities. This is by no means guess work; it is the teaching of careful observation and experience; and it accords perfectly with what one would naturally expect.

RESPECT FOR MINISTERS.—The drunkard makers as a rule, profess a very contemptible estimate of preachers, and call them without end, fanatics, hypocrites and liars, etc. All they are after is money and they dont believe a word of what they preach." But occasionally the tune changes, and they almost worship the clergy. A Rev. Mr. Smith, or Wilson or Brown, D. D., whom nobody knows, writes to a paper somewhere, that he went down to Maine and found drunkenness and crime in all its glory there. Then the rummies say, "why he is a minister or he is a D. D. or a college professor and every word he says is Bible true of course."

The Bible and Christianity too are with them classed under the convenient bar-room term "bilk." But Noah in the use of wine was an infallible prophet; the Savior making wine, which they claim was poison, asserted an unquestionable Divinity; Paul was truly inspired of God when he advised Timothy to drink (as they put it) poison. Dr. Crosby an armed Goliah, defying the armies of the Lord, immediately becomes an anointed Messiah and religious leader of the hosts of rum. Rev. C. C. Burnett of Iowa is converted from the church by $20 a lecture for fifty nights and $5 a day for expenses to enter into the service of the devil. And all at once the brewers point to the sacredness of his office as a guarantee of the honesty of his arguments in favor of free rum.

If the tarnished second-hand sanctity of one apostate turn-coat priest, doubtful in its best days, has, in their estimate, virtue enough to cloak the sins of 500,000 utterly godless and satan-owned and satan-branded rum-sellers, what an overwhelming reverence they must hold in their hearts for the great balance of the clerical brigade that wont sell out their principles. It is really "too utter" when the brewers put on a pious streak of paint.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

VII.—ALCOHOL AND CLIMATIC EXTREMES.

Twenty-one years ago, except amongst the total abstainers themselves, it was believed that to meet the vicissitudes of cold and heat it was necessary that a certain amount of alcohol should be taken; and so our ships went out to the Arctic regions charged with spirits to "assist" the men, and our soldiers were sent out to India charged with spirit rations to give to the men. Look at the extreme absurdity of this practice. If the men that went due north had this alcohol to warm them, the men that went to tropical climes could not want it for this. Did they want it to cool them? What is the evidence? We have proved that under cold there is nothing so bad as this spirit, and that it is as it were death added to sleep, and when the temperature of the body is raised by extreme warmth, then there is nothing so bad as the tension produced in the blood by this light vapor of alcohol. We have shown thru science what is the effect of alcohol on heat and cold, and have shown that in both cases it must from the nature of its action be ruinous to health and life. That has had a good effect. We now know that those men who have been total abstainers have lived best, worked hardest, suffered least, and come home soundest. We know that in the tropics those men who have taken least have fought the hardest battles and made the best marches; and those who have taken none at all have been better off still. In tropical weather we have found that the mortal disease which kills so many, and which is called sunstroke—that the people thus stricken are not all persons in perfect health, but those who have prepared themselves for the effect of the sun direct upon them by the introduction into their system of this agent.

WINE TO NEW ORLEANS.

A PIONEER SHIPMENT OVER THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

The pioneer shipment of California wine over the Southern Pacific Railroad to New Orleans has been made by Messrs. Arpad Haraszthy & Co. of this city. A car load of assorted wines were dispatched by the firm named on the 2d inst. The car containing the shipment was profusely decorated, and had the following legend emblazoned on each side:

San Francisco greets New Orleans with a pioneer thru shipment of California wine.

A dispatch was received yesterday, stating that the car had passed thru El Paso, where it was noticed with demonstrations of approval. It is expected that this shipment will be soon followed by numerous others, as the inhabitants of New Orleans have already manifested a decided preference for California wines.—Chronicle.

It is presumed when this car load of prostituted fruit of the vine and other car loads of California poison shall have done their legitimate work in New Orleans and vicinity and when New Orleans shall send back the first car load of prostituted humanity as a result of our wine and brandy, the car will be also profusely decorated and the painted sepulchers on board will be greeted at El Paso by the same red nosed mob with demonstrations of approval. How readily the thristy loafers recognized and paid homage to their god.

THE CHRONICLE'S OPINION.

"One singular fact was revealed by the recent inquest on the railroad accident at Spuyten Duyvil. The conductor of the train testified that the air brakes had been tampered with and that some passenger must have pulled the bell cord. He said the cars were filled with politicians returning from Albany and that they were drinkin g and carousing and he had no control over them. This, of course, doesnt lesson the culpability of the railroad, but it puts the New York statesmen in a bad light, and shows that a little civil service reform scattered around among them would do a great deal of good. They would, at least, be retired to their native gin-mills, where their field of mischief would be limited to killing off their customers with bad whisky."

That is what the Chronicle thinks about rumsellers; it is to be hoped it will remember it whenever rumsellers are nominated for official or legislative employments in this state in future.

RESULTS OF THE FIRST DRINK.

A VOICE FROM THE INEBRIATE'S HOME.

At sixteen years of age I went out into the great business world. The first morning I left home, in the prime of youth and health, how kindly my mother looked at me as she kissed me, and as I went on my way with the good resolutions I had formed. I remember, too, the pride and pleasure I felt as I brot home my first-earned money! I had reason to be happy, for I had a happy Christian home, loving father, mother, brothers, sisters, and a good employer. During my business career I became acquainted with young men of my own age. I had noticed that at dinner they often took a glass of ale. Having an invitation from one of them to take a drink, I yielded, thinking it looked manly. It was only a glass of ale, but my first drink, and the first step toward disgrace and misery. Day after day I continued to indulge moderately, deceiving those around me. I could see no harm in it, as others did the same. Nor did I believe it would ever get the upper-hand of me, as it did in years after; but, as I look back to-day on a wasted life of sin and shame, I see the cause of it all—it was my first drink.

As I write this to-day I am looking out on an assembly of young men, who would be an honor to themselves, as well as to society were it not for this demon.

I have talked with each of them, and they say as I say, it was the first drink that brot them to what they are. A few days ago a gentleman left this Home who three years since stood among the first merchants of New York City. He was rich, and he had a loving family and a happy home. Now he is penniless, friendless and homeless—no one to care for him—a wanderer on the face of God's earth. What caused it? The first drink. A few days ago a merchant entered here greatly under the influence of drink. Three days later I stood by his death-bed. He had known no one since the day after his arrival here. During his delirium he tried to speak, but he could not. Never shall I forget the scene: a loving sister on her knees by his bedside, and a weeping mother, but he knew them not. His soul passed away to meet its Judge unprepared. What caused this? The first drink. To those of you who hear or read this, take warning! If you have commenced to drink, stop at once. It will save you from a life of sin and trouble. It will make you happy in this world; it will help to fit you for a better world above. Therefore, I say stop now, with God's help.

Ask the Savior to help you,
Comfort, strengthen, and keep you;
He is willing to aid you,
He will carry you through.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Ed. Rescue:—Not long ago, Rev. Mr. Woodworth spoke in the noon prayer meeting in Association Hall, of the inconsistency of some temperance papers, and particularly of one published in this city, in condemning all kinds of alcoholic beverages and yet commending an alcoholic concoction sold under the name of "Vinegar Bitters." After the meeting was over, I asked if he referred to the Rescue. He said he did, and that the bitters he referred to were the Vinegar Bitters of which Dr. Mc Donald was or had been the proprietor; and he supposed this inconsistency of the Rescue was indulged in deference to the Doctor, who was an earnest advocate of temperance and liberal with his money. I expressed my great surprise at hearing this, and, being acquainted with the Doctor, asked him about it. He said it was not the intention to have any alcoholic element in the Bitters. None was put in, but a very little was generated, probably, by fermentation. It was not a beverage, however, and could not possibly be used as such by any one; but only as a medicine, on account of the drugs with which it was compounded; and the amount of alcohol that could be taken in the largest dose, was infinitesimal. He asked me, however, not to take his word for it, but get a bottle and test it myself. I was too busy to do so at once, but having since that tested the article thoroly, I am satisfied that Dr. Mc Donald was correct in his statements—that these Bitters cannot be used by any one as a beverage, and that the truly minute portion of alcohol generated in the mixture by fermentation, cannot be injurious even in the largest possible dose. If Mr. Woodworth will produce a single man who was ever intoxicated to any degree by the use of these Bitters, I will acknowledge myself mistaken. Hsving no interest in the matter except to establish the truth, I hope you will publish this. J. L. H.

San Francisco, Feb. 21st.

The Rescue made an explanation similar to this some time ago. There is not money enough yet in this state to "purchase" an opinion in the Rescue favorable to any kind of alcoholic bitters, or to gloss over any inconsistency in the conduct of a worker or advocate of temperance. And if this paper ever exhibits any toadyism to wealth or position or power of men, if it ever excuses a wrong, or if it fears or hesitates to tell the whole truth, and treat with impartial justice friend and foe, let it be pointed out.

The Bitters referred to were by no means commended in the Rescue; it was merely stated that no alcohol had been put in them; they were not made to sell for the alcohol attraction and no one would or could drink them for the alcoholic taste or effect which it would be impossible to discover in them.

CHURCH BURNING.

It wakens people up to hear that the Leag of Fiendom have burned up a Baptist church because a minister dared to speak the honest noonday truth in its pulpit, about the business of the army of thugs who subsist by the moral ruin, the robbery and the cool, deliberate murder of their fellow citizens, men, women and children indiscriminately. But it is no new thing. When men began 50 years ago to preach moral suasion publicly, and try to save a few perishing drunkards from impending death, the rumsellers burned their houses and their barns and their cattle and horses, and they hired their poor, dehumanized slaves with more rum to waylay and club and kill the men who tried to save their lives.

They ceased from this later for fear of bringing public vengeance upon themselves, till prohibitory laws were attempted, when barn and house burning and personal clubbings and murders were again resorted to away down in Maine, and have been practiced in all other states where an attempt to protect the citizen from his slayer has been made.

People are shocked at this church burning in San Jose and the barn and cattle and hay burning recently in Sheridan. But they ought not to be surprised. These are minor offences. It is much less sinful to burn a Baptist church than to burn and destroy a Baptist man or to decoy a Baptist boy or girl to a life of crime and shame and a death of despair; or to burn up a Catholic or poison a Methodist. Surely everybody knows that the leag of mankillers have done these things every day for twenty-five or thirty years in San Jose as well as in other like populations everywhere.

Is it at all extravagant to suppose that on an average a man or a boy or a girl is ruined and debauched for every day in the year there? Hundreds of young boys and girls and men have started on the road to ruin thru the snares and poisoned surroundings and fetid atmosphere of the swarming nests of moral leprosy in San Jose and elsewhere, tho now they indicate little or no outward positive sign of it, and may not for years to come; but they have been bitten by the serpent and their doom is certain as the sunrise—unless the grogshop is extinguished. If that is too many, say one a week, or if it were one a month or one a year, either one would be infinitely worse than burning a $10,000 church. Money will put up a better church, but it can never restore a burnt up man, a burnt up soul; it cannot restore to the widow her murdered husband or her slautered boy. It is a sad thing that the burning of this church should create a greater sensation than the burning of a man and a brother. But the toleration of this sum and substance of all villainy and infamy, the grogshop, has demoralized us all till we have come to value $10,000 more than as many human souls.

The civil war is by no means ended in this country; the scene at Appomattox was the close of the first act only. To pay off the debt incurred, we are receiving 70 or 80 millions a year from the liquor sellers for permission to carry on a relentless war against every good interest, and to kill every year about 60,000 of our citizens whom our government is sworn to protect. According to the Minn. Review it will cost the nation 1,620,000 human sacrifices on the altar of rum to pay this debt. And while this slauter of men, women and children is going on, the nation is burdened by a rum tax of worse than 1,000 millions a year exclusive of being a general hospital for the wrecks, paupers, criminals, maniacs, murderers which are every day turned out upon the public by the infernal mills of crime and vice.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

Y. M. C. A.

The officers of the Y. M. C. A. issue a circular which proposes to double its membership. The following is the concluding part of it clipped from the Pacific Methodist:

"Our sustaining membership fee of $5. is the smallest of any Association in the country, considering the numerous benefits offered. The Building is entirely free of debt, and is to be kept so ever. And with a large membership, work of the institution can be successfully carried on without being obliged to tax our many friends, who have so liberally assisted in canceling the debt. The membership fee is so very small that it is within the reach of all classes; and no dout you have many friends who would be glad to join if the matter was brought before them. A. B. Forbes, President.

H. J. McCoy, General Secretary.

P. S.—Ladies are eligible to membership and entitled to all the privileges of the gentlemen, except voting and holding office. We now have eleven hundred members."

It is not a lack of appreciation of the good influences of the Y. M. C. A. institution nor of the best wishes for its fullest success that prompts a criticism of the insult to women in that P. S. It is surely a relic of barbarism and heathenism that should find no place in a modern Y. M. C. A., to have a rule which degrades its lady members with a badge of inferiority and serfdom.

Why the majority of the members of our churches and that majority the most devoted, religious, consistent, earnest and virtuous section, should be debarred from voting is a mystery which no one, not an educated artist in theological sophistry, can solve. Why that same section of pure God-fearing innocent members of a Y. M. C. A. especially the large portion of them who have loved and served God from their childhood up, who have never swerved from their allegiance, who may first, last and always be depended on to render the most arduous and important unpaid, unrewarded, unthanked services and to make the most ready sacrifices for the welfare of the Association and for every good interest of humanity,———why they should be ticketed with a badge of inferiority, in intellect and conscience, to a male member who may have been once a drunkard or a gambler or a convicted criminal, is a problem of theology exceedingly deep for the uninitiated or the skeptical in matters of heathen traditional custom.

All privileges except voting and holding office ! ! ! Exactly the same privileges accorded to our eminent, noble Christian women that are conceded to the Chinamen and Indians by the populace of this state. How magnanimous! Ladies can have the exalted privilege of doing any amount of work in canvassing for members, raising money, beautifying and adorning the rooms, etc.; but when a matter of policy is in question, when something is to be decided as to the welfare of the institution, woman must cover her head, sit in the ashes, and bow in humble silence to the superior knowledge and dignity of the drinking and smoking and swearing sex, who possess the divine right of owning and governing the female chattels who can never know enough to vote intelligently.

It may be possible that some rational excuse, never yet presented, may exist for this mental incapacity, this intellectual inferiority that continues to be branded upon women. But it is suspected that every argument in that direction has grown out of heathenism, barbarism, superstition, slavery, tyranny and ignorance; not a whit from Christianity. It has been the mission of the latter just in proportion to its divorcement and divergence from heathenism, to elevate woman to perfect equality.

Burning Hindoo women on the funeral pile of their husbands, selling them for money, buying 100 wives, harnessing women to the plow, yoking them in a dog team as in Belgium to-day, and ticketing ladies now in San Francisco "not competent to vote," it is fair to presume have all a common origin—and that outside of the Christian text-books.

It is not inconsistent with a wish that the 1,100 present membership may be increased to 100,000, to include another, that before the next woman consents to join the Y. M. C. A. that most unreasonable and unworthy voting clause should be expunged and consigned with fitting ceremony to the ash heap.

WARM RECEPTION.

Jan. 17, 1882, Miss Frances E. Willard visited the city of Jackson, Miss. Here she gave, in Representative Hall, one of her forcible, eloquent addresses. At its close, the following resolutions, offered by Judges Chrisman and Watson, two of the leading jurists of the state, were unanimously adopted by the large audience present:

Resolved, That this assemblage of the citizens of this Commonwealth, have listened with profound gratification to the eloquent address of Miss Frances Willard on the theme of Temperance, and beg to tender to her our grateful thanks for the rare and inspiring tribute to the momentous subject.

Resolved, That we cheerfully commend her to the kindly sympathies and cordial hospitality of our fellow citizens of the South, wherever her duties may direct her steps and we bid her a hearty God speed in her noble mission.

This is but one of the many instances showing with what warmth and cordiality Miss Willard has been received throughout the Southern States. At Oxford, Miss., she was entertained royally at the home of Gen. Alex. Stewart, Chancellor of the State University, whose wife is the president of the Mississippi W. C. T. U., and of the Oxford local Union.

Miss Willard is accompanied by a most efficient assistant in her secretary, Miss Anna Gordon, who establishes juvenile and young people's Unions at various points.

AMITY, OR., Feb. 20, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—The Oregon State Temperance Alliance closed a very pleasant and profitable session Feb. 17. I presume the Sec. will send you full account of the proceedings. We have just got a Band of Hope under way. Present membership 21. We confidently expect its membership to run up to 50 shortly. Strange as it may seem some parents forbade their children to join. Independence has a flourishing Band; ours is No. 5.

MRS. S. A. MCKUNE.

STRAWS.—Some months ago, hand-bills entitled, "The Saloon-keeper's Prayer," containing a mixture of coarse advertisement of a notorious den in this city, with blasphemous petitions and imprecations addressed to Almighty God, against the "foul-mouthed clergy of San Jose," were scattered by hundreds and perhaps by thousands, in the door-yards of the decent people of this city. Last Saturday night a stranger whispered to the writer, during the roar of the flames that were consuming the Baptist church, " 'The Saloon keeper's Prayer' is probably being answered." The next day a Messenger reporter, while lunching in one of the restaurants of the city, was told by the waiter, of a man who had in the waiter's presence, rejoiced and exulted over the sweeping result of Saturday night's fire, declaring it to be preferable in his esteem, to the burning of saloons.—San Jose Messenger.

That is the kind of animals which the saloon keepers and brewers and whisky and wine makers are manufacturing out of the young American; out of material that if not debauched and prostituted by the infamous dens of vice which prey upon human lives, would grow up into vigorous, virtuous manhood and excellent citizenship.

Our public schools, and Sunday-schools and temperance societies and virtuous home influences produce our great and good men who achieve honorable distinction in the pulpit and press, in the learned professions and in the political field from the president's chair to the other end.

Our grogshops and breweries and wineries are another set of schools which educate and train Guiteaus and Booths and hosts upon hosts of hyena and tiger men and women; who raise out of our young men and boys an army of men who murder their own wives, children, brothers, neighbors and who devote their lives to robbery, crime and vice. Burners of churches and barns and dwellings. But we cannot have grogshops without all this fruit. Guiteau and Booth did only what other men are doing every day, but because they happened to kill presidents in place of farmers or mechanics, their crimes were more conspicuous.

The men who are boldest in crime had they not been led astray might have been foremost in good deeds and useful citizens in aiding the progress and welfare of the community. How terrible is the crime of making men criminals by wholesale. But that is the sole business that is done by the bar-room.

The Mrs. Hayes Picture is being worked off as fast as possible, but only 12 copies can be made in one day. Those who have been waiting for its appearance need not be alarmed; it will come and that picture is going to stay. No occupant of the White House has more deserved the reverence and honor and love of the American people than Mrs. Hayes. That beautiful portrait ot to adorn every lodge room and temperance hall and friends of temperance should have it as a household treasure. Send $5 to Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, New York City.

The Signal of Chicago is a most creditable specimen of a journal edited and managed by a talented christian woman. See ad. in another column. When a lady worker of the Cal. W. C. T. U. expects to do effective service in the cause and dont take the Signal, or two or three temperance journals, one cannot help lamenting that she goes to her work comparatively unarmed and at a manifest disadvantage. The temperance cause would soon be on the way down hill again but for the temperance press.

EVIDENTLY the liquor dealers feel their cause is in doubtful hands in the committee on The Alcoholic Liquor Traffic, in the House of Representatives. Five of the committee are from prohibition States, and two of the remaining four members, favor prohibitory measures, leaving but two the traffic can count upon.

With this minority they hope to accomplish nothing, and bewail the lack of foresight on the part of friends of personal liberty, in not voting the right ticket.

The State Independent, liquor organ for Iowa, appears again, after a suspension of three months. The recent stirring events in the temperance ranks have arroused its editor to another effort to sustain it for defense of "personal liberty" during the campaign. Want of support caused its suspension. Can it be those in the ranks of the opposition feel the struggle is a useless one, and are indisposed to put into the canvass any more funds? We await the response to the appeal for support in this number of the Independent for answer.—Signal.

"THE practical difference between the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, an old established Society, with three thousand local auxiliaries, and the Woman's Evangelical Temperance Union, a new society, as yet without auxiliaries, is the difference between "State Rights"—for which the old society contends—and the centralizing policy, which rules out certain lines of work, even though some States prefer to include them among their varied methods."

IT TAKES a long, long time for the temperance party in Ohio to learn that morals do not figure very high in politics. When a man gets through electing his party ticket, brethren, he is willing to sit down and talk temperance and religion with you, but it's no use to bother him with a pledge or prayer-book on his way to the polls.—Burlington Hawkeye.

LODGE FURNITURE.

In addition to the above, I will attend to orders for Impression Seals, Blank Books, Special Printing, Regalia or Lodge Furniture. This will be done as an accommodation to Lodges and not as a source of profit either to the Grand Lodge or myself; hence all orders filled will be sent per express by the dealers, with instructions to "collect on delivery," unless the money accompanies the order. Address—

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, G. W. S.,
Sacramento, California.

THE DIME COLLECTION.—The following explains.

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 25, 1882

DEAR BRO. KATZENSTEIN.—Yours of 16, received with check of $385,40 I send our receipt. Will pay the W. N. C. T. U. their share and will attend to the donation of literature. Yours Truly

J. N. STEARNS, Pub. Agt. N. T. S. P. H.

If there are any additional contributions to be made to the Thanksgiving dime collection fund the amount should be immediately forwarded to the G. W. S.

During the past week the following additional Lodges have signified their desire to unite in forwarding the amount of literature due them in return to the R. W. G. L. Literature Committee for distribution among the freed men of the South etc. Samaritan No. 177; Morning Star No. 266; Carbondale No. 288; Paskenta No, 309; Oakdale No. 326. The literature thus contributed aggregates $111,25 in value. A few lodges remain yet to be heard from.

RETURNS RECEIVED.—During the past week the following Lodges have filed Grand Lodge returns with the G. W. S. and their receipt is acknowledged: Nos. 97. 104, 121, 158, 193, 227, 231, 253, 264, 267, 281, 294, 343, 369, 379, 394, 398, and 436.

NEW LODGES.—The following new Lodges are reported this week, making a total of 49 organized since the session of last Grand Lodge. Elk Horn Lodge, organized March 1st at Butte Mountain Precinct, Tehama County, with 26 charter members by Col. C. N. Goulding Grand Lecturer. Night of meeting Wednesday. Post office address, Olimpo Colusa Co. L. D. Bro. John Monroe. Browns Valley Lodge organized March 2d at Browns Valley Yuba County with 27 charter members by Bro. Charles J. Covilland, State Deputy. Night of meet-Saturday. Post office address, Browns Valley, Yuba Co. L. D. Bro. James Robinson.

HOME SCHOOL DESKS.—The third school room of the new school house at the Good Templars Home for Orphans has been fitted up with patent school desks and seats costing $7 50 per desk. The following have contributed the price of a desk each and their names will be engraved upon silver plates, and placed upon each desk viz: A. M. Addington, Henry F. Band, A. J. Cooke, Wm. Crowhurst, F. J. Culver, Chrysopolis Lodge, No. 210, C. C. Dunn, El Monte Lodge, No. 258, Mrs. A. W. Goulson, B. H. Hoag, Geo. E. Isaacs, E. H. Knight, Jas. W. Monroe, R. H. McDonald, M. D. Merrick, J. T. Marr, G. W. Oberholzer, Ocean Queen Lodge, No. 190, Pescadero Band of Hope, Phœnix Lodge, No. 137, Maud F. Russel, Mrs. M. T. Shafer, Mrs. E. P. Stevens, W. H. Tubb, Two Rock Lodge, No. 378, West Berkley Lodge, No. 206, White Lily Band of Hope, Sisters of Enterprise Lodge No. 356. In addition the C. C Colony Lodge, No. 388, has contributed the price of two seats $15, and Miss Minnie Wright the price of four seats $30. The latter contributions will be applied to the purchase of three teachers desks, costing $15 or more each, to be placed in each of the school rooms at present occupied and these will each bear a larger plate than the other desks, inscribed respectively: C. C. Colony Lodge, No. 388, Minnie Wight and "Garfield." Thus all the school rooms in present use have been handsomely fitted up without expense to the Home, but as the result of the private contributions from those who love the children and admire the Good Templars Home for Orphans. One school room remains unused. Whenever the time comes to furnish it, there are numbers who stand ready to furnish the wherewith to do so as was done in the case of the other rooms.

A FOOL OR A KNAVE.—An emissary of Joseph Malins and the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of the World (?)—Great Britain, has been writing to some of our colored brethren about matters he knew not of, but of which he could have easily informed himself. He writes to me, "It is stated in the Call that Cornelian Lodge (at Marysville) is the third lodge in the state exclusively of colored people. This I deny as a bare-faced lie! But then it is only like the white Good Templars." Of course this is classic language, and argumentative withal. But for the benefit of the doughty knight—of the razor?—and whom else it may concern, it may be repeated that there are at the present time three lodges of colored Good Templars in this state, viz: Rising Star Lodge, at Chico, organized by Wm. Crowhurst, Grand Lecturer; Ivy Lodge, at Red Bluff, organized by Mrs. M. J. Mayhew, P. G. W. V. T., and Cornelia Lodge, at Marysville, organized by Rev. Peter Powers, State Deputy. All are in a thriving condition and working harmoniously and meeting with the fullest co-operation of their white brethren. The same individual in another letter to another party states that "the colored people are not permitted to visit white lodges," that they are given a "separate and different password," etc., etc. A complete answer to this is a quotation from the speech of Bro. Peter Powers, reported in the journal of proceedings of the last session of the G. L., p. 109–110, wherein Bro. Powers, himself a very dark skinned gentleman and a representative of his race, is reported as saying: "There are two other lodges in the town of Chico, and I would say to-night, we have never had a single meeting since we have been organized there, without there being present nearly as many white brethren and sisters as of our own race, and we are received in their lodges just as they are received in ours. (Applause.) If one of you were in Chico to-night, when the lodge is at work, in all probability you would not know whether it was a white or colored lodge—not from the looks of the people in it. They all meet there on Thursday night in one hall, and Friday night in another, and on Saturday night in still another," etc. There is no discrimination in the Order, on account of race, color, politics, sect, sex, or creed. The Order is open to all who desire to labor for the removal of the curse of intemperance from our midst. And what our enemies hope to gain by circulating such false and scandalous statements, seeking to divide a united and happy people who work together under the broad white banner of the I. O. G. T. is hard to understand. The question of exclusiveness has not been raised in this jurisdiction, and the Good Templars of California have never seen fit to denounce or abuse the seceders from the Order. It has simply let them alone and it demands the same in return, but will not tolerate the interference nor lying statements of those who should, but for their own act, be a part and parcel of the original and true Order of Good Templars, and enjoy its great privileges and beneficence.

PERSONALS.—The Grand Lodge office was favored during the week with calls from Bro. Herbert Folger, of Valley Lodge No. 293 San Francisco, Bro. Folger visited the office for the purpose of examining the manner of keeping records and statistics, with a view of applying the same to the work of the California State Sunday School Association of which he is the very efficient Statistical Secretary..... Bro. J. W. Sibole of Mt Echo Lodge No. 245, Amador county, and his son Bro. M. Sibole also called and report their little lodge as gallantly holding the fort with a good hope for ultimate success.

GLEANINGS.—Oakdale Lodge of Stanislaus Co. according to the L. D. Bro. Byron Seeber has increased 31 members since reporting. A free reading room has just been opened under the management of Bro. and Sister F. A. Sawyer.....El Monte Lodge of Los Angeles Co. is moving and will soon have a hall of its own. The L. D., Bro. M. F. Quinn reports the lodge as prosperous and speaks in highest praise of the efforts of Bros. Gould and Webb on the occasion of the open meeting lately held there under the auspices of the District Lodge .....Fairview Lodge of Turlock, Stanislaus Co. is now in a flourishing condition numbering its largest membership seventy, as reported by G. W. M., Bro. P. R. McCabe.....North Butte Lodge Sutter Co. has awakened and is enjoying a "boom." Sister Louisa J. Graves reports three initiations at one meeting and five promised for the next. She adds "We miss Bro. H. S. Graves," and there is no doubt Bro. Graves misses North Butte Lodge. May the two be soon reunited.....Donner Lake Lodge of Truckee, according to D. L., Bro. Wm. Douglass is initiating from 4 to 6 candidates at each meeting, three have been taken from the gutter so to speak and are standing by their pledge nobly.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:
Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

MRS. E. P. STEVENS.

Plainsburg is one lodge terribly in earnest, saloons closed on Sunday. Several who have been squandering the money which ought to have gone to their families, have been restored thru the Good Templars who are here a generous, noble band of workers. As the result of meetings, initiated twelve to the lodge, D. Dep'y, Bro. Isaacs, presiding.

At Snelling a Spartan band of workers thru much tribulation have kept the lodge up until now it has become a power. Four women voted not to surrender charter when all the men wanted to haul down the temperance flag. As the result those women have gained their sons to Good Templary and their husbands also. Grand women! how much better to work for such a result, than to be sitting like the figure on our coin, forever looking backward. "Up and doing" oh daughters of our land, and the liquor traffic is doomed.

Merced Falls, one of Bro. Hughes' lodges has gained the hearts and membership of nearly all the people. Brother and Sister Nelson had prepared a dinner for fifty expected guests from Hornitos Lodge, in Mariposa county, but the rain came and the Hornitos members did not. Still, despite wind and weather, a good meeting and a large delegation from Merced Falls swelled the audience at the evening meeting at Snelling.

Dist. Deputy Isaacs, the war-horse of Merced county, rendered thruout the trip good and efficient service, but good-by was said on returning to Merced. Central Point Lodge sent the M. E. pastor, Bro. Hedgepeth, to Merced, and after thirty miles of pleasant and instructive talk, Central Point was reached. Here a packed audience awaited the lecture. The lodge has been visited only three times in as many years—away off here, west side of the San Joaquin river, thirty miles from anywhere, an earnest lodge of over sixty members exhibit the same vim and purpose of the workers in Lompoc, and that is saying everything. No man will get the vote of Central Point men unless he is pledged to sustain temperance legislation. Well may the Leagues of Freedom tremble before the advancing tide of Good Tempary. An organization where the liquor traffic can never come; so thoroly organized that leagues of Freedom cannot destroy; no doubt they nash their teeth, as they slink behind their decayed and rotten old fort of lager beer breweries and whisky distilleries; no doubt they shout to their demoralized, drunken army, "Hold the Fort" against the advancing ranks of eighteen thousand Good Templars, who, clear-eyed and determinedly sober, march onward and upward, climbing the mountain of prejudice, swerving never, tho guns of ridicule are leveled on all sides by King Bibbler's army, climbing steadily while the advance guard of wine bibbers thickly shout, "Cant do it; never reach the top"; and the home guard of tipplers sneeringly cry, women soldiers, "How utterly, utterly out of place."

Marching on, working on, while some Christian professors cry out, have nothing to do with those moral armies; steadily climbing, ever recruiting from the enemy's ranks, toiling on while our brave captains thunder thru the RESCUE cannon of hot shell logic on the enemy's ranks. Bravely marching on, singing, "Falter who must, follow who dare." Onward and upward, the victory will come. Only never falter till the loftiest peak and victory shall be gained; only never falter and the enemy of our happiness, of Christianity and of our freedom shall be vanquished.

Central City, Mar. 1, 1882.

C. N. GOULDING.

I wrote you last from Riceville on the 11th of February, and will now report progress up to date, from Riceville I drove over to Henleyville, lectured there on the 11th and 12th, found the lodge prospering, and obtained a few additional names for membership. Sunday 12th, drove over to Paskenta in a snow storm that prevented and effectually broke up our meetings, and on Monday returned to Red Bluff. The morning of the 14th concluded to report at "headquarters," and as I had contracted a severe cold, it was a matter of necessity, rather than choice. Passing thru Sacramento, called on our G. W. Secretary and found him as usual, busy; but as he is one of the few that visitors do not disconcert, managed to say a few words. Wednesday the 15th called on G. W. C. Templar, who, observing that I was able to walk, at once planned out another route. However, I obtained a few days rest and on the 22d, returned here (Red Bluff) lectured on the 23rd, but a storm prevented a large attendance. 24th I should have been in Riceville, but the creeks were "booming" (my early education was neglected for I cannot swim) and I waited for the waters to recede. 25th drove out to Paskenta, 32 miles, the lodge met at what is known as Schults school house, four miles from Paskenta; at an early hour the building was uncomfortably full; gave them a talk and obtained five names for membership; lodge called immediately after the close of the lecture; dispensation obtained and they were soon enrolled as members of our order. Sunday 26th, lectured in Paskenta and was fortunate in obtaining eight additional names for membership. This lodge is a power, and its influence is being felt in that part of the county. Paskenta has long enjoyed the reputation of being the worst place in Tehama County; but justice compels me to say that the facts do not warrant any such assertion; it is the only place in the county where the Sunday law is strictly enforced and observed.

27th, drove over to Elder Creek, 12 miles along the foot hills. Bro. I. R. Whitlock accompanied me. We enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Goodrich and wife. 7½ P. M., addressed an audience that completely filled their new church, and endeavored to organize a lodge. Soon discovered it could not be done, and that Nevada Camp, half way between Paskenta and Elder Creek, was the point where a new lodge could survive, if survive at all; local causes, not necessary to mention here, compelling the change. Up early on the 28th, returned to Paskenta, then on to Houghtons. Was fortunate enough to induce Bro. Frank Mayfield to accompany me. We arrived early, lit up the school house, made the fire, and waited for the people. They came; on foot, on horseback, in wagons, and conveyances of every kind; had a good meeting; obtained a few names for membership, and arranged for a meeting March 1st, at Elk Horn school house, at the foot of the "Buttes." One hundred and fifty present; organized a lodge with 26 charter members, —Jas. Monroe Lodge Deputy.

2nd, drove 35 miles to Reeds Creek; school house crowded, lodge in good condition, five new names enrolled on the books. 3rd, lectured here (Red Bluff), in the Presbyterian Church; large audience, music, recitations, etc., etc. Adjourned to the lodge room, initiated nine members, concluding with a banquet provided by the ladies.

I go from here to Riceville on the 4th and on Sunday 5th commence my labors at Chico (Butte Co.) the result of the labors performed in Tehama Co. may be briefly stated; 22 lectures delivered, and 75 additions to our order (including one new lodge.) Where all have been so kind it would be hard to select any particular one for special mention, to the members of our order, the press and clergy belongs the honor, I have carried out the program as arranged, and done what under the circumstances I deemed for the interest of the order, without their assistance my labors would have been fruitless. To each and all I return thanks, trusting that I may have the privilege of meeting the people of Tehama county again, confident that in the mean while the banner will be held aloft and our numbers will be increased.

LOS ANGELES, March 7, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—I am glad to report that we have been blessed with sufficient rain to insure an abundant harvest.

Everything is flourishing including our cause. Our people are waking up to the fact that the enemy is crafty and powerful, and to resist such a foe successfully requires our mightiest effort. They are beginning to realize the fact that our mightiest effort is in making the RESCUE a Tower of Strength by giving it the largest subscription list of any paper in California. Nothing would help our cause more than the mere fact of the RESCUE having the largest circulation of any paper in the State. But I defy any person to be a constant reader of this paper and not adopt its principles. In addition to the RESCUE such family papers as the Weekly Mirror of Los Angeles should be found in every family. I take a number of papers but the two I most highly prize are the Weekly Mirror and the RESCUE. I would like to propound a question to the thotful people of our county.—Can a nation prosper that derives its support from the sale of an agent that is lowering the mental, moral and physical standard of her citizens? No one, I hope, is so ignorant as to deny that drunkenness is the most degrading form of human slavery. This nation should bow its head in shame to accept the wages of sin from her deluded sons and daughters; upon the same theory a mother might send her child to the brothel and defend her crime by saying she received a portion of her earning with which to supply her table with bread. I repeat no one is so ignorant as to deny that intemperance is manufacturing criminals for our prisons, maniacs for our asylums and murderers for the gallows to say nothing about the blighted firesides where misery sits with folded hands and sunken eyes. But hush, if man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn he pays our Government for a license for the privilege with coin upon which is written "In God We Trust." But it is elsewhere written—"Vengance is mine and I will repay, saith the Lord." How true the words of Madame Rowland as she was being led to the block, "Oh Liberty! what crimes are committed in thy name." The Leags of Freedom are but the advanced guards of a system if allowed to live. The historian may come forward and gather his materials for the History of the Decline and Fall of the American Republic. When some of our people impressed with the magnitude and power of rum for evil, attempt to educate the public mind to a just appreciation of this deplorable habit, they are called fanatics; when our mothers see their children being wrecked body and soul upon the waves of intemperance would cry with weeping voice, "save my boy," they are told by the rum-sellers you are interfering with our rights. OBSERVER.

(Concluded next week.)

CONSIGNERS of produce, poultry, etc., to this city, will find a faithful attention paid to their interest by the well known and highly appreciated firm of Rouse and Laws. Readers of the RESCUE may depend every time on the advertisers in it. And temperance men should not forget to show a preference in their dealings with their own class of people. See advertisement in this paper.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

THE CHINCHA ISLANDS.

NUMBER SEVEN.

Last week the custom of bribery in Peru was alluded to and its results, not to make the reader familiar with dishonest transactions, but to show them that EVERY KIND OF DISHONESTY IS TOO EXPENSIVE IN THE END, for any but fools to practice.

Going to Spain and Portugal and their colonies, and to the countries that used to be colonies of those countries, seafaring men of many years ago, before California and Australia were much known, expected to have to pay a little bribe for this and a little bribe for that, or we should always get into trouble with the "Dagos."

We all came to understand that there was some peculiar taint or quality in the Spanish blood, or some peculiar ailment in the palm of the Spanish hand, which had an affinity for a little bribe; which a little bribe made to feel good; we had in so many instances observed this, that if we were mistaken, the fault was in the diagnosis as the doctors say, and not in the inference. The opinion that sailors used to have on that question is given here for what it may be worth only.

Of course when astute Americans, who firmly believed this thing, came to deal with Peruvians, in some cases the thot which came first to hand was, how and where shall I place a bribe where it will do the most good. No section of the great Latin family were more open to proposals in this line than the Peruvians. But it is only fair to say, that if some of the little $5 and $10 and up to $20 bribes which were necessary (!!!) there in the business of a ship, were the result of native talent, the big bonanza bribes and frauds were all the invention of the more artistic rascality and educated thievery of the foreigners, who went to Callao and the Chincha Islands to protect their innocent countrymen from the wiles of the devouring natives. For the honor of first place in fertility and boldness of conception in the organization of schemes of fraud, America and Ireland might contend; the bets, if any, would probably favor the former; then Germany, England and France supplied their quota of inventive wickedness, which always recoiled in the end in tenfold damages to their countrymen—if not a hundred fold.

Last week you read of bribery with a view of saving ships the extra expense of calking in Callao. After the discovery then made, that source of profit was cut off. But while the system was in operation it was found that still a great number of vessels were lost and put in somewhere leaky and damaged. So the government which thus lost many a cargo worth $50,000 to $100,000, made and enforced a decree which was very necessary and proper for old and shaky ships, but was very unjust to an able, strong, new, first class vessel.

Thus every vessel must load just alike—good and bad, old and new. Every vessel had to leave a clear side amidship (out of water) of 3 inches for every foot of her depth of hold. Now to explain the injustice of this: one ship of the very greatest strength and excellence was new or one or two years old and was ranked in the very highest class for, say, 13 years. Another had been on that same class for 12 years. A third was 17 years old; had been repaired and put upon the class next to the highest; yet all these three vessels were compelled by law to have the same feet of side above the water when loaded, if they had the same depth of hold; one being A. 1. for 12 years to come and another only for one more year.

But either the Peruvian Surveyors, who had been entirely honest in the first great bribery enterprise, had now learned a lesson, or the foreign artists in mercantile elasticity were equal to the occasion. A few ships of the very best class, whose captains were old stagers of good report, were permitted to stretch the law; and to place higher up the copper marks which the Surveyors nailed with imposing ceremony on the sides or ends of the ship to mark her laden water line.

It became apparent, however, before long that business could be done here too. Some ships were going away as deep as if there had never been any law regulating the matter. And soon it came to be understood that if any captain desired to load deeper than the official mark, he could do so by paying $10 for every inch so covered up.

There was no such thing as any direct intercourse between Surveyor and captain, but the latter found in his port agent's account an item of "cash $100 or $130" as the case might be, when he settled his accounts. The party referred to last week, who had friends among the surveyors and natives generally and who always treated the latter kindly and pleasantly and with scrupulous courtesy, was told to go and do at the islands just what he thot best as to loading deep; but the next voyage tho the chief surveyor instructed him to put up the marks he fixed, ten or twelve inches higher, and dwelt upon the fact that he had a peculiar pleasure in doing a voluntary and entirely gratuitous service for a valued friend, there was "cash $100" in the agents bill. When this item was challenged, the agent declared it had been called for and paid to the surveyor and had been previously arranged by him in the ships interest. When the ship returned laden to Callao for her clearance, the surveyors went on board, measured the side with great pomp, and the chief winked at the captain as he slyly and deftly slipped the string about 15 or more inches thru his fingers during the measurement of it and declared to the others that the ship had 2 or 3 inches to spare. He again explained privately that he was glad to have a chance of serving a friend, etc., and said it was entirely a complimentary service. And to this day no one knows but the agent and surveyor, whether the latter ever got a cent of the $100; while there is no doubt that the foreign agents put up the job and got the half if not the lion's share of all these spoils.

By and by the Chincha islands were entirely stripped and the other deposits were opened at the Lobos and other islands to the northwest and southeast of Callao; there was always good safe ancorage at the Chinchas; in some others not so; in some places there was much detention. So it became a custom to bribe somebody with $1,000 to $1,800 or more to obtain the privilege of being sent to the safest and cheapest and quickest place to load. Beside this the old bonanza of selling the privilege of loading a foot or so deeper at $10 an inch, was continued to the last. People paid their money and were glad to get the privilege, but they cursed the Peruvian officials, the Peruvian people and the government and the French and German agents of the guano monopolies in Europe. But after many thousand of dollars had been thus expended on these insatiable "foreigners," some two or three shipmasters tried going to head-quarters themselves, and got the same privilege for nothing, even after having been negotiating for days with a go-between of whom head-quarters had never heard.

This made a blowup and our dear countrymen, the protectors of our interests against the rapacious, unscrupulous, corrupt Peruvians, were discovered as the authors of this new bonanza steal, but they coolly declared that the parties who bot the privilege had got value received for their money. Thus altho a very few individuals at the start, thot they were playing it very smart to get a little advantage from a bribe, they found afterwards they had established a system which came back upon them with a tremendous bill of costs for them to foot, in after years. And yet after the millions of lessons that have been burned into men, they are everywhere and every day inventing new patent rattraps of meanness and villainy to recoil upon themselves and make themselves poor and miserable.

PRIVATE SHUTES

At one time when a good many ships were long detained at the Chinchas, an American genius, named Tom Goin, formed the idea of fitting up private shutes and delivering guano to the ships launches at $2 a ton or alongside for so much more. It was often better to do this and get away in 20 days or less than to wait 90 days and get the cargo delivered free. Then some of the natives tried it and some more Americans and among others the Catholic priest who prophesied for the islands, had also a private shute. Laborers of every description were employed by these men, whites and blacks and runaway sailors.

There were at one time on the north island over 100 huts and houses and shanties. There was no rum sold in the priest's house, the doctors office, governors residence nor the superintendent's office. There was none by retail at the British Vice Consuls office but by the barrel or gallon, yes. At about every other place, there was wine and pisco and all kinds of poison for sale by the glass. Fandangos and other fashionable dances gave the evenings as refined an air as the society at Washington. They danced as vigorously and men and women drank as vigorously as they do at a first-class high up ball at our National Capital.

On Sunday there was a good deal of gambling on shore and the invariable Spanish cockfight. The fowls, vegetables, beef, milk, etc., used at the Islands were brot over in sail boats daily from Pisco. A colored man from New York used to bring over frequent ventures in that line. He had learned to jabber a good deal of bad Spanish. On his first visit to a new arrival who spoke Spanish fluently, he offered his stuff for sale, watermelons, potatoes, eggs and chickens etc.; the captain supposing him to be a native addressed him in Spanish and the colored man then supposed the captain was a Spaniard. His chickens were about a dollar a piece, but for one particularly handsome fellow, tied apart from the rest, he asked $25. Some surprise was expressed at the extravagance of the price, but it never occurred to the questioner why there was such a difference, further than because he was such a handsome fellow and evidently of a favorite breed. And no more was said.

Going to another ship not far away, the boatman offered his market stuff again for sale. After asking prices of other things, the captain priced the fancy rooster; $30 said the negro. Thirty dollars!! gasped the captain, what do you mean by such a price as that? Oh said the other that is a splendid game bird; the Spanish captain over there just offered me $25 for him. Spanish, did you say? where? That black clipper ship there, said the fowl vender pointing. Why, what did he want with that fowl at $25? Oh, he wanted to buy him to take ashore on the island Sunday, to fight in the cockpit; lots of money in that bird, sah, if one only knows how to handle him. Of course this was said with a hope of making a sale of his bird.

Perhaps that might have happened to any other individual in the fleet without further remark or attention, but as he was a temperance man and had never seen a cockfight in his life and had never once been present at their Sunday sports or their week day or night drunks and fandangos, the joke was too good to waste. The story of an obstinate temperance man, offering $25 for a rooster to fight and bet on, Sunday afternoon, among a gang of gamblers and outlaws, went from mouth to mouth, and elicited shouts of uproarious approving laughter all thru the fleet, and altho not one of them believed a word of it was possible, they pretended they did and enjoyed the fun almost as much as if they had witnessed the whole affair in reality from behind the door.

THE RESCUE AND THE JUVENILES.

Rocklin Band of Hope takes three copies of the RESCUE; some few others have ordered one in addition to the copy sent them gratuitously. It is hoped that all of our juvenile organizations are supplied with some other literature, D. C. Cook's papers, books, etc. The more of all of these taken by or for the Band of Hope, the more successful and permanent and prosperous we may expect it to be. And there is no dout that the failure in the past of so many of our Bands in a few weeks after their institution has been mainly due to their not being supplied with instructive literature. When nothing more is being LEARNED in a lodge or in a juvenile society, the interest languishes and the end is near.

There are nnmberless instances on record of children having succeeded in reclaiming lost parents, when their elders had utterly failed to do so. Children have learned truths from their teachers, and have imparted them to their parents and neighbors who never would have learned them otherwise; and children can effect an entry where older persons would either not attempt it or would be repulsed if they did.

It is considered by all earnest workers that we can never succeed in our temperance warfare while the world lasts, unless we get temperance literature broadcast among the people. A temperance paper has always vastly and visibly helped the cause of temperance and probably has extended a far greater influence for good than any one has suspected.

Therefore, as it is of the utmost importance to disseminate the truths of temperance among the people everywhere, and as the RESCUE is specially intended for the promotion of temperance on this coast and as it is as cheap as any other weekly temperance paper of its size, there are many members of the Band of Hope who could help materially to get the RESCUE taken in their neighborhood and thus help to hasten the day when the rum fiend shall be forced to let go his grip on the throats of the boys and girls to work them up into the tramps and jailbirds of the future.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

Recently there were several meetings held in the lower part of Calaveras Co., in the interest of the Band of Hope, by Bro. H. R. Hughes and myself, which deserve, perhaps, a passing notice. At the hall of Logan Lodge we initiated twelve adults into Evergreen Band of Hope, four of them being men who had been for years addicted to the use of tobacco. At Stone Corral, the home of Chaparral Lodge, we had a very enthusiastic meeting, and initiated 26 into Chaparral Band. Among them were several who, like their neighbors at Evergreen, had long been under the thraldom of tobacco. These Christian men for conscience sake and for the sake of the young sacrificed their appetites. It was a blessed meeting! I could sing with a will,

"And the dawn of the glory is here."

By the way, I have reconstructed the chorus of that ode, and now sing it:

"We will sign, sign the pledge,
We will banish tobacco from sight!
We will sign, sign the pledge,
And will battle for God and the right."

It makes a very effective battle-cry in our crusade against tobacco, and in our Band of Hope warfare that is the greatest obstacle. So many little boys (I had almost written babes) are poisoning themselves with cigarettes. The tobacco alone would be bad enough, but along with it they are inhaling arsenic from the paper, and between the two are literally ruining themselves.

In my last trip I met two young men who were striking examples of this evil, and really excited my pity. One, a youth of 15 years, was so depressed and enervated by the habit that he had scarcely energy enough left for either work or play. The other, a young man of nineteen years, was much worse; his complexion sallow, his eyelids drooping and his whole appearance indicating extreme debility. Neither seemed to have energy enough left to break his chains, and unless some unforseen influence shall intervene, it is probable that both will continue their indulgence till they are utterly ruined, and it will not take long either.

It is easy enough to convince a boy of average intellect, that he ought never to drink or swear, but while his own taste for tobacco, is strengthened by seeing, perhaps the best man he knows, at the end of a cigar, or rolling the quid as a sweet morsel under his tongue, it is not strange that the little fellow draws back and says, as a boy of 10 said to me, "It may be a good thing for some to join the Band of Hope, but it wouldn't do for me." This boy's father had used tobacco for 30 years; but he took his stand as a man and a Christian, and gave it up; tho he honestly thot that in his special case, it was a benefit, yet for the sake of his example he gave it up.

When will Christian men learn to say with Paul, "If meat maketh my brother to offend, I will eat no meat while the world standeth."? To those of my readers who use tobacco let me address one plea. Will you not take yourselves out of the path where young feet must stumble over you? Can you bear to think that they who look to you for an example may be overthrown and perhaps fearfully mangled by following in your footsteps? Or will you walk on thru life, holding on high a sign-board which says, "I know I am walking in a by-path—It is wrong to walk here; dont, anybody, follow my example! I walk here because I like to, but all the children must go the other way." Can you afford it? And do you not know that the children will follow your example and not your precept?

M. E. RICHARDSON.

DIDN'T TAPER OFF.

I met Bro. F. E. M. a most earnest temperance man, of ———, a few days ago. His reformation is one of the frequent proofs that in the matter of alcholic stimulants, a patient knows better than his physician what is safest and best. "For four years," to use his own words "I had been drunk day and night, had had over 20 fits of delirium, when I came to, after the last one, I found my wife and the doctor prying my mouth open with a crowbar or something of the kind and pouring whisky down my throat. As soon as I could speak, I said 'no more of that' but both according to the popular theory said I must take more to 'sober up' on. I replied 'not a drop.' For a week I lay on my bed, helpless, seeing snakes and demons behind me and over my shoulder, My wife still thought I ought to take a little whisky to tone up my nerves or she said she feared I would die, I replied, 'then die I must' for I have promised my God and myself I never will touch it again." And he never has! He was unable to walk, for a long time, much more than across the road or do any work, but he was true to his pledge. Eight years ago he became a Good Templar, not scrupling at its lifelong pledge, and now he expects his boys will join. Breaking off short saved him; trying to "taper off" would probably have put him in his grave years ago.

TRIP TO NEHALEM.

It was a pretty good one—some adventures, some hardships, and lots of fun; but I cannot be quite satisfied until I make the tour again with you, my juvenile brothers and sisters; so come, one and all, and lets be off. All aboard our own little boat, and we'll pull out under the stilted streets and wharves before making sail. Ah! the wind is strong and the big river rather rough for our small craft. Shall we venture sail? Yes? then drop in alongside that scow while we make ready. Now, away we shoot. O, my! how we fairly fly over the waves as the kind good-bys follow us from the wharf! Still rougher as we near the "point" but we sit low and steady, and skip over the waves like a flying-fish. Here we are, at Fort Clatsop, the spot where Lewis and Clark spent the winter of 1805. Here we leave our boat and march over the hill and Clatsop plains to the "sea-side" where we find good accommodations with "Old Father Grimes, that good old man" who keeps one of the hotels at this popular watering-place. No whisky here. Breakfast over, and again we are on the march, threading a winding trail over Tillamoop head, and beneath a dense forest of spruce, fir and hemlock, and sometimes up the stony bed of a musical brook that prescribes for our health, and preaches the eternal truth of God. But here we are again upon the ocean beach with a ten-mile stretch of clean smooth sand in sight. Away we scamper like a band of antelope, now splashing with bare feet in the playful surf, and now watching our opportunities to beat the coming surge in a fair race around a point of rocks. When, ha, ha, ha! that's a good one; and we're caut and well doused. We'll call it "sea bathing" and make the best of it. But the tide is rising, and that next point looks risky as the spray leaps high and dares us to a race. Not much! run that gauntlet? we'll climb first. Up the rocks we scamper, and our rubber boots hold on like goat's feet. Our bare foot boys haul on their boots now, for the thick coating of barnacles upon the rocks are too sharp for bare feet. What flocks of variously colored gulls; and see the crows digging for clams! Ah! here frowns another headland—False Tillamooh—and we must leave our smooth beach again. See how low that sun is getting, and remember we have three miles yet to Mr. Cromwell's, where we hope for entertainment. Many miles have we put behind us to-day, but having no alcohol or nicotine poisons in our veins, we are still fresh and strong. "Bow, wow!" Dogs! Ah! we are coming to a habitation. Too dark to see, but we know the pleasant voice of Mr. Cromwell, as he invites us into his hospitable dwelling. Supper over and we are pleasantly entertained with stories of adventures with the bears, wolves and other animals that would prey upon Mr. Cromwell's sheep. We are sorry to learn that his horse fell over the precipice into the ocean the other day.

But morning is here, breakfast over, and after a kind hand-shake with little Mamie, and a good-by for all, we face a terrific storm of wind and rain, climb along the steep side of Carney Mountain, with only the narrow trail to hold us from tumbling into the foaming ocean hundreds of feet below, and soon find ourselves in the valley of the Nehalem, and are led to question as to the leading industry of these people. They tell us that their business is stock-raising, and we very readily conclude from the greetings at each house we approach that the principal stock is dogs; and from the hides and skins stretched upon the houses and barns, we conclude that dogs are useful things in protecting the other stock against the wild "varments." Our journey is not ended, but we will rest awhile.

T. J. ALLEY.

A TRAPPER OF MEN.

Christian society so-called—sets man-traps on every street, and at almost every street crossing, and corner in the towns and cities; upon every highway, byway and thoroughfare, at every fair and picnic ground, wherever men and women congregate for pleasure or profit, and then punishes the victims who fall into her traps. These "man-traps she calls by the high-sounding name of "saloons;" and like trappers for wild beasts, she traps men and women for profit, calling her ill-gotten accumulations "revenue." But she well knows that thrice the sum obtained by licensing this deadly traffic is expended in hunting up, prosecuting, imprisoning, hanging and burying the criminals created by the inhuman craft and greed which licenses this vile, barbarous and murderous trade!

S.

At a crowded and enthusiastic temperance meeting in London, held in connection with the great Ecumenical Conference, Bishop J. C. Price (a colored gentleman), was heartily received, and said that he was glad to see England so largely identified with this movement. He was once intemperate, but thank God, to-night he could say the gospel light had convinced him of his error, and from the path of intemperance he was led to the path of repentance, to the cross of Christ; and in that light he saw his sins forgiven, gave his heart to God, and stood on that platform a Christian teetotaler. His teetotalism included weeds as well as spirits. (cheers.) If this duty in regard to temperance could be delegated specially to any class or profession, surely it rested upon the shoulders of the Christian church. What was her mission? To correct wrong and encourage right, and only by so doing would she fulfil her great work in the world.—Ex.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

A WORD TO ALL THE LODGES.

Somebody whose head will pass a creditable phrenological survey, suggests in this number that an effort be made in earnest to give the Rescue a larger circulation than any other paper in the State. That is a very excellent proposition; it is one very easily carried to success; there is no difficulty whatever in the way, that may not be removed in ten days from this date. It would cost nobody any sacrifice whatever, beyond a few steps taken and a few little talks made to friends in each locality where there is a lodge or a reader of the Rescue. Nobody would be out of pocket that subscribed for a copy. No honest interest would be injured, but if this paper could be read for two years in a majority of the homes of California that take a paper at all, the liquor business and the drunkard making, pauper making agencies, the manufacture of murder, suicide, theft, divorce, harlotry, vice, bankrutcy and pauperism would vanish forever from this State—a condition that would better the financial progress of the State 100 millions a year and in a still larger proportion improve the moral and religious and social interests of the whole people. And the Rescue with proper management, proper support, proper help can lead to that result. It is scarcely probable that any other paper in this state has much more than 100 people directly and vitally interested, personally, politically, religiously, financially and every way in its becoming the leading paper of the state in circulation. No other paper aims directly and constantly at the extinction of the great curse which wages a constant war against the health, purse, home, family, property and life of every citizen of the coast, man, woman and child. But we have 18,000 people who are really or ot to be interested to that end in all the modes named. And there is one more reason yet; knowing that our own paper tells the whole truth to the people, lowers its flag to no power of evil, has no master to serve but God and the people and the truth, makes no compromise with the enemy in any shape, it should be a cherished ambition of every Good Templar to see it with a circulation of 50,000 a week. And before it reached 10 and 15 and 20 thousand and upwards, it would be enlarged and improved at every stage, to deserve its further advancement; and before it much more than doubles its present circulation it would begin to yield a revenue rather than incur a deficit to the Grand Lodge.

Now, we have individual Good Templars, and we have lodges and always have had them, who have done their full share of giving the Rescue a 40,000 or 50,000 circulation. Had all the other lodges and individuals done as well in proportion to their abilities and opportunities, the Grand Lodge and the order would have saved many thousands of dollars, and the Rescue would have been for many years past, a source of income in place of an expense; and whatever good it may have accomplished would have been multiplied manifold.

But all along we have had lodges and members who have never lifted a finger to help make the money expended on the Rescue in the past a successful and judicious and useful investment. Lodges not a few, and members not a few, who, so far as in their power lay, have made the Rescue utterly useless and a failure; practically they have decreed that all attempts at teaching people, old or young, by the most effective measures to be temperate, shall be a dead failure. Whether they so intended it or no, it is all the same; they made it so as far as they could, and every year their failure to help the cause has cost the order thousands of dollars, and thrown away vast opportunities for increasing our influence and destroying our enemy, the great man-eater, hyena-tiger, that prowls around our homes.

Again, we have had individuals that because of some fancied neglect, because some opinion was expressed last year or ten years ago, because some article they liked did not get in, or something got in that did not suit the party or parties, have set themselves and their lodges to antagonize the Rescue and because of some miserable, personal miff have undertaken to set back the whole temperance reform in this state, by killing the only journal devoted to its advocacy.

It is very pitiable that such infinite littleness should be exhibited by even a few members of a great order, whose aim and effort is to bind all its members in a fraternity and unity of counsel and action for the grandest purpose which ever actuated the human soul; the cutting off the loathsome cancer which has for centuries been gnawing at the heart of Christianity and blasting every effort and instrumentality that seeks the welfare and happiness of mankind.

It was time years ago and it is full time now, that every lodge and every Good Templar, every friend of temperance and every good citizen and every good neighbor should render his and her help to enable the Rescue as the mouth piece of the temperance army, to drive the devil of blood and crime and misery out of this western garden of Eden, now wholly given up to the spoiler.

Without any difficulty, a strong pull together over the whole coast would send in 1,000 subscribers a week for 10 weeks and why not make that pull everybody? If not well to do so, will some one tell us why?

Friends in Oregon, W. T. and B. C. as well as in California are invited to discuss this matter under Good of the Order and to discuss it in a spirit of devotion to the best interests of humanity.

CHINAMEN.

There were some very wise, very smart, very patriotic people who made a very idiotic parade of themselves on Saturday last. They dont want any more Chinamen here. They are not going to have them, that is flat. They wont have them. And they turned out, a dense, compact mass of patriotic citizens, and manfully and independently discussed every phase of the Chinese question, out of which they could manufacture a few votes or buy a little popularity with the masses, whose seat of reason is in the stomach and is frequently subjected to very unjust treatment there.

They talked eloquently of every cause which did not help at all to plant the Chinamen here, and they were all scrupulously silent about the only cause that ever did or could or does give them a footing here to the injury of white labor. They were silent on those matters because there were neither votes nor patronage nor applause to be gained by exposing the truth.

Rather than incur the odium of telling the truth, they preferred to assert in the people's ears that the Chinaman is so superior to the Irishman, German, Italian, Englishman and American that none of the latter can dare to compete with him in the fields of labor and enterprise and trade. That ot to be a humiliating story for Americans to have people tell them. It is eminently true that the sober Chinaman is infinitely ahead of the drunken of other nationalities in all these fields, but that he ever could drive out or compete seriously with sober whites or sober Africans in this country is eminently false.

It would have been somewhat gratifying to have seen some rational, effective steps proposed to entirely extinguish the Chinese invasion and to bring about the gradual and speedy removal of the greater portion of a race that ought never to have been permitted to come here in troops; but no such thing was proposed and will not be in this congress. People who swallow a lie or suppress the truth never lay wise plans. Their plot is sure to have some weak point where it all leaks out.

Before any restrictive legislation goes into effect, the railroad companies, or whoever needs Chinese labor, can and will have thousands imported ahead of their needs for years; every Chinaman that leaves here, if he may be allowed to return, can ship another man to represent him if he stays away. After no more cargoes are allowed to come to this coast, they can come in thousands to Mexican ports and enter thence; or to Vancouvers Island or to ports in the Gulf of Mexico and various other ways.

It is true that the average Chinese laborer can live on less and cheaper food and clothes than a sober, thrifty, American workingman does or wants to; but it is very probably true that the average Chinese laborer in California, spends more money on his food and clothes than the average white laborer does, who uses beer or whisky and tobacco; not counting the money wasted by the latter at the bar and the gambling table, the white drunken laborer works a good deal cheaper than the Chinaman would ever dream of. And the Chinaman is in the long run cheaper at double the wages, of any drunken saloon graduate.

A gang of 100 white men, total abstainers for grading railroads, working with shovel, pick, axe etc. at ablebodied labor and at a majority of the employments that require strength and endurance, are cheaper at the highest modern wages than 100 Chinamen at the lowest price paid to them. But a gang of 100 sober, reliable, punctual Chinamen are cheaper and better for their employer than an equal number of white men who are drunken, disorderly, mutinous, dishonest and skulking—at even the wages of Chinamen. Or even so when a considerable proportion of the whites are of that stamp and the rest good steady, sober, reliable men.

It is supposed we have about 10,000 thief-mills in this state whose whole aim, purpose and result is to debauch the white labor, Irish, German, American, Italian, to make them drunken so as to steal their wages and to degrade, debauch, enslave, pauperize, skin them; to convert clean, sober, worthy, decent white citizens into paupers, vagrants, thieves and utterly useless and unsatisfactory laborers—such that employers are absolutely compelled to dismiss and hire Chinamen in their places.

One of the first men to set about calling for an election under the local option law in 1874 was a German who lived in some district 20 or 30 miles from Sacramento. He drank his beer and perhaps stronger drinks every day, but he said he wanted the grogshops prohibited in his vicinity, because the farmers were most dreadfully harassed there by the grogshops, which kept their men drunk half the time and made them late and wasted their crops most seriously; they carried their election almost unanimously. That was a solution of the Chinese question or would have been but for Judge McKinstry and two other men who damaged this state probably a thousand or two thousand millions of dollars by a judicial decision without precedent or parallel.

A Good Templar in Sonoma county some ten years ago told the writer, he had employed Chinamen that year to work his harvester, and not one of them had lost an hour of time or been late in the morning, and his machine paid. Last year, said he, "I had white men; I have no more sympathy with Chinamen than with mules, cant understand them, but I must have them; my whites never came to work Monday or Tuesday and the machine was often idle part or all of Wednesday, and when they came to work at last, they were swell-headed, ugly and good for nothing and my harvester was a considerable loss. I knew where my men were all the time, down there in that saloon but it was no use to go after them." The saloon and brewery are the Chinese recruiting and shipping and importing and employing agencies and offices. And as long as they are permitted to carry on their murderous, debauching, ruinous warfare upon the white working men, just so long will John Chinaman get the sober labor and do the sober man's work.

The motto of the Leag of Fiendom is, the work for the Chinamen; the saloon and police court, city jail, poor house, penitentiary and lunatic asylum for the faithful whites who patronize our bar.

ANTI-PROHIBITION.

In this war against the powers of evil, there is no task more unpleasant than that of assailing the enemy, who plants himself on the steps of the church, or raises the banner of the cross over the guns he trains against the cause of temperance and Christ-ianity. No duty which so makes enemies among those one would like to count as friends; no act so deprecated and criticized by well-meaning, timid, policy observers who really are friends.

One of the most pleasant duties at this moment would be to announce that the Boston Congregationalist is a consistent friend to Christianity and good citizenship; but it cannot be truthfully said. This deponent in common (in this respect) with Daniel the prophet, Solomon, Paul, Peter, Luther, and Wesley, has had to get thru the world debarred from the privilege of the direct light of that great paper. Its acceptance, however, by so large and respectable a constituency as sustain it, is an indication which cannot be disregarded, that it must be the medium of some, perhaps very many, good things, and good influences. Sometimes such an item is found credited in an exchange to the Congregationalist, and is with pleasure quoted in the RESCUE.

But much more frequently, that great paper is quoted as exerting a misleading and pestiferous influence against any phase of the temperance question which steps out of the opaque shell from which it scarcely emerged for some time after it began to make itself first heard. It endorsed the great Apollion Dr. Crosby in his monstrous onslaught on Christianity and temperance in Boston; patted him on the shoulder for uttering violations of the truths of science, scripture, experience and common sense; for a speech which the brewers and rum sellers have declared worth millions of money to them in their murderous warfare upon our country and our country's God. His miserable farce of casting out satan by Beelzebub, heading a ring of rum sellers and their silly dupes in an idle war upon the low grogshop, in the interest of the more stylish bars, and fighting all temperance societies —that paper was quoted as calling "consistent temperance."

Recently it endorsed and repeated some rascally falsehoods from a new Biblical Cyclopedia stating that alcohol in moderation is not a poison, but is good and wholesome and is assimilated and digested, and which also prostituted the texts of scripture regarding wine in a manner that it would be hypocritical to designate in other words than shamefully and designedly false, if the quotations presented were genuine.

Not content with misguiding and deceiving its unlearned readers in this manner, it has recently, according to the Rev. Wm. M. Thayer in the Temperance Cause, been the vehicle of a D. D. who fights temperance by pretending to prove that "prohibition does not prohibit so much as license;" and on Feb. 1 another fellow who dares not give more of his name than E. W. finds room to deny the record of Vineland, the temperance colony in N. J. E.W. says Mr. Landis was under the influence of liquor when he shot Carruth, a charge manufactured to suit E. W's. purpose. And he says Vineland is as virtuous and sober as other towns of its size and sends its prisoners to the county jail etc. Whereas up to the time of that unfortunate occurence 6 or 7 years ago, Vineland had never had an arrest for crime save one, of a drunk who arrived there by train from abroad and attempted a burglary.

Now what good purpose can be advanced by giving currency to statements by contributors, which the editors of the C. must know to be utterly untrue? For we cannot but be assured the editors are as intelligent about wine and alcohol and prohibition versus license, as an ordinary Band of Hope boy of 2 years experience. The effect of such conduct is to prevent well meaning readers of that paper from believing in the righteousness of temperance; to prevent them voting the temperance ticket; to blindfold and slump them in the ditch of error and drunkenness and perdition; to help the grogshop; to give aid and comfort to the enemy of human souls; to verify to the letter the type of the Anti-christ that should come in the later days.

Some months ago a Reverend reader protested as a Good Templar against the criticisms of this paper regarding the C. Were it not better for him and some others to unite in an earnest and emphatic protest against the C's. misrepresenting its denomination, in its attitude towards temperance and throwing down the gauntlet in unprovoked assault; not inviting but enforcing criticism and a defence of the truth.

HOT SHOT FROM CANON WILBERFORCE ON CHRISTIAN DUTY.

BY A CHRISTIAN MINISTER.

The following is an extract from a lecture delivered at Coventry January 27, reported in the Watchword. Its careful perusal is earnestly requested; it was not given nor is it here reproduced in a fault-finding or accusing spirit; on the contrary it is an urgent appeal to the conscience of all who have a conscience to be reached. And it can be carried home for meditation by many a christian and many a Good Templar in this latitude.

"He was not going to touch on disputed political points, but he did not think it was possible for a man to be an earnest tetotaler without being a politician. He (the speaker) was not a Tory or a Whig, nor a Radical, nor a revolutionist, but he had a political creed which was written in plain language, and it was this: God and the people of England. And he was very anxious to see all Temperance men take their tetotalism into the presence of their members of Parliament, and never give their votes to any man, whatever his politics, unless he would promise to support some measure which would help to liberate the people from the drink curse, which was enslaving them now. Exhorting his hearers to be

UNITED AND EARNEST IN THE WORK,

Canon Wilberforce asked 'What is the greatest obstruction to the progress of this nation and every other nation?' It was, he said, men who pretended to be believers and yet who had not known that marvelous power in a man's soul which only a knowledge of Christ could give and no power on earth could take away. They were the men who pretended to be the Christians of the age, and said 'Thus far thou shalt reform and no farther.' They had burnt Bruno, blinded Galileo, and had hindered his (the speaker's) old grandfather in his work of slave emancipation; they stood in his way, and said 'This is contrary to Revelation, you must not move another step in this direction.' It was not the drunkards, not the publicans, who most hindered the Temperance movement. He said boldly before those who professed religion, that it was the merely professing Christians in their churches who would not touch this matter with their little fingers, whilst the

the whole nation held down, and would not alter one social habit of their lives or touch one corner of the Cross of Jesus Christ that these things might be made better for the nation. How did Christ treat the Pharisees, who indulged in their ease and did not attempt to help those who had fallen? When He saw a poor sinner before Him in the Temple, brought by the Pharisees, whom the sisters in Coventry would probably have shrunk from speaking to, He said, 'Doth no man condemn thee?' Poor child, neither do I condemn; go, and sin no more." And in coming out of the Temple He met a fine Pharisee, with a phylactery six inches in length, and going to the corner of the street, kneel down and pray, and that same Jesus who had spoken in such tones to the poor woman turned and said, 'Oh, ye generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the damnation of hell?' Thousands of men were kept from entering to this salvation by the cold, aimless lives led by professing Christians, who attended both churches and chapels, and more especially by their indifference to this Temperance question than any other. If they could and listen to the eloquent sermons, and look with calm indifference on the Temperance movement, let them doubt their conversion. Next Sunday when they went to their splendid church, which was known throughout the world, and joined in that beautiful Litany, let them add this one little sentence. After the closing sentence let them lift their hearts and silently say for themselves, "From all the paralysing cant of an unfelt devotion; from all the God-defying hypocrisy of an unlifted voice and a down-hanging arm; from all the miserable mummery of a magnificent State Church ritual, and a cold, selfish, aimless, daily life; Good Lord deliver us."

SIT IN THEIR PLACES IN CHURCH OR CHAPEL,

HOME PROTECTION MEETINGS.

A notice of a very excellent address given Feb. 25th, by Rev. M. C. Briggs, on the Home and the necessity of protecting it from the deadly assaults of the drunkard makers leag, was crowded out last week.

Last Saturday evening the REV. J. C. SIMMONS

Delivered a telling lecture at the Y. M. C. A. Hall. Some passages of it will be given in this and next number:

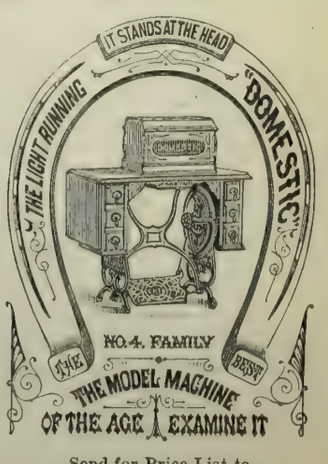
* * * "I feel that the time is coming when the great heart of the nation, not yet moved, will be, if blood and woe and death can move it. I can even see hope in the big Vs painted in all our saloons and corner groceries.

"When the Levite of Mt. Ephraim would arouse all Israel he hewed his dead wife into twelve pieces and sent them to all the coasts of Israel. It was an awful thing to do, but it had an effect nothing else would have produced. So these big Vs are to bring the matter right to our homes. Heretofore the evil has been confined mainly to the men. * * The saloon batteries have had their guns upon them and plowed their ranks, and men have writhed and groaned and died. But now our wives, mothers and children are to be brot under their deadly fire. This dynamite of destruction is to be set on our tables to explode in the faces of our helpless ones.

"One of our leading papers lately said, under the heading, 'Female Drunkenness on the Increase': 'Of the 30 prisoners in the dock of the Police Court No. 1 yesterday, arrested the previous day for drunkenness, 9, or nearly one-third, were women. Some of the number had been there various times before and were known as common drunkards. Others were there for the first time and were evidently ashamed of the disgrace brot upon themselves and their sex. It has been remarked of late by those who know, that drunkenness among females has of late been on the increase.'

"Some may not understand that, but to me it is very plain. Every saloon and corner grocery is offering to sell beer at five cents a glass, thus putting it within reach of all. It is becoming a popular drink. As men, women and children only want an excuse to drink, they say there is no harm in it; it is wholesome, strengthening, and it is taken into the family and all drink it. I have seen it on the tables of people of fashion, poured out for the little ones and offered to all as a rich health giving beverage.

"None so poor they cannot buy beer, and we have all seen its power to debauch. You know women in this city who have been ornaments to society and a blessing to the church, who have drunk beer so long that they are now looked upon with sorrow and loathing by their friends. They are gone, hopelessly, and beer alone has done it.



"Stand near one of these corner groceries near the hour of noon, and see how many women and girls in their teens and children come out with their cans and pitchers full of foaming beer, and you can form some estimate of the enormity of this vice. Here is the nursery of the great evil.

"The enemy that has been making drunkards of our fathers and brothers, has been emboldened to come nearer and seize upon our women and children; and if one of us raises a voice against it, it is at the risk of being brained with a bung starter.

"And why? have these men no mothers, no wives, no children? no interest in the purity of society and home? no care for the sufferings of these helpless ones? Ah, if they have, it it is all swamped in their greed of gain, their love for the money that is in the trade. Take away the profit in beer and liquor and every Freedom Leaguer would be on our side. They would head the mob to hang the despoiler of our homes." * * * * *

DAVID C. COOK.

This city has developed a curiosity, if not a marvel, in the spread of religious literature among the young. But being independent Methodist in origin, our official papers of the West have given the work so wide attention that the public wish seems piqued for a few facts touching the author of the novel enterprise. That one small man, of black eyes, smooth face and straight hair, only thirty years of age, should, from nothing and unaided, in five years make a market for thirty-one Sunday school periodicals, with a monthly circulation of over four million copies, or an annual aggregate of thirty-seven millions, besides twenty-four young temperance papers, and many books, paying this last year $25,000 as postage on 625 tons of printed matter, re-investing all profits till his publishing facilities look honorable for a house of fifty years growth—and all this without income from "advertisements"—sounds as if Aladdin and his lamp had come again. Yet such has been the rise of David C. Cook in the juvenile department of religious literature. And still he finds time to superintend a mission Sunday school of 500 in his own hall. His publishing grew out of his experience in mission work seven years ago, when he interested several schools and they issued for their own use a little paper called the Sunday School Gem. Last summer he began child temperance work, and has organized 3,100 Bands of Hope. His literary force is nine office editors and 184 writers the past year. This looks anomalous even from a purely business standpoint, refutes the world's theory that religion is a hindrance to business, and proves the possibility of so harnessing high moral purpose with secular activity that the pair will draw the largest kind of a good load. For Mr. Cook has been one of our most active and successful city missionaries for ten years. —Pittsburg Ch. Advocate.

THE NEW SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN OFFICES.

The Scientific American came out of the late fire in New York, like the fabled Phœnix, with renewed life. The subscription lists, account books, patent records, patent drawings, and correspondence were preserved in massive fire-proof safes. The printing of the Scientific American and Supplement was done in another building; consequently the types, plates, presses, paper, etc., were unharmed, and no interruption of business was occasioned.

The new Scientific American offices are located at 261 Broadway, corner of Warren street, a very central and excellent situation. The new building fronts towards the City Hall, the Court House, and the New Post-office —a magnificent structure, which cost eight millions to build. In front, also, of the Scientific American is the City Hall Park and Printing House Square, with it statue of Benjamin Franklin, and the homes of eminent editors and newspapers, such as the New York Tribune, Times, Sun, World, Herald and others.

The new Scientific American offices are admirably chosen for active business. Here, in addition to the issuing of their interesting publications, Messrs. Munn & Co., aided by trained examiners and draughtsmen, prepare specifications and drawings for American and Foreign patents. If any of our readers should happen to make a new discovery (may everyone of them do so, and gain a fortune), they have only to drop a line to Munn & Co., 261 Broadway, New York, who will reply at once, without charge, stating whether the invention is probably novel and patentable. A handbook of instructions, with full particulars, will also be sent free. Messrs. Munn & Co have had over thirty-five years experience in the business.

The California Publishing Company, 408 California Street, San Francisco, have in press a new novel by Mrs. Glascock, wife of the Congressional Candidate in the Second California District at the late election. Commenting upon the same, the Oakland Tribune says:

"Mrs. Mary Glascock, wife of John R. Glascock, the well-known lawyer of this city has written a novel entitled "Dare," depicting certain phases of fashionable and artistic life on this coast, and embodying a considerable amount of fine character work peculiar to the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Glascock is a lady of exquisite literary taste, and has done some excellent work, the merit of which promises well for her present venture. This volume will be published by the California Publishing Company, and will, therefore, be wholly Californian, both as regards its conception and execution. It ought to be a success, both literary and financial."

The North American Review for March presents a striking array of articles, every one of which possesses the characteristic of contemporaneous interest. First we have a contribution from Senator George F. Edmunds on "The Conduct of the Guiteau Trial." Ex-Minister Edward F. Noyes communicates the results of his observations of political affairs in France under the title, "The Progress of the French Republic." In "Trial by Jury," Judge Edward A Thomas describes the social conditions under which our jury system had its origin, and notes its defects in view of the altered relations of modern life. Mr. John Fisk makes an able and ingenious analysis of that great intellectual movement, the Reformation, educing therefrom the "True Lesson of Protestantism." In "Law for the Indians," the Rev. William Justin Harsha endeavors to demonstrate that the one rational and effectual cure for our Indian troubles is to extend the jurisdiction of the civil and criminal courts over all the social relations of the red man. Prof. A. B. Palmer writes on the "Fallacies of Homeopathy." Finally the Hon. Neal Dow contributes an article on the "Results of Prohibitory Legislation," demonstrating the success of the efforts to suppress the liquor traffic in Maine.

Oscar Wilde is traveling in this country, lecturing on beauty and taste and culture, distributing his photographs and exhibiting himself as a model of propriety. He is reported as going round with a cigar in his mouth and ordering French champagne for dinner. Watch the door of any grogshop in California and you can see every day any number of just such models of propriety as he is. We dont want any more hog in our civilization than we have already.

Murders and suicides are fearfully prevalent in the records of our Mondays and Tuesdays. Their rate of increase is appalling. Sunday being the special occasion in which the Leag of Fiendom exercises its industries with the widest opportunity, the fruits of its labor are more conspicuous on Mondays and Tuesdays. Monday chronicles the murders of the first day of the week, a day supposed to be consecrated to peace and rest; a pause in the world's usual busy march, to render thanks to God for the mercies of the week. But the manslayers have converted it into a day of special drunkenness and savage riot. The day for murder and wife-beating and fighting. But on Monday, the serpent biteth and stingeth and on that day and the following, the poor dupes of the Fiendish Leag are suffering the inhuman tortures of hell which the brewers and the devil and the rumsellers have prepared for them. Then the German victim hangs himself in a barn, the French victim puts a pistol to his head, the Italian wine wreck cuts to pieces one or two of his family and stabs himself; lots of others more quietly send their souls out into the infinite darkness with a dose of morphia or strychnine. Thugism is the same still; but it has acquired a rank luxuriance on American soil; in their home in India the Thugs gloried in the murder and spoliation of a few hundred victims annually, but they spared women. Our Thugs get away with about 100,000 a year and spare neither women or children, age or sex. Send in your names to the Leag of Fiendom and work for Boruck for next governor. Great is Kali the goddess of the Thugs and lager the god of pauperism and squalor and filth.

A Liquor Seller's drummer was arrested Saturday evening for embezzlement of $300 belonging to a Montgomery Street firm of drunkard makers. He had collected that amount on a tour thru Sacramento and Yuba Counties, but had fallen into the snare which his employers paid him to peddle for other people—in short, had got on a spree and spent the money. He says he was engaged at $7 a day and his expenses, and when his salary is paid up he will only be $80 behind. Now comes a question for the lawyers; was he entitled to salary and expenses while on the spree? He claims that the money he spent in the spree, tho liberal in amount, was used in his "regular business of drummer," and his reasoning is good. A legitimate "expense" of the traveling agent of a sewing machine firm, or a watchmaker or lampmaker or a fire extinguisher, would be the time and material expended in exhibiting the "working of the machine."

Now this salesman was employed to sell a promoter of drunkenness and theft and lust among his customers, and he only gave an exposition of its effects upon himself. A similar success in impressing upon the public the efficacy of any other article of commerce, would make the fortune of the drummer who first achieved it. But drunkard makers are ungrateful and their poor victim is in jail for having loved his profession "not wisely but too well." It takes big pay, however, to hire men to embark in such an infamous business.

Tobacco.—Somebody has conclusively proved that the war against tobacco is all a mistake; he has discovered that a duchess of Newcastle, of 200 years ago, commended its use very strenuously as a promoter of all the virtues and comforts. Nobody ot to dout what a duchess said 200 years ago. If she had written that the healthiest and heaviest and fattest turkeys could be hatched by setting a duck on broom corn, nobody would ever think of venturing a dout as to its truth.

Revolution Temperance Literature.

New goods, adapted to new methods of work, at fabulously low prices—making, as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been.

OUR GREAT "KNEE-DEEP" OFFER.—Contracts taken to sow every town "knee-deep" with temperance literature at 5 cents a head, without any labor on the part of society or individual, by means of our Class Papers and post-office delivery system. The greatest need in temperance work is scattering temperance literature. The greatest difficulty, doing it systematically, thoroughly and yet cheaply. For Five Cents we will address, wrap and mail singly, direct to individual, regularly each month for a year, any one of the below named temperance papers, each for a special class of readers or work: 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The S. S. Superintendent. 7. The S. S. Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. The Prohibition Banner. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. The Home Protection Monthly. 13. The People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper.

Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which especially designed. Each published monthly, and though small in size, contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book.

HOW IT WORKS.—1st. It is only a nickle. Subscriptions are never refused; you have only to ask. As many subscriptions can be taken in a day as you can see persons. Societies or individuals can look after this work. 2d. Fifty cents sends a paper every month for a year to ten different persons, so many will subscribe both for themselves and for friends. 3d. Societies can not adopt a better plan of thorough distribution of temperance literature than to set apart a fund to send one or more of our 5c. papers to each individual in the town. Thus for $5.00 they can reach 100 persons each month for a year. A whole town of 500 families can be reached every month for a year for $25.00. Besides, you need not give away, subscriptions can be taken from everybody you can see, and hosts will give in small sums to send to others when it is seen that a little goes so far. For 20c. we furnish the TEMPERANCE ENGINEER, a book with blanks for canvassers for the papers, for securing lists of names to send to, free, and with space for alphabetical entry of 3,400 names, classified so as to give a fund of valuable information for society in prosecuting its work, as well as to help in systematical plan of ordering class papers—an invaluable book for all branches of temperance work.

WONDERFUL SUCCESS.—In three months these papers have reached a circulation of SEVENTY-THREE THOUSAND COPIES, monthly. Hundreds of towns are trying the plan—read what workers say of it:

Hon. James Black, of Pennsylvania: "As soon as I can find the time to arrange, I will put your 'knee-deep' plan of distribution into action. The plan is practicable, and if adopted and persevered in, will revolutionize any community. The plan is very simple, economical, and will be effective."

R. Thompson, G. W. C. T. of the I. O. G. T., Grand Lodge of California; "I had heard how wonderfully cheap you proposed to supply temperance literature, but did not realize until I examined that such a good quality was furnished."

Uriah Copp, G. W. C. T. of the Grand Lodge of Illinois: "I most heartily endorse them."

Theo. D. Kanouse, G. W. C. T. of the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin: "Your temperance papers, so sharp, so short, so cheap, so sound, giving in condensed form and in ten minute doses (more than we can get from some other sources from multiplied columns and days' reading) are first-class."

Hon. John B. Finch, of Nebraska. "Your work will do more to help our cause, if supported, than all others combined."

A. S. Bostwick, Past G. W. C. T., I. O. G. T. of Pennsylvania: "You have discovered the great want of to-day."

DATES OF MAILING.—Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 17 and 18, first week of month; Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, second week; Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, third week; Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, fourth week. Subscriptions received up to the 25th, beginning with month in which order is sent.

OTHER WAYS OF USING.—We provide hooks, with card attached to each so as to show above it, bearing the words, TAKE ONE—cost in lots of five or more 6 cts., postpaid. The "class papers" for distribu ion in this way are furnished at 25 cts. per 100 copies. Several hooks may be put up in a place, each for a special paper, the hooks refilled with papers from week to week, a later issue being added each month. Papers come ready punched for use on the hooks.

SPECIMEN PAPERS.—We will send one each of all the above papers—eighteen papers in all—on receipt of 10 cents.

2c. STORY BOOKS.—We are putting up choicest and most thrilling and telling of 75c to $1.50 temperance story books in large newspaper form, one whole book in a paper, illustrated on first page, for 2 cts. a paper when bought in lots of twenty-five or more. One issue each month. Three are now ready. Sample of all three for 10 cents.

This is a new force; people will read for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or can be distributed gratuitiously in various ways.

TEMPERANCE POSTERS.—To tack up in stores, depots and other public places; large print, each with a bit of choice, telling temperance matter, 12x14 inches, on good, white paper. No 1. Have You Insured Your Boys? No. 2. The Licensed Saloon Illustrated. No. 3. Important Notice. No. 4. The Rum Deception. No. 5. Startling Statistice. No. 6. The Right of Prohibition. Price, in lots of twenty or more, assorted, ½c each. Samples of each for 10 ets., postpaid.

THE POPULAR TEMPERANCE LIBRARY.—One new book each month. Costs but 60c for a year's issue (12 numbers).

No. 1. DRINKS FROM DRUGS.—A book that cannot fail to arouse the American people to the gigantic swindle now being perpetrated. The writer offered $10,000 by a leading brewer to keep still. Liquor not only doctored but made entirely from drugs. Extracts from a whole library of secret books, giving receipts for making and doctoring claret, port, sherry, champagne, whisky, brandy, gin, rum, etc., all out of one barrel, and made at less than 25c a quart. Wine that never saw grape juice—cider that never saw apples—beer factories in place of breweries—ale without barley or brewing—whiskey from arsenic—millions of gallons of liquor that pays no revenue tax. A wholesale liquor-store in a ten foot square cellar. This book is no mere toy, but an exhaustive work.

"One of the very best temperance documents for general use."—(Christian Standard.) "A complete and thorough exposure."—(Delaware Signal.) "The book contains a fund of information." (Morning Star.) "A most exhaustive work, and treats the subject with vigor."—(Observer.) "Deserves a wide circulation."—(Journal and Messenger.) "The most wonderful book ever brought before the public."—(Reading Star.) "Ought to be read by every minister and Christian."—(New Jersey Gazette.) "A complete exposure; get the book and circulate it."—(St. Louis Presbyterian.) "Statements sufficiently terrible to startle the moderate drinker as well as the immoderate."—Zion's Herald.)

No. 2. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND THE SOBER CITIZEN.—An able and telling work, by Rev. J. H. Sherman, which brings out the effects of the liquor traffic in a new light. The following are some commendations of the first edition: "The author drives the nails of conviction through and clinches them."—(New York Christian Advocate.) "Speakers and workers in the temperance field will find valuable aid in this pamphlet. It is crowded with convincing facts."—(Zion's Herald.) "One of the ablest reviews of the drink curse ever issued from the press."—(The Morning and Day of Reform.)

No. 3. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND CRIME.—Leaves from the diary of an old lawyer. By Hon. A. B. Richmond, member of the Pennsylvania bar. A book of intense interest, rivaling the famous "Diary of a physician," and, in its truthful, terrible pictures of the power and crime of intemperance, excelling the well-known "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room." The temperance issue of the present time is, Shall prohibition be partial or entire? shall the branches of the death-bearing tree be pruned and trimmed, or shall the tree itself be cut down and its stump be torn up by the roots? The answer of "Leaves From a Diary" is, "Cut down the tree, tear up the roots, leave not a shoot nor shred behind." It is certainly a very strong and eloquent volume. The book has been already before the public in high-priced style, and received high commendations. As printed in Popular Temperance Library form, it is somewhat abridged, but contains the cream of the book. We shall issue later the complete book in more expensive form. Press notices of first edition: "Full of touching incidents. We wish everybody would read it."—(Pittsburg Christian Advocate.) "We would place this book by the side of Judge Pitman's work, and then say, 'There is the best temperance library in the English language."—(Chautauqua Herald.)

No. 4. HOME PROTECTION.—A lawyer's view of it. By J. C. Wells, attorney at law. The question ably discussed from a lawyer's standpoint. A book of the times.

These books are "hot shot" for the enemy's strongholds. Other books of equal merit will follow monthly. All will be well adapted for use by lecturers, canvassers, agents, news dealers, train boys, temperance societies, etc. Price by the year (12 books), 60 cts. Single copies, 10 cts. Five or more to one address, 5 cts. each.

GREAT BOOK DISTRIBUTION OFFER.—Books sent by mail direct to individuals. Society sending us the names and addresses of parties and book wanted, sent to each, saves society distributing, books more likely to command reading, is more systematic, costs less, etc. We will send any two or more of our 5c books to separate addresses for 8c each; five or more 7c each; twenty-five or more 6c each; fifty or more 5½c each; one hundred or more 5¼c each; two hundred or more 5c each.

BANDS OF HOPE.—Cheapest offer yet is our offer to induce organization of Bands of Hope among the children. We furnish a library of 52 choice $1.00 to $1.50 temperance story books put up in ordinary book form, only printed on lighter paper with smaller margins and in paper covers (really stronger books than the more expensive), for 5c each, or the 52 books for $2.50. Also two weekly Band papers at 2 1-2c a quarter; a lesson and song quarterly for 2c. Certificates, pledge-rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc., all so cheap that penny collections of Band more than pay all expenses. Specimen of everything necessary for comple outfit for Band sent postpaid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving new and simple methods of running Bands, running them either with or without teachers, etc., sent free.

We are getting out many other publications besides those advertised above. General circular, free. Please say where you saw this. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madison Street, Chicago.

MANGEL WURTZEL SEED,

Of the Mammoth Long Red Variety, which I offer for sale at the following low rates:

By mail.....50 cts. per lb
By express.....35 cts. "
Where 10 or more lbs are taken (by express)..... 25 cts. "

My Seed is Warranted to be Fresh, Pure and True to Name. Grown on transplanted and highly cultivated roots. The regular price of such Seed among seedmen is 10 cts. per ounce, or 75 cts per lb.

The Long Red Mangel Murtzel Beet

Is the most profitable crop a farmer can raise for feeding hogs and cattle. It is very crisp and sugary, hence a great fat-producer in hogs, and splendid for milk cows. Produces immense crops, even on clay and adobe soils, when well cultivated. Every farmer should plant it, and plant largely this dry year. Look out for old and inferior seed, as there is much on the market. Address, PROF. W. C. DAMON, Napa College, Napa, Cal.

SALINAS.

Brother H. V. Morehouse, W. C. T. of Salinas Lodge, writes of Mrs. Stevens' work there: .

"Here in Salinas City, she came like a blessing. She entered the field of labor and garnered many a poor and loving heart as her wage. She came at the right time; when the League of Freedom was boastful of its power; she imparted an enthusiasm to the temperance cause which led to the complete enforcement of the Sunday Law. Her work added more than one hundred new members to the lodge; has added fire, enthusiasm, power and success to the temperance cause here in Salinas City. Yes! she is a grand woman. Madame Roland was great. Charlotte Corday was great. Alice Cary and Mrs. Hemans were great; but their greatness was of that kind that lingers lovingly among the lasting impressions of the type that records their history; but the greatness and goodness of a woman like Sister Stevens lives in the hearts of the people.

"How do I know? Because a few years ago the tempting bowl charmed my life and amid the sparkling of wine, the debauchery of whisky, the bacchanalian revelry, I lived, sinking weekly lower, and lower, in my own and public esteem. Ah! mine was a sad life! Oh, so sad! I would to God it could all be wiped out, and I could start again.

"And Sister Stevens came to lecture. I went to hear her. I went to laugh and criticise the silly old woman. I was a man and she couldn't hurt me with her fanaticism. No sir! But she did! That was three years ago and, thank God, I haev been sober ever since. And that ain't all. I mean to be the rest of my life.

Now, this may read silly to those who are strong minded and can take a drink or let it alone. Very well, I have no objections to what they think. I am pleased to think that I am right and am hard-headed enough to say, I know I am right. I know it because from a law practice, which was worth scarcely nothing, I have got a good paying, comfortable business. From distrust in myself and hatred toward a forgiving public, I think I am a pretty good fellow and find the public friendly and charitable. Now I am not going on further about myself, because I am no egotist. I have said this much by way only of illustration. There are several of us here who can say as much and we say "God bless Emily Pitt Stevens!"

"Why are there no more like her in the field? Where are the women of the State who are clamoring for political rights? Let them clear the way by educating public sentiment up to the high moral standard of temperance, and they will have political rights, the ballot and all that.

"But I will say no more, only that we are in earnest, and have one of the finest, most successful and enthusiastic lodges in the State! We are doing a good work. Our District lodge will be held here April the 18th, and we want a Grand Lecturer here at that time. More anon.

H. V. Morehouse, W. C. T."

This excellent letter came a few weeks late and then was crowded out some more weeks.

TEMPERANCE IN THE SOUTH.

From the temperance, press of Texas, we learn that local option is being pushed successfully in that state. In several counties, the law is now in force and works well; and petitions are being circulated in others for the purpose of securing a vote of the people on the question. But Texas is not the only one of the Southern States that is working to secure a release from that greatest of all curses, the rum traffic. Louisiana, Mississippi, in fact in every state there is successful work being done. But Arkansas seems to be taking the lead in the good work, and the good people of that commonwealth are to be congratulated on their victory over the rum curse. All the saloons along the Little Rock & Fort Smith Railroad have been closed for 160 miles and many inland towns now have rid themselves of saloons entirely. May the good work go on until the whole mass becomes leavened.—Kansas Methodist.

Now it is in order for the Boston Congregationalist to publish a letter from E. W., proving that there is more drinking, drunkenness and crime in those localities where there is no liquor sold, than there was before.

SANTA CRUZ.

A new Real Estate journal, the Exchange and Mart is published in Santa Cruz. A neat and tastily arranged, cheerful looking paper. Its purpose is to describe the climate, soil, products, capabilities and all particulars of Santa Cruz county especially, and California in general; to give information to outsiders as well as Californians relating to lands and properties for sale. It is a monthly paper of 8 pages one-third larger than those of the Rescue, and is only 25 cents a year; a specimen copy will be sent free on application; see ad. elsewhere.

Twenty-five cents invested in that paper might result in advantages of $1,000 to an Eastern family, who are coming to California, by pointing out to them a desirable property to be had. It is to be regretted that its proprietors, like many other journalists, believe wine making may be a profitable industry, and do not know that it has beggared and brutalized every people that have continued it long enough. And they cannot see as yet, that wine and brandy making will, in a very few years from now, be classed among the worst criminal offenses in this country. But they will soon come over to the right side of this matter. and will find that the class of people who may be induced to come from wine countries to make wine here, are, like the brewers and beerdivers, a thousand times greater curse and drawback to the country than the Chinese, and a greater obstacle to the settlement of decent people in this state. To bring respectable settlers, the less said about wine the better.

THE SPIRIT OF THE BEAST.

By the beast I mean the beast of rum, intemperance, whose spirit or disposition is that of murder, as shown by the murder of a prominent citizen of Welton, Iowa, by a rum-seller, a short time since. Mr. Irons, the murdered man, was a Christian, a worthy and highly respected citizen. He was a prominent temperance worker, and this reason had incurred the hatred of one Shannon, a saloonkeeper. Shannon filled himself with rum and then went into Mr. Irons' store, attacking him with a large butcher-knife, inflicting several severe and dangerous wounds, from which Mr Irons died in a few hours.

Shannon is in jail, and doubtless will suffer the extreme penalty of the law. This will be a poor comfort to the family of Mr. Irons, and little satisfaction to the temperance people of Iowa, who are engaged in a conflict with the hellish power of the rum god. Yet this sacrifice will nerve and strengthe the army of temperance as nothing else could do. Could anything more clearly show the devilish disposition of the inhuman traffic? But it is not in Iowa alone that rum is the cause of murder and kindred crimes; would that it were, then could the friends of temperance concentrate their efforts and doom this beast shortly to the pit. Nor is this man the last that will fall. A great army of our fellow men are yearly murdered by the servants of this infernal power. Others are made to suffer untold sorrows, to bear disgrace, shame and insult.

There is not a State in America, nor a land in civilization where these fiends, these enemies of God and man instigated by the spirit of rum, do not seek to ruin men; where it does not prompt to murder, theft, robbery and where the friends of peace and order seek to restrain the rum-seller, they are met with threats, and open violence. In this county, Santa Cruz, the rummies under the leadership of their master, have threatened the life of a worthy man, a minister of the gospel because he stands in their way. 'Tis well perhaps that this is the manifestation of the rum gods. We know now what they intend, the spirit they are of. These things should inspire us to renewed effort in driving rum from society. We know what we may expect; we should be prepared for any warfare the enemy may adopt. Rienzi said in his address to his countrymen: "look in the next fierce blast to see your daughters, torn from your arms, distained, dishonored etc., and if you dare call for justice be answered by the lash. These tyrants demand the right to seduce our children into their vile haunts to poison them, to induce them to crime and infamy, and if we demand protection, we are to be answered by threats of murder, warnings to leave, destruction of property etc.

Well, Bro, Editor, we have no I. O. G. T. in Soquel tho myself and "guid wife" are members of the order, and would rejoice in seeing one here; yet we have quite a strong lodge of Sons of Temperance which is doing a good work. If any of the lecturers or brethern of the order come this way, they will find the latch string of our door on the outside, and a welcome from us.

Rev. L. N. Barber

Soquel, Cal., Feb. 13, 1882.

THE HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION OF CALIFORNIA.

After various unavoidable delays the above Association has been organized by the election of the following named officers: Otis Gibson, President; J. L. Lyon, First Vice-President; A. K. Stevens, Secretary; R. H. McDonald, Treasurer; Geo. Babcock, State Superintendent. The objects of the Association are stated as follows:

First.—To obtain and organize means for the rigid enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors—particularly the Sunday Law.

Second.—To secure the enactment and enforcement of such other laws relating to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as may tend to render existing laws more effectual.

Third.—To obtain such additional legislation as may seem to be most expedient and effectual to protect our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of this traffic, and to diminish the burdens of taxation by further restricting this, the chief cause of idleness, crime, pauperism and insanity.

Fourth.—To create by the distribution of temperance literature and public addresses, an intelligent, just and merciful public sentiment, which shall give practical force to temperance principles.

A fuller statement of its plans of action will be given later.

LETTER FROM OUR G. W. C.

San Antonio Texas, Feb. 23, 1882.

Since seeing you I have traveled over a large part of Texas; have seen a good many strange things, am well and have traveled nearly across the state by rail. Stopped at El Paso two days and then on to Abilene and stayed a week; then went to Coleman Co. and stayed a week, then by rail to Fort Worth and Dallas and to Houston and then to San Antonio, where we arrived this week Monday; this is a large place with a mixed population of whites, Mexicans and Negros; has some 12,000 inhabitants; is a terrible whisky cursed town; a great deal of drinking and gambling; two suicides this week. I have not found a Temperance organization yet in the State and they need so much work here in that cause. We have much work to do before we carry prohibition in this country but we must work the harder. Have not had the Rescue yet since I left; I wrote to P. M. at El Paso to forward them on, but they have not come yet. Change the address to San Antonio. I have been to a temperance Lecture, Miss Willard of the W. C. T. Union spoke here to-night in the Methodist Church to a large audience and she made a masterly and logical telling speech and after that we felt like going up and shaking hands with her and lo ! there were 5 Cal. Good Templars gathered on the platform, to wit; Bro. and Sister A. G. Clark, P. Grimes of Ventura, another brother whose name I lost and myself, and we all felt happy to be with the good sister. I know we all felt much revived in the noble cause; thought I would let you know that we still have an interest in our temperance work.

In F. H. and C, H, S. Graves.

Bad Little Girls.—Three little girls, whose ages range from 12 to 14 years, were locked up Saturday in the central station by Sergeant Reeves and Officer Hutton. The prisoners, altho young in years, give evidence of their depravity by their conduct in the cell. They wore their hair cut short and banged after the most approved hoodlum style, while their slangy talk would do credit to an old Barbary Coaster. The officers booked them for the Industrial school.—Chronicle.

We have about 4000 factories in this city for turning out just such material as that. And any family of respectable people who send their little girls to the corner grocery or saloon with a pitcher are very fortunate if they are not similarly debauched.

Benicia.—Brother Booth of Benicia reports an energetic crusade, undertaken to enforce the Sunday law there. A citizen's meeting resulted in the formation of a law and order club, under President John Lynch. A constitution was adopted, which declares the objects to be the maintenance of the Sunday law, the promotion of the best interests of Benicia and the suppression, as far as possible, of all immoral places; each member pledges himself to support and vote for only such candidates for city offices as will best serve the interests of the club, irrespective of political or religious party.

The Leag of Fiendom had been doing a good business, but have been much taken down; as usual, they attempted to procure the discharge from employment and put an embargo on the business of all who favor the Sunday law. The name of the President of the law and order club is hopefully suggestive, and it is to be hoped Benicia may keep right along till the devil is chained up, not only Sunday but every day.

HOME FOR ORPHANS

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS' HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searls, Nevada City; A. G. Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; RoberThompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

CONTRACTS TAKEN

To sow every town "knee deep" with Temperance Literature,

At 5 cents a head, without any labor on the part of society or individual, by means of our Class Papers and post-office delivery system.

We furnish papers (not tracts), send them out addressed, wrapped and mailed separately every month for a year to each individual, for 5 cents a year—or semi-monthly for 10 cents a year. Each paper contains 6,000 words, the matter of a $1.50 book in a year's issues, all for 5 cents—eighteen different papers to choose from, each for a special class of readers or special field of work. Thus for $5, one hundred persons can be reached every month for a year, and the individual or society be to no trouble distributing. Every one will subscribe if asked, when it is only 5 cents a year; or the expense to society for a whole town is trifling Sample of each, and full particulars for 10 cents. We publish Band of Hope supplies including weekly paper, library, badges, pledges, certificates, pledge rolls, etc., so cheap that penny collections pay expenses, (sample outfit sent for 25 cents, full particulars free), also a whole library of $1.00 temperance story books at 2 cents each, (samples of three numbers for 10 cents). Temperance posters ½ c. each; samples of six for 5 cents; many other supplies, all at prices suited to general distribution. Address,

THE LEVER

READ!! READ!!! What people say.

I am glad THE LEVER is doing well. I am its enthusiastic friend. It is bright, racy, and means business, and I like it and rejoice in its prosperity. MARY T. LATHRAP, Pres. S. W. C. T. U. of Mich.

I consider THE LEVER one of the very best temperance papers published. Its national circulation would do more to benefit the nation than a session of congress. GEO. W. BAIN.

Its outspoken declarations in favor of temperance and the right are its best commentary. MORGEAU S. CROSBY, Lieut. Gov. Mich.

THE LEVER is clear, strong, fearless and outspoken. It is ably edited, always on the right side: it ought to prosper and will. It should be widely read, and liberally supported. SAMUEL DICKIE, Prof in Albion College.

It ought to be in every family. I most cordially commend it. J. ESTABROOK, Prin. Nor. Dep't, Olivet College.

IT CONTAINS
1. Numerous editorials.
2. Market Reports.
3. A Weekly News Summary.
4. Stories for the Fireside.
5. The International Sunday-school Lesson, one of the best published.
6. Household hints, family receipts, &c.
7. Stories for the Boys and Girls.
8. Miscellaneous articles from the best writers in the country.
9. Serial articles from Hon. A. B. Richmond, the old lawyer, and others.

THE LEVER is independent in all things but neutral in nothing. It is the aim of the publishers to make it an educator. Believing that the American people are a thinking people, they appeal directly to the judgment and good sense of their readers. Their ultimate aim is the BALLOT. They urge men to vote as they pray.

When you call on any of these places please say you saw their Ad or card in the Rescue.

News comes at last moment that the Chief of Police of Los Angeles has published an order to arrest all violators of the Sunday Law. Merrill Lodge promises him every support.

No fight:—They were looking at the crowd in Sacramento St. the other day and wondered what was the matter; but it turned out to be only the usual rush to the W. C. T. U. Coffee House at No. 629. Go and see for yourself.

The most infamous conspiracy ever attempted is now sprung by the National Leag of Fiendom in Congress. The proposition to support the public schools out of the whisky revenue is an insult to the Nation that should make its authors infamous for all time.

The "Lever."—In addition to what is said in the ad. of the Lever in this number, the reader is assured that is a good wholesome and consistent paper; it is the best paper too for Michigan people in Cal. to take from their old homes.

A big debt is an excellent thing for every farmer and business man and working man to owe and pay interest on every quarter—if it is a good thing for the nation to owe a public debt. None but fools and knaves object to as speedy a payment and extinction of the national debt as can be made without undue pressure on the people. But it would be enriching to the national banks, to the stock operators and millionaires to keep the debt as it is—it would be a bonanza for them too if they owned all the rest of the people as slaves with a brass collar and the owner's name thereon.

Alcohol and Science, by Wm. Hargraves, 366 pages, is an epitome of what alcohol is and does. Every body who uses beer or wine ot to have it and every body who dont use either ot to get it to fortify himself with conclusive arguments to convince his neighbors of the folly of using these infernal poisons. Price $1.50, send to J. N. Stearns, 58 Reade St., N. Y., or J. B. Hill, 1041 Market St., San Francisco.

Seattle, Oregon.—Mrs. Carrie R. Jones, G. W. V. T. of Washington Territory ordering a copy of the Rescue for the Y. M. C. A. says the lodge meets with many obstacles in Seattle, but is at work steadily; appreciates the Rescue and is going to get up a club. The best time to do that is now; we want to hurry up the funeral of the licensed schools of vice and colleges of crime.

Captain E. M. Seaver, U. S. A., who was for some time in California after the closes of the war died recently at his residence on Rainsford Island, Boston Bay. His funeral took place Feb. 2nd. He was a prominent member of the Odd Fellows, a worthy soldier, a friend of temperance, and an interested reader and supporter and at times a correspondent of the Rescue. The news of his death is received with much regret and his friends here will sympathize with his bereaved family.

Look out for a grand filibustering scheme in Congress to secure the passage of the Logan Bill which proposes to harness the public school system to the grogshops and brothels. The whisky leag can expend many millions to bribe that bill thru Congress. Their plots have been carefully laid and no doubt every detail of the scheme has been carefully and cunningly prepared.

Subscribers this week: Soulsbyville, Davisville, Capay, Forest City, Gilroy, Portland (Oregon), Weaverville, Woodland, Empire City (Or.), Freeport, San Francisco, Cedarville, Wellington (B. C.), 1 each; Mrs. Stevens at Central Point, 6; Yolo (A. Pettit), 4; Sierra City (Th. Wright), 5; Lompoc (J. W. Webb), 2; Mendocino, 2; Henleyville and Chico (C. N. Goulding), 2. All told 34 only.

Wanted.—A good many people decline to subscribe for the Rescue at $1.25 a year, because it is a dry year and they cannot afford it. Now what is wanted is a list of all the people of this state, who, because it is a dry year, have given up spending $1.25 a month for tobacco. Some fanatic suggests that one page of the Rescue would contain all their names—and in 4 inch letters, too, he was mean enough to add.

The Dunkards, a religious sect of Germans are expected to go solid for prohibition in Indiana according to the Monitor Journal. There are "Omish" and Menonites and German Methodists there who are taking an active part for temperance. It is the infidel and heathen Germans who defy the law and have no respect for decency and virtue.

It is a good sign for the State of New York that the Living Issue, an excellent prohibition paper, (one of the ablest and most interesting of all the temperance press,) has 400 clergymen subscribers. It is $1,50 a year, but now offers to supply all ministers at $1, a year. Wonder how many N. Y. Good Templars are subscribers to it. The N. Y. Grand Lodge could well raise their capita tax five or ten cents a quarter and spend it in circulating the Living Issue.

Be sure to read "Historic Landmarks," by Dr. Richardson, the most eminent of living physicians, on the second page of this issue. You will understand from that how the valuable life of President Garfield was frittered away by the abominable fanaticism of his whisky prescribing doctors; as surely poisoned to death as if he had been daily dosed with arsenic or antimony. And when we know that so many of the wounded soldiers of the late war were treated with a similar barbarous ignorance, how many thousands of them must have been prevented from recovery by the fossilized malpractice of the army doctors.

Bro. J. J. Porter, of Modesto, has received for his Band of Hope the "Library of Universal Knowledge" which was promised for getting up a club for the Rescue. Owing to the failure of the American Book Exchange there was a delay in getting the books but they were obtained elswhere of a better quality and the librarian "thinks it is the best thing out."

The man who glories in the fact that he has not changed an opinion for 20 years, is virtually boasting that he has learned nothing all that time, and there is a danger that he never will. A stunted or distorted tree may serve some useful end, but a stunted intellect, a stake-limited mental progress, a screen-darkened soul, is a maimed specimen of creative skill for whose imperfections the Creator is not responsible.

The Chronicle is begining to advocate a government transcontinental railroad which would be the only legitimate, honest, certain and effective relief from the present utter spoilation of the people—and it is without question the only sensible way of solving the difficulty. With the means possessed now by the railroad companies, all regulating laws and railroad commissions etc. are as perfectly harmless to the railroad extortioners and as useless to the people as a single Chinese fire cracker soaking wet.

The Oregonian prints a letter from a Rev. Dr. Tucker of Kansas. But because it does not say that the stoppage of the sale of liquor increases drunkenness, because it tells what everybody knows to be the truth, the editor says, "a clergyman from the nature of his calling, can see but the best side, and cannot have that wide, practical knowledge possessed by others who have written on the same subject." But if the Rev. Mr. Tucker had lied and the Oregonian and the rummies knew that he lied to hide the facts about the effect of the Kansas law, they would all have said, "hear what this eminent divine of large experience says about Kansas; a clergyman has peculiar opportunities of observation on this point from the nature of his calling."

The Vancouver Register says the Oregonian company publishes a morning and evening paper: the Oregonian, which is the head of the concern, talks stoutly for whisky license and other popular frauds, and in the evening the Telegram, which is the tail, wags a very feeble wag for temperance.

Congress.—Mr. Joyce of Vermont asked a suspension of the rules which requires two thirds majority or unanimous consent, to enable the House to put upon its immediate passage a bill to appoint a select committee of five to investigate the liquor traffic and its relation to crime, pauperism etc. The yeas and nays were as follows. For the bill 107 Republicans, 16 paired Republicans, 5 Democrats: Against, 95 Democrats, 16 paired Democrats, 3 Republicans. This looks better for the Republicans and worse for the Democrats than might have been expected. The two thirds majority not being obtained the bill must take its slow course and is probably buried for this Congress. This idea of appointing a commission to investigate a matter that every body understands thoroly already, is like employing a committee to make a series of experimental tests to find out whether one hundred millstones thrown into the Hudson river in July would all sink to the bottom or only half of them. They might as well go straight for prohibition and put their batteries to work and keep them at work till the devil's flag comes down.

AN INNER COURT.

Men, who in the gilded room,
Pour the poison in the cup,
Serve the demon's lotion up,
To drive men's souls to doom.

Ask no jury what they think,
Ask no judge in power strong,
Ask no man if this be wrong,
To curse men's lives with drink.

Ask your judgement given within,
Ask your manhood founded high
Ask your conscience slumbering nigh
If sowing death be sin.

Ask the honor of your years,
Ask your soul's serenest deeps
Ask the love that in you sleeps
(Pitying woe and tears.)

Ask if woman's tears are balm,
Flowing through your ruthless doing,
Flowing down the track of ruin,
In pity ask—what harm.

Ask if virtue guides your hand,
Ask if this be noble deeds
Ask if this to Heaven leads—
If this be God's command.

Ask your futures lying near,
If men's hearts and souls and brains,
Be not greater than your gains
Oh, look ahead in fear!

Ask the Book that is divine,
Ask the heart that in you lies—
Ask if this be true be wise,
To curse men's souls with wine. E. E.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

VIII.—ALCOHOL vs. WATER.

Twenty-one years ago it was supposed that persons could live for a certain length of time upon alcohol, and one of the hardest nuts we have had to crack has been to meet this statement. It was very common to give to persons weak and feeble, wine and strong drink, and they lived upon that, as it seemed, so well that nobody could be convinced for many years that this was not good in certain cases of weakness and exhaustion and want of other fluid. As we have thot over the matter, the facts have come out, that what is most wanted by these starving people, that which keeps them alive, is not the alcohol, but the water that is comingled with it. This person who is said to take a bit of rusk, and with that so much gin and water or champagne, has not been living by virtue of the alcohol or spirit, but by virtue of the water that has been taken with that limited fare, and we have come to a positive conclusion and knowledge that a man may go on for days and weeks, and may live as it were upon himself, if you will simply supply him with a sufficient quantity of water. Take the case of the Welsh miners. They were placed in a cell, away from all the world for many days, and deprived of all food. If they had had as much as a few ounces of brandy, only an ounce per man, all those who are opposed to us would have cried out, "Behold what a little quantity of alcohol has done"; but, as if the experiment had been intended for the scientific development of our cause, there was not a drop of anything containing spirit among them, but there was in that dark cave at the feet of these imprisoned men a little spring or rill, and they laved at that, and drank it, and upon that they lived thru long trial. They lived comparatively well, and they came out almost unscathed—a proof, beyond any that could be brot to light by experimental research, that it is possible to live for a long period of days under the greatest imaginable excitement and anxiety of mind, in the greatest possible melancholy, on this one fluid which has been distilled in the rivers and in the clouds for our use and for our life. I have myself known an instance where, for fifty-three days, life has been maintained solely on water. To those unfortunate people who, for some reason or another, are unable to take food at all, and who can only drink small quantities of fluid, there is nothing so injurious as the administration of stimulants in any form. For months they will live on water and milk, and live a comparatively comfortable life, but touch them with this stimulant, make the waste go on faster, make their hearts beat quicker, and then directly they are as if they had had to perform a work of labor for which they had no strength. These people who are said to have lived on alcohol have in reality lived on the water in spite of the alcohol.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has done two acts of late, that will not be handed down as creditable to his record. One was undoing the good moral influence exerted by President Hayes, and making the White House a pattern grogshop; the other was the attempt to carry out Guiteau's policy in the appointment of Chief Justice. The appointment to a foreign embassy, of a man who could not get elected to any position in his own state, is consistent with the doctrines of a party whose sole motive in politics and patriotism is the division of the spoils among the spoilers.

GOOD OF THE ORDER.

The Grand Lodge at its last session amended section 4. of article III., By-Laws of subordinate lodges so as to read as follows: A Committee on Good of the Order, consisting of five members (three of whom shall be the W. C. T., W. V. T. and L. D., ex-officio), whose duty it shall be to conduct the literary and musical exercises in the Lodge-room in accordance with the rules and usages of the Order; and they shall also have charge of the music at all public meetings, celebrations, and on other public occasions at which the Lodge shall appear in regalia.

Thus a provision has been made for the appointment of a committee who, if they properly discharge their duty, may immediately tone up and vitalize the working of all our Lodges and make them great teachers and schools for the advancement of our cause. The three principal officers and two other members appointed by the W. C. T. ot to be competent to lead their Lodges in our great work. If they are not, then in the several lodges, who are? At every session, in the regular order of business, is called "Good of the Order." What is the usual response? Have you ever listened to the long sad sigh sent up by the hungry membership—hungry for temperance, intellectual, and moral food which our Lodges might and ot to supply. Unless somebody leads in the matter, the good of the order is left to accident with the usual result of no plan or aim. We know a Lodge that has welcomed this new Committee and is giving it a very successful trial. The W. C. T. appointed on the committee two of the very best and most competent members whom he also appointed W. R. H. and L. H. S's.

The lodge is opened on time and without waiting for those who are late; candidates are requested to be on hand at opening of lodge; initiation is had without delay; business is conducted promptly; cheerful and proper recess is given, and when the "Good of the Order' is called, the Worthy Supporters give to the W. C. T. a program which they have prepared with the aid and consent of the other members of the committee. This program is carefully prepared and thotfully adapted to the conditions and desires of the lodge, and for the advancement of the cause of temperance; it contains instruction, encouragement, good cheer, poetry, music and song which gives character and tone to the whole meeting; and makes it a warm hearted, generous, fraternal gathering worthy of our cause and order. Then there is further time for volunteers who are always moved to speak from the good texts suggested. And the lodge closes with the happy assurance that it has had a pleasant and profitable session. THE PINT OF ALE.

A Manchester calico printer was, on his wedding day, asked by his wife to allow her two half pints of ale a day as her share of extra comforts. He made the bargain, but not cheerfully, for tho a drinker himself (fancying, no doubt, that he could not well do without) he would have preferred a perfectly sober wife. They both worked hard. John loved his wife, but he could not break away from his old associations at the ale-house, and when not in the factory or at his meals, he was with his boon companions. His wife made the small allowance meet her housekeeping expenses—keeping her cottage neat and tidy, and he could not complain that she insisted upon her daily pint of ale, while he, very likely, drank two or three quarts. They had been married a year, and the morning of their wedding anniversary John looked with real pride upon the neat and comely person of his wife, and, with a touch of remorse in his look and tone, he said:

"Mary, we've had no holiday since we were wed, an' only that I haven't a penny in the world we'd take a jaunt to the village and see the mother."

"Would thee like to go, John?" she asked.

There was a tear with her smile, for it touched her heart to hear him speak tenderly as in the old times.

"If thee'd like to go, John, I'll stand treat."

"Thou stand treat, Mary! Hast got a fortin' left thee?"

"Nay, but I've got the pint of ale," said she.

"Got what, wife!"

"The pint of ale," she repeated.

Thereupon she went to the hearth, and from beneath one of the stone flags drew forth a stocking from which she poured upon the table the sum of 365 three-pences ($22.81), exclaiming:

"See, John, thee can have the holiday.!"

"What is this?" he asked in amaze.

"It is my daily pint of ale, John."

He was conscience-stricken as well as amazed and charmed.

"Mary, hasen't thee had thy share? Then I'll have no more from this day."

And he was as good as his word. They had their holiday with the old mother, and Mary's capital, saved from the "pint of ale," was the seed from which, as the years rolled on, grew shop, factory, warehouse, country seat, and carriage—with health, happiness, peace, and honor.

MORE OF RUM'S DOINGS.

C. J. Lansing, a lawyer of Eureka, Nevada, on the 2nd inst., shot his wife thru the head, causing her death, and then delivered himself into the custody of the Sheriff of the county. When interviewed by a Sentinel reporter, all he could say, in a phrenzied way, that plainly indicated his delirious condition, was: "Yes, I know what I've done; but all you can say is 'that Kit was drunk.' I've killed my wife." Yes, "Kit was drunk!" And he ought to be hanged by the neck, or imprisoned for life for getting drunk. This man Lansing was, we understand, a man of superior intelligence. So much the darker his crime. Several years ago, if we are not mistaken, he represented Nevada County in the Legislature of this state. When will men cease to put this devil of rum into their brains?

SANTA CLARA, Cal., Mar. 6, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—Enclosed find an editorial clipping from the San Jose Mercury. The Mercury is evidently awake to the fiendish influences of rum; but instead of denouncing those who sell it, he blames men for drinking it. Why, the law licenses the sale of rum, and it is folly to condemn men for buying, and leave the rumseller unmolested. There is a nest of rattlesnakes up in the canyon; a child strays that way and is bitten. How ridiculous to punish the child for being bitten, and leave the snakes unharmed, ready for another victim! The last question asked by the Mercury should read thus: "When will men cease to license this devilish business?

ELMER E. CAREY.

THE LOGIC OF FOOLS.—If people would take the time and had the will to think rationally upon the question of prohibition in Maine and Kansas, they would see at once that if the assertion of its failure in those States were true, it would afford the most withering indictment of the liquor traffic ever attempted. If it were true it would indicate more forcibly the devilish tendency of the liquor business and paint its fiendish atrocity in more startling colors than ever. It would say, if the thief factory of rum is once allowed to gain a foothold in a community or state, it so debauches and degrades and steeps in crime all who touch it, it breeds such a nest of venomous vipers—it roots vice and crime and nastiness so deeply and widely, that ordinary methods of abating a nuisance or removing a curse are powerless to restrain it. The determined opposition to law and the diabolical crimes which the liquor traffic has inaugurated to defeat or evade the law in those States, have proved that altho we can with hard labor, constant vigilance and much cost stamp out the plague in most places—we may have yet to resort to the rope, which no crime ever so richly deserved as illegal rumselling. If murder of any kind deserves capital punishment, deliberate, studied, open, merciless murder by wholesale, murder of whole families, men, women and children for coin is the first to merit a hempen penalty.

THE DIME COLLECTION AND THE W. C. T. U.

In 1876 the Dime Collection scheme was first tried in the State of California and resulted on the first effort in a clean $600. At the same time the adoption of the plan was strongly urged upon the G. W. C. T. and G. W. S. of every Grand Lodge in the U. S. and Canada, by circular and in many instances by private letters in addition. There came no response of disapproval but many of warmest commendation, but that was about all the effect produced outside of California. A little over a year ago, it was revived in this state and strongly commended to the W. N. C. T. U. for their adoption, and a memorial sent to our R. W. G. L. inviting the Order to unite with others in thus raising a general national literature fund. The R. W. G. L. by a very ill-considered and ungenerous action buried the scheme a thousand fathoms deep for the I. O. G. T., but the W. C. T. U. have put it into practice, and we shall very soon see them flourishing with a $20,000 income from this source, the most simple, easy, certain and effective mode ever presented for raising such a revenue. With the management and spirit of the ladies to engineer this enterprise, it will grow every year like a rolling snow-ball till the dimes will build a St. Peters Cathedral of Temperance in time. Last year a first attempt of theirs realized $459 for the W. C. T. U. treasury, of which California contributed $121. In 1882–3 it will be increased exactly in proportion to the effort made; ten times as many workers will produce $4,590, and ten times as many more workers, who can just as easily undertake it as not, can raise $45,900.

With a little generalship displayed of no high order at all, our R. W. G. L. could have taken up this scheme in 1877 which had worked so well on its first trial in 1876; and that body could now have been using an income of $100,000 a year from that source just as easily and certainly as it has managed to get into a purposeless and useless debt. Since the first engineering feat executed by our first parents in getting those fig-leaves into comfortable shape, down to the opening of the Suez Canal, there has never been so much fertility of invention, so much ingenuity of contrivance, so much masterly executive ability developed in any department of this world's activities, as has been displayed by the members of the various temperance orders and societies, in devising and carrying out schemes of pauperising the temperance treasury. The Good Templars of California have been simple enough to avoid the beaten track and the W. C. T. U. are going to keep out of it too. Therein are omens of success.

ANOTHER OF THOSE WOMEN.

Wherever the door is at all opend to the usefulness of women and the heathen taboo is removed which forbids her to "speak in meeting" or appear in public as the advocate of human rights and the friend of the oppressed, women appear upon the scene fully qualified to testify to the fact of their intellectual equality; proving it by their acts, not by their assertions.

Gifted, talented women are by no means limited to the area of the U. S., altho the better oprortunities afforded here have called them to the front in greater numbers. In Canada and England where the next best facilities have been accorded them, there are many grandly noble and excellent women engaged in the moral regenervtion of the Christian world.

England has lately had occasion to mourn the loss of one of these female apostles, Mrs. Postlethwaite of Stroud. A convert to total abstinence 40 years ago, led to think of it by the drunkenness of a servant, she soon became an earnest advocate of temperance, privately and publicly. Her first efforts were (most wisely) with the young and the Band of Hope, and in visiting schools and enlisting ministers and teachers in that interest.

From the introduction of Good Templary into England, she has been a zealous, active, unpaid worker, giving her utmost energies to its extension, and believing heartily that it could unite all parties and sects to free the world from its direst, sorest curse.

She was a busy writer, too, for the temperance press. A sketch of her life and work in the Watchword closes with a quotation of her own words, "I would plead especially with the women of England to be separate from a custom which is the prolific source of wretchedness, pauperism and crime, and nobly resolve that their homes shall be free from the seductive foe. Rest not satisfied with sighs and laments over the abounding drunkenness. Act, act in the living present; for God's sake, for humanity's sake; help us to get rid of moderate drinking, and drunkenness must cease. Your reward will be great."

How much more grandly and magnificently will the occasion of her reception in the court of Heaven be celebrated than that of any queen or empress that has ever lived on earth.

THE DIME COLLECTION.

* * * "But this being learned to a large extent thruout the work, we began to feel the need of more means, and Providence opened the way for both in the national and local work. The dime collection started last year thru the wisdom and generosity of the Good Templars of California, has proved to be just the help we needed, since it helped us to help ourselves. The possibility of taking public collections is limited, but the number of persons in many places who will give a dime for so good a cause as the use and distribution of temperance literature, is practically unlimited except by the number and persistence of the askers. Those who have tried it are delighted with the results. They have found it almost literally true that the dimes can be had for the asking. To facilitate this asking we have prepared a dime collection card to be given out by the local literature committee. The moneys collected on these are to be sent to our National Literature Department (54 Bible House), which returns one-half the amount to the local Union in literature of their own selection. This stimulates the use of tracts directly, and at the same time puts money into the hands of the national committee, to provide for the preparation of such literature as may be needed, and for means to bring it to the attention of the Unions.

This plan, adopted one year ago, has been carried out by many Unions, proving very satisfactory, and others are preparing to try it the coming year. It seems especially suited, among other things, to the use of juvenile organizations in obtaining the necessary supplies for their work. The local Unions of New York have taken the lead in amount, reaching the sum of $100. Massachusetts sent us $15.30 collected from the local Unions, besides which, six Unions sent $46, making a total of $61.30. Maine is commending the collections to her local Unions, and sending them the collection cards. The literature committee of Ohio commended the matter to their local Unions early in the summer, and other states are showing various degrees of interest. The amount thus far received is $459, of which $134 has been returned in literature to the local Unions.—Report of Julia Colman.

WHY SHE SPOKE OUT.

BY M. L. G.

The following is a true incident as related by a witness of the scene—himself an earnest temperance speaker.

At a meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held in a large, well known church in the city of P., a lady spoke, substantially as follows:

"My friends, most of you who are here this afternoon, know me. You know that I have been endeavoring to work in the temperance cause for some time, though hitherto I have never publicly opened my lips. And my friends, when you have heard my story, you will no longer wonder why I have come out with the temperance women.

"As I said, you all know me. I have long been familiar with your highest social circles. None were behind me in gayety and fashion. Many of you have been entertained in my parlors and at my table, and you know the wine-glass was never wanting in either. Perhaps some of you remember young Charley X. He disappeared from social life some time ago, but while among us, he was the most witty, most brilliant, most promising young man of our set. He was the life of the company, and I was glad to have him in my social gatherings. Presently I noticed that Charley seemed eager for the wine, and when I gave him one glass he was brighter than before, when I gave him two his wit and repartee were still more brilliant, and when I gave him three or four his spirits and vivacity seemed absolutely dazzling.

"At last one evening he took too much, and his brilliancy turned to foolishness. His behavior was ridiculous and mortifying. Next day I spoke to him seriously about it. 'Charley, my boy, be careful—don't let this occur again.' 'Oh, you needn't fear, madam, it never shall.' And Charley was a gentleman, I thought, and knew enough to control himself. But soon after this he was seen on the street—drunk. Charley had disgraced himself, and was no longer fit company for my guests. I ignored him, ever after. He was never again admitted to my house.

"After that I lost sight of him for a long time. In fact I had almost forgotten him, when, one day I met his mother face to face in the street, and she did not speak to me. I was astonished and hurt, and turning, I stopped her, and demanded to know why see treated me thus. She looked at me with unutterable misery and indignation, and said. 'You! you, of all women, look into my face and ask me why I refuse to greet you as a friend?' 'Yes,' said I, 'I do want to know why you pass me in this way!' Said she, 'Come with me, and you shall know.' She stopped a street-car, and we rode on and on through the city and out of it, till in the suburbs we came to a great building in spacious grounds. It was——Insane Hospital. We went in and passed through ward after ward, and down to the wing in which the worst cases were confined. She led me to a little grated door from which issued horrible yells. I looked in, and there, howling and tearing his clothes—a wretched maniac—I saw Charley X. And in his cries and curses, my name was mingled. He was cursing me, as the one who tempted him and taught him to drink. I fainted and was carried away.

"Friends, I went home to empty the house at once and forever of all our wines and liquors.

"This is why I enlisted in the temperance work, to do with my might all I can to atone for this awful thing. And were my case your case, you would do as I have done, you would stand where I stand, and you would speak as I have spoken."—Our Women.

A SUGGESTION TO LOCAL UNIONS.

The great need of our work is more systematic and persistent efforts to manufacture public sentiment. Our Unions do not yet carry out the simple, practical plans so often urged.

Let us beg you, dear sisters, to appoint a "Librarian" for the Loan Library. This lady should be ex officio member of the Executive Committee.

Let it be a part of the regular weekly report to ask such questions as—

Who has Judge Pitman's "Alcohol and State?"

How long has that person had it?

Have our physicians had "Medical Profession and Alcohol?"

Have the teachers in the public schools had "Alcohol and Hygiene?"

Have the Sunday-school and public school teachers any of our books?

What person has "Dr. Crosby and His Reviewers?"

Is Our Union on file at the public reading rooms and in the private libraries of our pastors?

Can we not secure the introduction of temperance books and papers in our various Sunday-schools?

Let this Librarian keep a careful record of all these points and others that may suggest themselves. She should also be authorized to invite doctors, lawyers and ministers to address the W. C. T. U. or the public on all the topics treated, giving as their speeches, if they will, an outline of the book read, and a statement of the thots it awakened in their minds.

In many cases it may be well to allow the Librarian to be also agent for Our Union, which should be presented at all public meetings. Let the distribution of literature in the audience also be under her supervision, and the editing of the colum in the weekly local paper, also the putting up of boxes in depots, markets, stores and workshops.

You will become more intelligent by spending a little time over these books and pamphlets yourselves, at local meetings, and the result of all this will appear in fortified and amended lives and conscientious ballots.

"God's great gift of speech," abused so long, must be wisely used to build up the cause which is a part of His Kingdom.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:
Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

J. W. WEBB.

COLTON, three miles from San Bernardino, has a very neat and well-furnished Presbyterian Church but 20 was all the audience that assembled to the lecture. It is going to be a railroad town of some note and size and ought to have a lodge.

LUGONIA, eight miles from San Bernardino, in another direction, is a place of great promise; some think it will be another Riverside. With good soil and climate for semi-tropical fruits, alfalfa etc., irrigating streams, very intelligent, sociable and clever people and no liquor selling, it is indeed very desirable. It has a good school and teacher, church and pastor and will soon have a new school house. To a temperance sermon in the morning and a lecture at night the house was crowded. After a good Sunday school, I organized a fine Band of Hope with excellent Supt,. Mrs. Seymour. A number of gentlemen, young and old, took the triple pledge. After the lecture obtained 17 names for a lodge but had to hurry on without time to institute. Mr. D. A. Shaw, an ex-Deputy, took charge of the list and I trust, ere this, Dist. Deputy H. C. Snooke has started a good, strong lodge. Mr. Craft took me to dinner at his most lovely Health Retreat, called Crafton. I know of no pleasanter place for invalids to stay at. He and wife are fine Christian people. Years ago he started wine making but soon found he could not consistently do so. Afterwards he contemplated distilling pure grape brandy, solely for medicinal purposes but decided to abandon the manufacture of intoxicants of all kinds and now dries and sells all his mission grapes. His name is on the application for a charter. With a strong lodge, the Band of Hope, vigilance and cultivation of a strong and universal temperance sentiment by means of meetings, lectures and the RESCUE and other temperance papers in every family, the sale of liquor can be kept our out till we get a chance to vote on Local Option or a Constitutional Amendment prohibiting all sale and manufacture of intoxicants. Bro. M. V. Wright helped me at the lecture and left an appointment to speak two weeks from that Sunday night. Here and at Old Mission he is after the enemy with a sharp stick. He is a preacher and teacher who fears nothing in the discharge of duty; and speaking for temperance he believes to be a duty. He hopes, eventually, to be pecuniarily situated so that he can give fuller bent to his intense desire to do more for the cause and order than he now can. I hope the new pastor is a temperance man.

RIVERSIDE is one of the most prosperous places in Southern California. Its orange groves and raisin vineyards are becoming noted the world over. It has a fine class of people continually recruited from the east. The public sentiment is strongly temperance, moral and religious; and yet a few saloons have been foisted on them. By a fair vote, the traffic could be ovewhelmingly voted out. The lodge, under the able presidency of Mrs. E. J. Davis, W. C. T., and with Dr. Hall, L. D., Revs. Charles Bulton, Baptist,—Cross, Congregationalist,—Colburn, Methodist, and I think by this time, that life-long temperance preacher, Mr. Dare, Universalist, and other influential workers, is doing well. A new comer, Mr. Gage, who has just built a fine block and gone into business, was initiated while I was there, and enters into the work as a citizen, a business man and a father, with great vim. The lectures were finely advertised and all the meetings admirably arranged. But for welcome rain, would have had overflowing house the last night and a large collection for the lecture fund. Notwithstanding the rain, they did exceedingly well.

ARLINGTON is a beautiful addition to this section. Notwithstanding the rains the handsome Presbyterian church was lighted and heated and a few persons present. They returned thanks for a half hour talk nd assured me of a full house should I return. Here there should be a lodge.

CHINO.—Brethren Fuqua and Hidden came 16 miles for me and I had a very pleasant time. Lectured Saturday night, then met in Subordinate Lodge and conferred Degrees. Sunday morning preached a temperance sermon and lectured at night, obtained a good, liberal collection, the second largest in the county. This must be put among the temperance places for both the parties who sold liquor have joined the lodge and thirsty souls if any have to go 15 miles to buy a drink. Next day went to Duarte and instituted a noble lodge of 30 with the best people in the settlement, a good proportion of young and old. Bros. W. D. Gould, Quinn and Graves were present and rendered valuable assistance. Spent one night with El Monte Lodge conferring Degrees; day following attended the best Dist. Lodge I have ever been at in Los Angeles Co. It is to meet next time at Downey.

NEWHALL gave a much larger audience than last time, good singing and attention. Hope to see a lodge here before long.

SANTA BARBARA.—Met with lodge, 51 members in good standing but small attendance. We mean to hold the fort. Reached home on Saturday after nearly 4 months absence and continual work. More welcome rain prevented advertised meetings on Saturday and Sunday. At this wriiing am preparing to go thru Ventura and Santa Barbara Counties.

W. C. KING.

After an absence from the field of one month occasioned by sickness I returned to Tulare Co. on Feb. 20th and first visited the school dist., known as Smiths Mountain; there was excellent attendance and interest at the meetings and 21 names were given for a lodge but the drought made it advisable to indefinitely delay organizing. On Friday eve I met the new lodge at Stokes Valley, and a very grateful surprise awaited me for in these few weeks they have attained a size and proficiency that are commendable. To indicate the zeal that rules—the week following Bros. Moyle and Boyd left home and pressing personal matters and traveled by team fifty three miles to attend Dist. Lodge. The meeting at Stone Corral on Saturday evening was well attended and the results will be reaped by S. Valley and Elder Springs lodges. The Sabbath was a rainy day but several days enforced idleness from such a cause would not be regretted. On Monday evening I found an earnest audience at Locust Grove school house and secured several names to aid in reorganizing the Farmersville lodge in this community, and on Tuesday evening 17 candidates were initiated into this lodge—officers elected and installed and the lodge began work again with encouraging prospects. Some hopes are entertained that a hall may be secured the coming summer. Journeying to Surprise I was not at all surprised to find the sickness that prevails in this valley raging to a degree that almost wholly broke up the meeting. Thursday found me at Dist. Lodge in Porterville. The attendance was large and the reports from various lodges encouraging. Tulare county now claims the "Banner" in lodges, and members having seventeen working lodges wtih an aggregate membership of 825. Six new lodges have been established since last meeting. No meeting at Rochford on Friday eve, cause—sickness. The wide awake workers of Noradel gave me cordial greeting Saturday and Sunday and sent me on my way to Frazier Valley Monday—where I found the sickness somewhat abated—and the lodge prosperous and determined.

Last evening for the first time since Jan. 22nd. I spoke in a church all my other meetings being in school houses. From this it may be truly inferred that I am visiting rural communities and in a sparsely settled country. It will also be seen from the above how general is the sickness and also how depressing the gloomy prospects that a severe drouth forbodes. From this cause I have not asked for a collection for the Home until last evening. At the close of services I organized a lodge with sixteen charter members.

The discouragements for this Spartan band are many but they manifest much courage and I feel sure will succeed.

Glenville, March 10, 1882.

WM. CROWHURST.

Forest Hill gave two good audiences and 10 were added to the lodge; after which at Michigan Bluff we were well received and 7 were added. Snow from two to four feet deep at these places, being on the sides of mountains, prevented any large work being done at this time. Sunny South, snow six feet deep, had to be omitted so as to reach Iowa Hill on time. At the latter place we had the pleasure of initiating 29 candidates. Then to Colfax, where we held a meeting for exemplifying the "work" of all the degrees; next night an open lodge meeting was held and the evening devoted to the Poets; third night Temperance was the theme, and quite an interest started, and we hope to continue the work then began at some future time. At Gold Run, we found the lodge alright and initiated 5 candidates and organized Armada Band of Hope, Miss M. G. Barrett, Supt.

At Dutch Flat two good night meetings were held, one meeting on Sunday forenoon, and a Band of Hope meeting on Sunday afternoon. On Saturday night we initiated several candidates after lecture; then the ice-cream, cake, etc., was served and after midnight all left feeling "It is good to be here." On Sunday afternoon, we initiated 13 children and 7 adults into the Band of Hope which now numbers 108. The Band marched in a body from their Hall, escorting the Lodge, to the church on both evenings. On Sunday night the church was literally packed and 53 names were obtained for the lodge. Business men and others manifested much interest and all seemed loth to leave. Enthusiasm prevailed and as name after name was given applause echoed and re-echoed through the church. At Newcastle, Penyrn, Ophir, Forest Hill, Michigan Bluff, Iowa Hill, Gold Run and Dutch Flat we found the lodges comfortably situated and meeting in their own halls. The halls were pleasantly furnished, carpeted, pictures on the walls, and all the lodges owning their own organs also. There are many good workers in these lodges, so many that it would be impossible to name any of them without perhaps doing the others injustice. Placer county is on the way to success in this cause. Hardly a place but what is supplied with good quantities of the David C. Cook literature, and at Dutch Flat a Literature Committee is getting all the "good things" and distributing them where they are specially adapted. There is only one lodge in the county afflicted with the dancing disease. What they need now is a good, efficient, thoroly organized Dist. Lodge, and then Placer County will be able to "hold the fort" and capture the devil and cage him where he belongs while the people make their homes happy and insure the permanence of their happiness.

Truckee, Nevada Co., March 10, 1882.

H. R. HUGHES.

Since my last, I have visited Salt Spring Valley, where Hope Lodge is holding out well. Sister Toud is a tower of strength to every good word and work. At Black Hills, had only a few boys out—the parents are asleep. At Lone Tree had a fair gathering but they are not ripe for an organization yet.

In Burneyville the people have determined to have a lodge started soon on a proper basis. They have the lumbar on the ground to build a hall, and will be ready to organize a good, strong lodge in a few weeks. We have had considerable rain the past three days, that has hindered our work, but it has revived the crops and cheered the farmers for they are now hopeful of good crops and a prosperous season. I am now bound for Mariposa and will take in the school houses between the R. R. on my return. Stanislaus Co. needs work in these school houses, and we ought to have 15 good lodges in this County to bless and save our young men from the power of rum.

COLUSA CO.

The District Lodge met at Maxwell, Colusa Co., on the 3rd and 4th inst. Six of the eight lodges in the county were represented; membership of six lodges 400. Lodges all alive and fully determined to de throne alcohol. This county is just begining to work in earnest. There will be a temperance mass meeting held this summer for the purpose of selecting a county ticket of good, sober men for office. I also hope that there will be a state ticket as well. I think the Good Templars of this state can elect a full ticket if they only set their minds to it, and by talking the matter up before the lodges, it can be accomplished. The District Lodge held an open meeting on Friday evening, and after J. H. Liening, D. D., lectured, a new lodge was organized at Maxwell with 19 charter members; J. K. Mapse, W. C. T. and L. D. The delegates all took an active part; all reported their lodge doing well, with a growing sentiment in their favor. It was unanimously agreed by all, that at our next meeting, to be held at Butte City, June 2nd and 3rd, that we must have R. W. G. T., Bro. Geo. B. Katzenstein, with us, as we intend to make arrangements for the forth coming mass meeting and election at that time. I need not remind the reader of the RESCUE that Colusa county is alive, as our action will tell for itself. I hope that all the counties in the state will take the matter in hand and call for a state mass meeting of delegates from all over the state. Hoping to hear from you all thru the RESCUE, I remain, Yours, J. B. HEWITT.

LOMPOC.

The Dist. Lodge at Lompoc recently passed the following resolutions:

"WHEREAS; There exists in this state an extensive and thoroughly organized league of conspirators against one of our most wholesome laws, therefore, Resolved, that it is the duty of all good citizens to aid the proper authorities in enforcing the law.

"Resolved; That it is the especial duty of all who desire to see the liquor traffic and intemperance driven from the land, to enforce the laws that prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage on the Sabbath day, and to this end we recommend the organization of "Law and Order Leagues," in each town for the purpose of enforcing said law.

"Resolved; That home protection is paramount to all other protection and we view with pleasure the rapid organization of 'Home Protection Clubs' in the East and we recommend the organization of such clubs in this county at once so that we may be able to hold the balance of power at the fall election.

"Resolved; That it is the duty of all Good Templars, and friends of temperance, to vote for no man for office, especially for the Legislature, who is not in favor of retaining and enforcing the Sunday law against the liquor traffic."

E. H. ELKINS,
ANGIS AYRES,
E. K. GREGGS.

GOOD NEWS FROM IOWA.—The prohibitory amendment is to be submited to the people. The vote was 35 to 11 in the Senate and 65 to 29 in the House. Another Kansas campaign is on the liquor combination's hands in Iowa.

THE TEMPERANCE ALMANAC is out for 1882 with its usual large amount of useful information and reliable statistics. Contains 72 pages; list of the leading societies of temperance, and has a capital department for the children—ten cents single copies or $1 per dozen. Send to J. N. Stearns, 58 Reade Street, New York.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

THE CHINCHA ISLANDS.

NUMBER NINE.

A sketch of these islands would be incomplete without some allusion to what has been the final result of the vast accumulation of wealth which they had so long hoarded for the benefit of Peru. Bribery and corruption became rampant; contracts to supply the army and navy were always jobs in which the government was lavishly defrauded. There was an army of hangers-on to every administration, who lived on the public purse; and if any president had ever attempted to economise by the discharge of the useless sinecurists who may have been one-half or three-forths of the office holders and public servants, he would have run serious risk of assassination or removal by revolution.

The Peruvian republic was afraid to trust its own officers or people to sell the guano for gold on the spot, for fear they would be bribed to give 1000 tons and only account for 700 or 800 to the government. So they appointed agents in Europe and America, giving them a monopoly of its sale on account of the government. A condition of getting an agency was the securing of an immense new loan for Peru, to pay floating debts and expenses and the gambling bills of the officials.

The agents had a large commission on the freight of all the ships chartered, and taxed the ships with heavy expenses beside; they could also render just about what accounts of sales they chose. In some ports, agents occasionally forced the captain to sign a receipt for freight on 100 tons of damaged guano, when he had not more than one ton of it; they paying him same time full freight; selling the 100 tons at $65 a ton, and marking it down as damaged and sold perhaps at $20 a ton in their accounts with Peru, pocketing of course the balance. In some ports the agents had mills in which they ground up rocks or sand or clay of the same color as the guano, and mixed it to the extent of 20 or 30 per cent, to cheat the farmers of their own country.

Several agents became rich by their agencies, and some of them have perhaps staid rich yet; but Peru was always becoming poor, poorer, poorest. There were said to be in the city of Lima, 7000 priests, monks, nuns, officials and attaches, male and female of the Catholic church (or a bogus imitation of that church). These people were of every possible shade of mixture, from African, Indian and Spanish ancestry; altho there must have been among them many worthy, honest, Christian people, the class was in very bad moral odor by the admission and assertion of their own countrymen; said to be the most unsavory of all in morals. Wine, cards, fandango, cock-fighting, bull-fighting and a debauched Sunday, made Peru morally, physically, religiously, and financially bankrupt.

As before stated, in 1875 Peru was trying to borrow 15 millions to help pay the interest on her debt of about 270 million which there was no hope of ever paying and no one intended to pay. The pretended discoveries of exaustless fields of guano were most of them frauds and the guano was yielding a poor return, being now of inferior quality, what there was left of it.

Then the absolute despotic republic confiscated the nitrate deposits in the Province of Tarapaca in its Southern territory. In the interior from 25 to 60 miles and perhaps very much farther from the sea, are found at an elevation of over 3000 feet above the present sea level, immense beds of nitrate of soda; said to be 50 square leags in extent altogether and to contain 60 million tons. But there is a good deal of guess work about this. This desert section seems to have been once a salt water basin and is thot by some to have been in the course of many ages elevated by volcanic agencies.

A bed of salt is found several feet in thickness, a part of which is supposed to have been changed by the chemestry of nature into nitrate of soda, and the change still going on; about 30 to 60 per cent of nitrate is separated by boiling the salt and subsequent processes. Borate of lime is also found in large quantities. In 1860 they shipped from Iquique 70,000 tons of nitrate, worth about 60 dollars a ton, and the trade has been largely increasing ever since.

Now here was a large source of wealth and the miserable government of Peru always taxed it but never developed the trade. Chilenos and Englishmen and German residents of Chili developed the nitrate production; men from Chili were sent to Peru to do the work at the nitrate beds. They drew their food, clothing and pay from Chili; Valparaiso merchants did all the business nearly and Peru collected the duties and gambled and got drunk on them.

In 1875 the despotism confiscated the nitrate deposits and promised to pay the owners who were mostly citizens or natives of Chili. Their promises were not worth ten cents on the dollar. They contracted with the Chili owners to grant them certain privileges for 25 years, of which they deprived them in 2 or 3 years, and injustice and violence to the citizens of Chili with a savage arrogance toward them, led soon to the war, which has destroyed the armies of Peru, captured all her fleet, stormed and taken and demolished all her forts, occupied all her seaports and devastated the country. After all this has been done, Peru, what is left of it, will not have peace, and Chili is obliged to continue the war to protect Peruvian citizens from Peruvian brigands; has to fight to keep the peace, as the Hibernian puts it.

Thus Peru, like California and Nevada, has used up in drunkenness and vice, the vast storehouses of wealth which the Creator provided, and is no better but much worse off than if they had never existed. We find everywhere that wealth misused is of no avail whatever to promote human happiness, but it is potent indeed to create human misery and suffering.

HOW IT CAME.

These stores of fertilizing materials have been of large importance; they kept 400 to 500 ships, manned by as many as 10,000 seamen, in constant employment for thirty years or more, and of course a great many thousands of laborers, clerks and dealers found their means of livelihood in disposing of them. Now it may be well to look at the manner in which this storehouse was fitted up and prepared and provided.

The whole affair came out of the sea water in this way. And the great Designer and Architect of the universe, if He ever does study out a plan, gave this one some consideration. The plan was matured many long ages ago; perhaps many, many thousands of years before man appeared upon the earth.

In the first place it was designed in the plan of the movements of the Ocean Currents which were carefully described a year ago in the RESCUE, that a current of cold water should come from the icy regions of the far south and bathe the western shores of Chili and Peru in a grateful coolness, without which doubtless the dry and parched and barren shores would have been unwholesome and uninhabitable. This cool current was as elsewhere a favorite and healthful resort of tiny fish of various kinds which subsist upon the vegetable matter to be found in the water. Similar fish a little larger flourished and increased in this same healthy and pleasant locality and fed and lived luxuriously upon the smaller and more helpless fish. Naturally a bigger fish festively tripped in and found the little fellows good eating; then a larger and so on, till by and by the large horse mackerel, as large as our salmon took up his residence there and grew and multiplied and all his appetites and desires were abundantly gratified.

Then probably a seal from a distance, looked in and saw fat living and opened a saloon on the coast and sent for his family to come and in time seals become abundant. Then the sea lions heard the news and not having to wait for a steamer and buy an expensive ticket, they waltzed right in on foot, and sea lions were soon barking and fighting and growling and calling one another names, on every rocky islet and every projecting point of shore from Cape Horn to the Equator; they fared sumptuously every day on fat mackerel and played with them, throwing them up in the air and catching them in their mouths as they came down.

Porpoises, blackfish and whales cooled themselves in this wholesome inshore current and spouted and rolled over and gamboled in the cool waters. From an early period in the history of the smaller fish the keen eye of the sea gull and the fish hawk and the diving ducks had observed the situation of affairs; and a hundred varieties of all these, came in and laid and hatched their eggs and their plans for colonization on the many islands. And they multiplied and lived in splendid style. Then the pelican and penguin and every species of animate being that could live on fish or fowl lived and died there for thousands of years. Undisturbed by destructive man they became incalculably numerous.

The seals, lions, penguins, pelicans, gulls, divers and everything that could get on land, died if possible on the islands and added their flesh and bones or feathers to the ashes of their ancestors. While alive they eat their fish there and left their bones in many instances and all these things with their egg shells and many eggs and their offal, altho reduced to very small dimensions when decayed to dust, gradually built up during the long patient centuries, a covering on the islands from 20 to 150 feet in depth. There was no rain to wash it away, but frequent heavy dews helped to pack the mass and cover it with an almost airtight crust which prevented the ammonia and other essences from escaping into the atmosphere; and thus every year's accumulation was sealed and locked up till it should be called for, away down the long avenue of the then future cycles till this nineteenth century. Some men who saw the enormous depth of the deposit laughed at the idea of its evident origin and declared it had been manufactured or created thus in the bowels of the earth and thrown up by volcanic energy. But that was very absurd, for there were eggs of pelicans found 85 feet deep at least. and remains of penguins also; proving that those two individuals had moved in very early and stuck very close to business ever since.

And there is nothing strange about the antiquity of anything; if we could peer back a million million years, there must have been just as many million million years before that as there are to be in the future. If these accumulations took place at the rate of only one-tenth of an inch in a year, that would make ten inches in a century and 100 inches in 1000 years and 83 feet in 10,000 years, which is a very small portion of infinite time.

These sketches have been hurriedly written on the spur of the moment, with the hope of affording our boys and girls and young people some useful and interesting information. Perhaps something more may occur to say, perhaps not. Will try to pump up some recollections of Peru yet. Somebody said that Lima was the paradise of women and the hell of donkeys. To tell anything of Peru and have no donkey in the story, is like having mush and milk with the mush left out.

BEER AND PROVIDENCE: A DIFFERENCE.

Perhaps you have not all considered or learned that as the Creator provided most abundantly for the birds and beasts, so he has made a most ample provision for us, to whom he has given dominion over all things in this world. It may not have occurred to you to observe that the birds and rabbits and cattle have no occasion to store up food for to-morrow, because there is such an abundance that they have no need of being saving; more goes to waste than they can use. If it were not so the birds and guinea pigs, etc., would have carried round a basket or a bag to stow away their spare victuals for to-morrow. For the bees and squirrels and beavers, and some birds, that cannot collect their food in winter, stow away an immense quantity in the autum to use in snowtime. And some cruel, ravenous animals, which prey upon the weaker ones, will bury in the ground or cover with leaves the remains of their dinner of to-day, to return and finish it to-morrow. Altho no animal ever tries to be a millionaire and store up a pile to last for two hundred years.

Then if God has so carefully and bounteously provided for the birds and beasts and given them capacity and sense enough to lay up store for their winters, has he not made far fuller provision for our needs and gifted us with much more sense and ability and knowledge to take all needed precautions against want or scarcity?

The earth yields every year a teeming abundance of grain and fruit and vegetables and flesh and fish and fowl and luxury for every inhabitant of this world to have plenty and to spare. The Creator evidently intended that every human being should be not only comfortably but plenteously supplied with food, raiment, shelter and comforts; only on condition that man shall till the ground or contribute his wholesome industry, not his slave labor, to the general fund of this world's work.

The most ignorant of men ot to have a little more intelligence as to how to provide the winter's food for themselves and their families than the most scholarly and scientific college-bred ant or bee or squirrel or wood-pecker, but many of them dont. The man has a thousand times the natural intelligence and capacity; but he drinks beer; the bee and ant and squirrel dont drink beer and they therefore get away ahead of the man in intelligence, tho naturally gifted with so little.

They sip the honey and enjoy the sweets and revel in the luxuries and rejoice in the sunshine, and lave in the pure, clear waters which reflect the glories of heaven, and live a life hymn of praise to the Great Fountain Head of every rill and stream and river of happiness that blesses this beautiful world.

Men seek their honey in beer, their comfort in nauseous and noxious tobacco, sing hyms to the prince of filthiness in the midnight cellar, where the sunlight of God is forever barred out; they pollute themselves in the fiery waters that symbolize the torments of sin-cursed souls; and their every cup of joy is turned to bitterness; the wages of beer and wine and tobacco and whisky are poverty, hunger, rags, and filthy, cold, desolate, comfortless, hopeless homes; sorrows, tears, woes, strifes, hates, fights, curses, blood and death; death with no ray of hope or comfort.

God gave us the bread and butter, the milk and honey, the strawberries and cream, the apples and peaches and oranges, the material for toys and pictures and books and furniture and warm clothing and beds and comely ornaments for our dwellings and all the things we call beautiful and lovely and precious—not to be enjoyed by a few favored ones, but to be in abundance for every one of his children—every one of his little boys, every one of his little girls.

But when the working man's child stretches forth his little grasping hands toward the strawberries and golden oranges, the beer seller raps his little knuckles rudely and says, "Strawberries for you indeed! a working man's baby! nonsense; pretty story; no indeed, the strawberries and peaches and the cream and the honey and the sweet and nice things are for the brewers and distillers children. Second hand last Saturdays cold hash is good enough for the sailor's baby and the laborers little boy and the stevedore's little girl and the mechanics children.

When the brick layers little boy and the car drivers little girl see the Christmas toys in the shop window and would be so rich and joyous and happy to get that little horse on wheels, the tiny railroad train or the little doll that shuts its eyes—no, says the beer seller; fancy toys for you indeed! pretty story!! pretty things for mechanics and laborers children!! not much. No, no, your fathers (and mothers too perhaps) drink beer, no toys for you; an old sardine box and an old oyster can with a string and a hole bored in them, are all the toys you want; good enough for you. The doll in silk dress and the spinning tops and the locomotives and the troop of soldiers and the little barking dogs and the toy china tea sets, are for the brewer's children and the corner beer grocery's children and for the children of the beer dive and the distillery.

God help the children of those who drink the beer and the wine and the other poison cups. Wont every juvenile reader of the RESCUE determine now to vow a lifelong warfare against the accursed beer which sends women and children and boys and girls and men to crime and shame, to jail and police court, to hospital and lunatic asylum and poor house, to rags, to starvation, to suicide, to death. Vow eternal warfare upon every accursed nest of infamy, every human slaughter house which brazenly defies God and curses mankind with its impudent V and its mug of hell-poison painted on its screened windows; screened to hide the filth and villainy within.

THE TWIN EVILS—TOBACCO AND ALCOHOL:

Some have called them the Siamese Twins, but none have told us who their father and mother were. In this article I simply wish to call the attention of the Bands of Hope to their relationship, and how the habitual use of tobacco creates thirst and an intense desire for its twin brother alcohol—Dr. Rush says, "that a desire is excited by tobacco for strong drinks, and these lead to drunkenness." Dr. Woodward says, "I have supposed tobacco to be a common stepping stone to that use of intoxicating liquors, that leads to intemperance." Dr. Jackson says, "The effect of tobacco is to lessen the intensity of the Vital Force"—and instances cases where the habitual use of tobacco produced depressing effects on the nervous system and made the appetite clamorous for intoxicating drinks to excite and stimulate. The same author gives the following statements from the report of the Chaplain of the New York States Prison at Auburn.

Out of 700 male prisoners, 600 were convicted of crime committed when under the influence of ardent spirits, and investigation showed that 500 of them committed their offenses when partially or ravingly drunk, and personal inquiry into their habits revealed the facts that the desire for strong drink had been awakened in them, (by the depressing effect of tobacco upon the nervous system) so clamorously as to demand gratification at any cost. Every child should know that the nicotine in tobacco is rated by physicians as one of the most deadly poisons.

One able physician says, "This habit is the cause of seventy different diseases, and the direct cause of nearly every case of cancer." Dr. Hosack says, "The alarming frequency of apoplexy, palsy and other diseases of the nervous system is attributable in part to the use of tobacco." Dr. Gibbons says, "Tobacco impairs digestion, poisons the blood, depresses the vital powers, causes the limbs to tremble, and weakens and otherwise disorders the heart."

Now this very depression caused by the use of tobacco, the weariness and lassitude added to the extreme thirst produced, leads thousands to become willing victims to the use of alcoholic drinks; for alcohol quickens the action of the heart, producing a false impression of revived strength, always followed by nervous depression, unless the doses are continued at frequent intervals and increased. Thus the habit becomes fixed, the person is a confirmed tippler before he realizes that he is in any danger.

The evils resulting from the use of alcohol are so apparent and glaring, the agony and suffering resulting, are so frequently brought to our notice that we are in danger of overlooking the alarming evils resulting from the prevalent use of tobacco. The churches of the U. S. A. spend $1,000,000 for missions in foreign lands, while American Christians spend $5,000,000 for tobacco each year.

The people of the U. S. spend $400,000,000 annually for a poison that impairs the physical vitality of our nation, breeds disease and lays the foundation for a sickly posterity.

It is essential that the dear children of the Band of Hope shall be so trained that they shall grow up not only pure in habit, as all rational beings should be, but so rooted and grounded in principle by knowledge of these facts, that they may be intelligent and ardent advocates of this reform; that must by the blessing of God, result in the emancipation of our nation from the blighting curse of these Siamese twins.

To my mind, it is evident that this question must be settled, and settled right, within a decade. I firmly believe that ten years hence, no gentleman will dare use either alcoholic drinks or tobacco; at the risk of losing that title; and that a slave of tobacco will be as much ashamed of the habit as a devotee of opium is at this day. The very absurdity of the custom! Think of a man spending his money for that which injures him physically, renders him repulsive to his associates, and completely enslaves him; and why?—because he is fond of seeing a cloud of smoke blown from his mouth, or likes the sensation of a huge quid of the poisonous weed rolling round in his mouth. It is time that sensible people looked this matter squarely in the face. "The times of ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men to repent."

M. E. RICHARDSON.

TRIP TO NEHALEM.

And here we are in Nehalem valley, where we stopped to rest last week. Oh, my! see the Manzanitas! How homelike it seems to us Californians. Ah! here is the beautiful Nehalem river. The tide is full and we have an easy pull up to Mr. Melson's. Dogs, dogs! Mr. Melson and his son, Lem, are great hunters; many a bear and elk have they captured by the help of those dogs. See the skins nailed up to dry. What is that big grey one with a bushy tail? Wolf? Ah, yes, a bouncer.

Yes, Lem, we're hungry, and this jerked elk meat is nice. We find it at every house in Nehalem.

How strange it seems that such large animals should be so plentiful in these dense forests. Some of them are as large as a very large ox, and their horns look like dead Manzanita trees. But come; we are not yet at our journey's end, for we must see Tillamooh Bay and the town of Tillamooh at the head of it. All aboard, then, for the tide is ebbing and will carry us nicely to the mouth of the river. Capital! here we have another walk of 8 miles along the smooth sand beach. We cannot resist the temptation to gather some shells. How quickly the surges wash our tracks and names from the sand! Oh, my dear friends, let us make some tracks on our journey thru this world that may never, never be washed away.

Every good deed is such a track, and tho our names may fade away, these blessed tracks will never be effaced. Let us make such tracks, clear and unmistakable all along our journey thru life. But here we are at Mr. Fuller's for the night. Mr. Fuller and his brother are solid temperance men, and tell us about their battles with the rummies in the village of Garibaldi near by. Hurrah for the brave ones that dare to do battle in our holy cause!

Morning is here, and we are off early so as to have the tide with us up the bay. A bad old boat for a 15 mile pull, but we are able for it; and away we go—pull and bale—bale and pull—songs, speeches, recitations make the old boat go lightly along. Here we land, and take a trail as a cut-off to town. There's a hotel; just the thing we want now. We enter. Ah! we're in luck. There, landlord, be assured of our appreciation of your good sense in leaving whisky out of your business. This sitting room looks as if you cared for the comfort and welfare of your guests.

Now we have done justice to a good lunch, and will take another good, long rest at the Larson Hotel.

T. J. ALLEY.

BOILED DOWN BY J. W. WEBB.

Bro. Rowland of San Bernardino, says his old lodge in Phenix, Arizona, has lately initiated its one hundredth member.

Sister Roges of Santa Monica, writes that the new Band of Hope is doing well.

Lizzie Webb, Assistant Supt. of Lompoc Band of Hope, reports its meetings more largely attended showing an increased interest.

H. S. Perkins, the great music man, author of "The Song Echo" and other works, is coming to this coast to hold musical conventions and concerts. I have put in a plea for a fair share of temperance songs in the Santa Barbara Concerts. Wont Good Templars at other places that he visits make a similar claim? He is a temperance man. Address his brother, O. A. Perkins, Santa Barbara.

New York Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., passed a resolution designating a certain day for all subordinate lodges to hold simultaneous meetings in favor of the Constitutional Amendment prohibiting the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors. Could not all lodges in California hold simultaneous meetings and organize Home Protection Clubs?

OROVILLE, Cal. Mar. 2, 1882.

ED. RESCUE.—To encourage others in the work, I have the honor to inform you that thru the efficient services of a committee appointed by Northern Star Lodge No. 207, headed by Miss Kate Leggett, whom the lodge elected superintendent, "The Oroville Templars Band of Hope" was organized with 79 members on the 19th ult., and at the meeting last Sunday added 23 new members, making a total of 102. So you may put them down as the 12th Band in the state with over 100 members.

W. S. Read, L.D.

The rituals and badges were supplied thru Mrs. Richardson—Gen. Supt. Juvenile Work.

Two incendiary fires in Alameda in one night. The liquor dens deprive men of all their manhood, all their money, all their character. Reduced by their folly to want, crazed with drink, suffering from hunger and cold, no home, no friends, despised, feared, distrusted, hated by everybody, it is a perfectly natural consequence that they should hate everybody in turn and take a grim revenge in burning up property and seeing other people stripped of what they have.

When all our present Band of Hope boys and girls shall perform the duty and use the privilege of voting you will clean out every nest of crime, every school of vice. And then the tramp that robs and burns property and often commits murder, will be a thing of the past and people can inhabit their homes and go out and come in without constant peril or any peril at all.

Bro. Beardsley of Savannah reports his Band of Hope increasing so that 75 badges dont go round. He adds that the exercises are interesting; but he need not have said that for when a Band doubles up its membership, we are sure it is being run in an interesting and profitable manner.

A few National Temperance Almanacs can be supplied at the RESCUE office; a 10 cent stamp will get one, and that is the cheapest way of remittance. The volume for 1882 is, as usual, full of good matter.

BOUND VOLUMES of the RESCUE (18th volume) for sale at $2.00, delivered at this office.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

DANGEROUS BREAKERS AHEAD.
WHISKY AND EDUCATION.
ALL ABOARD FOR PERDITION.

The most fiendish and villainous bill that ever came before a human legislature, is now before Congress. It is Senator Logan's bill to divert the national revenue tax on whisky from the reduction of the public debt and devote it to the support of the public schools; to be apportioned to each state and territory according to its population.

It is impossible to consider that bill a moment, without distinctly perceiving its brimstone origin. Its odor of the bottomless pit is overpowering, and it reeks of the depths of the infamy of the ring of patriots who would calmly consign this country to eternal perdition for half a mess of pottage.

The liquor fiends who have grown rich, and who expect to grow richer by selling the growing boys to the penitentiary, and the rising girls to the shambles of shame, who fatten on the woes and tears and agonies and blood of innocent mothers, wives, sisters, daughters, who laugh at the millions of children starved and dwarfed and depraved and damned for life by this murderous thieving traffic—this leag of human blood hounds and traders in human lives and human souls—have awaked to the fact that their murderous hands may be stayed and their hellish craft is in danger.

They take counsel together, and under the inspiration of their chief counsellor, satan, the archfiend, they purchase for coin the aid of a few senators and congressmen, and propose to the people of the United States to place the manufacture of whisky under the protection of the state and national and municipal governments, whence nothing, perhaps, but a civil war could ever dislodge it, if once established. And to carry their point, the whisky ring of infamous record, can afford to spend millions in bribery and corruption.

The tenderest point of all upon which the great mass of the patriotic people of this nation can be moved, is that of the sacred and perpetual maintenance of our public school system. A wise, salutary and politic measure, adopted by Congress and people, which would secure the free education of the children for all time, and place it beyond all danger of assault, if such a thing were possible, would meet the warmest approval of the greatest number of the good citizens of this republic.

Now, says satan, when our breweries and brothels, our distilleries and penitentiaries, our grogshops and jails, our beerdives and lunatic asylums, our wineries and poorhouses, our whisky groceries and police courts, our hotel bars and bankrupt sales, are all in peril, let us marry them in close alliance with some interest which the American people hold dear and will cling to with vehemence.

Their most cherished interest is their school system, and by a cunning movement we can connect that interest with ours so that they will seem to sink or swim together, and rather than sink both, the American people will keep the liquor curse afloat.

Another point was not overlooked; while sensitive on the subject of the school system, the people are equally sensitive to the onerous idea of taxes for any purpose: relieve them of a large portion of their school tax by devoting the whisky revenue to that purpose, and it will be a monstrous, uphill, hundred years job for the friends of morality and sobriety to get a prohibitory law, which will involve an immediate impost of a 30 cents tax on the $100 in San Francisco and elsewhere to meet the deficiency in the school fund, caused by the closing of the drunkard and pauper factories.

The Chronicle heartily indorses the Logan infamy and hopes all the Pacific coast members of Congress will vote for it and pass it, and on all moral questions the secular dailies are almost unerring guides. Churches and pulpits are uncertain at times; but the secular dailies and very much of the secular press, on questions of morality, and public policy, and finance, and decency, are unerring guides, if properly used; if you just see what they counsel in any of these lines and then do exactly the opposite, you will be exactly right so many times in the hundred, that the possible exception will only fortify the rule.

It is admitted that to a superficial, a skin deep observation, the bill may seem plausible. The Chronicle says: "If people will drink whisky the best thing to do, is to turn its revenues into the public virtue of education." But a body that is endowed with a reasoning soul and that unpurchasable with coin, ot to understand at sight, that this filthy bill is wholly Satanic and in the sole interest of the legion of drunkard makers and brothelers, and Sunday smashers, and anti-Americans, who aim for the pollution, and corruption, and destruction of this country.

Part of the scheme is to reduce the present tax from 90 to 60 or 70 cents; they ask a reduction to 50 cents. This reduction is to be a free gift to a traffic that could readily stand a doubling of the present 90 cent tax, and still, without adding a cent to the retail price, would yield a larger profit to the manufacturer than any other business in the country.

This free gift of 25 to 35 million a year to the public destroyers of the peoples lives is to be taken from the sum which has heretofore been devoted to the reduction of the public debt; and that reduction is to be stopped. That is a bid for the national banks and millionaire stock operators, whose avarice-blindness makes it appear to be their interest to keep a millstone of perpetual debt over the peoples heads.

Then the whisky revenue that remains shall be made to appear to every tax payer in the U. S. as a blessing to the cause of education and is expected to make every superficial thinker of them a strenuous advocate of licence and whisky to maintain the public schools.

In place of an apparent relief to taxation, it is a reduction in the taxation of an infamous, criminal murderous business, and the amount of that reduction is saddled right on to honest reputable business and property. The aid to the school system is taken from the peoples one pocket and put into the other, and the only summing up of the whole thing is that it is an infamous scheme of the whisky ring to add another robbery to their long list.

The bill is a lie and a fraud and an infamy, and those who abet or vote for it ot to be consigned to eternal obloquy; the cool scoundrelism of the proposition to educate the boys and girls of this country with the price of blood and the wages of their own prostitution and the proceeds of crime is appalling. If ever there was cause for public indignation meetings in every church and hall and school house from east to west to protest against the perpetuation of a monstrous crime, at this moment there is more cause.

If ever there was a demand for a sermon from every pulpit to rouse the people to protest against every word and letter of a horrible bill, there is a greater now. If ever a week of prayer and fasting and humiliation was in order, it is more so now. For there is good ground to believe that no act ever contemplated in Congress, was ever charged with such infinite mischief to the moral, religious, social and financial welfare of the people of this country; such as impudent assault upon everything decent and of good repute.

INGERSOLL.

The North American Review has shocked the sensibilities of tenderfooted people by publishing certain articles of Ingersoll's assailing the Christian religion with all the might that writer could bring to bear upon it. But these things were given a place with the understanding that they were to be answered by parties who ot to be as competent to defend as the assailant was to attack. And it would seem that both the Review and Ingersoll have rendered a service to Christianity in doing as they have done.

The prevalence of an idea among the young or the ignorant, that infidels have assailed the system of Christianity with arguments that cannot be answered, is a serious menace to the possible success and triumph of that system. Faith in Christianity cannot be stimulated or strengthened by the idea that the evidences of its foundations may not safely be investigated as all other subjects of uncertainty or differeuce of opinion may properly be.

A system which is believed by its adherents to be completely sufficient to finally drive all evil from the world, and restore or present to its people a condition of perfect happiness, should be competent to pass the strictest investigation. And if it fails we should look for something better and embrace it, if it can be found. The discoverer of a new scientific or astronomical theory asks to have it put on its trial. The inventor of a new machine puts it on exhibition first thing and invites criticism. The manufacturer of a stout wagon or steam plow is delighted to have the people turn out and thoroly examine all its parts. And it seems that a religion of 19 centuries should not desire to hide behind a screen.

History furnishes us with some very emphatic hints that when the Christian system used to be subjected to the assaults not only of hostile argument and abuse, but of fire and sword and direst persecution, it came out of the conflict purified, strengthened and more than ever devoted and confidently exulting in the absolute certainty of its genuineness. And we learn that where it had the opportunity and used the power to stifle enquiry and forcibly silence dissent, the churches became little better than the heathen abortions of religion that worshipped living beasts and gods of wood and stone.

The N. A. Review has now published in book form the series of articles refered to and their answers by J. S. Black and Prof. Geo. P. Fisher, 143 pages at 50 cents, and those who may have been under the impression that the assaults of Ingersoll have at all breached the walls of Christianity can send and get this work and see for themselves. Time has not permitted more than a glance at the contents, and no opinion is offered as to whether the defence therein is equal in talent to the assault, but it is confidently believed that a defence can be made which can annihilate all the sophistries of Mr Ingersoll.

There seems to be good grounds for believing that a learned and talented professor of Christianity who fights the cause of temperance and morality, who distorts the translation of the scriptures, falsely attributes to Christ and his disciples an impure example and the utterance of immoral precepts, and proves the Bible to give the lie to unmistakable science—is a much more prolific propagator of infidelity than 1,000 Ingersolls. The address of the N. A. Review is 30 Lafayette Place, New York City, N. Y.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

The Scott Act, or Local Option law, has been voted in St. John with the result of a tie of 1074 votes for and against; but as a scrutiny is in progress, it will very probably appear that the bribery party have used illegal votes. Both sides exerted themselves in a very spirited contest. Prof. G. E. Foster, the popular, eloquent and logical reasoner, was selected as the leading champion for temperance, and a Mr. Dodds was hired from Western Canada on the side of the brothel and the whisky traffic. An idea may be formed of the veracity of his statements when one item of the statistics he presented was the stupendous lie, that Maine in one of the years of prohibition had 17,803 convicts, when that was the aggregate numer of hours for which all the convicts there were sentenced.

One of the most potent weapons used by the leag of fiendom to defeat prohibition, was the advertisement in the daily papers and the frequent quotation on the platform, of the evidence of 33 reprobate or apostate clergymen of Massachusetts and Connecticut, who were quoted, truly or falsely, (some of them truly it is known), as declaring that prohibition largely increased drunkenness and crime in Mass., Maine, etc.

The following names are given in the Sun of the election day, February 23. Rt. Rev. Bishop Manton Eastburn of Massachusetts; Rev. C. F. Barnard 35 years in Boston; Rev. N. Adams, 33 years in Boston; Rev. T. Edson, D. D., Lowell; Rev. B. F. Clark; Rev. Leonard Bacon, D. D., 42 years in New Haven Connecticut; Rev. Geo. Ellis, D. D., Charlestown; Rev. G. B. Ide, D. D., 15 years in Springfield; Rev. G. Putman, D. D., 37 years in Roxbury; Rev. I. Todd, Pittsfield, 30 years experience; Rev. R. H. Neal, D. D., Boston 30 years; Rev. E. P. Wells and J. A. Bolles, D. D., Rev. W. Alger of Boston; Rev. T. R. Lambert, Charlestown, 11 years; Rev. Joseph Tracy, Beverly, 47 years; Rev. R. Peabody, Harvard College, 34 years, and 4 Catholic priests. Most of the utterances quoted from these men, were of 16 years ago; and they lugged in also Father Taylor, the venerable Bethel preacher, who, with all his excellencies was very erratic and fractious, and for some years before his death was childish. It is true that at one time he denounced the farce of prohibition as played then in Boston.

Strange they could not lug in one minister from or in the state of Maine; not one can be or ever could be quoted from there, probably, as unfavorable to prohibition.

There should be a lesson in the fact that the emmissaries of Satan, the sworn enemies of the gospel, the champions and feeders of a conspiracy of the vilest and meanest vermin that ever cursed the earth, made use of the published declarations of these ministers of the gospel last month in St. John, to perpetuate there the reign of crime und filthiness and drunkenness and the slauter of human souls.

And as we must believe that of the 2148 votes cast, one at least that would have gone to the other side, was gained to the devils side by the influence of these 33 ministers, tho many of them have gone to their account, we must concede that that fraction of the 3000 ministers of Massachusetts by their wicked and untruthful utterances of 16 or more years ago, fastened upon the people of St John in 1882 a continuance of all the horrors and crimes of the deadly curse of rumselling.

And if the rumsellers concede that the influence of 33 apostate ministers, derived from their position as ministers, is so powerful in fastening the curse of drunkenness upon the land, what must we believe would be the effect of a completely earnest, united effort of 65,000 ministers to remove that curse altogether from this continent.

SUNDAY LAW.

The Ministerial Union on Monday adopted resolutions proposed by Rev. O. Gibson, to the following effect:

Requesting every member of the Union to preach next Sunday, urging the enforcement of the Sunday law.

Appointing a committee of all the members, with one intelligent layman from each congregation to wait upon the Mayor, Chief of Police and Prosecuting Attorney, at 2 P. M. March 20th, to urge execution of the law and to assure them of support in doing so.

A sub-committee to call on all the daily papers and ask their favorable influence and to petition business men who advertize in said papers, to use their influence in the same direction.

Commending all temperance organizations of the city to make a thoro canvas of the city and have petitions signed to the executive city officers to do their whole duty.

Chief Crowley has ordered the police to prepare to enforce the Sunday law and says arrests will be made of violators next Sunday.

International Lodge of S. F. adopted a series of ringing resolutions endorsing the action above noted, and appointed a committee of five to cooperate.

LAW AND RUM.

On every possible occasion the whole tribe of rummies, makers, sellers of every infernal one of their poisons, keepers of every kind of doggery from the wine cellar up to the beer dive are demanding and imprecating the law for their protection. There are no people of any other class who are so constantly prating of law and rights and justice; no people have ever had the laws so frequently wrested and misinterpreted in their favor. But in every instance where a law in any town or hamlet or city or county has at all interfered with or restricted their liberty to commit ruthless wanton crime, they universally rebel against all law and become strictly and entirely outlaws.

The temperance people made not a moment's resistance to the judicial outrage perpetrated upon the local option law; they would have submitted to a decision if made nullifying the Sunday Law. They have never in a single instance rebelled against any law; but the Leag of Fiendom has rebelled against every law, including every one made at their own request and in their own interest. They have made three recent separate appeals to law on the Sunday question, and rebel against the decision they have appealed to; and proceed to declare with the utmost coolness and impudence, that they will not obey the law now, whereas they would boisterously have claimed legal rights and appiauded the wisdom and justice and righteousness and upheld the majesty of it, if it had so happened that the decision had been an unrighteous or a purchased one.

It is therefore in order to declare that a class of outlaws, who habitually and universally defy and resist and evade every law and use bribes and perjury and violence and arson to resist every honest righteous legal statute and whose traffic is a crime in itself—deserve no protection whatever from law and should never be allowed the privilege of an appeal from any court—such an appeal is a farce because they never submit to the decision if it is not exactly what they desire it to be.

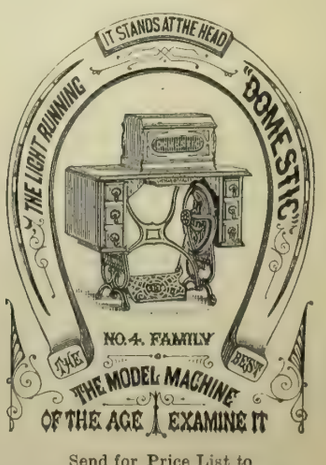
FANATICAL.

Our Union publishes (but with a note of non-endorsement), a letter from Dr. Geo. L. Ditson of Massachusetts, attributing intemperance in drink to eating flesh. He makes Ireland with its pork the most intemperate; but that is a mistake; both England and Scotland are more intemperate than Ireland is at home. Next, "England with beef and America with beef and pork" are Nos.2 and 3 on the drunken list. But he forgets that the millions of tetotalers in these two countries, are mostly flesh eaters. "Germany and France eat less meat, and there is much less intemperance." But the fact is, in both those countries, wages are very low and if less meat is used it is for want of money; and the intemperance is only limited by the lack of means to purchase it. The Doctor passed several seasons in France, and never saw but one really drunk person, and he was not a Frenchman. Whereas, to find ten Frenchmen anywhere in this country after noon, all perfectly sober, would be a novelty. "No drunkenness in Spain or Italy and very little meat is eaten," is the veriest baby-talk, Doctor. Drunkenness has so pauperized the people there, that lack of coin, and wages ten cents a day, enforce much unwilling abstinence in bloth flesh and drink.

Then the Doctor skips to India where he says they dont eat meat, and there he saw nothing but gentleness and kindness. He ought to know that the people of India were total abstainers by force of their religion; but when the English rumseller and the Christian licensing magistrate get among them and their heathenism is overborne by Christianity, these abstainers from meat make the most ready and willing of drunkards.

It is time we had done with the quackish twaddle of medical authorities of various schools, which attribute drunkenness to climate, race, providence, tight shoes, fur cloaks, sore eyes, cross babies, pork and beans, predestination, corns, toothache or anything but drinking alcoholic liquors. All such theories are the fruit of the most stupid and depraved fanaticism. Nobody becomes a drunkard but those who use drunkard making liquors; and any one who drinks beer, wine or gin, is as likely to become an excessive drunkard as any other drinker.

GIN-MILL INFLUENCE.



"One of the most unpleasant features of current politics is the tremendous influence held over public offices by a class of citizens whose public spirit may well be questioned, and whose perpetuity of power is a deep disgrace. These men are the owners of, in many instances, disreputable drinking saloons and vicious resorts and gain their influence through control of a low portion of the voting population, indebted to them for favors in keeping with their disordered lives. By the judicious use of whisky and the shelter of their miserable places, the proprietors manage to keep these followers under absolute command and practically train them like an army of soldiers, except that they slaughter the decency of the community with their ill-deserved votes for ammunition. These voting bummers are an important consideration to the candidate for office, and there is generally keen competition to secure their support at the polls. The whisky-manager is a shrewd bargainer, and in addition to the preliminary expense of business patronage the successful office-seeker often finds that he is pledged to put in position under him some more advanced instrument of the alcoholic manipulator. A thorough investigation of the public departments of this city would reveal this fact to an alarming degree. It is a sad reflection that a city with the importance of San Francisco should be so much at the mercy of selfish, conscienceless vagabonds, but immediate remedy is not probable. There is a deep lesson in our degraded political condition which the people will some day learn with heavy sorrow. The simple fact that a man keeps a saloon and is a political power among his patrons is no reason for his condemnation. * * * But it is notorious that many of the men who have a "pull" in the city offices are neither respectable nor useful."—S. F. Alta, March 12.

The Alta is congratulated and thanked for speaking out so much manly truth.

PERSONAL.—The RESCUE office has many calls from worthy friends, and however much prized such calls may be, no record is made of them. But an unusual one was made recently. A young man of pleasant appearance and good address entered, as a visitor from Trinity or Fresno Co. would. "Good morning, this is some one I have met?" "Yes," replied the visitor, "we met in 1875 in Independencia Bay in Peru." He continued to say he had been a very dissipated, reckless sailor who joined the Good Templars there, changing the whole current and tenor of his life at the time. His ship went to Limerick, where another vessel arrived from Independencia. The carpenter's wife came all the way from Cardiff, Wales, to meet her husband on the latter vessel and secure a little of his wages. Her only hope to get a cent was to meet him before he was paid off and lost his money or was robbed of it. Our friend was acquainted with her; "what has ever come over my husband?" said she, "he is sober; he used to be always intoxicated before leaving the ship to come ashore. He is a Good Templar now, was the reply, and that poor woman's heart was thankful; and she toted off her sober husband to her Welsh home in triumph. The young sailor was soon second mate; and has been so ever since; deposited his card in Franklin Lodge N. Y., and is now member of a lodge in San Francisco. Says, too, he has since met with a number of others who were among the reformed at Independencia, and all of them save one, were faithful to their pledge. There were 220 of them there on the roll, Good Templars and pledged total abstainers. That was a call that afforded special pleasure.

SAN JOSE.—Business men are more and more becoming subscribers to the RESCUE. They are learning that thru the temperance organizations and the temperance press they have their good-paying and able-to-buy customers; the RESCUE and the Good Templars are all the time increasing the number of such customers, and helping them to be still better buyers and better payers. Whereas, the whisky interests and the beer and wine makers and sellers, are every day reducing the good, honest customers of honest business to poverty, and turning good, honest citizens into loafers and frauds, whose custom is not worth a cent to any one but the beer-diver and the pickpocket. Mr. C. T. Settle of San Jose is a temperance man, keeps groceries, hardware and agricultural implements; and temperance men should pull together and help one another. The RESCUE will in future look out for the interests of its business men subscribers and advertisers, so far as saying a deservedly good word for them on all fitting occasions.

ONE of the most appropriate headings ever used over a newspaper article is found in the Champion, the Chicago organ of the Rum Thugs—It is, "Hell for Saloon Keepers." All in favor of their claim being allowed, say "aye."

NEW ENGLAND IMMORALITY.

Both the New York Independent and the Boston Watchman are quoted by the Chronicle as lamenting some statistics gathered by a Rev. Mr. Dike, and the Providence Journal—which show that in New England, especially in Massachusetts, "where the statistics are more complete," crimes against chastity have more than doubled in the past twenty years. In the expression, "with all the zeal expended on intemperance and all the legal restriction of licenciousness, the twin evils of our society, lust and intemperance, are growing lustily," the inference is indirectly hinted that prohibitory and restrictive laws and rigid moral training have produced this increase of crime or have not helped to arrest it.

It is unworthy altogether of the lofty mission of a religious journal to pass upon its readers a false and foolish coloring of a matter of such import. Many people will repeat what these papers have said in different words, but expressing the meaning which they have derived therefrom; they will say, "Well, you know, wherever they try prohibitory laws, down in Maine and Vermont, etc., the crime is doubled and the public virtue is degraded, etc., etc.

It was the bounden duty of these religious teachers to have said that in the license towns and counties of Massachusetts, as in all other places that license the sale of liquor, an enormous increase of crime must have resulted from the introduction of beer, and the increase of the sale of stronger liquors —notwithstanding that in many townships prohibition has much lessened crime. For no sane man believes that an effective prohibition of the sale of liquor could ever result in anything but a marked decrease of crime.

Both these journals know that Boston is full of sinks of iniquity, conspiracies against chastity as well as against honesty and every virtue, every one of them; they know it is surrounded with bathing resorts and picnic resorts and various other resorts, where women and men go at all hours of the day to private rooms in the hotels and swill beer to drunkenness; that the brewer and beer seller are filling every place in Mass. and every other State where they gain a footing, with assignation houses and beer gardens which are every time either brothels themselves or tenders for them or both.

And surely we ought to expect more common sense and more integrity from such journals than to indicate that prohibition of liquor and restriction of social immorality (which restriction dont exist at all in any rum license locality) are at all chargeable with increase of crime, or failures in diminishing it. It would be considered an indication of either very gross ignorance or insincerity or malevolence or all three, for a temperance journal to indulge in a lamentation that, altho they have been preaching the gospel assiduously all over New England, distributing Bibles, building churches, teaching Sunday schools and circulating the N. Y. Independent and Boston Watchman and other religious papers, the result of all these things is a doubling up of the crimes against chastity, classified under ten heads and every class doubled but one.

But it is not malevolent to make the suggestion that if the journals referred to had done the whole of a Christian duty in the temperance department of Christianity, the one great overshadowing root of all the evil that now defies control in our country, could have been materially kept in check.

It is monstrously unfair to fish up crime in the drunken resorts of Massachusetts and saddle it on New England to be used by the retailers of falsehood and scandal as a proof that prohibition in Maine is a promoter of crime. The two journals did not say that, but look out now for the whisky press and see if the Independent and Watchman are not for the next three months constantly quoted as authority for that very statement. Why not admit the truth that if crime has increased in the whole of New England it has increased in a wofully larger proportion in the States that are wholly covered with license.

Concluded.

LOS ANGELES, March 7, 1882.

When England put a stop to flogging women the planter raised the same cry, you are hurting our rights and spoke of asserting their independence of the mother country. When the assassin heard his death sentence for murdering Garfield he thot the judge was interfering with his liberty and like the free leaguer he has appealed his case, and why not? He only murdered one man—only made one widow, broke the heart of only one mother, made but a few orphans to mourn the loss of one father. But how about this monstrous Leag of Freedom. It makes the heart sick to think of their inhuman traffic. Is the nation blind? Can the people not see?——that this manner of raising money for the support of the Government is only different in degree and not in kind from the means which are used by the Russian Government. Nearly one half of their entire revenue is obtained from duties on liquors and the Government will not suffer this important source of wealth to be interfered with. The consumption of Vodki their great alcoholic drink is deliberately and publicly promoted by officials civil and ecclesiastical; any attempt to propogate temperance opinion is sternly repressed, it being the policy of Russia to support the Government by this means as it is an effectual manner of keeping her subjects below the level of the brute, and for this purpose it is grogshops and not public schools the Emperor wants. 2,000,000 sterling is spent on schools while he himself receives a salary of 2,500,000. There are people of intelligence in this country who think they are doing a good work by trying to make whisky carry this Government on its back, seemingly not being able to separate whisky from the drunkard and his family. Now he who advocates this theory is in duty bound to use his best endeavor to make people drunkards. Knowing at the same time that the drunkard robs his family of the necessities of life. Knowing that he will sell and pawn the furniture and clothing of his family for drink, knowing that the most miserable and desolate hearthstone on God's foot-stool is found beneath the drunkard's roof. Still he must let—aye, even urge and help—the rum fiend on its hellish march; when he knows that desolation, despair and death follow in its train. Such an inhuman and cruel theory of maintaining a government, may do for barbarous Russia, but not for Christian America. No nation can prosper with a terrible current of poison coursing thru its veins. Nations, like individuals, must have some honorable means of support. The same principle of action and preservation must be applied to both; for they are alike governed by the same laws; our institutions cannot and must not be maintained by such means; prosperity must not be measured by the amount of whisky consumed. Let the nation beware while it is to-day, for I tell you its prosperity will be measured by the prosperity of the drunkard himself.

OBSERVER.

A FILE of communications crowded out by absolute necessity have accumulated till out of date, and many of them that would have been given a place are now out of date. FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

David C. Cook's Sunday-School Supplies

ENORMOUS SAVING TO SCHOOLS.

There is usually quite as much money in selling 100,000 copies of a publication at 5c. as 5,000 at 25c., or 500 at $1.0, and we are quite contented to make prices on this basis. It is scarcely four years since we began publishing Sunday-school Requisites on the "Revolution Plan;" we then issued two publications; we have now 36, besides 133 Library books, 5 Song books, and a large number of miscellaneous Requisites. Sales last year aggregated over twenty-six million copies. There is not one of our publications but what during the four years has been either dropped in price or increased in size and quality, or both, besides expense of adding new publications, and every new school that patronizes us will help us to sell still cheaper. Has any other publishing house shown any disposition to do the same? We are not the least afraid of the cry of "cheap, cheap." There hasn't been half enough said in that direction, for we not only sell cheap, but even stand ready to give away our goods where a trial does not demonstrate to the buyer that they are BETTER than others, no matter how dear. We employ the ablest writers and pay for all MSS., using more original matter than any two other publishers in this line, having employed and paid nearly two hundred writers during the past year, besides seven editors. Nothing partisan or sectarian admitted.

Lesson Helps. Such helps as will secure the best possible results from the study of the lesson. (Sold on trial, and if not better, no pay). A special teachers' help and scholars' help in five different grades. Credit for lesson preparation on the day-school plan. The song service of the school utilized in the interest of the lesson, by the introduction of purely lesson songs written expressly for us, and growing out of the lessons. The whole series in perfect keeping. Lesson hymns are arranged to sing at sight (without rehearsal) by the introduction of old and new tune combination. Saves cost of song books. Scholars' helps, with music and all, cost but 4½c. to 11c. a year. Teachers' helps, 18c. to 30c. a year. Circulation over one and one-fourth millions. Samples, etc., free.

Sunday-School Papers. OUR PLAN. 1st. Put as much matter into each paper as possible by setting in 6 fine, but clear and readable type. 2d. Use only the very best articles from the best pens. 3d. Make attractive to the reader, by beautiful illustrations, attractive titles, frequent paragraphing etc. 4th. Make as useful as possible, introducing nothing without it has some good teaching in it. 5th. Furnish at prices based on an immense circulation. Fifteen different papers. Specimen copies free. No single subscriptions.

FIVE CENT PAPERS.—Four monthlies, at 5c. each per year, or 1¼c. per quarter, when bought in lots of five or more. Price 6c. each last year, now reduced to 5c., owing to increased circulation. Each paper contains as much matter as the average Sunday-school paper, and more than many.

SIX CENT WEEKLY.—The LITTLE LEARNER'S PAPER, a weekly paper for the infant class; costs but 6c. each a year, or 2c. a quarter, in lots of five or more. Other infant class papers cost from 18c. to 40c. a year. Contains the lesson with little lesson pictures: also one illustrated story in each number.

TEN CENT WEEKLY.—The SABBATH-SCHOOL WEEKLY, for the main school. In clubs at 10c. a year, or 3c per quarter. First issue began with April; contains as much matter as some papers costing 60c. a year, weekly. Five times cheaper than any other main school weekly published. A great boon to poor schools.

THIRTY CENT WEEKLY.—The WEEKLY MAGNET, an illustrated SERIAL WEEKLY paper for the main school. In clubs, at 30c. each per year, or 8c. per quarter. An immense thing—five times the matter of most Sunday-school papers (please count words); also a choice serial, running through the quarter. Nothing like it to keep up the attendance; invaluable as a means of doing good in the home, besides, in many cases, preventing the reading of bad books and papers. Other papers, with less than one fifth the matter, cost 50c. to 60c a year.

5c. Library Books. One hundred and thirty three library books now issued; one new one following each week. First 52 are reprints of best books written. Original price, from 60c. to $2.15, the whole 52 originally costing $57.45.

Volumes above No. 52 are partly reprints and partly written expressly for us. Each book printed without abridgment, in large, clear type, on good paper, bound in pamphlet form, wire stitched, and put up in a neatly engraved cover—a different style for each book. Far better for Sunday-school library use than the ordinary; being light and flexible, and wire stitched, will last three times as long. Being carefully selected beforehand, saves selection; books being numbered, and containing descriptive catalogue of the whole, saves numbers, catalogues and labels. A new book coming each week replenishes the library, with little trouble or expense. PRICES postpaid—Five or more books, 6 cents each; 10 or more, 5½ cents each; 20 or more, 5½ cents each; 30 or more, 5½ cents each; 50 or more, 5 cents each; 100 or more, 4¾ cents each; 200 or more, 4½ cents each.

7½c. Packages of S. S. Reward Cards. 25c. packages of reward cards for 7½c. New designs. No. 1. Poems for children, with pictures, glazed cards, assorted tints, 24 cards, size 3x4¼. No. 2. Scripture text, with picture and verse of hymn, glazed cards, assorted tints, 48 cards, size 2¾x3. No. 3. Beautiful chromatic card, floral design, short Scripture text. 64 cards, size 1¾x1¾. No. 4. Scripture text, chromatic card, 96 cards, size 1¼x1¾. No. 5. Miniature Scripture text, colored designs, 192 cards, size 7⅝x1¼. No. 6. Precept, promise and verse of hymn, beautiful chromatic designs, 12 cards, size 4¼x2¾. No. 7. Illuminated Scripture text and verse, beautiful chromatic designs, 12 cards, size 3½x1⅝. No. 8. The Lord's Prayer, floral border, glazed tinted board, 24 cards, size 3x4¼. No. 9. Ten Commandments, floral border, glazed and tinted, 12 double cards, size 4¼x6. No. 10. Band of Hope, triple pledge, beautiful chromatic card appropriately designed, 12 cards, size 3½x1½. Prices, sample package, 10c.; three or more packages, 8½c. each; ten or more packages, 7½c. each. Prices include postage.

Revolution Bibles. From "Oxford" plates. Teachers' Bibles, with concordance, encyclopedia, dictionary, tables, maps, etc.—most complete teachers' Bible extant, as low as $1.30, postpaid. Gilt edge, brass bound gift Bible, with clasp and tasseled book-mark for 60c. postpaid. Magnificent gift Bible, new pattern, round corners, etc., for $1.25, equal to any $1.50 gift Bible.

Lesson Commentary. On the International Lessons for 1882. Covering not only the lessons for the whole year, but the entire book of Mark, and accompanied by the "Revised Version Text," a revised reprint of the "Cambridge Scholars' Commentary." Prepared by G. F. Maclear, D. D., and J. J. S. Perowne, D. D. Price, 10c., postpaid. 5 or more, 9c. each; 25 or more, 8c. each. Book is put up in strong postal card covers. No similar work for less than $1. We also publish at same rates a complete Bible Dictionary of two thousand complete articles, 512 columns, and nearly 100 illustrations. The "Teacher's Compendium," nine books on teaching, in one; The "Ideal Sunday-School;" "Sunday-School Management" (a choice book for teachers); "Word Pictures," and "Normal Half-Hours."

Holiday Lesson Calendar. For scholars and teachers. 12 beautiful chromatic cards, 5x8 inches, one for each month, containing the International Lessons for the whole year, the Home Readings, Memory Verses, lesson pictures, verses and maxims tending to promote nobler living, etc. The whole making a beautiful and inexpensive present for the whole school, or for a class. Punched for hanging up, sold at the following marvelously cheap prices: Single calendar (the 12 cards), 10c. 5 or more calendars, 8c. each; 25 or more calendars 6½c. each; 100 or more, 5½c. each. Ready in December.

Alphabets. FOR CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR'S DECORATIONS, etc., etc., on good paper. Style 1 are printed in red. Style 2 in blue. Style 1 are eight inches long and proportionate width. Style 2 are six inches long and proportionate width. We send five alphabets of Style 2 for 25c., or five alphabets of Style 1 for 30c., 10 alphabets, five of each, for 50c.

Holiday Reward Books. Reprints of choicest $1 to $1.50 story books in holiday binding, 12 kinds from one to twenty-five copies at 12c each postpaid—25 to 50, 11½c. each postpaid—50 to 100 copies, 11c. each postpaid—100 copies or more, 10½c. each postpaid. Imported Holiday reward books from 5c. up to $1. Send cash for samples, stating prices.

35c. Sunday-School Record Book. THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL ENGINEER. Space for 50 classes, reports for each Sun ay in the year, cabinet of printing press helps, containing 96 blanks—all for 35c. by mail, postpaid.

HOME PROTECTION.

[Extract from an address by Col. Babcock before the Home Protection Association of San Francisco.]

"I despise that lack of manhood which seeks to avoid responsibility by silence, or which submits to wrong to avoid the trouble of resistance." He who retires into a corner and prays to the Almighty to strike a blow which he ought to deliver is a coward. But he who strikes a great evil full in the face and stands in his place to meet the consequences is a hero.

"Such is my hero, formed on the good old plan;
A brave and downright honest man,
Loathing pretense, he does with zeal and skill
What others talk of while their hands are still."

The one class takes up room, the other makes it. I don't wish to excite hostility, but when a prayerful, lazy man gets in the way of truth, justice and mercy and only prays for a cause he ought to fight for, I have something to say to him as well as the saloon keeper—I have no patience with a man who sits all day droning over his prayers and who if called upon to assist in rescuing the perishing, only says to me, "Let us pray for a thunderbolt to strike the liquor traffic." This matter is too serious for jest. A man was once sent to the war on the work of the Sanitary Commission and found on his first visit to the hospital a man very sick, suffering with intense thirst and tossing upon a miserable bed. "Shall I pray for you?" asked this prayerful man. "I dont care whether you do or not," was the reply, "but I wish somebody would give me a drink of water and a clean shirt." These were brought, the door was opened, the prayer was said and the man was saved.

There is a vast deal of egotism and no faith in the idea that a man may influence infinite power by a supplication without works. God does not even in his infinite goodness thus reward indolence. I have read somewhere that "faith without works is dead;" and I would like to add to it that a man of faith without works is dead to usefulness, and that his prayers are nothing more that the wild vaporings of a disordered imagination.

Evangelists come among us and work and pray for the conversion and salvation of sinners. They will never be without an occupation as long as saloons are licensed to entice our boys and girls to sin. It seems to me absurd to license a man to do all possible deviltry in our midst, and then pray to God to prevent him from doing it.

Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson of New York City, a noted philanthropist, when solicited to give money for the relief of the yellow fever sufferers in the South, refused to give a single dollar except for the purpose of discovering and removing the cause, and to this she gave liberally. The result was the organization of the yellow fever commission by the government, and the consequent discovery and removal of the proximate causes of that most dreadful epidemic. Why should we in this work exercise less judgment. Of little avail the prayers of a man to protect himself from the deadly miasms of a sewer he is too lazy to clean. And so too, of little avail the prayers of the church to stay the tide of sin, misery and death that comes from out the open doors of more than three thousand saloons in the city of San Francisco. What if we were to arm a horde of savages with the most approved implements of destruction, and license them to lie in wait on every corner and in unexpected places for the weak, the careless and the unthinking?

I fail to discover, tho I have often tried, to find a well defined difference between the moral right of permitting a saloon in the vestibule of a church or permitting one on the corner of the street, provided the power exists in the church to prevent either or both. To clearly define this difference, requires a refinement of logic of which I am not the master.

Suppose a being from the celestial world above should visit San Francisco commissioned to observe and report to the Master what he saw. I can imagine his memorandum would contain something like this:

Item 1, The people of San Francisco, particularly the wholesale liquor dealers, give liberally to support the church.

Item 2, San Francisco has a large number of churches and a great many eloquent preachers.

Item 3, Nearly all the inhabitants claim to be of good habits and of strictly moral character.

Item 4, There are over three thousand licensed saloons in San Francisco.

Item 5, The law forbids the sale of intoxicating liquors on Sunday.

Item 6, All the saloons and concert halls are kept open on Sunday and intoxicating liquors are sold and all the people know it.

Item 7, There is more drunkenness, debauchery, crime and utter wickedness in San Francisco on Sunday than any other two days in the week.

Item 8, There are several enterprising, truthful and strictly moral newspapers published in San Francisco, but they dont say anything in favor of the Sunday law because it dont pay.

Item 9, A large majority of the people dare not say anything against a certain law defying society called the League of Freedom, because their bread is buttered on the other side.

And as the Recording Angel receives the report I think I hear the Master say, "They sin against light and knowledge. Their prayers avail them nothing. Let them alone, they are joined to their idols. They are as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals."

CERES REDEEMED.

Stanislaus County boasts of one town in which a saloon cannot in future have an existence. Some years since a colony was established in Ceres, on the only ground not protected against the encroachments of the liquor traffic. Its support was largely derived from outside patronage, Ceres itself and the adjacent community being almost exclusively temperance in sentiment. All lawful moral influences have been employed to secure the removal of the only curse inflicted upon an unwilling people, no one being willing to purchase the property at an exorditant price.

The Good Templars have in the meantime accumulated social, moral and financial influence, and the accession to the Lodge of many prominent citizens, additional to those already members, during Mrs. Stevens' recent visit to our county, has at last resulted in the realization of a long cherished hope, in the transfer of the hotel to Bro. D. K. Woodbridge, W. C. T. of Ceres Lodge No. 9, who has purchased the entire property for $2,250, subject to total forfeiture of title to the Good Templars Home for Orphans at Vallejo, in case the premises shall in the future be used for the sale of intoxicating liquors.

On the evening of the 14th the Temperance Hotel of Ceres was publicly opened by its new proprietress Mrs. Connor, who gave public invitation to the Good Templars and all friends of temperance to meet at her house for the purpose of general rejoicing over the auspicious event. About one hundred and thirty guests assembled in response to the invitation, a large majority of whom were members of the Order. The occasion was one of unmingled pleasure, and the entire community rejoiced together in their deliverance from the liquor traffic. Score number 9 for Ceres, in the list of towns in California in which the sale of all intoxicating drinks is legally prohibited. The example thus furnished is one worthy of imitation, and it is hoped that other towns will fall into line under the banner of local prohibition, till a general prohibitory law shall be placed upon our statute books.

M. D. G., D. Dep.

THE SUNDAY LAW SUSTAINED.

Most of our friends have seen the report of the decision of the Supreme Court which indicates that Judges Morrison, Thornton, Myrick and McKee are in favor of a legal day of rest, and the other Judges, McKinstry, Ross and Sharpstein are not.

The power of the legislature to make a general law to close places of business on Sunday and except harmless and necessary callings like restaurants, bathrooms, etc., was affirmed and the same views set forth as were given by C. J. Morrison some months ago.

Judge McKinstry dissents as was to be expected. He says, "no form of religion is tolerated in California. It is the absolute right of every citizen to keep holy such days as his religion may sanctify." But he thinks because a Jews religion requires him to keep Saturday, all other religions must be estopped from legislation which would inconvenience the Jew. Which is a very charitable and Christian conclusion: that 99 Christians should surrender all their religions and legal rights, for the convenience of the one Jew—and perhaps the one whisky seller.

Judge Ross concurs with this, and Judge Sharpstein adds, "that religion must not be ignored in legislation;" but no religious legislation can be constitutional that does not except those who dont select Sunday as a day of rest. That property owners are prevented by a Sunday law from using their property as they choose, and that if we can make such a law we can legislate how to nurse babies, regulate the school, overlook the playground, prescribe what ballads shall be sung and a good many more such things, which may be dignified and logical to use in a judicial decision, but are too puerile and silly to repeat elsewhere. Suffice it to say, one is reminded of the popular and lucid and exhaustive argument used against the Emancipation Act during the Civil War, "Do you think I want my sister to marry a nigger?"

FROM ORANGE.

Bro. Webb's article on "Temperance Colonies in Southern California," reminds us that we fear he was laboring under some mistake, and your colums will probably be the best place to undeceive him. He told one of our members when he was in Los Angeles, that we must get the idea of cutting off from the G. L., out of our heads. Now, the truth is, we, as a lodge, have no more idea of severing our connection with the Grand Lodge than Bro. Webb has; but there are one or two members who have several times tried to "talk it into our heads" that that would be the best thing we could do.

Bro. Webb was doubtless misinformed by one of these "independents."

The cause is flourishing and with God's help will continue to "march on" in Southern California.

BOILED DOWN BY J. W. WEBB.

In canvassing for the Rescue one finds encouragement. In a letter from San Gabriel, Los Angeles Co. a good sister writes; the Rescue comes regularly, it is excellent. I have secured two more subscribers here. Yesterday I met a friend whom I induced to subscribe for 6 months. "See here, my Rescue has stopped coming and we miss it." "Well your time has expired." "Oh, well, send it along, we can't do without it." Yet another, "Do you know that Rescue is a splendid paper? "Yes, I've known and said so a long time." "Well I've been reading a copy occasionally and like it first rate." "A dollar and a quarter will bring it to you every week for a year." "All right, take my name." And I did.

Good news from the San Gabriel Band of Hope lately started by Bro. and Sister Will. D. Gould. They take D. C. Cook's quarterly lesson leaves, his 5 cent library books and are going at the work systematically. They feel much cheered by a few words of encouragement from our Worthy State Supt. Sister Richardson. So they write me. Bro. Stuntz is Supt., his wife Assist., and Prof. Stanton, Principal of the Public School aiding it all he can, and that is not a little.

WHAT DO YOU DO WITH THE RESCUE?

I seldom go into a Lodge Room and find a copy that is sent free placed on file for reference and for reading. This ought to be done. Let every one who reads this see if it is done in his Lodge and, if not, make a motion that a file be at once obtained and the copies regularly placed upon it and then put where it will attract attention and be easy of access. Reader, what do you do with the copy that comes to your house? (by the way, if not a subscriber send your name and $1.25 to the editor or, better still get up a club and send.)

In so many Good Templars homes stray, neglected copies of our paper are to be seen, doing no duty. If not kept on file—and they are well worth so keeping—don't light stoves with them but lend them round with a request that they be lent again after being read by those to whom you loan them. We continually hear of good being done by them. Our only hope of ultimate success is in getting people to read and think and talk about just such facts, figures and arguments as the Rescue contains. Many will thus be induced to take temperance papers, join our lodges, work, vote and pray for Temperance and Prohibition. So save your Rescues and hand the spare copies to neighbors or send them to public institutions, such as Reading Rooms, Hospitals, Asylums, etc.

J. W. Webb.

INFORMATION WANTED

Guadalupe, Mar. 6, 1882.

If you have not the facts at hand, please request your readers who have come from the different states, to inform you if their state has a Sunday law and if so is it enforced or respected. I can answer for Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, that all business is suspended on Sunday, even in the largest cities; or at least this was the case ten years ago when I left there.

The Sunday law will be one of the live issues at coming election, and we should all be prepared to discuss its merits intelligently.

Fraternally Yours, James Morse.

HOME FOR ORPHANS

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institu ion. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS' HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searls, Nevada City; A. G. Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; R oberThompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

READ!! READ!!! What people say.

I am glad THE LEVER is doing well. I am its enthusiastic friend. It is bright, racy, and means business, and I like it and rejoice in its prosperity. MARY T. LATHRAP. Pres. S. W. C. T. U. of Mich.

I consider THE LEVER one of the very best temperance papers published. Its national circulation would do more to benefit the nation than a session of congress. GEO. W. BAIN.

Its outspoken declarations in favor of temperance and the right are its best commentary. MOREAU S. CROSBY, Lieut. Gov. Mich.

THE LEVER is clear, strong, fearless and outspoken. It is ably edited, always on the right side: it ought to prosper and will. It should be widely read, and liberally supported. SAMUEL DICKIE, Prof. in Albion College.

It ought to be in every family. I most cordially commend it. J. ESTABROOK, Prin. Nor. Dep't., Olivet College.

IT CONTAINS
1. Numerous editorials.
2. Market Reports.
3. A Weekly News Summary.
4. Stories for the Fireside.
5. The International Sunday-school Lesson, one of the best published.

Janesville reports a Band of Hope at Lake View school house; 38 members.

Bro. Thomas Wright, L. D., writes from Sierra City, sending a club of 5 subscribers; that they expect to have a harvest of converts from an increased interest in the work of temperance there. Hall is to be refitted and more earnest, active attention to temperance literature.

A Mr. McGrath in Nevada some eight years ago stepped out of the Methodist pulpit and went to drinking and a few days ago shot himself handling a pistol while drunk. If this man had lived and prospered and all the 200 or 300 ministers who remained in that church on this coast had committed suicide, the argument would have looked pretty bad for the church. But as it has turned out entirely the other way, the chances seem to be about 300 to 1 against leaving the pulpit for the dramshop.

A good worker for temperance and for this paper closes her letter thus: "The pet lamb is bleating for its supper; the chickens are to be shut up for the night, the men are coming for supper and I do all my own work." But she has time to devote to temperance still.

How many people have sent for a dozen or twenty copies of Julia Colmans Pamphlet, Readings on Beer; only five cents and most valuable to convince people of the danger and folly of using that most swinish and filthy and brutalizing of all swills. Address her 76 Bible House New York City.

Last week it was accidently observed that the advt. of the Natl. Liberator has been omitted from the Rescue since Feb. 9. Probably the crowded edition of the 16th was the occasion; but nobody seems to know. It is now restored and every reader of the Rescue is commended to add that paper to his reading material.

Col. J. T. Long has arrived from Oregon after a very successful campaign against the enemy there. He opened fire in San Francisco on Monday evening at the M. E. Church, Bush and Devisadero Sts. Gave an eloquent address thoroly up with the times and in orthodox sympathy with the most advanced intelligence of the temperance movement. Every one who has the opportunity of hearing the Col. should avail himself of the privilege and be richly repaid.

Subscribers and renewals this week; Plano 1; Los Angeles (W. D. Gould) 2; Shasta 1; San Francisco 4; Maine 1; Tucson 1; Washington Corners 2; San Jose 1; Sonoma 1; Washington D. C. 1; Lompoc (J. W. Webb) 2; Pasadena 1; Hawaii 3.

See new advertisement of prohibition class papers. Let us make a boom, now, to get up to 10,000 subscribers before next Grand Lodge. There is no other weekly temperance paper to be had as cheaply as the Rescue on the terms offered, nor when a Mrs. Hayes picture is given for 20 subscribers at $1.25. And it is probably as well suited to the latitude of California as any other journal.

San Leandro.—Constable J. H. Shirley of San Leandro publishes in the Sentinel a statement that one T. H. Rantzau, was convicted on two charges of selling liquor to two infant sons of widows there. If the brains and hearts of the people of that town were not demoralized with tobacco and whisky, they would give an infamous thief who would do such things a half hour to leave town and in default hang him to the nearest lamp-post or tree.

"For several weeks past, we have been sending the Ballot to quite a number of Temperance papers published in the United States, and, as we would like to exchange papers with all of these, ask gentlemen publishing them to place the Temperance Ballot on their Exchange list."

The Rescue placed you there, friend, some time ago, and wishes you all manner of success. It is hoped Ohio that has slain so many prophets of the temperance press may relent and repent and allow the Ballot a decent contest with the rum fiend.

Rev. A. J. Compton.—An invitation has been received to attend and participate in the celebration of the Silver Wedding Anniversary of Rev. Dr. A. J. Compton on Friday evening March 24th at the Bethel Presbyterian Church at Woodbridge. Regretting that the limit of travel accorded by the business of this office, is only about a mile and that on special occasions, the Rescue and many of its readers will lend their warmest sympathies to the occasion and tender hearty congratulations and most kindly wishes and invoke a long continuance of the useful lives of the Dr. and his estimable partner and of the happy relations existing between them and their people and friends everywhere.

Please do not send to the Rescue any more for any books or leaflets that are not advertized to be for sale in the office of the Rescue. Rev. J. B. Hill, 1041 Market St., keeps all of the N. T. Society publications and the G. W. C. T. has the leaflets and lecture posters, etc., for the lecture business. Now if the only way to get these things from those two gentlemen was to go up there with a club and take what you want by force, it would be a real pleasure to thus accomodate one's friends, but there is not the least occasion for it. They will both readily attend to any orders, and are men of peace and good behavior. If orders for them are sent to this office, they stand a great chance of being overlooked and covered up and forgotten till too late. No books at Rescue office in future unless so advertized; not a possible moment of time to spare in that way.

Sold.—not long ago a communication came to the Rescue, the given name of the writer being that of at least two very excellent California girls. The writer said it was the first time she had written for publication but would like to practice. The item was so short and so tersly and sufficiently worded that a little note of encouragement was forwarded suggesting that she might with practice and under faithful criticism succeed in becoming a facile writer and might fill the place some day of a grandly useful woman. The note was kindly answered, but it said, you were slightly mistaken on one point, I'm a boy 18 years of age, six feet high and weigh 180 pounds. What in the world did they mean by giving him a girls name then, if he was going to grow up to that size?

A Martyr.—Mr. Bradlaugh, an atheist member of the English Parliament delights in getting himself expelled. Partridge every day finally nauseates a gourmand of partridge. If Mr. Bradlaugh would take an oath at all, and if his oath taken on the Bible or an almanac or a jack knife or a cross or a crescent, would not be equally binding, his conscience is altogether too dainty. When a martyr goes round begging to be kicked, he deserves what he asks for. Mr. Rothschild was a martyr in a similar way for some time. He was afraid to repeat the words "on the faith of a christian" in being admitted to his seat in the Parliament, because "it was not binding on his conscience." It may be true that such men have no confidence in their own truthfulness, except they are testifying under the strongest possible fear of immediate perdition; but it is very doutful whether an oath of any kind at all improves the conscienciousness of any body, who will descend to the infinite depravity and degradation and meanness of a lie, when under no bonds to speak the truth, but those of his own self-respect and native manliness.

The New York Tribune says: "Guiteau has made a Supreme Judge as well as a President, and he is not hung yet. There is not a humble being in the country so ignorant as to believe that Roscoe Conkling would have been awarded the highest judicial office in the gift of the President, if a cold-blooded assassin had not first murdered the President whom the people elected. For that horrible murder no man living is thot by the people of the United States more responsible than Mr. Conkling himself. This is the opinion held and expressed by multitudes in this section of the country ever since the 2d day of July last. President Arthur, to make his job complete, should now pardon Guiteau, and appoint him to a cabinet position. Without Conkling, there would have been no Guiteau the Assassin; without Guiteau the Assassin, there would be no President Arthur; and Arthur is an ingrate if he forgets the author and finisher of the dignity, honor and ineffable glory that now envelops the White House."—Geauga Leader.

While no one supposes Conkling intended personal violence to be done to President Garfield, or would have countenanced anything of the kind, it is an absolute fact that he inaugurated a most malicious and uncalled-for war against him which was entirely the cause of Guiteau's being led to commit his horrible crime. To reward and honor Mr. Conkling under such circumstances would seem to be a very gross breach of propriety and fitness.

MAN'S MORTALITY.

[The following poem is justly considered a poetical gem of the highest order. The original was found in an Irish MS. in Trinity College, Dublin.—Commercial Advertiser.]

Like a damask rose you see,
Or like a blossom on a tree,
Or like the dainty flower in May,
Or like the morning to the day,
Or like the sun or like the shade,
Or like the gourd which Jonah made;
Even such is man, whose thread is spun,
Drawn out and out, and so is done.
The rose withers, the blossom blasteth,
The flower fades, the morning hasteth,
The sun sets, the shadow flies
The gourd consumes, the man—he dies.

Like the grass that's newly sprung,
Or like the tale that's new begun,
Or like the bird that's here to-day,
Or like the pearled dew in May,
Or like an hour, or like a span,
Or like the singing of the swan;
Even such is man, who lives by breath,
Is here, now there, in life and death.
The grass withers, the tale is ended,
The bird is flown, the dew's ascended,
The hour is short, the span not long,
The swan's near death, man's life is done.

Like to the bubble in the brook,
Or in a glass much like a look,
Or like the shuttle in weaver's hands,
Or like the writing on the sand,
Or like a thought, or like a dream,
Or like the gliding of the stream;
Even such is man, who lives by breath,
Is here, now there, in life and death.
The bubble's out, the look forgot,
The shuttle's flung, the writing's blot,
The thought is past, the dream is gone,
The waters glide, man's life is done.

Like an arrow from a bow,
Or like a swift course of water flow,
Or like the time twixt flood and ebb,
Or like the spider's tender web,
Or like a race, or like a goal,
Or like the dealing of a dole;
Even such is man, whose brittle state
Is always subject unto fate,
The arrow shot, the flood soon spent,
The time no time, the web soon rent,
The race soon run, the goal soon won,
The dole soon dealt, man's life soon done.

Like to the lightning from the sky,
Or like a post that quick doth hie,
Or like a quaver in a song,
Or like a journey three days long,
Or like snow when summer's come,
Or like a pear, or like a plum;
Even such is man, who heaps up sorrow,
Lives but this day, and dies to-morrow.
The lightning's past, the post must go,
The song is short, the journey so,
The pear doth rot, the plum doth fall,
The snow dissolves and so must all.

IX.—ALCOHOL AS A MEDICINE.

Another point. I recollect twenty years ago that alcohol was considered the grand panacea in diseases. For my part, tho I had not then become a total abstainer, I had always stood aloof from this method of treating all descriptions of disease, and particularly diseases of an exhaustive kind, with large quantities of alcohol. In my student life I observed in cases of fever—and I had a great deal to do with it in the epidemic of 1847—that the free administration of alcohol always produced a great deal of excitement first, and then depression, and then sleep, and a delirium which did not seem to be very different from the delirium of drunkenness, and yet under the influence of masters who said this was necessary, a student was obliged to accept that that was the right treatment. Later in life, when I began to practice for myself, and found a very distinguished physician praising this treatment in all directions, and a number of disciples following this man, I was obliged to hold aloof, and become somewhat unpopular because I would not moderate the quantity of spirit that was being given; and then gradually the truth began to dawn upon me and others that the thing was all wrong, and thru the great efforts made by a very few men, in the first instance, what is the result?—that the whole of this heroic line of treatment of disease, not of ounces of spirit, but of pints per day, has been altogether given up. The idea of the brandy treatment of fever has passed nearly away. To Dr. Gardner, of Glasgow, we are greatly indebted. With a boldness which few men under the circumstances would have evinced, he eliminated these stimulants from his wards one by one. He found persons come there sick with the disease and die at the rate of thirty-six per cent. In from two to three years, by steadily and with truest conservatism reducing the quantity of alcohol until he brot it to a minimum, or to nothing at all, he gives results of deaths at the rate of eight or nine per cent. We are all struck by this, and you will find wherever you go—France has not caut the contagion—that this treatment of disease by large quantities of drink has passed into oblivion, never, I hope to rise again, and passed away with results at which every one wonders, with results in recoveries which never could have been hoped for if by a slow and gradual process from that which was—yes, I will say it boldly—vicious and dangerous, and even fatal, a different system had not been carried out. (To be continued.)

JOTTINGS.

BY WILL C. KING.

Beside me on the table and near at hand lies a book. Not a remarkable fact, surely, and quite a commonplace one to find its way into print, for one can not draw up to many center-tables in homes claiming respectability without finding more than one book within close reach.

But this book on which my eyes rest, with something akin to love, is something more than a mass of printed paper bound in cloth or calf or morocco, hence is unlike the majority of books one meets. Of all the production of man's brain or of his art none so truly reflect himself as do books.

As on this journey of life one meets and passes with a sigh, so is the average book taken up and laid down again. Speaking of eyes Emerson says, "The reason men do not obey us is because they see the mud at the bottom of our eyes." The mud of human nature is painfully apparent in most books. Shallow cisterns are they and the water sadly roiled if not absolutely poisonous. The least one knows of such books the better. Not of this number is this companion of my solitudes, this cherished friend who is ever true let who will be false. Every page is a well of water, deep, limpid and sparkling. In life the persons to be met who possess the one supreme quality that fits man to be a true friend—i e dependableness—are as the ratio of one to one thousand, so among books, this one is a treasure rarer than any that dark sea-caverns can boast. Although the author has been long dead, yet I think of him as a personal and public benefactor and would make a long pilgrimage to plant a flower by his tomb. This is but one among many books that I prize—altho none outside the book of books is more dear and I mention it to express my sorrow that a growth of love for light and cheap literature has driven works of real worth from so many tables and shelves.

As one friend is worth a myriad of selfish flatterers who only please and elate, so one book may and ought to be more valued and more helpful than a houseful of books. There are books and books, you know! A book that is qualified to become a part of myself—to which I may go in sadness and receive cheer, in joy and find sympathy, in prosperity and be warned, in adversity and find consolation; a book that grows fresher by often reading and the deeper my draughts the sweeter its waters—it is such a book I love to call my own and be made a nobler man by studying its pages. Hearing a youth express dislike to being alone "Not because I fear personal harm but because I get so lonesome," I felt for him sincere pity. Surely, the person who can not be absolutely alone with the heart and its God and yet find satisfaction in self-communion is deserving of pity; but the one who can not forget self—the whole world and the passage of time in the pure joys a good book affords is in as sad a condition.

HEREDITARY TENDENCIES.

TAMAQUA, PA., Jan. 18, 1882.

DEAR UNION:—A new department comes humbly to take its place among your work and workers. As above indicated, we in this department are to seek and to publish truths relating to the hereditary influences of alcohol and tobacco.

We shall find, first: That the appetite for these poisons is transmitted from parent to child, probably in an intensified (and humanly speaking) irresistible form; secondly, that the mother who imbibes alcoholic stimulants while nourishing her child, either before or after birth, is liable to implant this terrible appetite; thirdly (and taken altogether this is perhaps most horrible of all), parents who drink are liable to transmit to their children physical, mental and moral impurity and degeneracy, there being certain lothsome and destructive diseases of body and mind, and certain base and fierce passions which hold peculiarly intimate relations to the drink and tobacco habits.

It is vitally necessary and especially fitting that, as women, we should investigate these subjects. Any facts or incidents on this line, or any suggestions as to bringing the subject before all our Temperance women, will be thankfully received. We earnestly beseech your co-operation, friends, all. This is emphatically foundation work. Here we deal with the evil at its inmost source.

Yours for the war, M. L. GRIFFITH, Supt. of Dept.
—In Our Union.

Ten or fifteen years ago the practice of ordering ale and porter and port wine and brandy for mothers and nurses seemed to be almost universal in England, if one could judge from what is to be seen and heard in the seaports of that country. Perhaps one only of these drinks was sometimes ordered, but sometimes all four were ordered by the doctor for one nurse, and the nurse most cheerfully rendered a pious obedience to the mandate of the medical pope.

In one instance abont 20 years ago a little motherless infant was the subject of such treatment in Liverpool; the nurse was a young, stout, healthy woman, but she needed a liberal supply of all these things to enable her to do justice to the child. And as the family means were abundant and a more than Egyptian mental darkness upon such matters prevailed, her every demand was promptly complied with; the father and sisters-in-law and family conclave being determined that nothing should be spared to give that very beautiful little girl every chance of health and growth. It got along finely to the age of 6 months, then began to pine mysteriousiy and to have fits and spasms; at 9 months it was removed to a farm house in the country for change of air etc. Then it was thot to have disease of the spine and from that time till its death at 15 months it was in a constant agony of most intense suffering, a crooked, deformed, depraved looking cripple. And a stepmother who had appeared on the scene informed the writer that the bill for port wine and brandy for that infant, for every month it was at the farm house, was a good deal more than the charge for its board and attendance. And the way all this came to be known to a stranger, it was the last dying request of that infant's mother that her seafaring friend of several years acquaintance should engage and her family should consent that he should be the especial guardian and adviser and friend of her little orphaned girl.

We shudder at stories of human sacrifices in Africa but how infinitely more cruel are the infant sacrifices where medical men make such barbarous and murderous prescriptions.

THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U

ITS AIMS AND METHODS.

The officers of the W. N. C. T. U. present the following: * * * *

1. The auxiliaries of our National Woman's Christian Temperance Union are found in every State and Territory of the Republic. These are formed of Christian women representing the most active forces of Church, Home and School, in their relation to the temperance reform.

2. Our lines of work include at least thirty distinct Superintendents and Standing Committees, ranged in the order of growth, under the following departments: Educational, Evangelistic, Social, Legal, and Hygienic. Under these heads we have the Juvenile and Sunday-school Temperance work; Scientific Instruction in Public and Private Schools; Circulation of Temperance Literature; Efforts to Influence the Press; Gospel Meetings; Temperance Bible Readings; Prison, Jail, Hospital, and Police Station work; Temperance Work among Railroad Hands; Young Women's Work; Evening and Industrial Schools; Friendly Inns, Restaurants and Reading-Rooms; Drawing-Room Meetings; Relative Statistics; Relations of Temperance to Capital and Labor; Legal Work, (including Petitions); Day of Prayer in Week of Prayer; Sacramental Wine, etc., etc.

3. * * * In Washington, at our last convention in October, where 233 delegates represented 33 States, the following was adopted:

"Believing that it is the part of wisdom to place Temperance legislation upon the firm foundation of Constitutional Law, both State and National, that shall prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages; and recognizing the fact that the varying conditions of communities must, in large measure, determine our line of action, wisdom dictates the do-everything-policy, viz: Constitutional Amendment where the way is open for it; Home Protection where it is the strongest rallying cry; Equal Franchise, where the vote of women joined to that of man can alone give stability to Temperance legislation."

A "Committee on Franchise" was also appointed to "furnish advice, instruction and assistance to States that so desire."

The animus of the Washington Convention was to recognize the individuality of the States in working along this line, so as to harmonize with the fact that while New England and the West have emphasized this branch of work, the Middle and Southern States have generally stood aloof from it. * * *

5. We appeal to all intelligent well-wishers of Christianity who would see the homes of this country protected and its dram shops overthrown, to send us financial help. This will not be used to pay salaries, but chiefly to extend our organization and to circulate temperance literature.

BRAZEN.

Some few weeks ago a local journal heralded, with a flourish of trumpets, the advent of an agent who was coming to Placerville to poison and pauperize and brutalize its men and debauch its dauters if possible, with a new brand of rat-poison called Davenport whisky. There were on one page some half-dozen or so of complimentary editorial notices of the new agent of death and debauchery beside the standing advertisements; and the style of the welcome accorded to the drunkard makers special revivalist, and the blessings promised as sure to follow from the consumption of his patent brothel-agency exhilarator, reminded one of the jubilation of the religious press which heralded the advent of Moody and Sankey to this coast.

The people of Placervillie were congratulated on the prospective privilege of being laid in the gutter with such an inspiring beverage, dispensed by such a graceful, pleasant, jolly, gentlemanly messenger of hell as was the coming Oscar Wilde agent of the whisky ring and messenger of their august father of hoof and horn celebrity.

One would have supposed that every householder of the county would have suddenly dropped his support of a journal, that dared to enter the home of his loved ones, in the garb of a filthy, slimy serpent, whispering words of debauching temptation to his sons and dauters; commending an agency of drunkenness and beastliness to his sons; lauding to the highest before his innocent dauters the pet and prime and chiefest agency of harlotry; coming into the house of its patrons, hissing with a message of purulent rottenness telegraphed to them strait from the bottomless pit and hot from the furnace of eternal shame.

But they did not resent it, so far as known; the visits of the advertising agent of drunkenness and filthiness were continued no dout as usual. The mothers, however, did not as a general thing enthuse with the joyous anticipation of an active whisky revival, nor welcome the accursed beverage. One of them gives her idea of the welcome as follows:

ECHOES.

What sound breaks the stillness that rests on our hills,
And wakes the wild echoes that slumbering lay,
Tis the song of the "freemen" made free in the "mills"
Where the soul is ground out, leaving nothing but clay.

And the shout so triumphant "It comes, oh, it comes!"
They tell our sad hearts, is a welcoming cheer
To a new brand of whisky, that's sent to our homes
With a menace of death to all we hold dear.

Come mothers and echo the merry refrain,
To the song of rejoicing that rings on the air.
What! nothing but tears and a moaning of pain,
Tis an echo that answers a song of despair.

Come wives, whose affection your wrongs cannot shake,
For your echo we wait, for your truth makes its worth,
What! pleading and prayers! what a discord you make,
It's the wail of a dirge, not an echo of mirth,

Sing, sister, your companion of childhood's bright years,
Has passed into manhood with heart all aglow.
What! a head bowed down, and a passion of tears!
Your echo is voiceless, o'erladen with woe.

Come God's little children, perchance you may hail
With an echo of joy this jubilant strain;
What! crying for bread! with a heart broken wail,
That's an echo of hunger and sorrow and pain.

Then whence are the echoes responsive to be?
Since nothing but discords will answer their song,
Ah, the strings of their harp, in wild riotous glee
Are swept by the fierce tyrant-spirit of wrong.

And the angel of melody, pure as a dove
Shrinks appalled from such music, its woe strikes her dumb,
And her beautiful echoes stirred quickly by love,
Will die in her bosom, ere wakened by rum.

Placerville, Feb., 1882. C.

A WORD FROM THE COUNTRY.

How can people inform themselves on the question of temperance and have no temperance literature in their homes? They might just as well try to run a farm without machinery. I am always anxious for the day to arrive when I can get my RESCUE. I think the temperance people of California have cause to be proud of their official organ; it is ably edited, on good paper and splendid type; it is full of good, sound moral reading matter; one paper is worth the subscription for a year. Every man and woman in favor of temperance ought to subscribe for it; keep it before your children; try to get your neighbor to take it, and if he is not a temperance man, the RESCUE will soon convince him that he ought to be, if he reads it every week. I was making some remarks in a temperance meeting, made up of all classes, and I challenged the audience to find anything in our temperance literature that would lead them or their children astray. I told them if they would, I would subscribe for the RESCUE for them for one year. Temperance people! look to this question of spending your money for reading matter. Do you support papers that tell you and your children and your neighbor where to go to get the best brand of old Kentucky whisky or optimus grape brandy or the best three year old wine, and tell you those places are respectable, and the men that keep them are gentlemen and ought to be patronized by our men and our boys? so they can send them to states prison or the gallows: do you patronize such papers and then look at the temperance cause and say, "I do all in my power to advance this great moral question? dont some of you pay three and four dollars for just such papers? and then when you are asked to take the paper that advocates your principles, you say that you cannot afford it. What could the very best general in the world do in a battle, if his soldiers were always aiding tho enemy; if the temperance people want to win this battle of temperance against alcohol, they must use their means as far as possible, in spreading temperance literature all over the land; it is the very best and the cheapest reading matter in the world. At the reduced prices, every family in the land ought to have it. This is our strong hold. With such papers as the RESCUE and Liberator, and David C. Cook's excellent publications, we can do everything; without them we can do but little. Rally to the support of our temperance literature, and the battle is won as sure as the world exists.

JOSEPHINE DOAN.

THE CURSE OF DRINK.

The appetite for strong drink in man has spoiled the life of more women—ruined more hopes for them, scattered more fortunes for them, brot to them more sorrow, shame and hardship—than any other evil that lives. The country numbers ten, nay, hundreds of thousands of women who are widows to-day, and sit in the hopeless weeds, because their husbands have been slain by strong drink. There are hundreds of thousands of homes scattered over the land, in which they live lives of torture, going thru all the changes of suffering that lie between the extremes of fear and despair, because those whom they love, love wine better than they do the women they have sworn to love. There are women by thousands who dread to hear at the door the step that once thrilled them with pleasure, because that step has learned to reel under the influence of the seductive poison. There are women groaning with pain while we write these words, from bruises and brutalities inflicted by husbands made mad by drink. There can be no exaggeration in any statement in regard to this matter, because no human imagination can create anything worse than the truth, and no pen is capable of portraying the truth. The sorrows and horrors of a wife with a drunken husband, or a mother with a drunken son, are as near the realization of hell as can be reached in this world at least. The shame, the indignation, the sorrow, and the sense of disgrace for herself and her children, the poverty, and not unfrequently the beggary, the fear and the fact of violence, the lingering, life-long struggle and despair of countless women with drunken husbands, are enough to make all women curse wine and engage unitedly to oppose it everywhere as the worst enemy of their sex.—Dr. Holland, in Scribner's Monthly.

ED. RESCUE, I dreamed I was in a prayer meeting and I saw a christian get up and commence his prayer in this way; oh blessed Lord, I know that intoxicating drink is the cause of more sin, and crime than any thing else, but oh Lord, if thou wilt let me sell my grapes to be manufactured into intoxicating drinks for a few years, until I get a little more money, then I will bless thee. And in the mean time I will partake of the Sacrament, in remembrance of what thou hast sacrificed for the sins of the world. Then I saw the preacher with paper and pencil in hand figuring, and he said, my brother thou hast said wise things, for a man cannot enter the kingdom of Heaven without money.

J. D.

THE Interior says that the Signal is on the wrong track in asking for a new party. Will our excellent neighbor tell just what should be done then with the increasing number of voters who are pledged to support no man who will not give public assurances of his opposition to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors and his determination to work for the total suppression of the liquor traffic? It will not do to say that there should be no such voters, most noble Interior. They are already here by the thousands, and are come to stay. Can the Republican party hold them? Can the democratic party meet the conditions? If not what then but a third party? —Signal.

The Mrs. Hayes Picture is being worked off as fast as possible, but only 12 copies can be made in one day. Those who have been waiting for its appearance need not be alarmed; it will come and that picture is going to stay. No occupant of the White House has more deserved the reverence and honor and love of the American people than Mrs. Hayes. That beautiful portrait ot to adorn every lodge room and temperance hall and friends of temperance should have it as a household treasure. Send $5 to Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, New York City.

ABOUT THE JUBILEE.—I saw in your last issue something about having a jubilee in San Francisco for the temperance children. Why not have it in Redwoods next fourth; it would be encouraging to our little temperance workers; wont some one plan it for next fourth? JOSEPHINE DOAN.

RESTORED.—Of the lodges reported at the last meeting of the Executive Committee as being delinquent by reason of not having forwarded quarterly returns for the term ending October 31st, six have since reported and been restored to the list of Lodges in good standing. The Lodges thus restored were numbers 142, 173, 394, 436, 453, 466.

CONCERNING LECTURERS.—It should be generally known, and correspondents will save themselves much vexatious delay and trouble by remembering that all Grand Lecturers are now under the absolute and exclusive control and direction of Bro. Robert Thompson, who has been appointed Superintendent of the Lecturers, by the Executive Committee. Bro. Thompsons addresses is No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco. The G. W. S. is constantly receiving urgent requests for lecture work here and there, as well as telegrams requiring immediate replies etc., which cannot be answered and can only be referred to Bro. T. "A word to the wise" should be sufficient.

PARKERS HISTORY OF THE I. O. G. T.—This handsome and valuable cloth bound, 311 pages, volume, is on sale at the G. W. S. office, at the uniform publishers price of $1,25. For the purpose of introducing the work and practically aiding the publishers; it is proposed to offer fifty copies for sale in clubs of not less than five, at one dollar a volume. Any one sending five dollars will receive five copies, by mail to any address. Communications and remittances must be addressed to the G. W. S. and no order will receive attention unless accompanied by the coin. Remember the offer is limited to a disposition of fifty copies. First come first served. Get up your clubs and forward immediately.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh B. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

C. N. GOULDING.

My last letter was from Red Bluff, leaving there on the 4th came to Chico. Visited Samatarian Lodge that evening and Sunday evening 5th, commenced my labors in this (Butte Co.) by addressing an audience in Bidwell Hall that numbered not less than 1,000. Arrangements had been made for a Union meeting, the clergyman of all the churches being present with one exception Rev. Burroughs, pastor of the Baptist Church, (a revival meeting had been in progress for some time in that church and it was not deemed advisable to discontinue them.) Monday and Tuesday 6–7th found large audiences assembled in the hall to hear what might be said regarding Temperance, and while there were no very striking demonstrations in favor of temperance, still the general result was good and is now being manifested by applications for membership in the different lodges of the City. On the 8–9th lectured in Nord, the lodge here is "weak" doubtful if it can be revived, still it may be done. On the 10th went to Greenwood the Lodge had arranged for a dramatic entertainment and presented very creditably the temperance drama "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," receipts $90. On the 11th a large audience turned out to hear my lecture this lodge is doing well and numbers nearly 100 members, they have practically absorbed the lodge at Durham. 12 and 13 lectured in Biggs had arranged to visit Floral Lodge at 3 P. M. 12th but a funeral prevented. Biggs has quite a number of saloons, one of them the worst that can be imagined but our Lodge there is battling manfully and making their influence felt. Had a large audience Sunday evening and but for the storm should doubtless have had a large audience Monday, it was deemed advisable to give up Nelson, 14th and I returned to Chico for District Lodge on the 15th. A fair attendence some 25 delegates, and a larger number of visitors, all lodges reported gains in membership, general good feeling prevailed and a determination to fight on, was manifested. A resolution was passed asking the Trustees, and Board of Supervisors (of the towns and the county) to raise the price of license, to the highest figure allowed by law, should this be done it would close up many of the lowest class of saloons not only in Butte Co. but throughout the State, the proceedings closed with a large public meeting in the

I. E. Church. The ladies had prepared (what they alled a lunch) but what was in reality a magnificent upper to which all were invited at the close of the ecture. The supper room and lodge room was rowded and eating, singing, music, etc., formed a not npleasant feature, and was a grand closing of the Dist. Lodge. On the 16th came here (Gridley) ectured the 16th and 17th to large audiences. The odge here is "gently sleeping" am in hopes it can be awakened and will see what can be done on the 12th of next month. Bro. Bateman of Marysville, was present at our meetings here and insisted that I should go to Marysville on the 19th (Sunday) but deemed it advisable to go to Cherokee, as announced but will meet with the Yuba and Sutter Co. District Lodge at Wheatland on the 31st in the mean while will endeavor to fill my appointments as best I can owing to high water, mud, and bad roads.

A TEMPERANCE COLPORTEUR IN THE FIELD.

After several years of cogitating, consulting and planning to get some good, reliable brother to take a vehicle and a supply of RESCUES, National Temperance Publications, D. C. Cook's books, papers, cards, pledge rolls and illustrated posters, etc., and make a thoro canvass of all the lodges and as nearly as possible of the whole neighborhood, from house to house, in a large and populous territory, I have at last succeeded. He has experience in canvassing, is an intelligent and ardent Good Templar and Band of Hope man; therefore no tobacco user, a conscientious Christian, and I venture to prohecy that very good results in a continuous stream will be heard of as flowing from his patient, unwearied labors. I will furnish fuller particulars soon. Meantime, will not other parties (notably Enterpise Lodge at Guerneville for Sonoma County) think the matter over and start such a plan elsewhere? Start it and make it appear feasible, and substantial help will be volunteered. One leading brother has just volunteered to be one of ten to present the colporteur with $10 as soon as he obtains 100 subscribers for the RESCUE in the county which he will first canvass. We want also to furnish him with an abundant supply of tracts, leafiets, etc., for gratuitous distribution as he goes from piace to place.

Yours for the "knee deep" sewing of temperance literature in Cal. J. W. WEBB.

One of the best and steadiest set of employers and employes in the wagon and blacksmith business is that of Messrs Von Doren and Lehman in San Bernardino. A number of those working there are either Good Templars or abstainers and I obtained five subscribers to the RESCUE there, and many good wishes for success.

Tobacco is being preached and lectured against specially. When I was in San Diego, Rev. A. W. Bunker, Pastor of the M. E. Church, delivered an able and pointed sermon en the subject one Sunday night to a large congregation, and it was well noticed in the local papers. Now I see announcement of a lecture in the Petaluma Congregational Church by Dr. M. F. McTaggart, against the "noxious weed." It is a good sign to see the subject increasingly ventilated. At so many of the public schools I visit and address, the teachers either whisper beforehand, "Wont you say something about using tobacco?" or else return thanks afterwards that the subject was not overlooked.

Bro. King reports organizing at Bakersfield "Kern Island Lodge" on the eve of March 18.

Wm. Crowhurst will canvas Nevada county as soon as arrangements are completed.

SMOKING IN THE ANTEROOM.

About the last thing that a Good Templar should do, who cares anything for his own and the Order's respectability, is to pollute the lodge room or anteroom with the nauseous and filthy fumes of tobacco. There are a great many men and women who would by no means permit their dauters or sisters to attend a lodge, where they must pass thru a baptism of tobacco smoke, or to mingle in a company that tolerates so low a scale of etiquette as the intrusion of noxious odors and barroom exercises upon its members. There are many young ladies, and the very best and most valuable additions we could have to our lodges, who could never be prevailed upon to enter a lodge room more than once, where smoking is going to be tolerated.

This is not a homily upon the poisonous effects of tobacco upon the French and Germans and the Indians; it dont touch the dwarfing of our boys and the derangement of the intellects of our men; it has nothing to say of the effects of tobacco upon health and morals; it dont preach a word about setting an example to others; but it does appeal to the sense of honor and cleanliness and decorum and politeness of every Good Templar and to the pride he should cherish in the good name and worthy standing of the lodge and Order to put away at once and forever wherever it exists, the abomination of tobacco smoke from the building where the lodge meets; for the sole reason that it is a gross breach of ordinary good manners, a contemptuous insult to our sisters and unworthy and unbecoming Good Templars.

It should be particularly remembered by those who smoke and those who dont use tobacco, that they see things from an entirely different stand point and in an entirely different light and both should be patient and considerate. If A, B and C who smoke, and D, E and F who detest and abhor tobacco, and bitterly complain of the conduct of A, B and C,—had all taken the opposite course, so that A, B and C were abstainers and D, E and F the smokers, the latter would wonder at the fastidiousness of A, B and C in being so very dainty as to object to such a trifle.

But the parties who dont smoke, do not give the least personal annoyance to their companions by their abstinence; is it not then the duty of a friend and a Good Templar and a brother to see that he gives no annoyance, and works neither discomfort to his fellow members nor discredits the social character and standing of the Great Order whose privileges he enjoys.

EXCUSE FOR DOING WRONG.

I have often heard men give as an excuse for using liquor, that some of the most celelebrated men of the world were adicted to the use of ardent spirits. Frequently I hear men justify themselves for getting drink, by remarking that some of the wisest and smartest men drink and therefore it was right.

Men often remark that the best doctors and lawyers they ever knew used intoxicating liquors, and that usually when you find a good doctor or a shrewd and learned lawyer you will find that he uses alcoholic liquors.

I deny the statement that all the wisest and shrewdest men drink but admit that unfortunately a great many do. But that they are shrewd and smart because they use ardent spirits I must emphatically deny. For I affirm that no man however learned in any profession ever acquired that knowledge while drunk.

The very fact that men justify their drinking because some wise man did likewise is sufficient evidence that they feel they are doing wrong, for no man ever offered an excuse for doing a good act, simply because some celebrated man did the self same thing. For when one does right the very act itself justifies him, and there is no occasion to offer an excuse.

The doer of every evil act, however frivolous, when questioned almost universally offers some excuse and the greater the evil the necessarily weightier the apology, or the reason he gives for committing it.

We never hear men justify themselves for getting drunk, because some worthless hoodlum got drunk, but they refer as an excuse, to some Senator, statesman, lawyer or doctor who drinks.

Again we say, to do right needs no excuse, but to omit a duty, a reason or excuse is always offered for the disobedience.

Therefore it can be taken as a maxim that when a party voluntarily justifies his acts, he firmly believes he has committed a wrong. L. DEP.

ALCOHOL'S DOINGS

In one week, as reported by a single daily.

1. A drunken man robbed by his companion.
2. Two Indians when under the gallows exhorted their friends to abstain from whisky, as it was the cause of their ignominious death.
3. A man and woman sent to the County jail for twenty days, and a woman to the House of Correction for three months for drunkenness.
4. A man in a drunken row bites anothers thumb badly.
5. A habitual drunkard attempts suicide.
6. A piece bitten from a woman's hand by a man in delirium tremens.
7. A drunken man stabs another to the heart.
8. One drunken man stabs another.
9. Seven hundred and five arrests for drunkenness in this city in the month of February.
10. A drunken man shoots his wife and then kills himself, leaving five helpless children.
11. A man too drunk to heed a steam whistle is run over and killed by a train. Has his bottle of liquor in his pocket at the time.
12. An officer of the United States killed by an illicit whisky maker.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

The air is full of arrest and civil war. The Chief of Police last week gave timely notice that all violators of the Sunday law on Sunday 19th would be arrested. The Leag of Fiendom gave public notice that any party who did NOT violate the Sunday Law on that day, would be stricken from their roll and privileges and they promised to pay all fines and expenses and furnish bonds to any amount for the outlaws.

The Chronicle published on Tuesday a list of nearly 600 saloons, cigar stores and groceries and a very few clothiers, which have been reported for arrest. The groceries so called, were doubtless all beer dives.

On Monday the Ministerial Union and a committee of Good Templars called upon the Mayor and Chief of Police, earnestly requesting the enforcement of the law, and promising support to the utmost. Committee appointed to call on the daily journals and ask their aid and influence.

A great many places were closed on Sunday, especially in the suburbs and a much more quiet and orderly day passed than usual.

It is a fact that the rum and tobacco traffic are in "twin" rebellion—and declaring actual war against the State and the people, but their business at the best of times is war against life and property and peace and progress. The battle appears to be pretty general now all over the state. Results will depend altogether upon the stamina and courage of our good citizenship. The stake is of the mightiest importance.

Mr. H. B. Williamson is agent for the RESCUE in Lompoc. Renewals and subscriptions can be arranged with him.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

EVERY BODY DOES IT.

How commonly we hear it said when one is urged to give up a bad habit, "Oh there is no harm in that, everybody does it." It is true that every body eats, drinks water, breathes, sleeps, walks, rests, sits, stands, etc., because they have to, and no one will ever find fault with you for doing any of those things, and you will never refer to any of those acts when you say "every body does it." It is always something of doutful propriety that is so spoken of, and if "every body does it" or almost every body, the safest thing you can do is to drop it.

Every body has "done it" so much—has done wrong so much, that nearly all the nations and peoples of the world are away behind where they ot to be in every thing of comfort and happiness and progress in the good. Every body has done it so much that numerous great nations that might have kept on growing better and wiser and happier and healthier and stronger and handsomer and wealthier in every generation, till to-day they might have possessed the world or been the greatest people in it, have said, "every body does it," and they have dwindled and dwarfed and got weaker and lower and meaner and poorer all the time till now they are only fit, what are left of then, to carry round a hand organ for a monkey and wait on him and earn his feed for him—or to black boots or scrape scales off the fish and clean them in the market, or to pick chickens or to clean pigs feet and wash dishes and lead round blind men to beg.

All this down-hill progress and degeneration came from "following the multitude to do evil," from making "everybody does it" an excuse for trifling immoralities, and then by certain easy stages for more serious and more debasing wrongs. And for lack of the good advice which is given to young people to-day, to avoid those evil habits and practices which "every body" so readily adopts.

Because "every body does it" in China, the young learn to lie and cheat and use opium, and with all their general education and their civilization of 3,000 years, they never learned enough to invent any machine but a wooden mallet and a hand sieve to clean the rice which everybody eats three times a day; and they are now such a degenerate race that more civilized people shrink from associating with them.

Germany, Italy, Hungary, Spain, Portugal, Belgium, Austria, France, Ireland and England are all of them countries that in the past 300 years should have so improved their condition that the least vestige of poverty and crime should have been now prevented; abundance should have blessed their whole populations, but because "every body did it," they are this day all of them swarming with paupers and criminals and vomiting them forth upon the new worlds in sufficient numbers to plunge them too into a like pool of degradation and degeneracy.

Rum and beer and tobacco and wine have been there the instruments which the devil used to destroy those nations; every body used them and the consequence is that the most important and busy function of all the governments of those countries, is to nurture, teach, foment, cultivate and protect the business of making their own people drunkards, paupers, criminals, idiots. Nothing else but every body using these things, accounts for the miserable condition of the great mass of all these peoples. There is nothing strange about it except that so many people can be fools. Any body but a fool can see that such a course could only produce such a result.

Here because every body does it, the boys and the young men are poisoning themselves with tobacco and beer and drink, to follow the example of the blackguard portion of the populations referred to. And it is in order to tell our boys, if "every body is going to do it," the state of California, now rejoicing in its apples of gold and its golden opportunities of all kinds, overrunning as it is with golden promises of future prosperity—will one day enjoy the proud distinction of supplying Japan and Kamskatka, and China, and Siam and the Pacific islands, with the cream of its young men, its most enterprising sons, to do their boot blacking and poultry picking and dishwashing and sheepskinning, and also it may expect to swarm off its criminals and outlaws and outcasts and paupers by thousands to curse them too.

Strange, not likely, you say; not a whit more unlikely than that the countries of former equal promise and opportunities should now be doing just that thing. But we have temperance societies and Bands of Hope, and when "every body" gets into them, we shall be out of danger of any such calamity.

SOME IFS.

If the carpenters could get all the trade they want, every family would live in a cosy house, well furnished with every comfort and convenience.

If the furniture makers could get all the custom they aim for, every family rich and poor would enjoy the comfort of nice beds and bureaus and tables and chairs and sofas.

If Sherman and Clay could have everything their own way, every house would have a nice piano or a cabinet organ, and we could get along without the service of the Italian monkey and the hand organ suicide accompaniment in the street.

If the bakers could do just as they like, every man, woman and child would have an abundance of pure, wholesome, nourishing bread and a well cooked meal three times a day; and the baker would shut up shop on Sunday.

If the dairyman could make every body do as he would like to, every plate at every table in every family would have beside it at every meal a little pat of fresh sweet butter, a wholesome cheese would invite every body to try it, and a jug of rich, delicious milk would furnish health and strength to all the little folks.

If the clothiers and dry goods men could get their custom from every family as they would like to, every man, woman and child would have an abundance of warm and comfortable clothing and changes of clean raiment suitable for every occasion, winter and summer.

If the printers and booksellers and artists could persuade everybody to patronize them as much as they want, every family would have a nice library of good books, would take the RESCUE and lots of other periodicals, and would have albums and pictures and maps and lots of beautiful things.

If the fruit and vegetable farmers could get all of their products, that they would like to, into every family, every little boy and girl and every young and old man and woman would have their dish of strawberries and cream, peaches and cream, their apples and oranges and apricots and grapes and all the list of wholesome fruits and roots, each in its proper turn and season all the year.

And in all these things we have not come to a single dangerous item. If all these people were patronized freely and liberally, to the extent of every families ability, there need not grow out of it all one arrest, one drunk, one crime, one quarrel, one oath, one unkind or one unpleasant word or act.

But if the tobacco traders could do all the trade they want to, every family would send one idiot to the lunatic asylum before his twentieth birthday and probably two or three afterward according to the number of the family.

If the brewers and distillers and wine makers and grogery keepers could sell all the liquor they want to, every family would have some of its members arrested and fined and punished and jailed occasionally; most people would curse and swear, and steal and lie and about every family as long as it lasted, would every now and then contribute one of its members to the list of the suicides, the murderd, the criminals, the tramps and the awful train of ruined, depraved, lost women, most awful thot of all.

Nice business, making and selling beer and tobacco; dont it?

TOBACCO MISSIONARIES.

There is a story of a Western preacher applying at the door of a Western farmhouse, asking hospitality, with the hint that people may "sometimes entertain angels unawares." "Yes," said the woman, "but no angel would carry round a big quid of tobacco as you do."

An advocate of temperance or of any moral or religious reform, who is evidently pickled in strong tobacco juice from head to toenails, or who presents himself enveloped in a halo of malodorous offensiveness, compared with which asafetida is a coveted luxury of perfume—carries to his field of labor a very doubtful letter of recommendation.

He will not always be told of it or perceive it, for people are for the most part too polite in their own homes to say in his presence what they do say when the dispenser of ginmill odors and beerdive proprieties has departed. A book agent or a canvasser for a newspaper or other business, may go often into congenial company with his odors of nastiness; but he meets, whether he observes it or not, with a clean customer now and then who immediately closes his purse strings to any business relations with such a suspicious and unsavory applicant.

So the advocate of temperance or Christianity who endeavors to lay siege to one immorality and openly and industriously practices another, carries round with him his own stumbling block; and a more serious one than the enemy can put in his way. And it exceedingly disheartens a zealous and unselfish worker to find his own example and precept wofully neutralized by the bad example of his inconsistent brother.

Some one says, it is all the better for a temperance advocate to go and sit down with the boys and take a cigar with them; he can thus get into their good graces and exert a good influence over them. If that is a good argument and a true one, it would make his chances of success still better if he drank among the drinkers, lied among the liars, gambled with the gamblers. Or let us substitute in the simple argument the word dice or poker for cigars. Would any one venture to say that a temperance advocate being a total abstainer from liquor and tobacco or a Good Templar, would not mortally wound his influence if he went among the boys who smoke and drink and took a hand with them at poker or faro.

An aged temperance man only last week told of another aged temperance man, his intimate friend who had clung to tobacco all his life up to two years ago; I had kept at him for many years, said he, but he always resented it, sometimes quite sharply; but he gave in two years ago, he quit tobacco for good and in a very short time after he joined the church, which he had never belonged to before.

A temperance advocate cannot help accusing his opponents or the indifferents, of inconsistency, but the inconsistencies of selling rum and favoring its sale or use are only represented by different figures on the meter scale of inconsistencies and glaring wrongs; and using and countenancing tobacco should be and are marked upon that scale in very prominent full faced large sized figures.

Tobacco using now appears to be quite as great a danger as liquor drinking was 50 years ago; the introduction of cigarets has been like that of beer, each has aggravated perhaps 100 fold the evil which it pretended to alleviate. Beer has made probably 100 women and children druukards when only one would have learned on whisky; and beer drunkenness is more filthy and brutalizing than that of whisky. So since cigarets have come in to make the American boys idiots and imbeciles by the million, it is a tenfold greater inconsistency, immorality and treason to country and God to countenance tobacco drunkenness, than it was 25 years ago, before cigarets were used and before the noxious effects of the tobacco poison were so well understood.

PERU.

If you should go from here to Peru, Payta, in Latitude 50° South, is the first port at which the steamer calls and here you will have your first experience of the important place which the donkey holds in Peruvian civilization and Peruvian institutions.

Of course the Game Chicken is the first love of the Peruvian, and the first great source of the wealth of the country, as the wine and brandy interest is of California. A man will sometimes start out on a weeks trip with a peculiarly active and enterprising game rooster, and come back with $20 or $30, the happy result of a series of successful combats. It will be apparent to the most ordinary intelligence that one Peruvian winning from one dollar up to forty or fifty from other Peruvians tended to make Peru immensely wealthy, just as California is going to get immensely rich when one class of our citizens shall sell lots of wine and brandy to another class of our people who will get drunk on it and fight and get arrested and pay fines etc. Lots of wealth in it.

In Payta as in most places of South America, there is or ot to be one or more game cocks in front of every house, moored with a string and a swivel made of bone to keep the hope of the family from getting tangled or twisted up. On the sidewalks of some towns you have to be careful of getting tripped up with these strings for the animals are chained up just so that they cannot reach one another. By long experience they seem to have become aware of that fact, and are quiet and peaceable except in the matter of a pretty continuous crowing to keep up with the neighbors. But when once set loose and confronted with another bird, the hereditary tendencies of many centuries oblige them to instant combat.

Up to a very few years ago the donkey carried on his back all the water used in Payta. It came about 15 miles and was packed in little kegs which fitted into the paniers. They carried into the interior all the merchandise that went there of whatever shape or size, and they brot to Payta every thing for export from the interior. I have seen 30 or 40 donkeys in a troop starting away from Payta for Piura each loaded with one piece of scantling at least 20 feet long lashed across his back; and you can imagine how tightly the poor creatures were cinched to keep that long stick from any danger of tipping. Foot passengers had to clear the track for these animals to save themselves from being mowed down.

Of course the same means of transport brot the fruit and vegetables to the market and did every possible thing which a donkey could be inspired or engineered to do. The 70,000 tons of nitrate of Soda that used to be shipped from the nitrate ports was all brot from the interior, a distance of 30 to 60 miles on the backs of donkeys and mules. And they generally returned with loads of coal to boil out the nitrate and with provisions and merchandise. On this long route they had not a drop of water and but a very little barley, their only food. Not a blade of grass nor a shrub except an occasional cactus was on the way. Nothing but hot dry sand and rocks and mountain trails and a merciless heat pouring down from the unclouded sun.

The animals were all brot from the distant plateaus and plains of Bolivia. A donkey cost $5 there and by the time the drove reached Iquique, they cost the owner $35 and their average life in Peru was two years. A party who kept up a troop of 50 animals calculated to purchase that many every two years. The working animals never had any young.

If the people of Peru had never any other sin than cruelty to animals they would have deserved to be blotted from the map for that. To give a detailed exhibit of the infernal atrocities which those brutes practiced upon their brute superiors, would be likely to give the reader bad dreams. If the animals fell on the road and were unable to rise from weakness or from a broken leg which frequently occurred in their precipitous roads, they were left to the vultures or condors who were always on the lookout and selected the eyes of their victim as the first morsel, as soon as the troop and drivers moved off.

When a troop was unloaded in Iquique their pack-saddles with a pile of rough heavy rugs were stripped off their backs and they were turned loose —with their backs red raw, either in large patches or all the way from the rump to the neck. They made strait for the shore, waded out into the surf and bathed and tried to drink a little salt water. When they were again wanted, their packs and loads were again cinched over their raw flesh with exactly the same indifference as a carpenter displays for the feelings of the board he is planing or sawing. They were generally loaded 2 or 3 hours before the start, why I know not, unless it was because those people are never ready for anything. But the poor creatures spent the interval lying down on their sides and groaning piteously.

When an animal could no longer carry a load, he was turned out to shift for himself. The flies hived and swarmed and colonized all along the ridge of his back, until the wretched skeleton died or got better; in the latter case they put him to work again till he died.

I never heard of their making the least effort to heal or cure a wound or give the animal a rest to get well if they were able to travel. And the foreign residents were little better than the natives. They owned the poor brutes, very many of them. I protested against this brutality to the firm of Smith & Co. of Iquique, on the ground of the money waste as well as the crime; saying that with care and rational treatment the animals would do more work per year and last 15 years in place of 2. One of the partners said it would not pay; Mr. G. Smith, a scholarly and pleasant gentleman said, I would like to make that experiment and see how it would pay: to let a chafed or wounded animal rest and get cured before using him again. "Oh," said a third partner, a Peruvian, you never could get these drivers to take care of them; it would cost money for nothing. And that may have been the only time cruelty to animals was ever discussed there.

At the Chincha Islands, the horse or mule that hauled the cars of guano, had a bared spot of proud flesh wherever the traces or harness touched the skin or where the skin ought to be; and it seems to be about so in all Spanish countries.

At Independencia Bay in 1875, they used a gang of mules to haul guano in carts and another to haul the empty railway cars back to the fields. Lots of them died inside of two months that had come there in good order and fit to live 20 or 30 years. There was much guano dust from the carts, and where the drivers found a patch of skin off, they selected it as the place to lay on the whip. There was a corral near the landing where the mules were put when no longer able to work. It was a heart rending sight to look at—too bad to say anything more of it; people here could scarce believe it all. There was one humane Peruvian there, the doctor. He said that the Superintendent, one Rivero, deserved to be worked in a chaingang for life for allowing this wanton cruelty.

The people who did these things were Indians, Africans and Spanish Whites and about fifty varieties of compounds and combinations of these races.

The people of Peru are for the most part either very superstitious Catholics or terrible enemies of the priesthood and of all shades of religion. Those who worship the saints, and it is mostly women who do so, are very devout. They have favorite images of saints to whom they carry a pound of candles to burn when one of the family is sick; and they boast of the curative powers of their particular idol in that particular line of business. A woman whose husband is sick enough to occasion alarm takes a pound of candles to her patron; if the sick recovers she knows her candles did the business; if he dies, the saint must have been mad at something, but his ability to cure is never doubted. Mrs. Pinkham's picture would sell well there as Saint Brigida or Santa Ana or almost any convenient female saint or or angel.

A few years ago an Italian died in Guyaquil in Ecuador, who was said to have accumulated $100,000 by getting wooden images of saints and angels made in Ecuador where wood is abundant, and sending them to Peru where wood is very scarce and dear. At Payta about ten years ago the people in accordance with ancient custom took the images of St Peter and St Paul out of the church to give them a sail and a days fishing as Peter is said to be fond of that amusement yet. On these occasions (June 30) all the boats in the bay are employed to carry people out to see Peter fish. There was a capsize of Peters boat this time and Peter lost his boots, his silver fishooks and his silver key in the bay. He and Paul miraculously prevented any drowning as the people were all good swimmers. But on the way back to church a row occurred and Paul lost both arms and both saints fared so badly that there was was no "procession" on the next anniversary.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

Murphys, March 15, 1882.

A circular letter has been this day mailed to every Band of Hope in the jurisdiction, also a blank for report, which every Supt. is urgently requested to fill out, and return promptly to this office. Please take notice and comply. Altho some Bands have quite recently reported, yet it will take only a short time to fill out this blank, which is to be filed, and it is hoped every Supt. will attend to it regardless of former reports.

Badges.—At the last meeting of the Ex. Com. it was thot necessary to make some change as regards badges. As heretofore a badge will be presented to each member on joining, but no one shall receive more than one free. If members lose or break their badges they must pay ten cents each for new ones. This restriction is necessary, and its justice must be apparent to all; for under the old plan the careless child, who broke or lost his badge, was rewarded with a new one, while the careful child could wear his old one.

Missionary Work.—A few weeks since, Brother Porter, accompanied by 27 members of Modesto Band, took a ride to Oakdale, and there organized a good Band of Hope, in spite of a horse race, that was run in the interests of the liquor traffic (temperance people dont race horses on Sunday). On the way home the children unanimously decided that their trip had been much pleasanter than a picnic. Let other bands take a hint from this one. When practicable, get a big wagon, and fill it with little folks—who are always ready for missionary work, and who can do so much good in bringing in other children—and go out into the country on similar errands. In almost every school district a Band of Hope could be sustained if only started, and who can tell what good results might follow. The cry from Macedonia still sounds, "Come over and help us." Let us all heed, and as far as lies in our power give our aid to others.

Classes.—Many Superintendents complain of a difficulty in securing teachers. In a Band recently visited, they have given the classes to young gentlemen and ladies from 16 years of age upwards, and find the plan successful. The young teachers are taking great interest in their duties, and the scholars also are stimulated to better efforts.

The same Band recently gave an entertainment, the program of which was prepared almost entirely by these young people, and was a grand success; putting many an open lodge far in the shade, because they "followed their text" and gave a temperance program.

Put the young people forward. Let them share the labors. It will benefit them and work well for the general good.

Kingsburg Band of Hope.—Lest some may think the misunderstanding concerning the Kingsburg Band, (referred to in my report to G. W. S.) reflected upon Bro. King, I wish to say that nothing was farther from my intention; and on further correspondence, I find that the Band was organized as reported, and left in good working order; but from local causes they have failed to follow up the organization with regular meetings, so far as heard from, for which Bro. K. is not responsible.

Popular Temperance Library:—David C. Cook is publishing, among other good things, a series of books under the above title. The price is merely nominal, only sixty cents for twelve vols., one of which is issued every month. Every temperance worker should have and read them. The second, in the series, "The sober citizen, and the liquor traffic" is alone worth double the price of the whole.

It is full of unanswerable arguments against the traffic, and cannot fail to be of great sevice our to cause.

The Band of Hope directory will be revised in a week or two, and any corrections reported at this office by the 27th of Mar. will receive due attention.

Eureka, Mar. 11, 1882.

A committee was appointed by the W. C. T., of Humboldt Lodge, No. 269. A meeting called on Mar. 4th and a Band of Hope organized with 103 members. Leroy Brown, one of the teachers in the public school, is Superintendent. One week later, 42 members joined, making a membership of 145. The name chosen is McDonald, after R. H. Mc Donald.

The lodge there is doing well. In the early part of the winter they had a committee appointed to manage a course of lectures, they met with such success that another committee has been appointed and more lectures are in progress. Rev. Huntington delivered an able speech on the 3d. Rev. Rhodes will speak on the 17th, and N. S. Phelps, the Principal of the Ferndale schools, will deliver an address on "The Needs of the Hour" on the 31 inst. Others are expected to follow.

"A Temperance Library, Cook's papers to one hundred families, and aid to Band of Hope, are things in progress in Riverside Lodge, 284."

That comes on a little slip of paper from the L. D., Dr. J. Hall, and coupled with the fact that 29 copies of the Rescue go to Riverside, it is a first-class communication; better than a page of foolscap that has no such report to make.

It is stated by a writer in the Hanford Journal that 28 conductors were recently in one day discharged from the Kansas City, St. Joe & Council Bluffs Railroad. It must have been a nice fry of conductors on that road previous to the discharge.

The Temperance Almanac is out for 1882 with its usual large amount of useful information and reliable statistics. Contains 72 pages; list of the leading societies of temperance, and has a capital department for the children—ten cents single copies or $1 per dozen. Send to J. N. Stearns, 58 Reade Street, New York.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

IS IT IMPORTANT?

[From the Pacific Methodist, of March 17th.]

"Is the question important whether the wine spoken of in Scripture was fermented or unfermented? It was certainly not must, for this "must," or juice of the grape just from the crusher and press, would not be recommended by Paul to Timothy as good for his stomach—as every man and boy knows, who has ever tried it. The allusion must have been to old wine, and not that right from the tub. If old wine was ment, how was it provided? I have never heard of but two ways of keeping new wine or "must" from spoiling. One way—and that the most usual—is by fermentation. The other is by adding to its alcoholic strength, either by boiling down or strengthening with alcohol. Now either of these methods make the wine stronger than by fermentation. What, then, is the object in attempting to show that unfermented wine only is favorably alluded to in the Bible? If fermented wine, bearing an average of say 8 per cent. of alcohol, will intoxicate, will not fortified unfermented wine, bearing from 20 to 25 per cent. also intoxicate? It seems to me the controversy is unwise. Common Sense."

It is neither creditable to the Christian pulpit nor to the religious press that such an intensified darkness of impenetrable ignorance as is manifested by the writer of the above should be by no means exceptional among members of the Christian Churches and regular readers of religious journals.

For thirty years past the questions refered to in the above item have been as plainly solved and as fully explained as the multiplication table from 1 to 10. Line upon line and one testimony after another of the best scholars and translators have month after month and year after year been an absolute unit in clearing up every former uncertainty on the Bible and communion wine question.

The pet argument of the infidels and whisky lovers that Christ and the apostles were participants and patrons of drunken festivals and used or touched or countenanced the use of that wine which in their day was, more generally than now, understood to be the venom of scorpions and was only used for drunken debauches—has been thoroly exploded a thousand times. The argument that the Bible a hundred times praised and blessed the drunkenness and vice and prostitution which it denounced and condemned and cursed in two hundred places and consequently was unworthy of credit in any other respect, has been refuted a thousand times in plain sight of every body.

Every enquirer who has candidly investigated this matter has been fully and conclusively convinced; every one who investigates it this year and next and every year will be convinced, and no one ever did or ever will go back to the old barbarian belief as to using the chiefest abomination of idolatry, the cup of brothelry and vice and filthiness upon the communion table and giving it the place of honor in the most solem and sacred ordinances of the Christian Church.

There is no doubtful point not thoroly elucidated and decided, but still there remains a large class of obstinate men who have shut their eyes and stopped their ears to any information upon the idolatrous practice, handed down to them from the darkest days of the benighted Roman Church, and which they were in youth taut to accept. Like the old fashoned doctors who lived and died, cursing the heresy of the circulation of the blood, some of these men will cling to their old idolatrous superstition as long as they live.

In spite of the information so frequently given, men spring up every little while and repeat the old blasphemies against Christ and the Bible and accuse Paul of being an idiot and assert that the Corinthian Church got drunk on bread, just as if the matter had never been discussed before. Such a remarkably pitiful exhibit as that made by "Common Sense" would be irritating, but for the fact that the pulpit and religious press have entirely failed as a general thing to enlighten the people upon so vital a matter—the reason being presumably, the fear that the truth may be offensive to the sellers and drinkers of wine, from whom a portion of the loaves and fishes are derived.

The information is offered again thru, not from the Rescue, but from the Bible and history as read by the scholarship and Christianity and common sense of the age, that the "importance" of the question lies in the fact that the wine of the communion and of Scripture approval was the innocent, pure, wholesome fruit of the vine, either as pressed from the grape or preserved unfermented and unalcoholic in its virgin purity; whereas the monks of Rome saw fit to substitute for it, a vile poisonous breeder of vice and lust and crime, and defiled both the communion and the household tables with it—and to that disgusting sacrilege the majority of the Churches still cling.

The Hebrews were ordered to sacrifice, at the passover a lamb without blemish; from the flock or from the goats; if some of them had sacrificed a dead cat from the dust heap, it would have been no more irreverent or sacrilegious than the modern substitution in question; perhaps not so much, for a dead cat is only an offensive offal, whereas the prostituted, rotted, poisoned cup of alcoholic ferment is the emblem and essence and body and soul of pollution and human perdition; its manufacture and use was always and is a crime and blasphemy, and it has been a lie and a curse, just as the Bible says, from the time of Noah until now.

Our friend should know that boiling down grape juice prevents fermentation, and boiling down fermented or alcoholic wine takes every particle of the alcohol out of it by evaporation; boiling makes the pure natural wine sweeter and richer and preserves every quality it contains, except only a portion of the clear water. Fermentation takes away every property of the natural wine or grape juice, except the water and replaces the sugar with the poison of alcohol which remains and a poison gas which escapes in the air; and when the fermented filth is boiled, the boiling evaporates every vestige of alcohol first, all the water next, and leaves nothing but a nasty repulsive residue of wax and dirt—entirely destitute of any nutriment or any other element of the grape. The ripened heads of grain in the harvest field, the wheat in the farmers sack and the wholesome bread on the family table are all alike, unchanged, a good wholesome food. No one thinks of calling either the barrel of fiery whisky or debauching beer derived from their rotten offal as food, nor admitting that the compost heap in the barn yard is grain. The wine accursed, a poison of rottenness, a blighting withering scourge of humanity with not one redeeming quality, bears no more relationship to the tirosh of blessing, the choicest, most nourishing, health-giving food gift of God to man, than the offal of the barnyard to the wholesome loaf of bread—than the putrid carrion of dogs to the lamb of the passover.

Our friend having been utterly mistaken in what little he did say should try to know something of what he thinks it unwise to enquire into. When any class of Christians adopt a creed or practice that declares controversy unwise, it seeks to hide a confessed error which it determines to cling to—and in that it is thoroly unchristian.

The wine in household use among the Jews was easily and simply prepared in its wholesome purity; boiled and bottled. The wine accursed was made under difficulties and was only made and used for heathen sacrifices and bacchanalian debauches, and drunken banquets. And the drinking of such was alluded to in terms of contempt and condemnation by the respectable people of Judea. Winebibber and glutton were twin terms of worthlessness; winebibber only ment the drinker of the wine of pollution and death. One thing more, Common Sense must be assured of—that no "must or grape juice or wine" can be fermented at all without being utterly spoiled and rotted and rendered entirely useless for every single purpose of its creation or for any one purpose except the production of disease, vice, crime, pauperism and death.

BLUE LAWS.

Thotlessly and inconsiderately good people are often betrayed into placing themselves on the ground—and viewing questions rite and rong from a standpoint—that should only belong to the thief and outlaw—they are often found on a platform built by and for that class of men exclusively. If men weighed their opinions a little more carefully in the balance of reason and justice before they address and stamp them and send them out to the world, the volume of this world's folly would be materially lessened.

No greater knavery has been ever developed by one class of men—no greater stupidity by another—than inventing and accepting the lying sophistries which have been used against the laws which prohibit crime and vice. Laws which forbid or restrict the sale of poisons and crazing drinks by public robbers and assassins are decried, because, "If you have a right to prohibit that crime, you can prescribe what we shall eat and drink." Now, a little reflection would have proved to every professor of religion, to every jurist, to every scholar that has thotlessly and frequently used that assertion that it is eminently and comprehensively false, and the professional murderer and thief was its inventor, for they can equally say, If I am prohibited by law from doing what I please, you can prescribe what a man shall eat and drink. It is time men and murderers should cease drawing their inspiration and opinions from one common source.

Law is nothing if not prohibitory; all mandatory and affirmative and permissive laws are really and truly prohibitory; those which prescribe the duty of an officer or an individual, prohibit and punish the neglect of that duty. The law which commands a payment to be made in fulfilment of conditions or stipulations, is only a law which prohibits dishonest dealing in such cases. But it would be an exceeding folly and quite on a par with that of our blue-law-phobyists to argue, that, because a law can enforce payment for a $25 suit of clothes, fairly sold and delivered, on the same principle a similar law will be or may be enacted which will hang a citizen for refusing to pay a million dollars for too charges of powder and shot that a tramp fired at him out of a double barrel shot gun and which he did not want at all.

The only necessity that exists for law is to restrain evil doers; the only legitimate province of law is to restrain evil doers and prohibit and prevent evil deeds; for the aim of punishment is prevention. If we had a county or state with one or two millions of inhabitants and every one of them truly honest and upright; not a man of them would ever need to know or hear of a scrap of law—except to know what in some intricate matters the law declares to be just and right. Laws for them against murder, theft and crime would be inert and dead and obsolete. They would not care, nor would it affect them how great is the penalty for a light offence, or how many wrongs and injustices and crimes were prohibited or how punished by law.

But one thief, or one gambler, or one brewer, or one rum-seller, or one Fiendom Leaguer, coming in to live among those two million decent people, would at once be so intensely sensitive upon every one of those matters of law, that he would only stay till the next boat left.

The law, which should be the sum and substance of justice, according to the better sense of the good citizenship of the country, should have full scope to prohibit all crime and vice, and as it has a conceded right to regulate, tax, restrict or promote commerce, it is and should have undisputed power to prohibit any commerce or manufacture or business that is detrimental to the public welfare.

It should be the province of law to prohibit commerce and labor on Sunday, or whatever on that occasion is injurious to the common weal. It never claims to do so for religious reasons, unless it may be said that the preservation of the public health and the protection of the worker from the avarice of the employer and the snares of the Leag of Fiendom is religion.

And whoever says that the power to enact a law to restrain robbery and murderous assault and open debauchery on Sunday, or any other day, implies a right to legislate babies to be taken from their mothers, to prescribe their food, and clothes and the form of their cradle and the ballads that shall be sung to them, has made a wondrously sterile and flat use of Blackstone; for he must admit that if the right to stop a brothel or beer-dive on Sunday be not admitted, the right to interfere with the pursuits and inclinations of the thief, murderer and malefactor falls to the ground.

One of the gravest dangers that can menace a state, is the admission of the malefactor element of society, whose suppression should be the sole object of law—to any voice or influence in framing the law. And another is the prevention of the most virtuous and innocent half of our people—and that half the most interested in the enactment of wholesome, protective laws—from having any voice at all in choosing our lawmakers.

The men and women who object to the enforcement of the Sunday law, should take this one word home and think it over. Your position is either right or it is wrong. Against it are the great majority of the best of all the people and not a thief or rummy or robber or gambler or blackleg or outlaw.

For your position and against the Sunday law—is every outlaw and ragamuffin and doggery keeper, the wholesale and retail groggeries and the wholesale and retail harlotries, every body who subsists on crime and vice and a very few inconsiderate or erratic or exceedingly illogical or ignorant well-meaning individuals. Bad company to be found in.

A ONE THOUSAND ACRE VINEYARD AND NOT A CRIME BREEDER.

Mr. G. G. Briggs of Davisville in the Santa Clara Journal, has corrected some statements made by the press respecting his raisin vineyard. He says, "I have picked the grapes of 450 acres of vines and made most of them into raisins. The remainder of my 1,000 acres of vineyard is not yet in bearing. Of the vines picked 250 acres averaged a full crop being over three years old and in full bearing: 100 acres were injured by the grapeworm, yielding only about one-tenth of a crop, and the remaining 100 acres of the 450, were young vines, two or three years old which gave about one-third of a crop. Of the grapes from these 450 acres were made 50,000 boxes of raisins of 20 lbs, or one million pounds; three-fifths of them first class sold for $1 75 per box and two-fifths second-class at $1 40; some were in half and quarter boxes and sold a little higher, so the whole crop of raisins brot $80,000. From the same vines 100 tons of fresh grapes were sold at $20 a ton, making $2000 and the sales of fruit, green and fresh from my orchard amounted to $18,000 making an income of $100,000."

He continues to say that he has adopted a thoro system of underground irrigation for vineyard and orchard, with ten miles of 12-inch concrete main pipe and 200 miles of small distributing pipe of same material, laid 20 inches beneath the surface, this has wonderfully improved the size and quality of the grape for raisin making. He says he started with a determination to make raisins equal to any in the world, and so far his irrigation scheme which carries water to the root of every vine has more than realized his anticipations. With a 30-horse power engine he raises 2,600 gallons of water a minute from Putah Creek when needed.

This is a better showing than has ever been made for wine and brandy production; the figures per acre are about as follows:

250 acres in full bearing say.....250 acres
100 acres injured; 1-10 of crop, equal to.... 10 acres
100 acres young; 1-3 of crop, equal to..... 33 acres

450 acres in all, but representing only....293 acres of full crop. Dividing $82,000 by 293 we have $279.-86 as the full crop return per acre, not on a little pet patch of vines, but doing business on a large scale, the vines still young and improving, and 100 tons of the grapes which were sold at the low price of one cent a pound also included in the calculation.

If Mr. Briggs had made half as good a financial exhibit on brandy and penitentiary filling wine, the secular papers would have lauded him to the skies, as a grandly useful promoter of the future prosperity and grandeur of this state; but the true picture of such a grandeur, would be painted in overflowing jails, poorhouses, lunatic asylums; palaces of sin from cellar to attic; hovels of barrenness and starvation for the working thousands and the peons and coolies of the half dozen distillery and winery princes; streets filled with the depraved, vicious and pilfering and starved of both sexes, and a standing army of drunken, dissolute soldiery, under a despotic government; the bayonet being the only law-maker which can keep a drunken people in a semblance of order.

To imagine the eminently happy and successful example of Mr. Briggs, copied on a large and small scale thruout the state, from the two or three acre up to the quarter section vineyard and orchard, one cannot but see a future of the most splendid prosperity and happiness, moral, social and financial for California, beyond anything the world has yet produced. The hills and valleys of the state, a panorama of lovliest landscape; a million joyous, smiling, happy, cosy homes, nestling in Edenlike bowers of vine and tree and shrub laden with their precious gifts of golden fruit and purple grapes; redolent with perennial fragrance of blossom and flower; the homes every one a school of industry and a nursery of good morals, good taste, good manners, good citizenship and a miniature college of literature and art and music and moral culture. No provision or necessity for, or incentive to, a single mar-spot of disturbing vice or crime. A perfect antithesis and antipodes to the wine prophet's dream of scathing, blasting, withering wholesale sin and misery. Since the providential mission of California has been evidently mapped out, and every provision made for this beautiful country to be an Eden at home and a dispenser of blessings to the rest of the continent and of the world—from whence and of what comes the spirit that aims with superhuman energy and untiring malevolence to make it a nest of hissing, venomous, writhing, biting, slimy serpents at home, and a central emporium for the distribution of the venom of asps and the poison of dragons, of moral and physical leprosy ?—a fountain head of wholesale perdition, temporal and eternal, to the human race.

RAILROAD.

The Expositor says that altho the mills around Stockton and the Bay of S. F. can ship flour by rail to Texas, the Fresno mills 100 to 200 miles nearer to Texas are precluded from the trade, by the requirement to pay local rates to Stockton before they can ship at thru rates. A government railroad would never harass people with such nasty and malevolent extortions as that. The excuse is wanting here, that was made some 7 or 8 years ago, that such rules were the work of the lines east of Ogden and against the wishes of the C. P. R. R. If the game is played now on the S. P. R. R. there will be no scape goat to bear away the blame.

The post office of the U. S. is a perfectly satisfactory institution to the nation; if there ever is one occasion for a growl about its management in any little three cent matter, there would be 500 serious causes of complaint and cases of injustice and extortion, were it a corporation affair in private interests. But it is a great public convenience in which every one of the people is directly interested and we all get its accommodation at first cost, without being taxed to furnish a yearly exaction of millions to build up a tyranny of centralized wealth, to devise and develop new schemes for the people's oppression and enslavement.

The means of public transport is an interest that concerns every citizen as vitally as the Post Office, and it would be a work pre-eminently befitting an intelligent congress, an intelligent press and an intelligent people in these U. S. to set on foot a system of main lines of transport which would give the people freights and fares at cost prices, or if at a trifling excess, the overplus to be devoted to defraying the expenses of a wholesome government; not to build up monopolies which are hostile to every commercial and property interest, and place the nation under a hostile tribute to be used by an aristocracy in riotous and wasteful dissipation and debauchery and in promoting a grievous murrain of national corruption afflicting the whole national body.

Such a scheme for the public good would be an exceedingly welcome contrast to the penny whistle, swap jack-knife, tin trumpet, Jeremiah Diddler blockades and baby talks and snow flake blusters which occupy the time and crystalize the dignity and employ the talent and emphasize the statesmanship and patriotism of our beloved and honored lawmakers for the nation.

In such a numerous conclave of the selected talent of a great nation there ot to be at least once in a decade an idea come in contact with a spark of intellect in some capacious ponderous brain and kindle a latent thot here and there in all this storehouse of wisdom—relating to some scheme of BENEFIT to the whole nation; some practical public enterprise that would be an agency in stimulating industry, economy, commerce, navigation or manufactures or all of these together. One man in England in the Post Office has lately originated a system of investing penny savings in the Post Offices; and quite possibly that simple easy act has made him a more useful and valuable servant and benefactor of his country and countrymen than has appeared in the rolls of the public men of his own country or of this, for the past 10 or 15 years.

Canada had the best system of building and running railroads in the world until about a year ago; some miraculous means then effected a sale of the people's rights, the people's property, the people's railroad and the people's independence to a ring of monopolists who are already making for themselves a buzzing hornet's nest of popular curses, wherever they come in contact with the commerce of the people. The roads were built and operated by the Government in a manner perfectly satisfactory to the whole people; fares and rates at cost and not a complaint; but a sale was made of the people and of the road by the Government; a disastrous trade made; worse for the country than a sacrifice of hundreds of millions of money.

All the noise and buncomb about electing railroad commissioners and regulating fares and freights by law is the most bottomless nonsense, because it cannot be done till the government bribes its commissioners more liberally than the railroad can afford to. While railroads can spend at a profit 10 to 20 millions a year in corruption and they are going to have only the virtue of politicians to assail, regulation of tariffs by law is moonshine.

But not an argument can be used against the government of the U. S. building or buying leading main lines, and perhaps every line in good time, that does not equally prove a government postal system a mistake. Such a course would quietly, peaceably, justly set at rest for ever all the difficult, and irritating, and demoralizing questions between railroad and people; and would arrest the gradual but growing absorption of the farms and properties of the country by the corporations who place no limit to their greed and are so self-blinded by avarice as to punish grievously their own interests in seeking to punish and pauperize their patrons.

It is stated that more than 30 of the mining companies of Colorado employ none but total abstainers. That ot to be the rule every where. Employing men who spend their wages in the beer shop or whisky mill is only hiring white slaves from their owner. It is more unjust than hiring Chinese or African slaves and paying their earnings to their owner, because the latter supports the families of his slaves; the whisky mill lets the wife and children of his white slaves starve to death and laughs at it.

It appears Mr. A. A. York, blacksmith, was omitted in the list of business men who are subscribers to the Rescue in Healdsburg: call and see him, Good Templars, and try if he dont turn out good work.

FROM PHILOMATH.

I am now residing at the head quarters of the United Brethren Church of Oregon; tho opposed to secret societies they bid us Good Templars God speed in our work. Some few, however, have fogyistic ideas, for instance, I remarked to one of the leaders of Philomath College that the church and Sabbath school should be represented at the Oregon State Temperance Alliance, which convened in Salem, he agreed, and remarked that a delegate must be elected for that purpose. But a Rev. Brother came up and when consulted, remarked that all they had done was to make 40 or 50 drunkards, that blowing about temperance did more harm than good. He supposes perhaps that our Legislatures cause more murders and robberies by enacting laws against crime than if they let all desperadoes and lawless men alone. I wonder if this Reverend is aware that the remark he made to-day is the theory of the saloon-keepers. One of them argued that there was more whisky sold and drank in States where a prohibitory law exists than before. I asked him to put his name on the Oregon petition, for if so, you will sell more whisky when we get the Prohibitory law than you do now, but he declined, not believing what he asserted, and I think this Rev. Bro. dont believe that "blowing temperance" creates drunkenness, either.

Philomath is a temperance town and the U. B. have a clause in their deeds, that if the purchaser sells or allows any intoxicating liquors sold on the lot, the right and title to said lot and premises is forfeited to the College Association which owns the town plot.

The Oregonian is acting the crawfish a little. It announced that prohibition was entirely a failure, but in a recent item he admits that in some places in Kansas, whisky is not sold. But it is in favor of high whisky license and using the revenue tax on whisky for school money. I wonder if the good Oregonian would not be in favor of pardoning Jesse James and accepting the $150,000 he offers to the governors of three States if they pardon him the many murders and robberies he has instigated and committed; that blood-stained money to be used to educate the children.

Some persons would ask where the revenue is to come from if we prohibit intoxicating liquors, when it costs the Government a great deal more money to prosecute the crimes caused by drink than is received in revenue taxes, besides the 60,000 lives that are lost every year thru strong drink.

Brother and sister Good Templars of Oregon let me urge upon you to stir the temperance voters up and organize Home Protection clubs, pledged to support no man for office unless a temperance man and vote for no one for the Legislature who will not solemnly pledge himself in behalf of our Prohibition Constitutional Amendment.

Now is the time to strike for this. Dont wait till the other parties get their ticket under headway, (we should work both in and out of our respective parties.) We hold the balance of power in Oregon, so let us meet in primary meetings and club meetings for prohibition, and we will succeed, for God is on our side. Yours Fraternally,

E. A. Jackson.

San Louis Rey, San Diego Co., Cal.,
February 16, 1882.

In the Rescue of the 9th inst., there is an article on "Pledging Young Folks" that brot fresh to my memory an occurrence that happened in May, 1842, at Sharpsburgh, Kentucky. Thomas H. Nelson, who has since been our minister to the City of Mexico, was present. I was on my way to Mount Sterling to get the Judge to sign my law license, having previously obtained the signiture of Judge Walker Read, of Mason County, Ky. While at Sharpsburgh, I delivered a lecture on temperance, after which, I called upon all persons present to come up and take the Washingtonian Pledge. A young man, among others, came forward, but an objection was urged that he was under age. It was then the law that a person had to be twenty-one years old before he or she was permitted to take the pledge. I insisted on violating the law, thinking that the young man, from his appearance, knew more than the most of men at twenty-one. He took the pledge. In 1872 I heard Mr. Nelson at Indianapolis, Indiana, say that some years prior he heard Gen. Hood, who was one of the most accomplished generals of the Southern Confederacy, say, "If I had not been permitted to take the temperance pledge at Sharpsburg, Ky., in 1842, altho I was then under age, I would have become a cast away. I was surrounded by intemperate young men." Solomon said. "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them;" "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," etc. Could you train them better than as Hannibal's father, made him at 8 swear on the altar, eternal war against the country's most deadly enemy. To the Good Templar's lodge we have lately had some valuable acquisitions at this place. W. D. Frazee.

Bro. Webb—when at my house—requested my daughter to send some verses for the Rescue; she has written the following:

[For the Rescue.]

SIGN THE PLEDGE.

BY SADIE BELLE FRAZEE.

I've signed the pledge to-night
I'm bound to be a man,
And with the help of God,
I surely think I can—
I'm going home to-night,
With firm and steady gait
To meet the welcome smiles,
Of the little ones and Kate.

Night by night she sits and waits,
For my slow and tipsy tread,
Sewing with her aching fingers,
For the means to get us bread—
Always patient, kind and gentle,
Bearing all her weight of shame,
In a manner truly Christ-like,
Always loving just the same.

I remember when I won her,
Just ten years ago to-day,
She was belle of all the village
And the gayest of the gay—
Her hair was brown and glossy,
And her eyes of heaven blue
Were the index of a soul
That was ever brave and true.

But now she's worn and faded
Her head is bowed with care,
And the sorrow I have caused her
Seems too great for her to bear—
But to night her eyes will gladden
And her face will wear a smile
Brighter far than we have seen,
In many a weary while.

And I'll strive with earnest purpose
To be faithful to my vow
And smooth the lines of anguish,
From her deeply furrowed brow—
And with God's hand to aid me,
I'll try in future to atone
For those years of bitter sorrow
That her sad life has known.

HARMLESS BEER.

Dr. Crothers, the able editor of the Quarterly Journal of Inebriety, says:

"For some years past, a decided inclination has been apparent all over the country to give up (?) the use of whisky and other strong alcohols, using as a substitute beer and bitters and other compounds. This is evidently founded on the idea that beer is not harmful and contains a large amount of nutriment; also that bitters may have some medicinal quality which will neutralize the alcohol it conceals etc. These theories are without confirmation in the observations of physicians and chemists where either has been used for any length of time. The constant use of beer is found to produce a species of degeneration of all the organism, profound and deep-seated. Fatty deposits, diminished circulation, conditions of congestion, and perversion of functional activities, local inflammation of both the liver and the kidneys, are constantly present. Intellectually, a stupor amounting almost to paralysis arrests the reason, precipitating all the higher faculties into a mere animalism, sensual, selfish, sluggish, varied only with paroxysms of anger that are senseless and brutal. In appearance, the beer drinker may be the picture of health, but in reality he is most incapable of resisting disease. A slight injury, severe cold, or shock to the body or mind, will commonly provoke acute disease, ending fatally. Compared with inebriates who use different forms of alcohol he is more incurable and more generally diseased. The constant use of beer every day gives the system no time for recuperation, but steadily lowers the vital forces; it is our observation that beer drinking in this country produces the very lowest forms of inebriety, closely allied to criminal insanity. The most dangerous class of tramps and ruffians in our large cities, are beer drinkers. It is asserted by competent authority that the evils of heredity are more positive in this class than from alcoholics. If these facts are well founded, the recourse to beer as a substitute for alcohol merely increases the danger and fatality following."

Another physician, who calls beer "the least hurtful of all the alcoholic beverages," says:

"All the eliminating and excreting organs, the kidneys, skin, lungs, etc., are doing fullest duty, but are unequal to the task. So the watery fluid permeates and saturates all of the tissues of the body, and the man is just as completely waterlogged as the ill-fated Ironsides was when she went down. Hence the bloated appearance; and what was taken for healthy glow of the face is only a distention of the minute blood-vessels of the surface, from the same cause."

SANTA BARBARA DISTRICT LODGE.

Feb. 16, met at Lompoc; the D. D. being absent, Bro. Jas. Morse presided. Rain having come and farmers busy, the attendance was not so large except from upper end of the county.

Ten lodges were reported; eight represented. Whole membership 709. Degree members 452 and $520.50 in the treasuries. The voters held a caucus and organized a temperance club, the object to have a voting club in each district in the county, and secure the nomination of temperance men for county officers.

It was regretted that Bro. Webb was not present. Two public meetings well attended, were held in the M. E. church and a good program was arranged as usual in Lompoc. Thanks were voted to the ladies and people for hospitable cheer during the two days of session.

The above is condensed fro m a crowded out report of Clio Lloyd, D. Sec.

IN MEMORIAM.

Igo Lodge on the 26th Feb. passed memorial resolutions on the death of Bro. Geo. B. Kingsbury, a most promising and worthy member of No. 155.

ENORMOUS SAVING TO SCHOOLS.

There is usually quite as much money in selling 100,000 copies of a publication at 5c. as 5,000 at 25c., or 500 at $1 0, and we are quite contented to make prices on this basis. It is scarcely four years since we began publishing Sunday-school Requisites on the "Revolution Plan:" we then issued two publications; we have now 36, besides 133 Library books, 5 Song books, and a large number of miscellaneous Requisites. Sales last year aggregated over twenty-six million copies. There is not one of our pub ications but what during the four years has been either dropped in price or increased in size and quality, or both, besides expense of adding new publications, and every new school that patronizes us will help us to sell still cheaper. Has any other publishing house shown any disposition to do the same? We are not the least afraid of the cry of "cheap, cheap." There hasn't been half enough said in that direction, for we not only sell cheap, but even stand ready to give away our goods where a trial does not demonstrate to the buyer that they are BETTER than others, no matter how dear. We employ the ablest writers and pay for all MSS., using more original matter than any two other publishers in this line, having employed and paid nearly two hundred writers during the past year, besides seven editors. Nothing partisan or sectarian admitted.

Lesson Helps. Such helps as will secure the best possible results from the study of the lesson. (Sold on trial, and if not better, no pay). A special teachers' help and scholars' help in five different grades. Credit for lesson preparation on the day-school plan. The song service of the school utilized in the interest of the introduction of purely lesson songs written expressly for us, and growing out of the lessons. The w ole series in perfect keeping. Lesson hymns are arranged to sing at sight (without rehearsal) by the introduction of old and new tune combination. Saves cost of song books. Scholars' helps, with music and all, cost but 4½c. to 11c. a year. Teachers' helps, 18c to 30c. a year. Circulation over one and one-fourth millions. Samples, etc., free.

Sunday-School Papers. OUR PLAN. 1st. Put as much matter into each paper as possible by setting in a fine, but clear and readable type. 2d. Use only the very best articles from the best pens. 3d. Make attractive to the reader, by beautiful illustrations, attractive titles, frequent paragraphing etc. 4th. Make as useful as possible, introducing nothing without it has some good teaching in it. 5th. Furnish at prices based on an immense circulation. Fifteen different papers. Specimen copies free. No single subscriptions.

FIVE CENT PAPERS.—Four monthlies, at 5c. each per year, or 1¼c. per quarter, when bought in lots of five or more. Price 6c. each last year, now reduced to 5c., owing to increased circulation. Each paper contains as much matter as the average Sunday-school paper, and more than many.

SIX CENT WEEKLY.—The LITTLE LEARNER'S PAPER, a weekly paper for the infant class; costs but 6c. each a year, or 2c. a quarter, in lots of five or more. Other infant class papers cost from 18c. to 40c. a year. Contains the lesson with litt e lesson pictures; also one illustrated story in each number.

TEN CENT WEEKLY.—The SABBATH-SCHOOL WEEKLY, for the main school. In clubs at 10c. a year, or 3c. per quarter. First issue began with April; contains as much matter as some papers costing 60c. a year, weekly. Five times cheaper than any other main school weekly published. A great boon to poor schools.

THIRTY CENT WEEKLY.—The WEEKLY MAGNET, an illustrated SERIAL WEEKLY paper for the main school. In clubs, at 30c. each per year, or 8c. per quarter. An immense thing—five times the matter of most Sunday-school papers (please count words); also a choice serial, running through the quarter. Nothing like it to keep up the attendance; invaluable as a means of doing good in the home, besides, in many cases, preventing the reading of bad books and papers. Other papers, with less than one fifth the matter, cost 50c. to 60c a year.

5c. Library Books. One hundred and thirty three library books now issued; one new one following each week. First 52 are reprints of best books written. Original price, from 60c. to $2.15, the whole 52 originally costing $57.45. Volumes above No. 52 are partly reprints and partly written expressly for us. Each book printed without abridgment, in large, clear type, on good paper, bound in pamphlet form, wire stitched, and put up in neatly engraved cover—a different style for each book. For better for Sunday-school library use than the ordinary; being light and flexible, and wire stitched, will last three times as long. Being carefully selected beforehand, saves selection; books being numbered, and containing descriptive catalogue of the whole, saves numbers, catalogues and labels. A new book coming each week replenishes the library, with little trouble or expense. PRICES postpaid—Five or more books, 6 cents each; 10 or more, 5½ cents each; 20 or more, 5½ cents each; 30 or more, 5½ cents each; 50 or more, 5 cents each; 100 or more, 4½ cents each; 200 or more, 4½ cents each.

7½c. Packages of S. S. Reward Cards. 25c. packages of reward cards for 7½c. New designs. No. 1. Poems for children, with pictures, glazed cards, assorted tints, 24 cards, size 3x4¼. No. 2. Scripture text, with picture and verse of hymn, glazed cards, assorted tints, 48 cards, size 2½x3. No. 3. Beautiful chromatic card, floral design, short Scripture text. 64 cards, size 1¾x1¾. No. 4. Scripture text, chromatic card, 96 cards, size 1¼x1½. No. 5. Miniature Scripture text, colored designs, 192 cards size 7⅜x1½. No. 6. Precept, promise and verse of hymn, beautiful chromatic designs, 12 cards, size 4¼x2¾. No. 7. Illuminated Scripture text and verse, beautiful chromatic designs, 12 cards, size 3½x1¾. No. 8. The Lord's Prayer, floral border, glazed tinted board, 21 cards, size 3x4¼. No. 9. Ten Commandments, floral border, glazed and tinted, 12 double cards, size 4¼x6. No. 10. Band of Hope, triple pledge, beautiful chromatic card appropriately designed, 12 cards, size 3½x1¾. Prices, sample package, 10c.; three or more packages, 8½c. each; ten or more packages, 8c. each; twenty five or more packages, 7½c. each. Prices include postage.

The Long Red Mangel Wurtzel Beet

Is the most profitable crop a farmer can raise for feeding hogs and cattle. It is very crisp and sugary, hence a great fat-producer in hogs, and splendid for milk cows. Produces immense crops, even on clay and adobe soils, when well cultivated. Every farmer should plant it, and plant largely this dry year. Look out for old and inferior seed, as there is much on the market. Address, PROF. W. C. DAMON, Napa College, Napa, Cal.

FANATICISM.

There is found in every community a class of good meaning people, who while they are theoretically friends to the temperance cause, are so very conservative in their views, so tender and thotful of the poor rumseller's feelings, and so thoughtless of the bleeding and crushed hearts of his victims, that they always join in the howl of the enemy in denouncing every man and woman who is earnestly and enthusiastically laboring by word and act to stay the dark tide of intemperance, as a fanatic. "Fanaticism" has been the base, hypocritical war-cry of every vile, cowardly, contemptible demagogue from the first morning that Noah commenced building the Ark down to the present day. But there is a marked difference in one respect between the traducers of Noah and the slanderers of temperance reformers, namely; They died from too much water, while our maligners will die on account of too little water.

Alas! how many honest hearts have been driven from the paths of justice, truth and virtue, by this frightful bugbear fanaticism.

This cry, "fanaticism," has in every age of the world, been the giant enemy to every moral, social, civil, political, and educational reform. It has thrown its dark, accursed form across the pathway of christianity, science, art and literature. It has gone forth, with maddened haste and venomed hate, to make battle with the church of the living God, and to defy Goliah-like the armies of Israel. It was the text from which the Devil preached that short but eloquent and convincing sermon to our mother Eve in the Garden of Eden, namely; "Thou shalt not surely die etc." His heralds of to-day, the saloon keepers and their apologists, the champions of Death and Hell, are yelping the same old text, and preaching the same old sermon. And in a thousand instances, with the same result as witness the craven cowardly submission of thousands in the church to the God-defying dominion of the rum-power. Does any one doubt this? I ask who is it that at every election casts the ballot for king alcohol? Who is it that clothes him with authority? Who is it that year after year wreathes his brow with fresh flowers, plucked from the sixty thousand graves of our fathers, brothers, husbands and sons? I answer it is the so-called christian voters of this nation. Yes, before God and Angel I charge the church with this great crime. Dear reader are you one of the number referred to? And will you continue to longer give aid and comfort to the rumseller in his hellish work of spreading poverty and wretchedness, sorrow and tears, ruin and woe, death and destruction thruout the homes of this fair land? Oh, christian brothers may God help you to wisely consider this matter, and to ever vote in the interests of the nation, society, homes and families.

This cry, fanaticism, has not only awed the laity, but alas! also the ministry of God's church, into the basest and most unholy compromise with the works of the devil; compelling both priest and people to bow down at the shrine of mammon. But what is this fanaticism that men should stand in such mortal fear of it. It is only another name for uncompromising fidelity and devotion to truth, justice and right. How few consider how much the world is indebted to it! Its grand and glorious triumphs over the dominion of sin and satan stand out in bold relief and sublime grandeur on every page of the world's history. It points us to her champions and martyrs, who with unceasing valor, unfaltering faith, and Christlike devotion, toiled for long and weary years with every energy of body, mind and soul, that they might lift up the fallen, "rescue the perishing," and save the lost.

Fanaticism, the dreaded ghost of a guilty and cowardly conscience, has been the world's greatest benefactor.

It gave to the church an Apostle Paul, a Martin Luther, a George Whitfield and a John Wesley. To science, a Newton, a Locke, a Galileo and a Fulton. To art a Michel Angelo, a Stuart and a West. To literature, a Bacon, a Byron and a Shakespeare, and to the cause of freedom, a George Washington, a Patrick Henry, a Wilberforce and an Abraham Lincoln.

It lighted the beacon fires of liberty thruout the thirteen colonies. It strengthened the hearts and nerved the arms of our Revolutionary fathers to mighty deeds of daring.

It echoed in bold and defiant accents against British oppression, from every mountain top, valley and forest, city, town and hamlet of New England. It floated out in wild notes over the nations of the world, from the bell on the top of Independence Hall. It fired the heart of Patrick Henry, and caused to ring from his lips those burning words, "Give me liberty, or give me death!"

It came as the voice of inspiration from heaven, to the heart of that grand old patriot, Thomas Jefferson; giving birth to that profoundest and most sublime of all human instruments, the immortal "Declaration of Independence;" and has been heard in the wild thunders and the mad, surging waves of war, on every battle field consecrated to the holy cause of liberty, from Lexington to Appomatox. Such have been some of the noble achievements of true fanaticism over her great triune enemy, policy, conservatism and compromise. M. V. WRIGHT.

Riverside, Cal., Feb. 10,1882.

FATHER WAUGH.

A CONFRERE OF DANIEL WEBSTER AND JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

For years the name of Father Waugh has been as familiar to the inhabitants of Sonoma county as household words. His long and useful life as an exponent of temperance and total abstinence from the use of liquors and tobacco, and his condemnation of profanity, has endeared him to all who know the venerable patriarch. Father Waugh at present resides near Petaluma, on a little homestead which was presented to him by General M. G. Vallejo in 1852. Father Waugh is now in his 74th year, having been born in Virginia in 1808. In his youth he was an associate and friend of John Quincy Adams and Daniel Webster, and he has many evidences of their friendly relations by way of letters, etc. He has for years led a frontier life and was once a Missionary among the Indians. In his declining years he delights in writing and in various ways interesting and instructing children. He wields his pen with as great ease and precision as he has for years. Senator J. G. Fair was once his neighbor and friend, and they at one time occupied adjoining residences. Father Waugh says the first couple he ever married in California, and that was many years ago, he was asisted in that service by his then young friend Fair. The venerable gentleman is spending a few days in this city and appears to enjoy a few days at the metropolis as well as he ever did.—Examiner.

THE CURSE OF WINE MAKING.

A clergyman of Cal. refers to an expression in the wine tracts, "If the impudent falshoods asserted as to the enriching effects of wine and brandy in France were true, what American would purchase national wealth at the price of the utter bankruptcy of American morals and decency?" He then continues. "Mr.———, one of the most respectable farmers of Napa Valley said he got along very well raising grapes and making wine, until his two sons being out all night, he and their mother at daylight went in search of them; they were found lying on the floor and with two neighbor's girls all drunk. Got them home as soon as they could and when the boys got sober, they emptied their casks on the ground, and dug up their vines and threw them over the fence, preferring the welfare of their sons for time and eternity to making money or having a good time with wine. I have a good many more such samples of the ruin in store for the people of our wine districts if you wish them." (Send them along.)

The names of the parties are given but they are withheld from publication. No one who calmly reasons can doubt that general wine making in California would ultimate in general perdition, moral and financial.

A GOOD MOVEMENT.

The ministers in Kentucky (or at least a large per cent. of them) have signed a call for a State convention to consider the best thing to do to rid Kentucky of the liquor traffic. Meetings of this kind should be held in every State. They would be a power. It has been the custom to give half a day, or less, to the temperance cause in the different State religious meetings, but the question before us is too important to be made secondary to anything. Will the Christian ministers of Wisconsin unite in a call for a State convention, the prime object of which shall be to devise a systematic warfare on the saloons of the State?—Ripon Free Press.

SUNDAY LAW CONVICTION.

One Mullee, a whisky seller of Central City, was arrested for dealing out his vile compounds on the Sabbath contrary to law, and taken to Los Alamos, where he was tried before Justice Curtis and a jury. He was found guilty and fined $50—the full extent of the law. We don't know the defendant in this case, but he is not much of a saloon keeper if he don't get even on that little fine. One or two drunken customers of the right sort will set him way ahead. The workingmen and their wives and children are the whisky seller's bankers, and it's their money that in reality pays all such fines. Considering the evil that keeping saloons open on Sunday is productive of in a community, the penalty prescribed by law should have been imprisonment in the county jail. But no doubt our legislators thot that it might hurt the feelings of these whisky dealers to be locked up in the same place where they have sent thousands of their customers.—Lompoc Record.

A SQUARE SUBSIDY PROPOSITION.

It would be an excellent idea for the present Congress if it is going to continue its countenance of the production of whisky, to raise the tax on it from 90 cts. to $1.20 a gallon and devote the extra 25 millions or so thus obtained, to the establishment of American steamship lines to foreign ports and to the construction of a Government thru railroad from San Francisco to New York.

It would be peculiarly fitting as an offset to the recent infamous proposition to make the whisky business and our public school system interdependent. The school system will last, but about the time the railroad would be finished and a splendid system of American steam lines established, the Battle of Armageddon at the American ballot box will have consigned the scorpions and serpents and tormentors of mankind to their natural home in the bottomless pit.

WHEN woman gets the ballot, away with intemperance and monopolies. Woman is called the weaker vessel, but when questions which affect the human family come up she becomes the stronger, and will every time vote to break up the powers that are trampling upon their rights. You can trust a woman to protect her own interest and that of her children, but poor, weak man has to be led around by the apron strings of old mother party. Poor man, he is too weak to break the chains that are binding him. Our word for it, woman will do it when she gets the right to vote.—Ex.

THE amended Stubbs Sunday law, which closes all public places on Sunday has been adopted in the House of the Ohio Legislature by 57 against 28. For the bill voted 51 Republicans and six Democrats, and against, twenty Democrats and eight Republicans. The Senate being two-thirds Republican, the bill will in all probability become a law.—Signal.

It can be seen and heard in the air that the Sunday of the American people is coming home again to stay and the beer dive and Sunday brutality, imports from the slime-pools of Europe are going to get ready to move or will be moved before they are ready.

IN MEMORIAM.

Seaside Lodge No. 354 Santa Barbara deplores the loss of Bro. Wm. Hunter one of its most efficient and faithful members and one of the best citizens of the community and passed resolutions of sympathy and condolence with his stricken family.

M. D. MERRICK.—On March 13th, International Lodge, No. 291, passed memorial resolutions on the death of M. D. Merrick removed in the vigor of his powers and in the hight of his usefulness and at the time W. C. T. of the Lodge. "His associates in the Lodge and co-laborers in the cause of temperance desiring in some appropriate and permanent form to leave on record some just and enduring memorial of our respect and brotherly esteem, resolved that the cause of temperance has lost an earnest, faithful and eloquent advocate, the Lodge an able, and impartial presiding officer and the members a kind and generous friend. A. ALBRECHT, W. C. T.,

LAW AND LIQUOR.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

Now that the battle has begun in earnest, this little pamphlet ought to be in the hands of every man in the State. It is clear-cut and forcible in an eminent degree, is well calculated to arouse the conscience and carry conviction home to the heart.

Every Good Templars' Lodge in the State should send for at least 100 copies for gratuitous distribution, as one has said:

"It will be hard to find 12 pages in any modern publication that will do better work in the cause of temperance, and temperance societies and temperance people will do well to circulate the pamphlet by thousands and tens of thousands."

In view of the great interests now at stake, and with an earnest desire to do good, we have reduced the price to $3 per hundred, postage included.

Send your orders to me, at 25 Russ street, San Francisco, J. C. SIMMONS, or to RESCUE OFFICE.

HOME FOR ORPHANS

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

RENEW! RENEW!! RENEW!!!

GREAT OFFER FOR

Renewals and New Subscribers!

AN OPPORTUNITY TO BOTH

GET GOOD AND DO GOOD

WITHOUT ITS COSTING YOU ANYTHING.

Five of the Revolution "Class Papers" sent free—one each to any five addresses for one year for every cash renewal or cash subscriber sent to the RESCUE with $1.25.

The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, of Chicago, publishes eighteen monthly "class papers," as follows:

No. 1. "Our Young Ladies," especially for young ladies.

No. 2. "Our Young Men," especially for young men.

No. 3. "Our Women," especially for women.

No. 4. "The Christian," for any and every one who acknowledges the claims of God.

No. 5. "The Pastor," especially for pastors, urging them to do their duty.

No. 6. "The Sunday-School Superintendent," setting forth the duties of the Sunday-school in relation to temperance, and what the superintendent may do.

No. 7. "The Sunday-School Worker," intended to induce all Sunday-school teachers to teach temperance in their classes, and otherwise help the cause.

No. 8. "The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner," containing articles from Catholic divines, etc., intended to influence Catholic families.

No. 9. "The Pledge," for reform work; useful at any time.

No. 10. "The Prohibition Banner, for State or local prohibition work.

No. 11. "The Saloon Curse," a paper antagonizing the saloon on the merits of the question, "Saloons or no Saloons," without regard to temperance; especially suited to local prohibition work.

No. 12. "Home Protection," to help women to the ballot on the temperance question, for local or state home protection work.

No. 13. "The People," gotten up especially for the ordinary classes, mechanics, laboring men, etc.

No. 14. "The Railroad," for railroad employes.

No. 15. "The Anchor," for sailors, steamboat men, etc.

No. 16. "The Soldier," for soldiers.

No. 17. "The American Farmer," for farmers.

No. 18. "The Freeman, for colored people.

These papers are sent out monthly, each paper addressed, wrapped and mailed separately to each individual named. Each person sending $1.25 cash renewal or new subscriber for the RESCUE will be entitled to the privilege of selecting from the above list, five papers, all of one, or of different kinds, and ordering them sent to such parties as he may choose, monthly, for one year, without extra cost to him.

For your cash renewal, five papers.

For your cash renewal and one new subscription, or for two new subscribers, ten papers.

For your cash renewal and two new subscriptions, or for three new subscriptions, fifteen papers, and so on.

The "class papers" are small, four-page, two column papers, intended to take the place of tracts, on which they are certainly a great improvement. Each cantains about 6,000 words in a number, or 70,000 in a year, choice matter and they can not fail to do good wherever sent.

An arrangement with the "Revolution" makes this offer possible for a limited time only.

Those who avail themselves of this offer must give carefully and plainly the address of the parties to whom the class papers are to be sent, post-office, county and state. And no other premiums or discounts can be made on papers so ordered. There is no weekly temperance paper in the world so cheap as the RESCUE on these terms.

READ!! READ!!! What people say.

I am glad THE LEVER is doing well. I am its enthusiastic friend. It is bright, racy, and means business, and I like it and rejoice in its prosperity. MARY T. LATHRAP.
Pres. S. W. C. T. U. of Mich.

I consider THE LEVER one of the very best temperance papers published. Its national circulation would do more to benefit the nation than a session of congress. GEO. W. BAIN.

Its outspoken declarations in favor of temperance and the right are its best commentary. MOREAU S. CROSBY, Lieut. Gov. Mich.

IT CONTAINS

1. Numerous editorials.
2. Market Reports.
3. A Weekly News Summary.
4. Stories for the Fireside.
5. The International Sunday-school Lesson, one of the best published.
6. Household hints, family receipts, &c.
7. Stories for the Boys and Girls.
8. Miscellaneous articles from the best writers in the country.
9. Serial articles from Hon. A. B. Richmond, the old lawyer, and others.

THE LEVER is clear, strong, fearless and outspoken. It is ably edited, always on the right side: it ought to prosper and will. It should be widely read, and liberally supported. SAMUEL DICKIE, Prof. in Albion College.

It ought to be in every family. I most cordially commend it. J. ESTABROOK, Prin. Nor. Dep't., Olivet College.

THE LEVER is independent in all things but neutral in nothing. It is the aim of the publishers to make it an educator. Believing that the American people are a thinking people, they appeal directly to the judgment and good sense of their readers. Their ultimate aim is the BALLOT. They urge men to vote as they pray.

THE LEVER is the Organ of the N. C. T. U.

When you call on any of these places please say you saw their Ad or card in the Rescue.

The Good Templars of California have under their care 138 Bands of Hope, containing 8,050 members.

Bro. John Robinson whose fingers were so badly cut some weeks ago with a circular saw, finds the healing of his wounds so rapid as to surprise the doctor. Had the Dr. Bliss treatment been applied to Bro. Robinson and he had consented to it, people would have been asking about this time who wrote that splendid memorial notice.

As the secular and religious papers on this coast convey no intelligence to the people upon the temperance question, the results of prohibition, the temperance warfare in other states, the influence of wine and brandy and the drink traffic upon the finances and morals of the people, it is hoped the readers of the Rescue will see the necessity of pushing its circulation, if they desire to have the cause of all the evils that afflict the land removed.

Antichrist was out in a large body in San Francisco on Wednesday of last week. It was going to give bail in the Sunday law cases and felt so proud of its success in filling this city with prostitutes and paupers and criminals and starving women and children to death—and so honored by being the dogcollared slaves of those Front St. wholesale poison sellers that they formed in procession and started out with a band of music, but the leader (not the devil in person) advised them that a band of music did not become a band of murderers and outlaws and they dropped it. The wholesale liquor dealers are of course the head and front of this rebellion as a closed up Sunday would probably reduce their sales one third and the drunkenness and crime at least one half.

Riverside. Dr. Hall reports an active sentiment against the Logan Bill and a protest to Congress from citizens of Riverside against its passage.

The pamphlets advertised in this number by J. J. Ridge and by Dr. A. M. Collins, are excellent and timely. The twelve addresses by Ridge are embellished with blackboard illustrations and every Band of Hope should have them.

A postal probably from some good friend informs the Rescue "My address is Santa Ana, Los Angeles Co." It came more than a month ago and has been overlooked by accident. Which one of the residents of Santa Ana it was, the writer in his haste forgot to say

Bro. King, has placed the Rescue in every family of the new lodge at Bakersfield and with some single men also. He has had good success in securing subscribers for the paper, altho he has been assigned to the most unfavorable ground of all for that purpose from the first, up in the no rain, dry season country. The lodges he organizes will stay right end up.

Subscribers and renewals this week Lakeville N. Y. 1; Red Bluff Lodge 10; Red Bluff 1; San Bernardino 1; Norristown, Pa. 1; Santa Clara 2; Auburn (J. C. Hawver) 10; Compton (F. Casseres) 2; Roxbury, Kansas 1; Bakersfield (W. C. King) 8; Smiths River (J. G. Dow) 3; Soulsbyville (Amanda Holland) 2; Santa Paula (J. W. Webb) 2; East Oakland 1; Bodie 1; Sacramento G. B. K. 2; in all 48.

The eye and ear, rise wonderfully in value after they get badly damaged. When a person can see nearly as well with his ears as he can with his eyes, and vice versa, he discovers how incalculably valuable his eyesight and hearing are. Those who are threatened with or are already suffering from infirmities of these delicate organs, can get the very best assistance from Dr. Paugh, 640 Clay street; see his card in this paper; and it is of the very greatest importance to them to have the services of a thoro and skilful expert as he is.

The address before the Mayor in another column should be carefully read. It is well put. The Rev. J. C. Simmons made a good point on the claim of the Leag of Fiendom that the constitutionality of the Sunday law was only affirmed by a majority of one. He reminds these howlers that all the millions who desired and believed Tilden to be elected President, at once submitted to the decision of a majority of one in a legally constituted court of arbitration.

Judge Lake asserted at Dashaway Hall that the corner grocery groggeries are the pestilent nests where the hoodlums and thieves and outlaws and criminals of the City are manufactured and he used very strong language in criticising the adverse opinions given by some of the Judges of the Supreme Court who opposed the confirmation of the Sunday Law to make political capital with the thief and outlaw and drunkard making class of the population.

Read elsewhere the propositions of the Kentucky ministers. Cannot our California clergy agree to do likewise, the fight has been going on a good while now to decide which shall go up or down, the grog-shop and its loathesome spawn of crime, or the interests that group around the church. One excellent hint they have given that can be acted upon by any advocate of temperance who can find time to make a few enquiries and take a few notes; to find out and publish in every town, district and county how many individuals and families are prevented by the execrable dramshop from being customers to the honest trades and merchants and mechanics; it would be well too, to find out from the shopkeepers and business men the amount of bad debts they have lost this year and last and for five years, because the debtor attends the dramshop or did so; and to have all this information tabulated and presented to the business men; without mentioning names in cases where the feelings of innocent families are to be hurt.

The Los Angeles Herald commits the whole Democratic party of this State to the Leag of Fiendom and the repeal of the Sunday Law. It would benefit the Democratic Party immensely if the respectable Democrats would disclaim and read out and expel some members of the carrion press which sail under its flag and which lose no opportunity of presenting the Democratic party as the "Devil's own," to be depended on to endorse and aid and embrace every movement that is filthy and wicked and opposed to decency and good order.

The Secular Press.—Please read carefully the article under that heading, on page 346, and say if it is not exactly true, and see if it is not an absolute necessity for the public welfare, to get a journal into our homes that tells the truth every time, in preference to those which persistently suppress the truth on those matters which most vitally affect the welfare of the home and the country. Many temperance people refuse a temperance paper, but take into their families a daily or weekly which is filled with falsehood upon the temperance question, and which is the bond slave and pliant tool of the vilest criminals and the most deadly enemies of the homes from which the newspapers draw their bread and butter, and whose interests they profess to advocate. And those journals come into the home, too, lots of them, reeking with nasty and debauching advertisements; which cunning scoundrels bribe them to sneakingly introduce into the American home, wrapped up in the disguise of a newspaper. That is independent patriotic journalism. The Rescue thanks the Hanford journal for waking this subject up, and next week a course of practical sermons will commence in this paper calling public attention to the advertisements which the California secular newspaper puts under the noses of its readers. And if anything disagreeable comes up it will be not the Rescue's fault, but that of the paper that is guilty of it.

The meeting in Dashaway Hall on the evening of the 25th was a success. As usual with the Kentucky speakers Col. Long surpassed expectations as an eloquent and effective speaker. He was listened to with the most profound attention; and every point he made and argument presented was greeted with most sympathetic applause. No one but a liquor seller whose business is a war with the whole human race and who looks upon his fellow beings from the stand point and with the feeling that the wolf regards the shepherds flock, could fail to lay aside all dout, if he had any, of the propriety and practicability of enforcing the Sunday law as in the nature of and belonging to the system of moral statutes which all forms of government, despotic, monarchical, constitutional or republican, christian or heathen, have always claimed an undisputed right to enact and enforce for the protection of the health, morals and social and economical welfare of their people. His audience paid him a compliment which is seldom indeed paid to a public speaker in California; at the close of his speech, they gave him an encore of applause which continued till he was obliged to yield and talk a little more. Judge Lake alluding to Col. Long's address very deftly said he had come here this evening to learn that one can enjoy music without going to the Opera. It is due to the Judge to say that his own remarks were well timed and of telling service and breathed an earnest spirit of patriotism and good citizenship.

A REMARKABLE COMPOSITION.

The following is one of the most remarkable compositions ever published. It evinces an ingenuity of arrangement such as we have never seen before. The initial capitals spell, "My boast is in the glorious cross of Christ." The words in italics, when read from top to bottom and from bottom to top, form the Lord's Prayer complete:—The Evening Fireside.

Make known the Gospel truths, Our Father, King,
Yield us thy grace, dear Father, from above;
Bless us with hearts which feelingly can sign,
"Our life thou art for ever, God of Love!"
Assuage our grief in love, for Christ, we pray,
Since the bright Prince of heaven and glory died,
Took all our sins, and hallowed the display,
Infant be ing first, a man, and then was crucified.
Stupendous God! thy grace and power made known;
In Jesus' name let all the world rejoice;
New labor in thy heavenly kingdom own—
That blessed kingdom for thy saints the choice.
How vain to come to thee is all our cry!
Enemies to thy self and all that's thine,
Graceless our will, we live for vanity,
Loathing the very be ing, evil we design.
O God, thy will be done from earth to heaven,
Reclining on the Gospel let us live,
In earth from sin deliver ed and forgiven,
Oh! as thyself but teach us to forgive.
Unless it's power temptation doth destroy,
Sure is our fall into the depths of woe.
Carnal in mind, we've not a glimpse of joy
Raised against heaven; in us hope cannot flow.
Oh, give us grace, and lead us on thy way;
Shine on us with thy love, and give us peace;
Self and this sin that rise against us slay.
Oh! grant each day our trespass es may cease.
Forgive our evil deeds that oft we do.
Convince us daily of them to our shame;
Help us with heavenly bread; forgive us too,
Recurrent lusts, and we 'll adore thy name,
In thy forgive ness we as saints can die,
Since for us and our trespasses, so high,
Thy Son, our Saviour, bled on Calvary.

X.—ALCOHOLIC DISEASE.

Twenty-one years ago we attributed but little to alcohol as a cause of disease. We said that there was a disease called gin-drinker's liver, and that this was attended afterward with dropsy, and led to a certain fixed mortality. We heard also of delirium tremens. We heard of mania a potu, as the French call it, or "dispomania," as we call it. You will, however, find now that the word alcoholic has become an adjective in disease. Men speak of alcoholic tisis or consumption. I was the first to discover that there was a particular form of consumption very fatal in its character which was peculiar to persons who indulged largely in alcohol, which was specifically alcoholic consumption. That has been accepted, and later on other forms of disease—liver disease, heart disease, paralysis, apoplexy, various forms of dyspepsia, permature old age and death. You will say a man has got alcoholic paralysis; he has died from apoplexy, the result of alcohol; he is prematurely old from alcohol—that is the evidence you get now; but you did not get it twenty-one years ago. The facts had always been these; all history had told the facts; but they had not been analyzed and traced to their true source. We had not known that it was from the influence of this one particular agent that all this vast mass of disease was springing. A professional brother, going farther than I would have gone, has even said that in walking his hospital for twenty-five years he has been led to the conclusion that sixty to seventy of the cases of disease which came there were cases of disease brought about either directly or indirectly by this one agent.

LAWS AND OUTLAWS.

The liquor sellers are always at work in the framing of legislation. No class of men are quite so active in the selection and election of the men who are entrusted with the framing of the laws. The liquor sellers are constantly before Congress for national legislation; constantly introducing new acts and amending or repealing or altering old ones so as to assist their interests and protect and benefit their traffic in some way.

They are before every state legislature and city council about constantly, engaged in the manufacture of law. Their devotion to law is so genuine and their respect for it so exalted that they are almost constantly before the police court and the criminal courts and the county court, and they admire and revere law so much that in every case that is decided against them, they carry an appeal up thru all the tribunals to the final court of appeal on this side of time. They are the most ardent lovers of law we have, and one is tempted to believe at times that the chief original aim and end of all law must have been to make this world a nice and pleasant chapel of ease for the dealers in liquid pollution.

And thru all the history of all the cases, in which the liquor seller and drunkard maker have been before a court on the one side, and the American people or an American citizen on the other, it is perhaps not too much to say that in nineteen times of every twenty, the law has been bent or twisted or evaded or misconstrued or openly violated and defeated by trickery of counsel, perjury of witness or prejudice or corruption of judge or jury to favor the criminal and do injury and injustice to the people; tho in some places nowadays that state of things exists no longer.

Under such a regime as that, when law means the will of the mankiller; as long as a legal decision means invariable turkey for the German debaucher and invariable crow for the American victim of this imported European leprosy of drunkenness; none so clamorous for the sacredness of law, none so jealous of violence to mens rights secured by law; holy law.

The local option law which the liquor dealers say they paid John B. Felton $40,000 to get declared unconstitutional, was so decided by a majority of one man or the worse and larger half of one man; but that decision was good law and had been undisturbed and undisputed more than seven years; no one rebelled against it. A conspiracy of temperance men who might have attempted to enforce the local option law which had prevailed by the will of the people legally expressed, in Woodland or Nortonville or Oakland, after the publication of that extraordinary decision of the Supreme Court of Cal. would have been jailed and punished, and if the movement had looked at all serious, the Governor's proclamation would have had in three days 5,000 bayonets out if necessary to defend the supremacy of the law.

Every decision made recently in favor of the mankillers on this Sunday law issue, has been final and no one has rebelled or threatened, but when a decision of the last court of appeal in consonance with every former decision of a decent court in any other State has come out favorable to the American side of this Sunday question, asserting the right of the American people to protect by law their homes from the ribald debauchery and riotous ruffianism of the exiled scum of European outlaws who infest the country and live by rapine and robbery, these leagers of fiendom defy the law whose verdict they themselves invoked. It was, forsooth, only a decision of 4 to 3, a bare majority of one judge, and therefore invalid; but the local option decision of 3 to 2 was perfect, and this would have been unassailable had the 1 odd been on the other side.

If any proof had been wanting, we have it now that the business of the drunkard maker and robber and destroyer of our homes and our lives—is naturally and of necessity an outlaw; and having no respect for honest upright law of any kind, the only just law for him, the only one to which he has not forfeited every claim, and the only law in respect to him that would be consistent with justice and right and the welfare and perpetuity of this republic, is a law for his extermination root and branch, by such means as may be found effectual and necessary to complete success. The manslayer and law defier has no rights to claim from law and none elsewhere except the right to reform and repent and cease to be a pestilence.

MORE ANTI-CHRIST.

The Chronicle reports now the N. Y. Evangelist, coming out as a champion of rum after this fashion:

"FAILURE OF PROHIBITION.

The New York Evangelist calls attention to the published statements of Mr. Weeden of Providence, showing 'the virtual failure of prohibitory legislation on Rhode Island, and says that they are backed by statistics and by men whose word is trustworthy. * * * It (prohibtion) has introduced a new element into the controversy which is aside from the real temperance issue. * * * In this country more than any other it is exceedingly difficult to enforce laws that run counter to the feelings and habits of a large class of people.'"

Whenever a religious paper in the east or west publishes such statements, it does so with a full knowledge that it is preaching a message from the father of lies to its readers.

It is well known that in parts of the various States where prohibitory laws are on the Statute book, the foreign law-breaker has been permitted to continue unmolested his work of thief-breeding and crime nursing, thru the sympathy and connivance and with the assistance of corrupt and perjured politician office-holders, and such people as Mr. Weeden and such journals, secular and religious, as can be purchased to do the same work that Judas did at the same price or less.

It is equally patent to every religious journal that prohibition wherever a sincere effort has been made to enforce it, is eminently successful in restraining vice and crime and is the gratest blessing that could be poured out upon any rum-curst locality; and when any attempt is made to prove or indicate to their readers that prohibition in itself is pernicious or harmful in any one respect, or is a failure or is impracticable, it is not only a wilful, malevolent and scandalous perversion of truth, but a disgraceful crime against the welfare of society.

There are people who think it is wicked or unwise or indecent or fanatical to assault or condem or criticise, or apply strong language to any person or thing that arrays itself in a garb of religious profession; but Christ and the apostles used the very strongest language against such; the most dangerous and venemous enemies of Christianity. Ingersoll attacks Christianity in front, in broad day-light and blares his message of defiant hostility thru a brazen trumpet. The religious journal that publishes the failure of prohibition, and couples Christ and his religion to the wine cup of uncleanliness, salutes Christianity and the Christian faith with a kiss in front and stealthily and with satanic cunning and malice reaches round and from behind stabs it to the heart.

Such literature is more pernicious than the carrion which Anthony Comstock pursues, and is a thousand times more potent to maintain deep and broad and strong the foundations and fortifications and buttresses of sin and pollution; a successful fight against the only hope of the nation (which, thank God, is impossible, the Evangelist and its helpers and Satan notwithstanding,) would be the death knell and final defeat of Christianity and decency and liberty and human happiness on this continent.

THE GERMANS.

The rum-curse organ congratulates the Germans, that of the 30,871 arrests for drunk and disorderly in New York City last year, only 1,657 were Germans, while 14,813 were Irish, and 13,282 were native Americans. The editor uses it as an argument in favor of the German beer habit and traffic; but we venture that three-fourths of the beer and whisky that caused those Irish and American drunks and disorderlies, was either manufactured or sold by Germans. That is just what we complain of. Their determination to extend their own domoralizing habits among all other people. The German temperament can take aboard enough beer to make any other temperament crazy, and still keep its head level enough to make and sell enough to make half the rest of the world crazy.

It is the grasping avarice of the German liquor men who plant themselves down among other nationalities to grow rich over their demoralization, which has caused the people of the United States to rise up against the traffic which they are determined to fasten upon the country.

It is not the spirit of "knownothingism," for there are hundreds of good Germans in Indiana who repudiate this element which constitutes the anti-prohibitionists, and we respect and welcome them as good citizens.—Monitor Journal.

POETRY OF THE BAR.

"That's McDougall," said the barkeeper. "He was a great man, he was. I've had him and Trenor W. Park and John Conness and E. D. Baker and Jo Baldwin and Harry Byrne all drinkin' at this here bar together. There was a galaxy for you. Talk about yer lectures an' yer sermons; them wuz the occashins when ye cud git a intellectual treat. Why, I remember the last toast that old boy McDougall offered in this house. There was a lot ov 'em here; fine, genteel drinkers, all of 'em. Nary a one but coud empty his bottle at a sittin.' He was goin' on to Washington to occupy a seat in the Senate, just afore he made that 'Wine, Women, Whisky and War' speech. And his parting sentiment was:

Well, when we meet again, may it be at the bar of Heaven, where the blushing Hebe dispenses nectarian rotgut on eternal tick.

"Now that's what I call poetry, eh? Suthin appropriate about that."—Chronicle.

That was the kind of poet the bar made of the eloquent Senator McDougall, and of thousands of others. It is awful to think of, but that is just the drinkers natural idea of Heaven—rotgut, a female beerslinger, guzzling, spunging and eternal pauperism. A whisky poem.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

The Rev. A. Parke Burgess in the Liberator gives some reasons for not weighting the platform of the prohibition party with an equal suffrage issue, which whether sufficient or not, certainly deserves respectful consideration. He says "you cannot build up a national party on more than a single issue. altho those uniting on the one paramount issue consent to permit other issues to be included in their platform. And there being a party already organized on that issue we have no necessity for making that a part of our fight.

It dont seem that a Good Templar, loyal to the creed and practice of the Order can be opposed to equal suffrage for women; for it is a corner stone doctrine of the organization. But there are many who combat very bitterly the idea of investing women with the franchise; and some such are found in our Order. It is proper to ask just here if the least dependence could be placed on any such person to leave old party and cast a prohibition vote under any circumstances, with or without a suffrage plank involved.

It may be unwise to put weights on a prohibition platform, but there we should find a host of people asking if we expected to build up a party on a platform with only one plank and one idea in it. If "in a multitude of counsellors there is safety," there is much perplexity as well.

The temperance people who used mostly to cherish a sacred fidelity to the Republican party would never have dreamed of organizing a third, had they hoped to see a prohibitory plank in the Republican platform. Could they have found it later with the Democrats, they would most of them have preferred to go over there, to the risks and labors of a third party.

If our prohibitory third party could carry the day on its single issue, it is probable a large proportion of the men and women who favor woman suffrage would feel just as sure of its immediate adoption by us as if the victory had been gained by the Suffrage party on its own single issue. And with our more numerous following and better prospects of success, it would seem that our chances of absorbing or securing the votes of the advocates of other reforms as compared with those of losing help because of a double issue, would be as 10 or 20 to 1.

One thing very important, more important, most important, supremely important, has been neglected or overlooked by the advocates of woman suffrage. If bad men have the privilege of voting, that is no reason why bad women should vote, or illiterate women, or women who have forfeited their claim to citizenship by such acts as should disqualify men. The very best argument for woman suffrage and the most convincing promise of good results to come from it, would be a condition attached at their earnest request to the enabling act which shall do them this act of justice, that no woman shall be a voter who is drunken or cannot read or write, or who is engaged in any illicit or disreputable calling or has been convicted of crime or evil courses within a due limit of years past. Thus the numerous fossil Rip Van Winkles who argue that every bad woman would scrupulously perform her citizen's duty at the ballot box, and every good woman would be unpatriotic and recreant to her obligations and utterly indifferent as to whether the right or wrong, whether the church, school and home or the grogshop and brothel should triumph on election day—will be disarmed and driven out of a tower of strength, a walled and provisioned Babylon, under whose protecting ramparts they have been dreaming fairy dreams on a bed of roses in a palace of pearls in a garden of Eden in a heaven of bliss for the past 20 years.

ED RESCUE:—I was surprised to see in your interesting journal the poem which I read at a public temperance meeting in this place on Christmas day, the friend who sent it must be interested in me, or wanted to show what the young people of this little colony can do. Being a thoro temperance girl I am doing and will do all I can to help the glorious cause along, to give my aid to the Grand Good Templar army which is marching on to stay the demon alcohol. All the means in my power shall be used to turn the young from the path of ruin. It is strange that young men of good families will follow such evil habits, as drinking, gambling, and smoking—not only do so but tempting and leading others to do the same when they know it is wrong, injures the mind and ruins the system. Let us do our best and use all our power, dear sisters, to counteract the pernicious influence of thotless and wicked companions and draw back from forbidden paths the young people of our acquaintance who are blindly entering thereon. Do we not plainly see the many sad and woful results of intemperance around us every day? do we not read in every city paper long lists of suicides, murders and frightful crimes caused by indulgence in intoxicating drinks? Come then, dear sisters, let us join one and all in this holiest of causes, and by our united efforts this fell destroyer can be and shall be swept from our land; then all can dwell in peace and love together, our brothers and fathers and kindred dear will be in no danger of filling drunkards graves or rendering miserable the tender hearts given into their keeping; our young men will grow up into useful and honorabte manhood, mediums of good and not evil unto each other, fulfilling the intent for which they were created—to benefit not injure society; then too, alms houses, prisons and insane asylums will be far less needed than at present. And it is in our power "poor weak women" as we are sometimes termed, to achieve all these glorious results. Let us then be up and doing faithfully this work God has assigned to us and his richest blessing will crown our efforts.

"TEMPERANCE SMOKERS."

I should as quick think of uniting with the Church on the strength of keeping one of the commandments as joining a Temperance League while indulging in the use of tobacco.

It was my misfortune not long since to sit next a man, at a temperance meeting, who used tobacco; and as a natural consequence I went home with a sick headache. I was disappointed to find that not even in the temperance lodge room was I exempt from the, to me, fatal effects of the fumes.

Tobacco cannot be healthful where the nerves respond so painfully to its influence.

I called upon a lady friend whose husband is principal of one of the city schools; while there he passed thru the room, stopping to talk a few moments, with a lighted cigar in his hand, he had the politeness to remove it from his mouth! As a consequence I suffered for twenty-four hours with neuralgia of the head. What would be thot of persons carrying the smoking germs of pestilence in the left hand while friendly greeting one with the right?

I am thankful I own a home where no one has the right to intrude the poisonous vapors of tobacco; but stop! my next door neighbor smokes and when he sits on his piazza enjoying his pipe, when the wind is right, I acknowledge I am obliged to close my east windows, so intrusive is smoke, there is no escape.

BETH.

MARRIAGE AND LIQUOR.

In addition to all the other charges for which the gigantic liquor crime is arraigned, drinking is charged with being a violation of marriage vows. Thousands of honorable men who drink will deny and resent this charge. But is it not true? Those vows were solemly made. "in the presence of god and these witnesses," and the just penalties of their violation were invoked. The parties mutually pledged to love each other, and to do all in their power for each other's happiness and welfare. They were to be one, and to stand by each other in all the vicissitudes and responsibilities of life.

Now is liquor-drinking a violation of these sacred vows? It impairs and ultimately destroys the mental powers. It kills the power to love, as it impairs reason, memory, and moral perception. It tends to the extinction of moral conviction, which is the only security of duty. Head and heart are paralyzed by it, until the husband can torment and kill the wife he once loved, and swore always to love. It is a devil in married life, and is fearfully destroying the family, the germ of human hope. Only the Infinite can measure the misery and ruin which intoxicating drinks are bringing upon the American family.

Nearly all the acids in nature are sweets acidified. The frosts of autumn turn the sweet in the leaves to sour; that acid changes their color, they die and fall, and the winter winds sigh among branches without leaf or flower. Alcohol turns the sugar of conjugal love, so sweet at the marriage altar, and its protection so secured by solemn vows, to vinegar—the sweeter then the sourer now—every leaf and flower falls, and the winds utter despair thru the desolate branches.

But there are other ways in which drinkers are treacherous to their marriage promises. They pledge the loving one whose hand they took at the altar, that they would hold her as another self, and faithfully employ body and mind for her welfare and happiness, equally at least with their own. And these vows embrace the family, whatever it may be. This is a mutual pledge, and for this they agree to toil and share. One has no more right to spend in personal indulgence than the other. Yet he takes the result of their joint efforts, and of which she and the family are in want, and squanders it for liquor and tobacco, and by these poisons diminishes his accumulative capapity to an equal amount. The wife and children toiled with weary steps to earn and to save, and then he siezes the money and spends it in self-indulgence, robbing them of their share and placing in jeopardy their common home. * * *

Suppose the wife were to sieze and spend fifty dollars a year in the same way, what would the prudent husband have a right to say to that? And her right to do it is as good as his. Such meanness and guilt ot to meet the scorn of society.

The family cannot exist without love and fidelity to its obligations in the marriage contract. Nothing on earth can save it. And as the family dies, society dies, law dies, the nation dies, the Church of God dies, and human hope dies. And this is what every liquor-drinking husband is doing, whether aware of it or not. It is surely time for thot by married men, and especially by unmarried young men and women. —A. Willey, in The Washingtonian.

FROM THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE HAYES COMMISSION.

The engraving which was promised in November has been delayed by circumstances which could not be controlled and for which no one can be held responsible. While the committee greatly regret this, yet is very grateful to the subscribers who have waited so patiently what may appear a long time; yet in reality the work has been pressed with great rapidity, considering the style of it. * * * *

We trust there will now be a new enthusiasm and much interest for this beautiful testimonial to a noble and heroic stand for principle. We shall need more money to complete the payment for the engraving, and we are very desirous to lay the foundation for a literature fund which shall be a benefaction to the Total Abstinence cause the country over.

In subscribing for this picture every one will receive full value; indeed, judges are finding fault with us for giving so fine a work for so small a sum; far less than such could be purchased from the reglar dealer. But the small profits on many sales will make a grand endowment for a permanent fund to be used in the distribution of Temperance literature.

Copies may be ordered from Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, New York. Price, $5 00.

IT ISN'T FAIR.

Women are taxed, but have no vote. Their children are ruined with rum, and they have no redress. The men vote to license the saloons and then tax the women to help pay the enormous expenses resulting therefrom. This may be right—it may be just—but we cannot see it in that light. We do not believe any reader who stops to consider the question of the God-given, natural right of all human beings to a voice in the government under which they live, and to the support of which they contribute their share, can but favor equal suffrage, regardless of sex or the question of its expediency.—National Liberator.

PAUL AND BARNABAS. — Miss Willard arrived March 3rd, at New Orleans, after a very successful cruise in Texas. In fifteen of the best counties she and her sweet ministering angel, Miss Gordon, established a branch of the W. C. T. U., to stay and to grow. Miss Gordon gets the young folks organized, and in every way is an excellent help to Miss W.

"THERE is one kind of home protection that is sadly neglected, and the neglect of which has cost innumerable ruined sons and heart-broken daughters. I mean that protection that reaches down deeper than the most stringent civil law ever enacted. It is the exclusion of the decanter from your own tables, and the positive prohibition of a glass of wine, intoxicating ale or "hard cider," under your own roof."

VOTE ON CHANGE OF REGALIA.—The vote on the question of changing the white or initiatory collar to a metal badge, as taken in this jurisdiction has been certified up to the R. W. G. S. as follows: Total number of lodges reported in good standing at the 22d annual session of the Grand Lodge 341. Number of Lodges reporting their vote upon the question of changing the regalia 306. The attendance at the time of voting in these 306 Lodges aggregated 6,469 or an average of twenty-one and one-seventh. Those voting against any change and in favor of continuing the regalia as at present used, numbered 5,650. Those voting in favor of the change to a metal badge numbered 383, while 436 failed to vote at all. So that the proposed change met with but little favor in California.

NEW LODGES.—The following additional new Lodges were reported during the past week completing a record of fifty five lodges added since the Grand Lodge session.

Modoc Lodge, organized March 13th at Alturas, Modoc Co., with fifteen charter members by J. D. McLeod, Special Deputy. Night of meeting Monday. J. L. Kerr L. D., P. O. Alturas, Modoc Co.

White Rock Lodge, organized March 22d at White Rock Dist., Mariposa Co with 27 charter members by Hugh R. Hughes, G. L. Night of meeting Thursday. L. D., Jacob Lewis. P. O., Lewis.

HON. ELI JOHNSON.—The brother whose name heads this item and who hails from Brooklyn, N. Y., lectured at Sacramento on Friday evening last, to a large and thoroughly appreciative audience, his subject being "What they drink and how they make it, or the power of the traffic." With the aid of his magic box he showed how different liquors, wines and champagne wines could be made "everything sham excepting the pain." He held his audience for an hour and a half, and thoroughly exposed the ways that are dark, and the tricks that are not always vain as practiced by the disciples of the Leag of Fiendom in the adulteration of liquors. He gave the moderate drinkers some "bottom facts," informing them exactly as to the component parts of those "good creatures of God?)" which they take into their stomachs. Bro. Johnson contemplates a tour of the world, and is now en route for Australia. He departed hence for Oakland and San Francisco, where he will remain for a few weeks before sailing. It is hoped the friends of the temperance cause will make good use of Bro. Johnson's information and talents. He is commended as an earnest and honest advocate of the cause of Temperance.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE.—The following circular, issued by Bro. John B Finch, Chairman of the Literature Committee of the R. W. G. L., should be read in every subordinate lodge and receive favorable attention:

SISTERS AND BROTHERS:—The R. W. G. L., at its last session in Topeka, Kansas, determined to push the work of circulation of temperance literature during the year, and a committee, of which I am chairman, was appointed to carry on the work and report at the next session of that body. Immediately after the close of the session, the committee commenced to press its work, and, by circular to the different Grand Secretaries, to urge immediate action. At every step the old neglect of this most important part of our work has obstructed our progress, and now I come to you direct. The present time must be improved. Never before in the history of the movement against drunkard-making, has everything been as auspicious for active, aggressive work. The enemy is frightened, his hosts are in disorder, the people are waking from the sleep of superstition and ignorance, and the Order of Good Templars, the strongest and best disciplined corps of the temperance army, must advance and press the battle to the gates. The strength of the Order is in the subordinate lodge; and on each subordinate lodge rests a heavy responsibility. Shall our templar banner lead the van, or be trailed in the dust by cowards? The subordinate lodges must answer. My sisters and brothers, our flag is dearer to us than any other, and by all the loved memories of the past, and the hopes and aspirations of the future, let each company follow the flag. In the days gone by we have been recruiting and drilling our forces. The time has come to test the efficiency of the drill in the fight. The Order is simply a division of an army organized to overthrow an enemy. It can not, must not, remain idle in its tents, while a great battle is progressing. Selfishness, if no other reason, should lead every subordinate lodge to work, and make a universal temperance sentiment among the masses for as soon as the masses are converted to temperance they see the need of a practical organization, like ours, and the lodge will be built up. especially if the converting of the masses has been through the work of the subordinate lodge. The best thing to keep soldiers from deserting is to get up a fight—to move on the enemy's works; and lodges that do practical, energetic work, have no time for wrangling or dissensions among their members. Our reformed brothers must be made safe by removal of temptation, and public opinion must be educated to condemn the business of drunkard-making, and make its continuance an impossibility. The committee believe the only way to do this is to sow the land with temperance literature, taking advantage of every possible way to do it. To accomplish this end, we have written, printed, and urged, but things move so slow that we can not wait any longer. The next session of the R. W. G. Lodge is at hand, and we must report an advance—a real, bona-fide trial of the printed page. We want to make the test of it in every lodge before the R. W. G. Lodge, which meets May 23d, 1882, and have reports in, long enough before the session so we can learn and report the effects and results of the movement. If each subordinate lodge will thoroughly circulate temperance papers and literature at once, it means a positive advance along the whole line; and there is not a lodge on the continent but can raise fifty dollars for this purpose. I now ask you, sister and brother deputies, to assist in this matter, and will you at once move in the matter? At the next session of your lodge read this circular under the head "new business," and urge the lodge to take some suitable and effective action at once. This action should insure immediate results. Don't postpone action a single week. Think how short a time we have to work. If nothing better occurs to you, introduce the following:

Resolved, That an appropiation amounting to twenty-five cents for each member, be made for buying temperance literature for general distribution, and that a committee of three be appointed at this meeting, with the power to select and purchase such material as they deem most suitable. Such committee to act immediately in the matter, so as to be able to make a definite report of work within ten days, also to make report of results of work, before the next meeting of R. W. G. Lodge. If there are not sufficient funds in the hands of the treasurer, the committee is impowered to raise the same.

As I have stated before, I want definite answer at once, as I shall be at work in Illinois during March, April and May, I have arranged to receive your answer at Chicago, and mail answer from there. I enclose postal for report, which please make immediately after your next lodge meeting. I hope you will not delay action in this matter, even if better results could be expected by a little delay; and please do not delay sending report immediately after first meeting, as I want to know the action of your lodge in this matter at once. If you are going ahead I want to know it, and to what extent; if you are not I also want to know it. If you are not lodge Deputy at present, hand this to the one that is, and if your lodge is dead, report the fact. Immediately upon receipt of your answer, I will send each of the committee in charge of the matter, one of National Temperance Society's catalogue of publications, also of Revolution Publishing House, so they may at once select and order the literature they think best to use. Now, let me hear from you. I am sure your lodge will give this matter a good honest trial.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst. Col. O. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

A specific charm for rain seems to be for me to send an appointment to Santa Rita. The storm again prevented my getting there, to Los Alamos, to Rose of Lompoc and Lompoc Valley Lodges and to M. E. Church for lectures and subordinate work. Did get in one visit to Lompoc Lodge and one of the Grand Temperance Meetings we get up there. Lodge doing well, about 150 members. Also visited and addressed the three departments of public school, all earnest temperance teachers. Got down to Maple and Artesia schools and received good attention. Went part of the way to Lompoc Valley Lodge and feared the rain would prevent my getting back for several days. Finally started for Ventura in an open stage; soon had to lie down in the wagon and cover up with a tarpaulin, but I got sopping wet, nevertheless. No stage from Las Cruces till next day. Met with Santa Barbara Lodge, better attendance and interest than when I was last with them; one initiation and several proposals. Bro. Netterly, long absent in Utah, sent $5 for dues not being willing to lose membership or fail of doing his part, tho unable to attend any lodge, perhaps for years. Resolutions adopted to get both lodges and all preachers and churches to aid in enforcing Sunday Law and holding regular monthly open temperance meetings. All saloons but one closed last Sunday. Lecturer will spend a week here next month and, with hearty co-operation, much good will be done. Great regret expressed that our able and eloquent Dist. Deputy Rev. S. S. Fisk, pastor Baptist Church has his time too fully occupied to be able to attend Dist. or subordinate lodges. He is greatly missed. He goes East soon and will come back, we trust, full of new experiences and enthusiasm in the cause and we all hope with more time. After lodge sat up till 2 o'clock A. M. and took stage to NORDHOFF, via Ventura where I consulted with Bro. R. R. Tanner, L. D., of the new lodge and with Sister Walbridge Past Dist. Sec. Had every profitable time at Nordhoff giving two lectures. Sister Mary Smith, W. V. T., presided and Horace J. Smith, Esq., Bro. Thos. Barrows, Bros. A. T. Taylor and Dr. Perry also spoke effectively. Hope to be back next month, speak at both of the school houses and organize one or two Bands of Hope. Was cordially welcomed at both hotels, Mr. McKee and Bro. Barrows each placing rooms at the free disposal of the Lecturer and seconding his efforts Both are strictly temperance and home-like hotels. Every one should know that this is a lovely Valley for anyone to visit for health, rest and or recuperation. Had a long talk with Mrs. T. R. Strong, a wealthy lady of New York, who gave me gratifying personal information about the good work being done among the higher classes of society there. We need to keep those classes in view in Cal, too, and to make special efforts to reach them. My friend Horace J. Smith kindly responded to my request to send me in his carriage to Paula. He said "certainly; always willing for such contributions towards the cause of temperance." He is an ardent temperance man and prohibitionist and his better-half helps the lodge greatly, she and son and daughter being members. She and Mrs. Strong, before mentioned, were earnest workers in the Women's Christian Temperance Union, East. How many such I find in places where they have no such affiliations in Cal. It is to be regretted that the organization is not more wide-spread in the State. I hope to return to Nordhoff and go to the upper Ojai. All thru this part of the county I find a good deal of interest is manifested about Dist. Lodge to be held at Mound School House on Friday and Saturday 7 and 8 April and I have secured promises of several to give us readings etc, for the occasion.

W. C. KING.

My last was dated Glennville from which place I retraced my steps to Plano and by request of the members stopped for a degree meeting, that (Friday) eve. March 10. It was a very enjoyable occasion and the evidences of healthy growth in the lodge since Bro. McMillans advent are marked. On Saturday evening I held my third meeting at Porterville and confess to much surprise at the attendance and interest. The people of Porterville have my sincere thanks for courtesies extended and appreciation (I fear far beyond the merits) manifested. On Sabbath forenoon I journeyed to Hunsaker with high hopes of a successful meeting in the evening for the sky was clear and the prospects fine. Alas for the mutability of all things human. Towards evening the horizon thickened and I stood in awe before the oncoming storm unlike anything I had ever witnessed. It was my first introduction to a Cala sand storm and from further acquaintance I beg to be excused. It raged with fearful severity for hours but in the morning all was clear and calm but, oh the sand—only sand—sand everywhere. Later in the day it returned and the second meeting was a failure so the best I could do was to leave another appointment and go on to Tulare meeting the lodge at regular meeting Tuesday evening. Wednesday night entered Kern Co. preparatory to commencing my consecutive campaign here—and was greeted with a severe rain storm the logical sequence of the sand blast, hence no meeting at Sumner. Friday dawned bright and cheerful and at night a larger gathering assembled at the school-house in Bakersfield than I expected. On Saturday evening a still larger attendance and at the close a beginning was made toward organizing a lodge. The following Sabbath morning and evening the attendance and interest was all that I could expect. On Monday evening I went 10 miles into the country for circulating notices that had failed to reach them, and in an hours time secured a full house and received 13 names to an application to a charter so left an appointment for the future. On Tuesday the organization of Kern Island lodge in Bakersfield was completed and they start upon what I hope may be a long and useful career with 20 charter members. When it was known that I was directed by the "Powers that be" to go to Bakersfield my sad fate was strongly commiserated by nearly all I met and I could with no severe stretch of imagination have read a last farewell benediction in their parting minds. I have faced the fearful (?) ordeal and hereby send to them a greeting. Even the press in the upper counties declared that the daring act would pale Byron's audacity in swimming the Hellespont. I wish to bear evidence that my reception at B—— was far beyond what I was by the above led to expect and much more cordial and courteous than many places that speak of this and other "awful" towns with a righteous sneer and a cant tone of pity. This town can boast what many a place that assumes much saintliness to itself can not—It is thoroly consistent. I found many of the people cultured and by all the business men with whom I came in contact was treated with genial respect. But when all this is said the sorry fact still remains that the place is given over to the worship of Bacchus. Rum rules and hence the little lodge has a hard pull before it. May they have the cour- of Tennysons Heavy Brigade and equal victory crown their onset.

To the new L. D. Rev. J. S. Kline do I largely owe the success of the efforts there. His zeal and energy were untiring and my hopes for the future of the work rest largely upon the watchful care I feel sure he will give to it. The W. C. T. Bro. G. F. Eckstrom is lately from San Francisco, (Mission Star Lodge) and rendered me material aid. On Wednesday evening I spoke at Sumner and thus came here entering upon the campaign last evening with a full house and much interest. How invaluable to our success as lecturers is the hearty, intelligent co-operation of the lodge, my fellow workers can testify. Of the work here, more anon.

C. N. GOULDING.

From Gridley on the 18th, I went to Chico, that evening visited Samaritan Lodge. 19th, went by stage 24 miles to Cherokee, found a committee waiting for me,and that evening (Sunday) addressed a large audience in Good Templars Hall, again on Monday evening the hall was crowded and quite a number turned away unable to gain admittance. Result of the two meetings 16 names for membership in our Order. This lodge has held its own in the days past and proposes to "hang on." They own their hall organ etc., etc., and while their membership is not large they are in good condition financially. The meetings were largely attended by drinking men, and an interest manifested that can but result in good. I found the people enthusiastic, and was made the recipient of many favors. Of the large "hydraulic mines" here, I will say nothing, only that they are in reality the town, "shut down the mines" and Cherokee is gone.

From Cherokee I went to Pentz, lectured there 21st and 22nd, obtained six or eight names for membership. This lodge is doing well are building a new hall, and have captured nearly all the "hard drinkers" in the neighborhood. Band of Hope flourishing and the "outlook" cheering. Was entertained by D. H. Hilton and wife, and 23rd rode into Oroville. Bro. Preston met me a few miles out and, carried me in behind a pair of "magnificent blacks." At 5 P. M. left for Wyandotte, in company with Bro. W. S. Reed and three sisters of the Order. The church contrary to expectation was crowded, and 27 names obtained for a lodge. It was deemed advisable to announce another meeting for April 13th, and leave Charter open for additional names. Returned to Oroville, arriving at 11:30 P. M., and Friday drove down here, 22 miles in the snow and wind and of that drive will report in my next.

PLACER CO. DISTRICT LODGE

Held a pleasant and profitable meeting in Auburn on March 17 and 18th, delegates present from ten lodges and two Bands of Hope representing a membership of 624, all reported in good condition and growing in strength.

A committee of three was appointed to submit to the Subordinate Lodges of Placer and Nevada Counties the proposition to unite both counties in one district and employ one or more District Lecturers. An expression of appreciation and apppoval from Placer Co. District Lodge I. O. G. T. to Chief Justice Morrison and Justices Thornton, Myrick and Mc Kee for their decision upholding the Sunday law, was unanimously passed; many other resolutions were adopted concerning the work and cause of temperance.

Onr open meeting held in the M. E. church on the evening of the 18, was well attended despite the stormy weather; short addresses were delivered by the Principal of the public school, Mr. Firehammer, the ex-Principal Mr. White, the editor of the Placer Argus. Mr. H. W. Fenton, and Brother Geo. D. Kellogg recommended D. D. Sisters Tilly P. Oliver, F. Irene Phelps and Mrs. H. W. Fenton organist, rendered very efficient aid in a well selected program. Professor Crowhurst was expected but owing to the sickness of his little boy in San Francisco his appointment was not filled.

Auburn is soon to have a temperance boom or the signs of the times are a failure.

Yours in F. H. and C. J. C. HAWVER.

1000 FARMERS wanted this week to send to Napa and get some of Prof. Damon's first class beet seed and take a $50 prize on beets next September. Last chance this week to see the advertisement in the RESCUE. Dont get left.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

A SAD MISTAKE.

"I am glad to say my son A. is out of danger from drink; he never touches brandy or anything stronger than wine, almost a temperance man like you." This was said by a gentleman about 15 years ago, at his own dinner table, to the writer who was visiting for a day a family of most highly valued friends of long standing, friends of boyhood days and tenderly remembered for life.

Do you think there is safety in that?

"Oh yes, no danger at all, so he lets brandy and that kind of drink alone."

Now you will excuse me for speaking very earnestly and very plainly on a matter in which I have a deep interest next to your own, as affecting the happiness of those whom from my boyhood I have considered as near to me as my own near relatives. If I had $100,000 to give your son as you probably intend to, and if my object could not be attained at a less cost, I would expend $95,000 or $99,000 of it if necessary, in the effort to prevent him from ever touching a drop of wine or beer; the chances are that with $5000 or $1000 and total abstinence principles to start with, he may succeed infinitely better thru life than with $100,000 and the habit of taking a little wine.

There was no dissenting opinion offered, but probably the idea of danger from a simple glass of wine was treated as a wild exaggeration of an excited imagination and no more was said.

A few years later this only son succeeded to the mercantile business of his deceased father, but when he did so, the appetite for wine and stronger drink was beyond control. Three years ago he was a total wreck, and so were the family fortunes. A fine genial, pleasant gentleman of good principle and kindly impulses, son of a noble mother to whom he is a source of ceaseless sorrow, a wife and two children dependent upon him, he is as hopeless and helpless a slave of strong drink as can be found.

Oh that a thousand thousand lightnings of God's wrath would blast this bloody monster wine from earth and spare mankind its further woes.

HE MADE ALL THINGS.

People who say that God made or planned all things, forget that there is a limit or an exception to that expression.

The gold and silver and iron and rock and soil—the seas, continents, islands, rivers, mountains, forests and meadows—the grass and grain and fruits and flowers—all these things no doubt the Creator made directly, or put some of the machinery of his handmaid, nature, in motion to produce them.

But the searcher will seek in vain in the written or in the natural bible, for a grain of evidence to show that God ever caused or commanded the production of one poor man, or in all the infinite variety of the wondrously careful and loving preparations He made for man's existence and maintenance upon upon this earth, that he ever made a single provision or arrangement that would produce poverty or suffering among the human family.

There was no jail or penitentiary or poor house or almshouse (so called) or House of Correction in God's world. Those are the improvements alluded to in the passage "God hath made man upright but they have sot out many inventions."

The word "poor man" used above means one whose poverty causes unhappiness or hunger or discomfort because of necessities not supplied. The condition which has frequently been referred to as "born of poor parents" is an improper one. No family should be called poor who have health and a wholesome comfortable shelter and the means of six months subsistence ahead. Among such is the largest wealth of human happiness, the highest and noblest and purest virtue and honesty and truthfulness and patriotism, the broadest and most unselfish charity, hospitality and genuine kindness of heart. In the humble cottage of the prudent, thrifty, honest son of toil, that seldom or never had over $100 in cash at one time, the noblest and best of the sons and dauters of this land and of the world, have been reared by honest truthful patriotic Christian parents, but tho the world called them poor people, it was untrue; they were not poor, they never begged nor stole nor cheated, and if thru some accident they were obliged to borrow some times, they scrupulously repaid and loaned generously in turn.

But when worthy honest people or wicked worthless people suffer, it is because they themselves or others have sinned in the violation of the simple laws which God has given for our guidance, or in the neglect of persuing the common sense means of availing themselves of the abundant means of food and raiment and comfort which the bounty of God has placed within our reach.

The rich man of twenty millions enjoys no privilege of real value that the thrifty, honest cottager cannot, but he has the pleasure if such it is, of chaining up and burying in his own cellar 19 million talents which he cannot use but which could beemployed in placing from 19,000 to 190,000 people, not in idle luxury, but in industrious useful remunerative employment.

The misery and sorrow and suffering and hunger and homelessness and sickness and untimely death which are found in California, are the exact measure and weight of wrong and sin and crime that has been committed here or elsewhere in the past, and is being continued in the present. God never arranged or contrived or provided for a particle of any thing of the kind. His arrangements are all redolent of kindness and lavish benevolence. But the master the world serves provides all the starvation and pauperism and misery; the prison and the poorhouse and the morgue.

PERU.

There has been a great deal said and done in Eastern circles of late about Peru and its relations to Chili, and about American claims and American interests there.

It is as well to know the fact that American claims and interests in Peru are exactly identical with the claims and interests and expectations which a fox has in a flock of goslings in a farmers yard or which a wolf has in a drove of somebody elses sheep in a corral; they are helpless and if he could get in there he could accomplish a grateful spoil.

The Landrau claim for discovering the Chincha Islands in 1840 is easily disposed of in the fact that the first shipment to England from there took place in 1838. And the guano on the Chincha Islands 12 miles from shore and on the Lobos much farther from the mainland was used by the people of Peru 300 years ago. The idea that a Frenchman could have a claim to their discovery, and American speculators and politicians should induce our government to present such a claim is preposterous and is exceedingly disgraceful to the statesmanship of this country. The captain of the Italian man of war which came here some months ago has as good a right to claim the discovery of the Farallon Islands off the entrance to San Francisco. And the claim by last accounts amounted to more than the value of all the guano that has ever been shipped from there; over a thousand million dollars. It does not matter much how large or small a claim against the Peruvian government may be. Any one who has such a clam for $100 would be very glad to sell it now for $2 in gold—except of course the Chilian Govt. it has possession of the nitrate beds and guano, and can collect its claim with its own hands and its own labor. But the Peruvian government if reorganized on its former basis, will never pay a claim or debt, just or unjust of one dollar, nor will they try to. In the first place the people are incompetent to govern themselves, second, they dont want to pay any thing they owe, it is not in their creed, and third if they ever should have any money and should want to pay a debt, they would be sure to get drunk and gamble away the money first.

The only hope of the country is to become a state or a number of states annexed to Chili and to be kept in order with a strong hand, till the schoolmaster and the Christian religion and temperance shall overcome the demoralization wrot the last 300 years by a corrupt and ruffian priesthood and its close alliance with the systems of slavery, drunkenness, gambling and social immorality unrestricted.

American influences in foreign and heathen countries will be much better, much more wholesome 20 years hence than they have been heretofore. Our political system will be cleansed then. Americans might have done much to improve the moral status of their distant cousins in South America; some few tried to, but many set a worse example than they found; and here it is just to say that a good many of these latter Americans pronounced Boston, "Bosh-tin," and another kind said they were natives of Noo Joark.

About the year 1852, the Peruvian Government contracted with some Baltimore firms to supply them with some very strongly built launches for shipping guano. They were to carry 25 to 30 tons; to be set up and fitted piece to piece, and then marked and numbered to be sent out in ships bound to Callao. An American carpenter who had been employed in their construction was sent to Callao to superintend the putting of them together and preparing them for use.

He was under contract to do this work at good monthly wages and his passage paid out and home. He commenced work; the launches were very excellent ones, well finished and provided with copper sheathing. The American Minister and Consul came along and asked questions of their American friend, the carpenter. They found the launches would cost about $600 apiece when set up; there were to be about 100 or more of them; too cheap altogether, the minister said. That was in the good old days of Democratic rule, which does not seem to have been at all improved upon yet.

The minister pointed out to the carpenter that he was the victim of a wrong, he must thro up his contract and go in for another; and fabulous as it sounds, it was current report among the foreign residents particularly the Americans there, that the minister and the carpenter and the officials of the Peruvian government entered into a compact by which those launches cost $3,000 each, before they were ready for use. Soon after that, President Castilla said, "the Yankees were a smart and capable and enterprising people, and could do anything that mortal man can do; but they will always cheat in a bargain and if you advance them $50 they are sure to run away." And none could find fault with him for that was his experience.

The bargain referred to on the launches was not an unusual one. People who contracted with the government got fabulous prices, and had to divide with the parties who awarded them the contract. It was a complete system of "star route cases" such as have always existed in our Indian and mail route corners. An order given to supply a naval ship with 12 barrels of beef was filled with 7 to 9 barrels of beef and the balance was divided among the officers in cash. A boat was wanted on one occasion by the governor of one of the guano deposits. Petitioned to head quarters at Lima; order given to draw for $300 to purchase a common row boat. There were probably ten of the ships there that would willingly have supplied just such a boat as was needed, in good order for $100; but no, an old one was furnished by some rascal in Callao who got the $300; it would have sold for about $20 at auction, was worth perhaps $30—one side was pretty good but aged; the other was very much mashed up and several planks were off.

This boat was sent on a ship or steamer to the island; the governor's secretary asked the captain of a ship, to have it completely repaired, painted and put in first-class order at expense of the government, and present his bill when done. Every shipmaster was glad to get a chance to do a favor for the authorities, as a refusal would probably cause some delay or vexation or some pitiful vengeance upon the ship. So the captain purchased with his own money, the material necessary from other ships, had the boat fitted up completely and on presenting a most moderate bill, the barest cost of the repairs calculated most scrupulously, he was told at one department that the governor alone had no right to order anything at expense to the government, and the governor said he had understood the little service was to be a personal favor accorded to himself. That was their style of doing business.

When President Castilla was aspiring to the presidency, a number of his political friends were exiled to the Island of Java and an English bark was employed by the Government to land them there. The captain filled his contract and landed his passengers at Batavia. He had been very kindly to them; and felt sorry to see them exiles in the land of strangers. As soon as they landed he said, "Now, gentlemen, I have performed the service stipulated for the Peruvian government. We have had a pleasant time together. I should regret to part with you here; I am going to Guyaquil (next door to Peru) and you are all welcome to a free passage there." It is needless to say they were landed where they could return any day to their own homes.

The bark was in Callao soon after; somebody said the captain had violated his agreement; he declared he had fulfilled it and more. Castilla who was by this time president sent for him. My friends tell me, said he, "you were very kind to them, here is an envelop I want you to take and open it when you get on board your ship." It contained an order to the government at the Chincha Islands to give the Captain a full cargo of guano for his own use and benefit. That was one of the many handsome things that the Peruvians have done, with all their faults. And there is good ground for believing their commercial integrity would have been vastly higher, had they never had foreigners to teach them to deal falsely and corruptly.

Castilla, altho a desperate gambler, was truly patriotic in endeavoring to develop the resources of Peru and make it a progressive nation, but they kept him fighting all the time. A favorite idea of his was to have the river Amazon subjected to a thoro survey by an expedition accompanied with every necessary expert for the purpose. One of his favorite officers entered into the scheme and was to be the nominal head. The writer was to be sailing master and to direct the geographical and nautical appointments. Plans were discussed, terms decided and all that was wanted was the final authority of the President, but just as this was in order the Vivanco revolution instituted in Wall street, New York, broke out and almost every body who would have gone on the survey had to fight the rebels. The thieves who fomented that rebellion did untold murder and mischief.

What has been said of Peru, has presented our young people with some lessons which, it is hoped, will help to give them a warning dislike to anything which may ever tempt them to doubt the truth of the proverb "Honesty is the best policy."

THE STUDEBAKER CO.

In the RESCUE of March 2nd. page 278, there is a lesson for the boys which it is hoped all the juvenile readers of this paper have read. There are many men in this and other countries who have proved in their eminent success that it pays every time to be truthful and honest and most scrupulously so. Such examples should be presented at all times to the notice of our young people and the lessons they convey cannot be too often repeated.

The article on the Studebakers has been acknowleged in the following note to the editor:

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 13, 1882.

DEAR SIR,—Your issue of March 2d, containing the article entitled "Studebaker," has been sent us by our San Francisco manager, Mr Isham. We take an early occasion to make acknowledgement of the compliments which you so generously pay us. We assure you that we are deeply sensible of the honor, for nothing could give us greater pleasure than to be thot worthy by our fellows of serving as a living example to the rising generation of the truth of that noble adage,—"Honesty is the Best Policy."

We are, dear sir, yours very truly,
CLEM. STUDEBAKER, Pres.,
S. BROS, Manf'g Co.

"DRINKS FROM DRUGS," the new book by Eli Johnson, quotes a legend from the Jewish Talmud, which says that it was satan who induced Noah to plant a vineyard. When they had agreed upon the ground, satan went away and brought animals to offer as a sacrifice upon it. This was probably a custom of the ancients to ensure good luck, just as our people hang up horseshoes now-a-days. The animals selected were the lamb to represent the abstainer, who is loving and gentle; the monkey the moderate drinker, full of folly and mischief; the lion the heavy drinker, afraid of nothing, and the pig to represent the finished drinker lying in the gutter.

Five or six months ago, there was a little story in the RESCUE of a Danish citizen of S. F., who used to take one only glass of wine every morning, altho his wife was troubled about it. "What!" said some one, "would you not abandon that useless habit to please your wife?" Next morning after this conversation he was going to take his glass, when the words, "to please your wife" buzzed in his ears so, that after a minute or two of consideration he set down the glass and declared he would never touch another drop for life.

As long as he took that one sober glass of wine he reckoned himself a model, worthy, good citizen and so he was, in everything but the bad example of that one glass and the possible danger he incurred of learning to love it more.

He has been ever since a stout advocate of temperance, takes and reads David C. Cook's books, and reading "Drinks from Drugs" he says he laughed heartily at the story of those animals, "especially the part of the monkey" said he, "the fool that drank moderately, because that fitted me so exactly when I used to take just one glass a day; I thot I was smart then but now I dont understand how I could have been such a fool.

That is the way moderate drinkers look back upon their former conduct when they have ceased to drink. Better for the young folks to begin right and never play the fool at all.

THE BREWER'S DOG.

BY ELLA WHEELER.

The brewer's dog is abroad, boys,
Be careful where you stray;
His teeth are coated with poison;
And he's on the watch for prey.
The brewery is his kennel,
But he lurks on every hand,
And he seeks for easiest victims,
The children of the land.

His eyes gleam thru the windows
Of the gay saloon at night;
And in many a grocer's window
He crouches full in sight.
Be CAREFUL where you enter,
And, if you smell his breath,
FLEE as you would from a viper,
For his fumes are the fumes of death.

O BOYS! would you KILL the bloodhound?
Would you SLAY the snarling whelp?
I know that you can do it
If every one will help.
You MUST make a solemn PROMISE
To drink no ale or beer,
And soon the feeble death-wail
Of the brewer's dog we'll hear.

For, if all will keep the promise,
YOU CAN STARVE HIM OUT, I KNOW:
But if boys and men keep drinking,
The dog will thrive and grow.—Ex.

AMUSEMENTS.

We earnestly wish our young people would be more willing to lead the way to what is "pure and lovely, and of good report," than to settle down quietly, or to be silenced by those who coarsely introduce the questionable song or the ribald jest. Why should the men and women of the world be allowed to lead our evening pleasures? Surely it is within the range of possibility for thousands of our virtuous, moral, and Christian young men and young women to stamp the impress of their individuality upon an evening party. By all means let us have the hearty laugh, the best music, or the funniest story or song. But never let the song or the story leave behind it anything which will raise a blush on the cheek, or a throb of indignation in the purest heart. That is the best story which leaves behind it the best lesson. That is the sweetest song which carries its influence into the sweetest recesses of the heart. We have heard of an audience being so carried away with the magic strains of "The Lost Chord," that they could not restrain themselves from again and again asking for its repetition. Yes, depend upon it, the best weapons to destroy the taste for the low, the sensual, and the defiling, is the introduction of the high, the pure, and the elevating. It is here our young people will find scope for the exercise of their highest powers, as well as their loftiest endeavours. —Ch. Commonwealth.

The juvenile temple is the right training for boys and girls. They learn to preside over a meeting right, and it is surprising how quiet and dignified they are in doing it.

They early learn lessons of total abstinence. They are pledged against tobacco and profanity, which four-fifths of the men use; and the Bible says, "Train up a child." It does not say let him go his own way till he has grown up, and has bad habits, and then reform him.

When I look around the temple, upon the bright faces of the children, I think we will have some clean mouths, healthy bodies, clear brains, grand men and women some of these days, and pray God that every child in the land may enlist under the banner of total abstinence from every vice. I will close with a verse of song sung by one of our boys at the last meeting.

"When we are old enough to vote
We'll make a grand commotion;
We'll sweep the land from whisky clean,
From ocean unto ocean." Exchange.

THAT SMELL.

Where did that smell come from that we noticed in the cars? It was the unmistakable odor of alcohol, that queer, indescribable but ever knowable smell of whisky. But what rum jug in crockery or human shape was the source of it? Just before us was a man giving plainly the impression of shabby gentility. He was, in reality, poorly dressed. His coat was of coarse cloth. His black silk hat had a roughness of surface, and the gloves on his hands were not a nice fit. A black coat and a tall hat and gloves tho, always give a certain air of dressiness to one, and this air lingered around our shabby neighbor. There, too, was the overcoat thrown over the back of his seat, as much as to say, "I want everybody to know that I not only have an under coat but an overcoat. I am thoroly dressed." That overcoat was shabby, tho. The lining of his sleeve was torn and tumbled, suggesting a good bird's nest for some citizen of the air.

He now swung his head round, and we thot we saw a little ruddiness on the tip of his nose, a light faintly burning. "Ah," thot we, "the source of that rum odor is no mystery now." We lost it tho, and began to feel that we were doing our neighbor injustice. He again turned and pointed at us the reddish tip of his nose, asking us for information about a station. Ah, there was that smel! We had traced it to the right source, and our neighbor's shabby gentility was explained to us. What a comment on that odor was his appearance! What a quiet temperance lecture he gave wherever he went! He said nothing, but only carried along that odor, and showed himself! How significant was the exhibition! How much the odor indicated!

There was a confession of poverty. It was affirmed plainly in that seedy overcoat, seedy hat, seedy everything. When did rum ever put decent clothes on to a man, unless it was the rum sellers back?

There was not only a confession of need but probable indebtedness. How many unpaid bills that traveler had probably left behind him when he took the cars that day! Drink and debt are bed-fellows.

There was a confession, too, of unhealthiness. That reddish tip of the nose was a sign of fire burning thru the system, like the light showing itself thru the cracks of a vessel devoured by flames within. We care not to give the long list of diseases, in their incipient or advanced stages, that probably afflicted the drinkers body. If the only ache, tho, were in him!

Who can say what heartache he was occasioning others; how many went aching with the winter cold for want of the fuel he was turning into rum; or suffered pain because unable to buy the medicine that could relieve them, but which his drink money made an impossible comfort?

Oh, odors of rum, and gin, and brandy, and whisky, and cider, and beer! what ills you herald, what perils of body and soul you confess.—Rev. E. A. Rand in D. C. Cook's Church and Home.

ENCOURAGING IDIOTS.

The New York Herald; in a ringing article on the tobacco curse, says, if we would encourage idiocy in the United States, all we have to do is to continue the present consumption of tobacco. It adds:

"What sight more common than half a dozen boys, lads and young men smoking cigarets on the platform of a bobtail car? And what more trying to one's nerves than the filthy odors they puff into the car and over the other passengers. Ten years of this almost universal habit have left their mark in the sunken eyes, the pallid faces, the weak nerves and the flabby muscles of these so-called men. That many of them find no real enjoyment in the practice, is shown by their habit of spitting. Aside from the vulgarity and nastiness of this muscular exercise is the detriment it does the general system. No man—certainly no growing boy—can expectorate constantly without injuring himself. Bootblacks, messenger boys, school children, clerks, smoke and spit, smoke and spit, as together in a great and multitudinous army they move along toward idiocy and imbecility. What a cheerful prospect it is to be sure!"—D. C. Cook's Church and Home.

LIKE DEW BEFORE THE SUN.

In the light of intelligence and fairness, the objections to woman suffrage melt away as the dew evaporates under the rays of the sun. The genius of our government, the intelligence of the age, the progressiveness of the century, the divine principles of the just, the true and the right, all mark the cause as worthy, not only the purest hearts and ablest minds of the race, but worthy of the acceptation and devotion of every true American.—Sel.

In one of David C. Cook's papers, young ladies are recommended to have the pages of the albums for which they solicit the autographs of their friends headed with a total abstinence pledge. It is a hint well worth trying.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

IN OTHER STATES.

Texas. Miss Willard has gathered the following statistics in her recent tour in Texas. Rockwall county has had prohibition 4 years. At the end of the second year, the doors of the jail stood open night and day. This year they had no cases to try and impaneled no jury.

Grimes county with 600 freedmen and 125 white voters carried prohibition. Oak Grove county had only one voter against prohibition, and he has moved out, to the joy and relief of the community.

A working man left Denison, Texas, and worked 90 days in Prasons, Kansas, and then returned home. He used to spend most of his wages in drink but now he has fixed up his house nicely. The doctor asked him what had turned up, said he, I have been at Parsons where they have prohibition, and saved $100 cash, which I gave to my wife. In Grayson county, the most populous of the State, they have a temperance paper. Judges, lawyers, ministers are lecturing nightly; white and colored men and women and the Bands of Hope are pleading with the voters for home protection.

In Paris, La Mar county, they have a white and a colored W. C. T. U., the latter has a secretary "of fine education and rare intellectual gifts." The Mayor of Paris makes affidavit that the cases on his docket previous to prohibition and after it were, as 135 to 38, and no other reason assignable but the effect of prohibition.

A southern lady advising the colored people to vote for prohibition, said a thot came to her there, and she said to her husband, "I have got to the place where I want to vote myself," and he answered, "I wish you could." The foregoing is extracted from Miss Willard's letter in the Signal:

In the rum states the papers are as usual salted all over with such headings as "Another Murder"; "Double Murder"; "Murder and Suicide"; "Shot his Wife"; "Child Killed"; "Dreadful Crime"; "Murder in a Saloon"; "Saloon Fight"; "Stabbed in a Saloon"; etc., etc.

Canada. In accordance with the usage of 10 years past, the drunkard makers organ has got ashamed of its name, the "Licensed Victuallers Journal," with two ls in the middle word, to the Canadian Weekly Review, and a whole lot more which will be concluded in next number of the Rescue. The Pittsburg organ of the Sunday dogfights and rummies changed its name all round the compass in about two years. The rest of the name of the Canadian beer-dive sheet is Journal of Family Miscellany. That means probably whisky and bitters all round for morning family worship; beer at breakfast, dinner and supper, brandy after meals, beer between meals, brandy after the beer to keep it still, and rum punch and a free fight over cards to finish up the evening. The object of the new name is to defraud innocent families into subscribing for the nasty paper, under the impression that it is altogether the reverse of what it is. The Citizen of Toronto, a bright breezy temperance paper, has a department edited by a lady member of the Toronto Woman's Literary Club Mrs. S. A. Curzon; it urges woman's suffrage, co-education and equal rights. And if the work that she and other women do in the press and on the platform and in the furtherance of every good interest don't clearly prove their claim to perfect equality and a little more, "things cannot be what they seem anywhere."

The Committee:—On Woman Suffrage reported 6 to 5 a bill for Municipal Woman Suffrage to the Massachusetts Legislature. The 5 presented a minority protest against such a bill as it seems to them only a prelude to equal suffrage next. There are many fossils in that state yet as is indicated by their pro-whisky and anti-woman legislation.

Southern Illinois is having a great Temperance Revival. The St Louis Republican recently published a long letter purporting to be from Kansas claiming that prohibition was a failure. An answer was sent by a real Kansas authority to the paper but not appearing, a reason was demanded; the reply was, "If you will pay us $50 we will insert it; the whisky men paid that for the other." That is the source of all the Kansas lies or rather the lies told by outsiders concerning Kansas.

Indiana.—The greenbackers of Indiana have declared in favor of submitting a prohibitory amendment to the people. And the Republican Editors have met and resolved to advocate the submission of all questions to the people where a respectable number so petition.

Michigan is expected to follow Indiana.

Iowa has voted to submit the prohibition question to the people. 1882 is going to be a lively year.

Louisiana.—Richard and Jessie Lott, sons of Col. H. R. Lott, estimable young men, have been butchered by a drunk named Sage.

Scotland.—At the opening of the winter session of the Edinburg school of medicine, Dr. A. G. Miller chose Total Abstinence as the subject of his inaugural, and asked his students one and all to become abstainers.

Convention of all prohibitionists of the nation invited to meet in Chicago August 23. The call will appear in full next week in the Rescue.

New Orders are springing up in the Eastern states where the Good Templars have run down on the cheap John principle. If they adopt a rational financial system and avoid the wretched mistake of appointing a Treasurer simply to watch an ever empty sack, they will absorb the membership of the played out five cent Good Templar Lodges. If the Good Templar jurisdictions that are moribund and have been helpless when in health, will now remodel their financial system, they can recuperate and absorb the live material which is now seeking membership in some organization that professes some vitality.

Tennessee.—A call has been issued in Tennessee for a conference of all the ministers of the State of all creeds and colors, to devise means for the speedy overthrow of the liquor traffic. If that course was adopted and followed up by the ministers of all the states; it would result in a condition of things which would be a financial benefit of about two billions a year to the property and business of the people, and its moral and religious results would be in like proportion.

Oregon.—At Albany, license for selling drinks has been raised by the city council to $500 which was a subject of much rejoicing. How much more all good citizens would have been rejoiced if it had been put at five million in advance. A new temperance paper the T. Herald has been started at Monmouth On., published twice a month at 25 cts to 1st July, to become a weekly if sufficiently patronized. If a good paper can be maintained in Oregon it will answer the purpose of the temperance reform in that State better than any paper equal in quality from outside possibly can. If it cannot, one would suppose the Rescue would be the best paper for Oregon with the backing it has and the certainty of its continuance without any cost to the Grand Lodge of Oregon. It is not desired to throw one drop of cold water on Bro. Stanley's enterprise, nor to exhibit a particle of jealousy of any other advocate of temperance.

EVERY BODY'S BUSINESS.

A minister of the Episcopal Church, on being recently asked to countenance and aid the support of the Sunday law, said he certainly wished to see the Sabbath observed, but he thot that all effort in that direction should be thru the church. Not a word of dissent will be offered to that opinion, tho it might perchance with advantage be a little differently constructed, thus for instance: Every effort should be made by the church to secure the Sabbath rest from being invaded by wanton riot, the worker from being violently robbed of his one special God given day of comfort, and the morality and religion of the land from being pulled up by the roots and forcibly supplanted by a pronounced devil worship of rapacious lust and greed and pestilence. And the church should entreat with an earnestness that knows no denial, the aid of every citizen male and female that can bring a penny worth of help to the securing of our most important Sunday Law and to the speedy and absolute demolition of the Anti-christ of the grogshop, which seeks with unfaltering energy the subjugation of this land to the kingdom of Satan. And every citizen should cheerfully render every aid in his power or confess to a lack of a vestige of patriotism. The voice of God has been calling loudly upon the church for fifty years to take up arms and expel the devilish monster from our land that has been reveling so long in the virtue and blood and lives and souls of the children of the church; like the tiger that slays the whole flock for the mere love of slaying. And it is only because the church has refused in the past to lead in this warfare that God has called up another church or set of churches, to do his will and lead the people and do the work which the church ot to have done from the first. And now when the Ministerial Union of San Francisco propose to lead their people in the only possible means of saving the Sunday from utter abolition, Major Whittle fears they are going the wrong way about it and lifts his warning voice to dissuade their action and invite them to pray to God to make this thing all right.

Without impugning the motives or sincerity of the Major for a moment, it is suggested that great men and even great prophets have often been very weak in some corner of their intellectual field, which they neglected to cultivate. Great and good men have been and are sometimes bigots and even fools upon some particular matter, and for any one to be simply mistaken in a theory is only to assert his humanity. "They that take the sword, shall perish by the sword" he says. But this is not taking the sword. it is asking our law to command that the sword which has been carrying death into every family of the land, which aims at the heart of every wife and mother and sister of our people, and slays 100,000 victims every year, shall be forcibly removed. The Christianity that allows the wolf and tiger free access and license to the fold, that dont protect its own home and hearth, wont stand wash.

If the theory is correct that this world is rapidly and wilfully drifting on to the breakers of universal destruction, cargo and passengers to perish in the wreck and that the mission of the Gospel is to coax off all the passengers that can be persuaded to take to the life boat, then the Major's argument is good; the Sunday law and prohibition and lodge are all misdirected, wasted energy. All effort should be directed to reclaim the individual sinner, wherever you can catch him and run him ashore and waste no time on the carousing millions who are recklessly drifting on to the treacherous reefs and quicksands.

But perhaps the other theory is true, that while the Gospel life-boat is going to pick up on its way all the struggling swimmers who are found battling with the whelming surf and take them on board, its mission is the much grander one of manning the sinking ship, rigging the pumps, stopping the leaks, chasing the rats into the sea, making sail, trimming the yards, lighting the binnacle, altering the course and piloting the ship and crew and passengers safely into the harbor of Zion; perhaps the Major is a mistaken prophet. And the hope may not be a disloyal one, that when the law and the sword, if necessary, have cast out the devil of rum, the work of the special revivalist who deems it an outpouring of Gods spirit, to recapture one per thousand of the captives of an unrestricted and unopposed sin and Satan, may find his occupation wondrously narrowed and the field of his reformatory operations limited to the one per 1000 in place of the 999 as now. That is a gospel to love, a gospel that has choked out the grogshop, is it not? The story in the "ninety and nine" portrays that kind of a gospel. The shepherd there wanted to house his even hundred, not the one per cent.

REGALIA versus CHEAP JOHN.

A sigh of grateful relief will come to the reader when he sees in this number of the Rescue a probability that we shall never hear again of this infinitely small potato farce. It has occupied a good deal of time in an utterly useless manner, incurred expense without shadow of cause; and crowded out something of practical use which might have been done in its place. But it is pretty much in keeping with the doings of the R. W. G. L. for the past 15 years; it has utterly and miserably neglected to do the first thing to advance the cause of temperance; has seen the Order decimated time after time and reduced to half a skeleton in the greater part of its territory, with the most sublime indifference, has sat down on every proposed advance movement or bungled it so as to nullify it, and has busied itself picking all the feathers and wings and teeth and bones and life out of the Order and has had "delightful" sessions and fiddled while Rome has been burning. It has set the worst possible example of listless, useless apathy to the Grand and subordinate Lodges and has been altogether a useless and idle and costly dead-weight upon the progress of the Order. A supreme body that would seriously parcel out to the lodges of the world, for a years work, a years advance, a years improvement in methods of action, an ordinance to vote on a picayune, penny whistle, pitiful, worthless, last years toadskin proposition, to vote on a change of regalia to a one cent Cheap John badge or something of that kind, has covered itself with a halo of imbecility that only has one further consistent action—viz: to vote itself out of existence and let something take its place that has a dignity and usefulness above that of a conclave of three year old children, playing with their dolls. In these times when the world is stirred with the closing fight with the great Anti-christ that is slaying his millions, to spend a year talking about swapping jack knives!! All such things in future if offered to the Lodges, should be treated with an entire silence. If no protest was made against this persistent course of puerile tomfoolery, we should have perhaps for next years work the duty of canvassing and voting on the question next in importance to that which which has just been disposed of viz: whether the W. C. T. in giving the pass-word should deliver it at the right or the left ear of the applicant. A few years more, a very few years of the old work would utterly kill the Order and but for a few faithful (loyal to the Order) jurisdictions which have stood in the breach, it would have been dead and buried already.

PROHIBITION.

The Lodges and Good Templars of this State and the various societies and advocates of temperance in other states are seemingly all ready for downright, square prohibition, without any more frivolous and useless attempts at restriction and compromise.

From Maine to California the thinking, rational, patriotic men and women of the country see this question, not as one moderately and partially affecting the moral, religious or financial interests of the people, as other public issues are supposed to do, but as a struggle hand to hand for and against the continuance of the American home, of a Christian civilization, of a free government.

A leag of exiles from countries reeking with drunkenness and debauchery, and writhing in the destitution and starvation and brutality which surrounds the cancer sores of the beer shop and gin mill, starved out at home, come here to abuse our hospitality, insult and defy our hallowed usages and wholesome laws, deluge our homes with misery, set traps for the manhood of the sons and for the virtue of the daughters of the American people, spit upon and revile the Christian motherhood and womanhood of America, trample our Sunday under foot and hurl the hateful epithet of coward in the teeth of the citizens of the soil.

The question is now presenting itself everywhere with an emphasis it never had before.——The home and school and Christian civilization of the American republic—or—The Brewers pandemonium of filthiness and ignorance and general debauchery and Sunday revelry and desecration and pauperism that comes to us from the lazarettos and slime pools of heathenism and infidel barbarism, from foreign crime rotted pauperized lands.

Time now for all insignificant issues to be laid aside; the battle of Home and God and native land should be decided, first and forever—that settled adversely by our supineness, a republic is no better than a despotism; law than no law; civilization than barbarism; education than ignorance; and religion an empty farce.

COMMON SENSE.

It was omitted to say to our enquiring friend of last week, that but for the absence of nitrogen in the grape and its juice, all kinds of fermented wine, on the communion table or elswhere would have the same offensive odor as the putrid carrion of dogs or cats, for it has gone thru exactly the same process as the carrion; so all alcoholic drinks, of whatever kind, are produced only from the rotted carrion of some vegetable product which God provided for our food and sustenance: and all that food and sustenance that formed part of the fruit or grain has been utterly destroyed before the wine or beer or whisky was produced.

As to the Corrinthians getting drunk at communion: It has been explained time and again that the word rendered drunken there means satiated, filled, satisfied as well as drunken; if the passage had been, "one is thirsty and the other methuei (filled) it would have been proper to suspect that they were tite if the wine was alcoholic. But the same word is used in "be filled with the spirit:" "I will satiate the soul of my priests with fatness;" "shall be satisfied with her breasts," and in other similar passages. If it means drunk when bread is in question, it must mean drunk in all the others. If any one will read that passage candidly, he will see that there is no ground whatever for a belief that it means any thing else than "one is hungry and the other has well fed;" and at the close the apostle says if any man is hungry let him eat at home. Now it is submitted that it is a slander and an injustice to St. Paul, to insinuate that he blamed the church members severely for not waiting one for the other to eat, but passed over their getting drunk without a word of disapproval or reproof; of all men Christians should seek and love the truth.

THE SHIPHERD THIEVERY.

The scheme of Mr. Shipherd to plunder Peru ot to subject all its concoctors to severe punishment for conspiracy to steal. It sets out with an American company which claims to be the legal representative of the original discoverers of guano in Peru, to whom the government of that country are justly indebted over a thousand million dollars. There is not now nor ever was a shadow of any such claim; it is barely possible that some adventurer may have tried to trump up a claim for a reward of a few hundred or a few thousand dollars, for directing the attention of the government to some deposit of guano whose existence was known to the Peruvians 100 to 300 and perhaps 1,000 years ago. The discovery in guano was in its high value not in its deposits. Its value was discovered by English merchants sending some of it to England for trial in 1838. All the islands have been well known that contained guano for ages, and the government used them one after another. The Shipherd company of thieves have just the same rights to claim against Peru that a gang of Peruvian swindlers could now exercise against the U. S., by the pretended assertion that they are the legal representatives of a Kanaka who purchased from Emperor Norton in 1870 the Comstock lode and the territory of Arizona for a half dollar invested in his scrip. That much and no more.

It may be in order to say too that the guano deposits of good quality are entirely exausted. At Lobos there are perhaps half a million tons that were rejected by Dreyfus & Co. as inferior; all the rest s of rather worse quality and very difficult to get and expensive to ship; it is much mixed with sand and stones.

FROM THE HOME.

Ed. Rescue:—Spring has come; storms have passed; sickness departed from among us, save an accident to one of our little boys who fell from the fence breaking his leg above the knee; but was quickly splintered by the physician,

The foundation for a twenty thousand gallon tank has been dug, and we expect in a few weeks to be well supplied with water. The Carpenter has built a nice large library case in school-house, that will hold one thousand volumes; black walnut front, sliding glass doors, with six drawers underneath for paper, periodicals etc. etc. The desks to complete a third class in school have been received and placed in position, making seating room for 160 pupils. The teachers enjoy the delicacy of a teacher's desk. The "Bidwell Class" plate has been received and placed in position over the door on entering the south room, first floor. The plates for school desks will be received next week and fastened on the same, which will complete the furnishing of three rooms at a cost of $700 more or less, all donated.

The election passed off quietly, with a Republican victory of temperance men for Board of Education. *

THE SECULAR PRESS.

Few persons seem to see the wonderful advantage the secular press has over the class organs. The secular paper reaches every class in the land, and is read by men who are entirely unarmed against its teachings. The class paper is read, as a general thing, by those whose cause it advocates, and if read by men of other tastes and opinions, it is generally done with a sort of mental reserve, that makes its logic next to powerless to convince. No class organ can reach the public as can the secular paper; nor will the ideas advanced, or doctrines taught, by the class paper be so readily received, impartially considered, and so generally embraced. Religious and temperance people do not properly appreciate the secular press, nor do they appreciate the efforts of the editor of a secular paper, who is willing to use his paper to advance the right as opposed to wrong. —Hanford Journal.

If the RESCUE desired to assail the record or character of the secular press, it would credit the Hanford Journal with being an exceptional one as regards the "ideas and doctrines it advances." But there seems to be pretty good reason to believe that temperance people have credited the secular press with a good deal more than it ever deserved. They had naturally an immense respect for the N. Y. Tribune as long as Horace Greely used it as an unflinching independent vehicle of the truth and the right. And many of them, out of respect for his memory, continue their patronage, after it has forfeited all claim to their respect. But H. G. has had few followers in journalism.

Now let us see how the account stands between the average secular press, or the secular press with a few very rare exceptions, and the temperance people. When Secular hangs out his sign in the village, he goes to all the temperance men (they can afford to subscribe and pay) and reminds them that he is going to boom up the interests of Balloonville and help every body to get rich; he claims their patronage as an actual right. He gets it and Temperance is rewarded by Secular's paper coming into his house reeking with advertisements of infernal dens of iniquity, where they sell enticing drinks, play enticing games and retail enticing blasphemies and obscenities; sometimes with a filthy whisky bottle on its editorial page. The local columns commend the boys to go to Dutch Frank's to get the best Tom and Jerry (to make them steal.) This is Secular's way to boom up the business interests.

A temperance lecturer comes to town and as all the temperance people subscribe for their local paper, a local notice is requested; the paper may be praised faintly or it may be burlesqued, but Secular dares very seldom print one of the lecturers arguments lest it should offend Jerry Flanagan and Dutch Frank, who are generally Seculars gods, as they pay for the aid of the paper purchased to debauch the boys of the Temperance families.

A whisky drummer comes to town and his advent is liberally heralded. No fear of offending the temperance people; they take it all like lambs. The drummer sells his whisky and Dutch Frank & Co. retail it and Secular booms up the grogshop, till the carpenter and baker and blacksmith and dry goods man and the milliner are burst up with bad debts they cannot collect; half the laboring men and mechanics are the pauperized slaves of the grogshop; the temperance men most of them have had to move elsewhere to live; the lodge is dead and in fine Secular has boomed up business till he has to take down his shingle and seek a new place to boom up the doggeries, till he helps to play out another town. And if you ask him what hurt him in Balloontown, he says it was the meanness of the temperance men who would not save his paper from pegging out.

"No class organ can reach the public as can the secular," says the Journal. Now the way Secular (average) reaches the public, before he dares fork over to Public a piece of advice or an opinion, he has to scan over his subscription list and see if penning a truth in his paper can possibly affront a subscriber. If one side of a question of public policy must be taken, he sits on the fence and figures a balance sheet—not of the gain or loss to the public, but of the most gain and the least loss to Seculars subscription list or advertising patronage, and when that is decided he comes out independent and patriotic.

In the long, weary contest between the foreign rum fiend and the American home, Secular has taken the fiend side almost every time or at best has been utterly silent, until it pays best to come out boldly; then he comes out independent and patriotic. And it is but just to admit that as the tide turns numbers of them are now preparing to swing like a ship and head the other way.

The S. F. Chronicle has not condemned the Sunday law decision. The S. F. Post has in this way; it believes the Sunday law will some day be generally enforced all over the U. S. and people will have more respect for the cause of temperance than now, but it is altogether "too soon" to enforce or attempt a Sunday law. Ready to swing when the tide turns; but it will probably pay the Post better to advocate drunkenness and prostitution and murder as Sunday exercises for a while yet.

Due credit is accorded to Secular for a manly independent spirit when the Chinese and Mormon, and the Irish landlord question and the Zulu war and the assassination of the Emperor of Russia came up; they are all independent and patriotic and outspoken on such matters and on the Jeanette polar expedition too. And in other matters near home, their valor is laudable especially when the Sunday law and the temperance question are not up; it reminds one of the story of a little controversy which occurred once between a man and his wife; when the curtain dropped on the drama, the woman was putting away the shovel in its corner and the man was in retirement under the bed, but was still grumbling. "Shut up you varmint," said she: Nev-verr, nev-verr, while I have the spir-rit of a man, will I shut up," came the valiant answer from beneath the bed.

The RESCUE has nothing to say in defence of class papers, except of those of its own class, which are the only journals that have ever warned the people honestly against the direst foe of their homes, of their business, of their properties, of their lives. On the one subject that most supremely affects the welfare of the whole people, the temperance papers have been the peoples friend and the secular press has been the peoples direst enemy and in many instances is so to-day, and the people are going to know it.

GREAT DISCOVERY.

A BONANZA.

A huge bonanza has been discovered by a Senator Bills of Iowa, and will be patented as the "Bills Bonanza." Is is an immense nugget in the shape of an argument against prohibition. He says, "It would be a parallel case to stop horse stealing by abolishing horses." It was in a speech against the constitutional amendment; that accounts partly for the crudeness of its construction; if he had had a week's leisure to study it over, he could probably have put it in more intelligible shape. It will be a most proper thing to abolish horses, as soon as they are found to be of no possible use, when they wont work, nor let their owners work; when they are only used to kick and abuse women, to kill people and cause accident and when a large proportion of horse owners become thieves, paupers and crazy and every one of them is damaged in purse and morals.

Mr. Bills should be medalled; not with that vulgar inexpressive reward, a round piece of leather with a hole in it; but he should be gracefully crowned with the entire aural appendages of the horse's poor relation. Unlike the Midas of history he would be proud of such a comprehensively appropriate double recognition of his talent and of the service he renders his country.

"THE LIGHTER DRINKS."

All liquors are substantially the same thing, whether they are what are called malt liquors or distilled liquors. The principal difference between them is, that some have more alcohol in them than others. But it is one of the easiest things in the world for a dealer to pour alcohol into his wine and beer. In this way he can furnish his customers with wine and beer with 20 per cent of alcohol, or 30, 40, 50, or any other. Dr. Story says:

"I am told that when people take their alcohol in this form they have different ways of indicating the strength of the liquor they want, without using the plain English. If they want beer with its ordinary strength 'they take it square;' if they want it a little stronger they take it 'with a feather' in it; if a little stronger still, 'with a stick' in it; if still stronger, 'with a stone' in it, or with a 'maul and wedge' in it; and, if they want beer which is stronger than old Scotch whisky, they call for beer 'with the devil' in it." And they will get it every time. The very moment you allow men to sell wine and beer over a public bar, that very moment you open the door for the sale of brandy and whisky over the same bar. Suppose the temperance people should unite on this ground and say to the liquor-men: "We are bound to drive out whisky, rum, gin, and brandy; and as a means of doing this the more successfully, we shall allow you, for the present at least, to sell cider, ale, beer, and domestic wine." Those liquor men would laugh at such stupidity. They would say among themselves: "This is just about as good an arrangement as we care for. It is about all we ask. It is true we would a little rather have it all free; but if they will let us sell beer we will look out for the whisky," and they would. You never can drown whisky with beer, you never can drive out brandy with wine. Wine is the mother of brandy, and the mother will not thrust out her son. Brandy is wine, essentially, distilled wine. You might as well talk about quenching the fire of a furnace by feeding it with brimstone, as to talk about quenching the thirst for brandy by feeding it with wine. And yet people are constantly harping upon the use of wine and beer as a temperance measure. Only furnish the people with plenty of domestic wine and pure beer, and you have taken a great step forward in the temperance reform. And we are pointed to England, France, Germany and Italy, and are told that beer and wine are used in those countries as freely as water, and as a consequence drunkards and drunkenness are almost unknown. Now, I mean to say, and say most emphatically, that this cry of no drunkenness, or little drunkenness, in wine and beer countries, is all humbug; it is all false.

The Bavarians drink annually about 147⅛ gallons of beer per person: the annual outlay for it is over $65,000,000. In Nuremberg, the average for each inhabitant is 212 gallons; in Munich, 248; and in Ingolstadt, 528 gallons!

So they are bound to get the alcohol, and pay for it too, even if they take a great deal of water with it!

WHO is that fellow that keeps prating about liquor-sellers not being generous and benevolent? Does not this prove that some of them are? "The Salem Register tells of a Lowell liquor dealer who advertised a free lunch at his restaurant, every day. A lady took seven ragged and hungry boys there the first day, nine the next, and twelve the next." Oh, pshaw! the next sentence spoils all the disinterested generosity theory. "The beer-seller concluded the free lunch business was expensive"—and quit? J. W. W.

Startling Exposure of the Liquor Traffic.

"DRINKS FROM DRUGS," OR "THE MAGIC BOX." BY ELI JOHNSON.

A book that cannot fail to arouse the American people to the gigantic swindle now being perpetrated. The writer offered $10,000 by a leading brewer to keep still. Liquor not only doctored but made entirely from drugs. Extracts from a whole library of secret books giving receipts for making and doctoring—advertisements of essences, facsimiles of labels, engravings, etc etc. Claret, port, sherry, champagne, whisky, brandy, gin, rum, etc., all out of one barrel and made at less than 25c. a gallon. Wine that never saw grape juice—cider that never saw apples—beer factories in place of breweries, fine cream ale without barley or brewing, whisky from arsenic, millions of gallons of liquor that pays no revenue tax. The farmer's corn and barley "all in your eye." A wholesale liquor store in a ten foot square cellar—more French wine sold in New York City than is produced in the whole of France.

This book is no mere toy, but an exhaustive work—a work of years of close research and investigation, and cannot fail to prove an invaluable auxiliary to the temperance cause. It forms one volume of our "Popular Temperance Library," and we shall sell it at the following famous prices:—Single sample number, 10c. Five or more sent to separate addresses for 8c. each—3 or more to one address 5½c. each—25 or more to one address 5c. each. Special rates on large lots. Book nearly ready for delivery. Orders filled in turn.

We also publish 90c. to $1.50 story books in large new-paper form. One complete book, illustrated, in quantities, at 2c each. Samples of three books already issued, for 10 cts. A whole library of choice $1.00 to $1.50 story books in book form (paper covers) especially for Sunday-schools and Bands of Hope for only c. each (sample copy 8c.) Eighteen monthly papers at 5c. a year, samples of each for 10c.) We take contracts to sow towns knee-deep with temperance literature for a song, and that, too, with papers in place of tracts. A full line of Band of Hope supplies so cheap that the penny collection pays for library, weekly paper, badges, pledges and all. Also a host of other temperance documents, all at revolution prices. Send for catalogue. We have the indorsement of the press, societies, and prominent workers in all parts of the country. The following was recently received from Governor St. John, of Kansas:

State of Kansas, Executive Department, Topeka, Oct. 22, 1881.—I heartily approve of your plan of work. Your publications will accomplish great good, and should be liberally patronized by the friends of Christian temperance everywhere. Very truly yours, JOHN P. ST JOHN.

An Appeal. We wish to reach every temperance worker in the land, man or woman, with our samples, catalogue, etc. We can do nothing if we cannot reach the people. Will not every one send us names of workers? It only costs a postal card and a few minutes' time. Please say where you saw this. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. The Long Red Mangel Murtzel Beet

Is the most profitable crop a farmer can raise for feeding hogs and cattle. It is very crisp and sugary, hence a great fat-producer in hogs, and splendid for milk cows. Produces immense crops, even on clay and adobe soils, when well cultivated. Every farmer should plant it, and plant largely this dry year. Look out for old and inferior seed, as there is much on the market. Address, PROF. W. C. DAMON, Napa College, Napa, Cal.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

The following address was delivered by the Ministerial Union of this city thru its chairman, Rev. Dr. M. C. Briggs, to the Mayor and Executive officers of the city at a reception in the Mayor's rooms last Monday afternoon. Mr. Briggs said:

MR. MAYOR AND GENTLEMEN: Much effort has been and is being put forth to make the impression that the statute known as the Sunday law is an unjust and odious measure, impossible of enforcement. We believe that there exists an organization, or leag, whose avowed purpose it is to embarrass and defeat the enforcement of the law. Such a conspiracy is a hundred times more audacious and—if not promptly and vigorously met—a thousand times more dangerous than the conspiracies of illicit distillers in the mountains of Tennessee and North Carolina. Thus far, this treasonable organization has had little less than an unchallenged career; insomuch that the unthinking have been deluded into the belief that its ostentatiously-paraded statements contain some substance of truth. Doutless many of the conspiracy in question have been cajoled into the leag under great unintelligence as to the turpitude of the crime contemplated, and the magnitude of the danger involved in the disloyal experiment.

For these reasons, and all others which ot to modify the action of loyal citizens, we have deemed it expedient to assure you, the executive officers of the city, and thru you all whom it may concern, that there is a large and determined majority of tax-paying citizens who desire and expect the enforcement of the law.

It is settled, as a matter of science and experience, that all laborers, all members of the employed classes, all workers with nerve and brain, must enjoy one day of rest in seven, in order to preserve physical, mental and moral health. The convenience of business, the harmony of the industries, the traditions of the nation, the lessons of our history, the recognitions of constitutional, and common, and statute law, the good order of society, the domestic quiet necessary to the full enjoyment of the benefits of the day, the structural plan of the American government, and the suggestions of comprehensive statesmanship under it, point to the high expediency of designating one and the same day for the whole people. The day commonly called Sunday is the only day on which it would be possible to fix with any approach to a broad and intelligent agreement. It has been conspicuously recognized thruout our entire history, by constitutions, legislatures and courts. It is interwoven with the whole order of our national life, and could not be substituted without measureless confusion and loss. Other Sabbaths are days of religious observance by comparatively small numbers, and have no date value or commercial and legal significance in the general system. The law does not forbid any man to rest on any other day, nor does it forbid him to work on Sunday. So far, every man may satisfy his conscience and follow his bent. With designated exceptions, it very properly forbids him to keep open any place of business to compel or require others to work, or any place of mercenary temptation to lure the weak and unwary into wasteful expenditures, and into excesses which disquiet the day and defeat the intent of the law.

If, then, the Civil Sabbath must of general necessity be one day, and that day Sunday, every dictate of prudence and manhood government suggests that the laborers' rest-day should be for health, home-life, and mental and domestic improvement; free alike from the exactions of capital, the oppressions of power, and the demoralizing solicitations of cupidity. No attempt is made to compel men to worship, or to keep the Sabbath religiously, but only to require them to be just to the profoundest needs of human nature in the relations of industrial, domestic and civil life. It cannot be but that every virtuous calling and every industry demanded by authentic civilization will be advantaged by the operation of the law. If there is any occupation which cannot tolerate such a law, that occupation must be at war with the best interests of society.

Such, in brief, are the character and objects of the Sunday law. To assume that it cannot be enforced, is to confess a weakness disreputable to the government, and damaging to the reputation of the city and the State. To refuse to enforce it, is to invite disorganization and anarchy. Sunday will be exceptionally a day of dissipation, domestic misery, and public crime, or exceptionally a day of personal sobriety, domestic comfort, and public quiet. Which it shall be will now depend on the supineness or vigor, the cowardice or courage, the perjury or fidelity, of the functionaries charged with the execution of the law.

Without consuming time with argument, we hasten to assure you, sir and gentlemen, of our unshaken confidence in the ability and official integrity of the executive officers of this city; and thru you to say to all parties in interest that there is a large, calm and determined constituency, who not only desire the enforcement of the law, but are resolved to do what they may in every legitimate way to defeat the machinations of rebellion, and prevent such a triumph of conspiracy as would blast the good name of the city and menace every law by which our liberties are guarded, and every right which we hold dear. We represent, directly, say fifty churches, with a large citizen membership, every one of whom is law-abiding, and—in case of need—may be relied upon as law-enforcing. Outside of this circle, which is unpotential only in the fancy of the unifformed, is another, composed of many hundreds of pledged temperance men in a single order, whose past activity is a presage of their future energy. Outside of this is a large number of members of other organizations, too intelligent to be deceived by a false cry, and too patriotic to stand supinely by and see the guarantees of liberty insolently trampled under foot in the purblind interest of a few whose gains depend on the amount of misery they can create. Outside of all these there is a still larger constituency of sober, industrious citizens, augmented by a multitude who have felt the power of appetite or suffered indirectly the scorchings of the fire, and therefore wish to remove temptation from the purview of their rest-day rambles, who will answer to any call the civil government may make upon them for maintaining the supremacy of law. Outside of all these is a great assemblage of wives, children, mothers of endangered sons, and sisters of imperiled brothers, whose rights are as sacred as tho they were able to defend them by bayonet and ballot. These must be considered in any comprehensive measure of legislation for the public good.

Thus far, this vast constituency has calmly waited for the decision of the highest court. The calmness of their courage may have emboldened the demoralizers into the notion that the opposition to their disorganizing purposes would be timid and temporary. We are sure that you, Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen, do not labor under such a misapprehension. We therefore make these deliberate statements, much more in the hope of undeceiving the victims of misteaching and mistake, than to intimate to the executive officers of the municipal government the grave importance of promptly and vigorously discharging the functions which they are sworn to perform, and which have been insolently set at defiance.

For ourselves—if you will indulge us yet a moment—we try to keep the Sabbath in a Christian way. But in pleading for a civil Sabbath, we speak only as citizens, conceding all the rights we claim, and claiming all that we concede. Clearly recognizing the fact that a people endowed with the ballot and the right of private and public discussion can have no valid reason for rebellion, we are accustomed to submit to laws which we do not approve, till they can be lawfully repealed or amended. If any and every class or calling may usurp the powers of legislatures and courts, then government is at end and anarchy ensues. For the base disloyalty of the mercenary leaders of this latest "Whisky Rebellion," therefore, who would purchase guilty gains at the price of treason, no language of denunciation is too strong; but we should do injustice to our convictions if we did not cherish a kinder feeling toward their dupes and tools who, for obvious reasons, do not discern the logical consequences of their false position. Yet it must not be forgotten that > "Evil is wrot by want of thot,

> As well as want of heart."

Practically, "a blunder is as bad as a sin"; and the harm is doubly aggravated when the "blunder" is found to be under the adroit leadership of the "sin."

We will only tarry to assure you again of the conscientious support of a large and influential body of citizens, whose rights are too dear to them to be bartered for inglorious ease, and whose liberties, safe only while law is supreme, they will not consent to see jeopardized by a lawlessness which loudly and ludicrously proclaims itself in the prostituted name of Freedom.

If we have appeared to aim especially at one class, it is because that class only has proclaimed its purpose of nonsubmission to the law. This instance being the first in the history of our State in which organized rebellion has openly challenged the Government, has an importance in its bearing upon the future which entitles it to so much distinction.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

A PREVENTIVE AGITATION.

"Rev. John Hemphill lectured to his congregation in Calvary church last evening on the Sunday law. After advancing in its favor some of the arguments which the recent discussion of the question has made familiar, he said that he was fearful that the friends of the Sunday law had made a mistake in raising the issue at present. The next Legislature, he thot, would be composed of men who would repeal the Sunday Law."

That is the Chronicle's report; it is quite possible that it is incorrect and might not bear the same meaning if all of it was heard. If he thinks any attempt to stop the open work of the grogshop and brothel on Sunday is a mistake, he is supported by every wholesale drunkard-maker, every corner grocery and every other den of pollution and every one who loves to curse God and destroy mankind. And Christians and decent people do not coincide with them. The best help to the leag of Fiendom would be such utterances from a pulpit. It is to be hoped the impression conveyed by the reporter is a mistaken one.

A LARGE AND AGGRESSIVE MEETING IN DASHAWAY HALL.

Dashaway Hall, on Post St., was crowded last evening on the occasion of the "Sunday Closing Law-and-Order Citizens' Meeting." The Home Protective Association, which meets every Saturday evening in the Hall of the Y. M. C. A., adjourned for the evening, and all of the temperance orators were present to give eclat to the occasion.

R. H. McDonald called the meeting to order, and proceedings began with a song, in which all joined. Mr. McDonald said that they were there for the purpose of voicing the will of the people. The Sunday law is a State law. Shall it be obeyed or shall it be trampled under? Shall a portion of the citizens defy this law? It is a question with us whether a band of conspirators shall be permitted to flaunt defiance in the face of the law-abiding citizens. If they can override the law, all laws can be set aside. Chaos will come which will end by the subversion of republican liberty. He closed by announcing himself in favor of female suffrage as a means of purifying the ballot-box, because, women could not be cajoled as easily as men, at least on the liquor question.—A prayer from the Rev. Robert McKenzie next followed.

COLONEL J. T. LONG.

Colonel J. T. Long of Kentucky the speaker of the evening, was next introduced. He said that the meeting was called for the purpose of exercising the highest privilege of American citizens—that of assembling and disenssing matters relating to their spiritual welfare. When men come here and are protected by our laws they become American citizens. Is there any man here that does not love this country? If there is he should be taken out and buried beneath the contempt of all patriots. America is the land of the free and the home of the brave. Looking back a hundred years and further every wrecked Republic has fallen through the drunkenness and debauchery of its own sons. If liberty finds her grave in America, it will be through national intoxication and Sabbath desecration, which now pervades the Republic to such an extent that it threatens national demoralization. I do not believe that the rum shop should exist in this country, under sanction of law, one day in the week. The civil war slaughter was insignificant to the ravages inflicted by unlimited liquor traffic. We have in this country men who say that our children cannot be protected from this hellish traffic; that they have a right to open their gilded hells right in the shadow of God's houses. For one, I don't subscribe to that doctrine. If there is a power in California greater than the State, the sooner you find it out the better. I believe the people of this State have the power and will to grasp this lawless element by the throat and choke it to death. Wherever there is

AN ABSENCE OF CHRISTIANITY

There is barbarism. Every Government has a right to protect health and the property of its people. This State has those rights and has expressed it. It now becomes the duty of every man to see that these Sunday laws are carried out, and to keep up the fight until the foe goes down. I want to remind the Christian people and non-drinkers that wherever we have united, the cohorts of drunkenness have gone down before us, and if these people do not support the law they are responsible for its failure. Unless public sentiment sustains that law it will become a dead letter. In conclusion, he said that it behoves every good man to put his shoulder to the wheel and secure a rigid enforcement of the law. The hymn "America" was then sung by the audience standing.

JUDGE LAKE'S ADDRESS.

Judge Delos Lake was next introduced. He said that he did not come to deliver a temperance address, but that he appeared to enter a solemn protest against a criminal conspiracy to defeat a law of the sovereign people. The public press has arrogated to itself not only the mission, but the power to govern not only public but private morals. It asserts itself as moving on an elevated plane of judicial power. When one of the papers was charged with having sold its editorial columns, the proprietor of it appealed to the law for protection against what he considered a libel. I am told that the principal newspapers have been visited and requested to attack the conspiracy, but they declined on the ground that it would hurt their business. They are silent on this conspiracy, and in suppressing their opinions they are as guilty as if they sold them. He then proceeded to discuss the Sunday Law from a judicial point of view, and maintained that a day set apart was necessary to the health and well being of the people. There is nothing very peculiar in the California Sunday. Nearly every State in the Union has a Sunday Law. The infernal corner-grocery-store beer-saloons are the ones making the fight against this law, not the first-class saloons, the proprietors of which do not, as a rule, particularly object to closing on Sunday. The corner groceries, where the money of the poor laborer goes, often when his family is starving, are the places where the fight against the law is being made. He claimed that if the will of the people and the law of the land could be defeated in this case, and the Sunday Law set aside, any law could be set aside by an organized conspiracy.

A series of resolutions denouncing the League of Freedom as a band of conspirators organized to defy a law, and calling upon the authorities to suppress it, and enunciating as a general principle that "all organizations and all societies having for their objects the enforcement of law, the prevention of crime, the elevation of mankind and the good of our country, ot to unite in the suppression of any conspiracy which seeks to impede justice, to trample upon law, defy authority, degrade American citizenship and dishonor the State," and closing with a resolution that the League of Freedom is such a conspiracy and ot to be suppressed.

At the close of Judge Lake's speech, ringing resolutions were adopted with only two weak and abashed voices—a couple of dupes and tools of the leag of outlaws—dissenting, declaring a determined warfare upon the public conspiracy to defy law, and another meeting on April 1st was promised.

LAW AND LIQUOR.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

Now that the battle has begun in earnest, this little pamphlet ought to be in the hands of every man in the State. It is clear-cut and forcible in an eminent degree, is well calculated to arouse the conscience and carry conviction home to the heart.

Every Good Templars' Lodge in the State should send for at least 100 copies for gratuitous distribution, as one has said:

"It will be hard to find 12 pages in any modern publication that will do better work in the cause of temperance, and temperance societies and temperance people will do well to circulate the pamphlet by thousands and tens of thousands."

In view of the great interests now at stake, and with an earnest desire to do good, we have reduced the price to $8 per hundred, postage included.

Send your orders to me at 25 Russ street, San Francisco, J. C. SIMMONS, or to RESCUE OFFICE.

"HE who has set his face upward toward the light, seeking only what is true and good, will finally reach the summit of perfect faith."

HOME FOR ORPHANS

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS' HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Seails, Nevada City; A. G. Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

RENEW! RENEW!! RENEW!!!

GREAT OFFER FOR

Renewals and New Subscribers!

AN OPPORTUNITY TO BOTH

GET GOOD AND DO GOOD

WITHOUT ITS COSTING YOU ANYTHING.

Five of the Revolution "Class Papers" sent free—one each to any five addresses for one year for every cash renewal or cash subscriber sent to the RESCUE with $1 25.

The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, of Chicago, publishes eighteen monthly "class papers," as follows:

No. 1. "Our Young Ladies," especially for young ladies.
No. 2. "Our Young Men," especially for young men.
No. 3. "Our Women," especially for women.
No. . "The Christian," for any and every one who acknowledges the claims of God.
No. 5. "The Pastor," especially for pastors, urging them to do their duty.
No. 6. "The Sunday School Superintendent," setting forth the duties of the Sunday-school in relation to temperance, and what the superintendent may do.
No. 7. "The Sunday-School Worker," intended to induce all Sunday-school teachers to teach temperance in their classes, and otherwise help the cause.
No. 8. "The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner," containing articles from Catholic divines, etc., intended to influence Catholic families.
No. 9. "The Pledge," for reform work; useful at any time.
No. 10. "The Prohibition Banner, for State or local prohibition work.
No. 11. "The Saloon Curse," a paper antagonizing the saloon on the merits of the question, "Saloons or no Saloons," without regard to temperance; especially suited to local prohibition work.
No. 12. "Home Protection," to help women to the ballot on the temperance question, for local or state home protection work.
No. 13. "The People," gotten up especially for the ordinary classes, mechanics, laboring men, etc.
No. 14. "The Railroad," for railroad employes.
No. 15. "The Anchor," for sailors, steamboat men, etc.
No. 16. "The Soldier," for soldiers.
No. 17. "The American Farmer," for farmers
No. 18. "The Freeman, for colored people.

These papers are sent out monthly, each paper addressed, wrapped and mailed separately to each individual named. Each person sending $1.25 cash renewal or new subscriber for the RESCUE will be entitled to the privilege of selecting from the above list, five papers, all of one, or of different kinds, and ordering them sent to such parties as he may choose, monthly, for one year, without extra cost to him.

For your cash renewal, five papers.

For your cash renewal and one new subscription, or for two new subscribers, ten papers.

For your cash renewal and two new subscriptions, or for three new subscriptions, fifteen papers, and so on.

The "class papers" are small, four-page, two-column papers, intended to take the place of tracts, on which they are certainly a great improvement. Each contains about 6,000 words in a number, or 70,000 in a year, choice matter, and they can not fail to do good wherever sent.

An arrangement with the "Revolution" makes this offer possible for a limited time only.

Those who avail themselves of this offer must give carefully and plainly the address of the parties to whom the class papers are to be sent, post-office, county and state. And no other premiums or discounts can be made on papers so ordered. There is no weekly temperance paper in the world so cheap as the RESCUE on these

I consider THE LEVER one of the very best temperance papers published. Its national circulation would do more to benefit the nation than a session of congress. GEO. W. BAIN.

Its outspoken declarations in favor of temperance and the right are its best commentary. MOREAU S. CROSBY, Lieut. Gov. Mich.

THE LEVER is clear, strong, fearless and outspoken. It is ably edited, always on the right side: it ought to prosper and will. It should be widely read, and liberally supported. SAMUEL DICKIE, Prof in Albion College.

When you call on any of these places please say you saw their Ad or card in the Rescue.

THERE are some good wholesome journals which have the courage to say that the rumseller should be subject to the law, as all other citizens are.

BRO. WEBB seems to think we have found a bonanza temperance worker in Miss Mary A. Guthrie of Springville, Ventura Co., and other evidences are accumulating to confirm that opinion.

NO MAN or woman, who sets a proper value on time and labor, will use the word prognosticate for foretell or foresee or prophesy; it is a clumsy, pedantic and very unmusical word.

AN $18 advertisement which offers the readers of the RESCUE a solid gold, patent lever, Swiss, full jeweled watch for $19.65, equal to a $150 gold watch and at half the cost in Switzerland, is declined with thanks. It is too good a thing; people ot not to get rich too fast.

BOTH SIDES.—One of the best argumeuts ever used against Woman Suffrage was urged by a lady at a public meeting recently in this State, viz: Man has had so far the governing power in this world; it must be admitted he has not done it very well, but he has only had about 6,000 years trial yet and it would be unfair to wrest the powre from him before he has had time for a fair series of experiments. The audience went home; that idea had never occurred to them; they see it now.

Whether it is the effect of the liquor law or not, Kansas has less need for its prisons. The authorities find it somewhat lonesome about the Penitentiary of the State, and have opened it up as a boarding-house and have agreed to take convicts from New Mexico to board at $1.40 per week. Can any State beat that?—Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE PICTURE of Mrs. Hayes still adorns the White House and a reliable authority says that competent judges pronounce it and its beautiful frame the finest ornament there. It must be something of a rebuke to the carousing crew who now have possession of the premises. The delivery of the engravings is now progressing and it is hoped all the orders from California over due will soon be filled. The picture is all it promised.

THERE ARE a great many fine hightoned patriots in the Republican party that will never, never, never, never falter in their straight-ticket allegiance to that great party of principles and glorious (departed) memories, until it nominates a temperance man, and then they will scratch him with the intensely exagerated curveback feeling of a belligerent cat that has just fully comprehended for the first time the extent of Ireland's wrongs.

THE Sacramento Bee calls Judge Allens decision "new, strange and unrighteous, against public morality, against the spirit and genius of the age and full of political wickedness." It declared that the press has as much right to sell its opinions as the merchant to sell his wares and the lawyer to sell his legal skill. The act of a journal selling its opinions cannot be made better or worse by a legal decision; to condem the practice whenever it is exhibited would have much more effect than criticizing that decision; but to do so would keep the journalistic critic too constantly busy and in constant hot water.

SUBSCRIBERS and renewals this week: Oakland, 1; Amador City (J. F. Parks), 3; Santa Paula, Saticoy and Ventura, (J. W. Webb), 5; Glennville, Delano and Bakersfield, (W. C. King), 5; Bolder Creek, 1; Eureka, 1; Cedarville and Beckwith, (Rev. W. E. Howe), 2; Chico, 2; San Francisco, 1.

MR. PHIL. TUCKER, proprietor of the Lompoc Record, is being set up by his friends for County Clerk. If they can find a more deserving citizen than the proprietor of a patriotic paper which takes the virtuous and moral side of all public questions, and advocates the people's welfare every time, let them trot him out and beat Mr. Tucker.

THE Cincinnati Commercial says on authority, that ex President Hayes saved $60,000 of his four years' salary. If he did not he was not fit to be President of a great nation. Some people would say he should have disbursed that $60,000 among the whisky sellers and they speak depreciatingly of his parsimony. But he dispensed the best and most generous hospitality and more of it and gave better entertainments than any of his predecessors ever did. His was a virtuous hospitality.

THE Record Union of March 25, gave 12 lines to a cold notice of Eli Johnson's lecture and very nearly a column to a descriptive laudation of Mr. Stanford's mammoth 1000 acre drunkery farm. It is very cheap nonsense to tell people that "Mr. S. has a very important mission to fulfil in creating high class wines; that new and crude wines cannot be hurried into excellence by any mechanical means; and that he will produce wines immeasurably superior to the best we can at present boast of. "The writer of that miserable twaddle which is put up to deceive fools and curry favor with the leag of freedom and debauch the public morals, knows very well that any wholesale wine dealer or wine doctor in Sacramento or San Francisco can produce in 48 hours as good and as pure a wine from cider or potato whisky or glucose rum and water and a few flavoring extracts as Mr. Stanford can ever learn to make in 20 years from rotten grape juice.

A LITTLE TRAP.—The Rev. C. C. Burnett of Iowa having all along protested that he was not employed by the liquor dealers, but was stumping against prohibition from consciencious motives only; one John Sobieski an active temperance man, with a very beery name, wrote from Lincoln to the Atty of the Rummy Association, asking "if we could get Burnett to come to Nebraska to help us" etc. Mr. Rubens answered giving address of the Rev. C. C. B. On the same letter Sobieski at once wrote to ask Mr. C. C. B. his terms and received a reply saying he had been engaged by the liquor dealers of Illinois to deliver 50 lectures for $1,000 and $5 a day for his expenses and would be glad to make a similar arrangement for Nebraska. On his first meeting with Finch the Rev. Burnett asserted he had come only at the invitation of friends to lecture, but Mr. Finch cornered him with the authority to prove that he had been guilty of falshood.

CONSISTENCY:—Somebody complains that one of the deacons who is church clerk and keeper of the records of a fashionable church in Baltimore is the head of one of the largest liquor houses in that city, he thinks that it is an "unfortunate church;" it does look so and is inconsistent for a most conspicuous servant of Satan, a chief minister of the gospel of the devil to be an officer in the Christian church —but perhaps it is a no worse sight than to see a president of the United States keeping a baccahanalian resort in the Nation's executive mansion; the nations senators and law givers going on a drunken spree at President Garfield's funeral; not worse than the governors of states giving tangleleg dances and tanglebrain suppers after the manner of the heathen of foreign lands and Pagan history; no worse than a group of city officials and politicians and ministers of the churches, celebrating in a farewell banquet, after the pattern of a beer dive orgie, the good fortune of a selfish, political, spoilseeker whom the act of Guiteau recalled from the obscurity of political exile to a prominent representative position. We have no right to demand a purity in the churches that we take no pains to secure in our legislative, judicial and social circles. There are a great many worthy people whose general conduct would not justify their finding fault with a church if it kept a ginmil in its basement.

THE TEXAS Prohibitionist of March 29 has a rather interesting printers mistake. It set out to copy the article "Dangerous Breakers ahead," in the RESCUE of March 16—on the Logan Bill. The article had evidently been cut out all right and given to the printer who got along correctly to the bottom of the first colum but then in place of continuing the next he had turned the paper over and went on with the article on the other side of the page, which happened to be a part of Mrs. Richardson's on "the Twin Evils, Tobacco and Alcohol." So it reads, " * * * Our grogshops and jails, our beerdives and lunatic asylums, our wineries and poor houses, our whisky groceries and police courts our hotel bars and bankrupt sales (it continues right along) are statements from the report of the Chaplain of the New York States Prison at Auburn." And the rest is all about tobacco and the whole is signed M. E. Richardson. If any one will look at the RESCUE of March 16 and see how the second colum of page 311 fits on to the first colum of page 312, he will appreciate the wonderment which the readers of the Prohibitionist must have had, to understand what Mrs. Richardson was driving at in the RESCUE commencing with an assault on the Logan bill and drifting from our wineries and beer shops strait to Auburn New York and to a homily on tobacco for the boys. They must have thot Mrs. R. or the RESCUE rather incoherent. But the way of the printer is past finding out sometimes.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

BY B. W. RICHARDSON, M. D., F. R. S.

XII.—ALCOHOL AND LONGEVITY.

Another point. Twenty-one years ago these facts about disease and short life from drink, not being so recognized, our insurance companies were blind to them; but now so keen are they on this question of the effect of drink upon the persons who come to be insured, that on the lives of those who sell strong drink there is actually an extra tariff, and the question asked by the insurance companies is the question of sobriety, for the company knows that there is nothing so fatal in a general way, or so likely to lead, not simply to disease from the agent itself, but springing up and intensifying by its employment other diseases, as the free use of this particular destructive national enemy.

XIII.—ALCOHOL AND MORTALITY.

Another point. We have figures in regard to the mortality in reference to this agent which are startling, and which twenty-one years ago we should never have conceived as possible. Lately we have got much more refined examination of facts than formerly. There has been a difference of opinion as to the real mortality from the use of strong drink. Dr. Farr, who thot that the mortality was very much overrated, has since said that forty to fifty thousand a year die from what he calls "tippling." Dr. Farr before he resigned his post was so good as to allow me (being then engaged in delivering a course of Cantor lectures on the mortality in industrial occupations to the number of seventy) to examine the returns, and this came out, as a startling fact, that there were variations from 70 to 138, 100 being the standard—that is to say, if the mean mortality of the whole of the occupations in the years examined was 100, then the most favorable occupations went up to 70, and those that were least favorable came down to something considerably over 100. We find that when we get to one occupation we get to the lowest but one. Amongst those engaged in the sale of spirits we find 138 deaths to the hundred to the mean of population. The grocers who before they had the license to sell spirits were standing in a most favorable place on the scale—86 to 100—since they began to sell the drink have begun to go down, and show a higher mortality. Then you see what an important point we have scored—that just in proportion as this agent is approached by the multitude which deals with it, just in proportion does that vast multitude begin to die with the rest of its fellows.

RIVERSIDE.

BY ELDER M. V. WRIGHT, NUMBER ONE.

ED. RESCUE—:I will now try to comply with your kind request of some weeks past, and write a few short communications for the RESCUE, in reference to the above remarkably successful colony, for the information of such of your readers in the East and North, as may be contemplating the exchanging of their cold, bleak, frozen climate for a home in the ever-sunlit valleys under the fair blue skies of Southern California.

Conscious of my moral responsibility to God, and having no other motive but to benefit my fellow men, I shall aim to be plain, common-sense, and practical to write an unvarnished tale, and to give the disadvantages, as freely as the advantages, of a life in this portion of the world. I shall speak from experience and a careful observation derived from a residence of over eight years in Riverside. Too much has been written about California of an exaggerated and highly rose-colored type, and many have thus been most shamefully deceived, imposed upon, and wronged.

While I am an enthusiast with respect to my adopted state, I regard it a very great injustice to induce men of small means in the states, by flattering reports, to sacrifice what little they possess in getting here, under the impression that a home can be had almost for the asking. While on the contrary, there is perhaps no place in the U. S. where it requires more money and incessant hard labor to make a home, than in semi-tropic, fruit-raising, Southern California. But after that home is once made, and orchard and vinyard begin to yield their rich abundant and valuable harvests, there is no place, perhaps, in the world where a greater percent of profit will be realized from your investment. Before closing these communications I will give your readers facts confirming the above statements.

Riverside is located in the valley of San Bernardino, in the extreme South-western corner of San Bernardino County. This county embraces over 20,000 square miles, and would make over fifteen states the size of Rhode Island. But at least one half of the county is a barren, valueless desert of sand.

Our Colony is about fifty miles east from the sea-coast and about 25 miles on an average from the Coast Range Mountains, on the north and east. Mount San Bernardino, the loftiest peak of the above range, is about 30 miles east of us. It is about twelve thousand feet in height; stands like a bold, faithful, and giant sentinel, watching over this broad, beautiful valley. Presenting to the eye of the beholder a scene of magnificent grandeur and sublimity.

When I came to the State, I came from San Jose down to Riverside, on horseback, and for the last hundred miles or more, the above grand peak was seldom out of sight. Our remoteness from the ocean, together with our altitude, (perhaps nearly 1,000 feet above sea-level,) protect us very much from the heavy fogs which are so prevalent along some portions of the coast during a portion of the year, and which are very injurious to certain fruits. Especially is this true of the orange and raisin grape. It sadly mars the beauty of the orange by covering it with a black mould, and interferes much with the drying of the raisin. It also prevents the production of a first-class peach.

I must say in justice to Orange, a very thriving colony in Los Angeles county, and but a few miles from the coast, that the McPherson brothers of that place received the first premium at the Riverside Citrus Fair last week for raisins. But I would add that this has been an exceptional dry year in southern California, and therefore favorable to raisin making, even near the coast. Without any desire in the least to disparage other localities, I must say that Riverside, for the above reasons, is one of the very best localities in the State for semi-tropic fruit cultrue. Her very superior water privileges also give her a very great advantage over almost every other colony in southern California. But depreciating as I do, that vile spirit of local jealousy so prevalent in California, by which men too often seek to build up their own communities by basely slandering all others that may be in competition with their's; I here advise all, who may seek a home with us, to visit the follwing places before they purchase, namely: Los Angeles, Pasadena, Orange and Santa Ana, in Los Angeles county, and Riverside, San Bernardino, Lugonio and Redlands, in San Bernardino county, and if they cant be pleased at any of these places, let them go back with bowed head to their thunder-shaken, lightning-riven, storm-swept, and tornado-scarred stopping places in the North, and shiver the remainder of their earthly pilgrimage.

I intended to give your readers a short description of our late Annual Citrus Fair in this letter, but space will not permit it. I may refer to some of its leading features in the future. But, as I wish to tell them about our climate, soil, productions, society, schools, churches, cost of land, irrigation, etc. I fear that you will begin to repent inviting me to write about Riverside, and before I get thru with this contract, I expect you will feel like the man who drew an elephant and didn't know what to do with him. Well, I'm on a heavy down grade, and "I intend to fight it out on this line (if you don't veto me) if it takes me all summer."

DOING WITHOUT BEER.

No. 31.

At one of the annual meetings of the British Medical Association, about 120 of the members accepted the usual invitation to a breakfast given by the National Temperance League. It is their custom on such occassions to discuss some of the scientific aspects of the temperance question. At this meeting (Canon Connor presiding), Dr. Alfred Carpenter gave a short but most instructive address, from which we make the following extract, taken from the report in the Medical Temperance Journal:

"I have on many occasions experimented upon myself, and the result has been that I have come to the conclusion that I am far healthier, far more comfortable, far happier in my own existence while abjuring intoxicating liquors than when I took them, tho I am not a pledged total abstainer, I do not take them habitually, and I feel and know that I am far better as the result of such abstinence. I will give you an illustration of that. In connection with our last Cambridge meeting I had been doing a large amount of sedentary work, and one's waistcoat was getting tighter than one liked it to be. After that meeting was over I went to Cumberland amongst the hills, and determined that I would set myself a task. I went to the top of every one of the Cumberland hills, that is more than 2,500 feet high. Every other day I did one of those hills, and took two of my sons with me. There was no beer to be had on the top of those mountains, and I determined that I would try whether I could not achieve my task without touching intoxicating liquors at all. I did it, but at the expense of flesh, because when the month was up I was my natural girth. I had got rid of a large quantity of fatty matter, and after going to the top of Helvellyn, and Shawfell, and Skiddaw, etc., I was not one bit tired, and I did not take one single drop of any kind of intoxicating liquor. I had two sons with me; one like myself never touched any kind of alcoholic liquor. The other, who had had a little experience at Cambridge, liked his beer, and I was not going to tell him to give it up. I never draw a chain so tight as that; but I found the elder one, who was accustomed to take his beer every day, was unable to get to the top of either Helvellyn or Skiddaw. There was the experience of two of the same family: the one never touched alcoholic liquors at all, and the other accustomed to take one or one and one-half pints of beer a day, yet not having the vigor, the go, nor the ability to withstand the fatigue in the same way the water-drinkers did.

I am certain from observation that it is far more conducive to strength, to energy, to ability, to overcome fatigue if you habitually let intoxicating liquors alone, and accustom yourselves to do without them. Then why should we take them? Why should you get up in the morning with headache, with indigestion, and those changes of constitution which we know do arise from the habitual use of alcoholic liquors, and subject yourselves to them, when undoubtedly, if you will only go on for a little while, and get over the stile, you will overcome those evils that you think arise from not taking them, and you will find yourselves happier and better men."

GO TO CHURCH.

Prentis preaches the following sermon in the Atchison Champion. If we could improve on it we would, but we cant. He says: "Go to church. It is the best place to go. It breaks into the monotony of Sunday as most people spend it at home. The man who, without necessity, works on Sunday is a miserable creature who does not treat himself well. He is burning the candle at both ends. He might as well be a mule or an ox, or any beast of burden.

Go to church. There are churches enough and you know the clergymen, gentlemen all who have devoted years to their calling, and years in fitting themselves for it. They could undoubtedly teach you something, even if they knew less. Ben. Franklin, who knew more than anybody we know around here, and who has been claimed as a Freethinker, said he never heard a preacher so poor that he could not learn something from him. Perhaps you may not agree with the preacher, but for that matter you listen to men every day with whom you disagree. You say you do not believe him. Do not be so sure about that. Most men brot up in the average American manner, with a Sunday school education, and all that, believe enough.

Go to church for the sake of the old time when you were young, before the stress and strife of life began. Go for the sake of the time when you believed that the sky was always bright on Sunday. Go for the old associations that may return, memories that may awaken, the old thoughts that may come again. Perhaps you may cease to listen to the sermon, and the preacher's voice may die away in a confused murmur, and yet the message may be coming to you far more saving than any he has brought. The singing, too, is a great deal, particularly when the congregation sings, and you may hear your somewhat rusty voice joining in with the others before you know it.

Go to church. It will not harm you, it has never harmed anyone. Murders and robberies and thefts are not usually planned in church. Men are not more envious or hard-hearted by going to church for an hour one day in seven. You had better listen to the call to prayer from the minaret of some mosque than to go through the world without a thought save of toil and trouble without end. This is our sermon."—Nationalist.

THE GOLDENDALE REGISTER W. T. asks somebody to give some reasons why a dramshop should be allowed longer to debauch the community and destroy its homes, and at the close of a manly editorial on the drunkard making business, declares it will never support for office any man who is in favor of the sale of intoxicating liquors, whether the paper lives or dies. The day is not far off, friend, when true men shall be respected in this warfare and the coward and traitor slave of the grogshop will be also held at his true value.

OAKLAND LADIES MASS MEETING.

On Thursday, Morch 29th, the ladies of Oakland, had an enthusiastic mass meeting at the Masonic Hall, about 400 being present. It was called by the W. C. T. U., to discuss the enforcement of the Sunday law, and Mrs. P. D. Browne presided. The S. F. Chronicle says in its report:

"A stirring temperance address was delivered by Eli Johnson, who contended that the Sabbath should not be given up to debauchery and crime.

"A series of resolutions was adopted calling upon the city and county officers to enforce the Sunday law, and aid in all their might in rescuing society from the scourge of drunkenness.

"Col. Long commenced an address in which he strongly advocated the principles of woman's rights, but he was promptly called to order by the President, Mrs. Browne, who stated that woman's rights was a question never to be discussed in the Women's Christian Temperance Union, as the organization was opposed to it.

"A number of petitions directed to the Mayor, Chief of Police, Prosecuting Attorney and other officers of the peace were then circulated for signatures and were signed by fully two-thirds of the ladies present.

The meeting then adjourned."

That part of the above report which refers to Col. Long, is entirely incorrect and it is presumed it did not come thru a reporter of the Cronicle. The facts were, that Col. Long was invited by the President to speak and did so. He was not called to order at all, did not allude once to the question of woman's rights but urged the necessity and propriety of utilizing the great power of woman's vote in the enactment and enforcement of laws to suppress the horrible rum traffic. The only interruption of his remarks was the hearty sympathetic applause of at least three-forths of the audience, when he expressed a hope that this act of justice to men and women would soon bring the needed help to bear and sound the death knell of our national infamy.

At the close of his address a Vice President, one of the leading ladies of Oakland, who was a hearty leader of the applause too, rose and desired that an expression of the audience might be had, as to how many would be willing to go to the polls and vote against licensing the sale of whisky. Then Mrs. Browne declared such a proceeding was out of order and a rule of the society prohibited the discussion of such a question.

If that is so, and if the most vitally important issue that concerns the relation of the W. C. T. U. to the cause of temperance, cannot be mentioned at its meetings, there is an urgent necessity for a change of tactics or a new organization of women for temperance, that don't exclude temperance from their platform. The gifted heroic Christian President of the National Union and all but an unimportant fraction of its members, are actively and earnestly demanding and laboring that this most potent machinery of Satan, this most cunning trap of the wily enemy of Christianity, this tower of strength to the grogshop, this last refuge of lies—— the enslavement of women, the piracy of their only weapon of selfprotection, which robs them of all power to fight this monster crime and defend their homes——shall be buried forever in the ash heap of obsolete barbarisms and savage cruelties outgrown.

It has often occurred that those who have imagined they were working for temperance, have been doing the best work against it. The men or women who would not vote if they could to cast out the devil of the dramshop, or who would prevent man or woman from doing so, may think they are on the side of temperance, but they are the best friends and last hope and sure stay and best bower anchor of the Leag of Fiendom. Without their aid, that last prop removed, the help transferred to the other side, the Leag would disband and sue for peace.

Discussion has always been prohibited by the advocates of abuses, and invariably invoked by the promoters and friends of a righteous cause. To choke discussion Christ was crucified, and a million martyrs have been sacrificed by fire and sword. Cut off free speech, has been the watchword of slavery and tyranny, and the opponents of every reform, civil or religious or social; it is now the whispered inspiration of Satan in the ear of those who cling to the devil's wine on the Lord's table, and of those who would debar the better and most virtuous and righteous and most capable half of our citizens from doing their duty to vote down the grogshop and the temple of shame. The W. C. T. U. which is the highest and purest organization in the world should beware of the tempter and adopt no tactics from such sources and examples.

A SUGGESTION ON SUFFRAGE.

The best argument that can be used in favor of woman suffrage and the best proof that they are as well qualified to vote as men or better even, will be their unanimous demand all over the Union that the Act of any state which concedes their right to vote, will restrict that citizen's right to those women only who deserve the name of good citizens, who are reputable and not criminals and outcasts. That restriction would have a double advantage, it would completely disable the most potent argument that has ever been used against equal suffrage and it would open the door to a restriction of the franchise to males that are not outcasts and outlaws.

To allow the ballot to female criminals would be a positive evil with which there is no necessity at all to diminish the many positive benefits that reason and experience clearly show, will result from the extension of the duty of suffrage to good women. It would seem that here is an opportunity for the coming voters to commence their beneficent and purifying influences and at the very threshold of their entrance upon political duties to vindicate the wisdom of the policy which shall add one more victory to the triumphs of liberty over tyranny and raise another important landmark on the highway of human progress.

WOMAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

Dr. Haswell's lecture last Sunday evening was an appeal to women to rise and demand the enforcement of the Sunday law. The reverend speaker thought there had never been a time in the history of temperance work in this State, better suited for the efforts of women. The signs of the times indicate that it is womans opportunity to make her influence felt in securing a quiet Sabbath. Man has never approved his ability to grapple with great moral questions. True he has at times, under fear of womans scorn, put upon the law books salutary laws. But man unmakes these laws. There never was a time that the Sunday law could not be enforced. Without woman's moral support, man's laws are of no effect. Woman is deprived of the ballot wrongly. In moral questions she should vote But yet while deprived of her suffrage, women can exert herself with benign effect. None of the mothers of Lodi are so busily engaged with household affairs that they cannot do something in a modest way for temperance, whether it be to sign the pledge or drop an occasional encouraging word.—Lodi Sentinel.

Dr. Haswell has been a diligent reader of the Bible, but he has derived no lessons there hostile to the revelations of science or to the principles of temperance, justice and equal human rights.

The Mrs. Hayes Picture is being worked off as fast as possible, but only 12 copies can be made in one day. Those who have been waiting for its appearance need not be alarmed; it will come and that picture is going to stay. Returns Received.—During the past week the following Lodges have filed Grand Lodge returns with the G. W. S. and their receipt is acknowledged: Nos. 179, 308, 342, 351, 442, 484, Japan 1.

New Lodges.—The following new lodges have been added to the list since last report completing a record of 60 new lodges organized since the last session of Grand Lodge:

Shamrock Lodge, organized Apr. 2d, at Shamrock School district, Kern Co., by Will C. King, Grand Lecturer, with 20 charter members. Night of meeting, Saturday. T. C. Morrison, L. D. P. O., Bakersfield, Kern Co.

——— Lodge, organized Apr. 3d, at Cunningham school district, Merced Co., by H. R. Hughes, Grand Lecturer, with 25 charter members. Night of meeting, Saturday. Lee Fox, L. D. P. O., Plainsburg, Merced Co

Delinquent.—The following lodges are noted as still delinquent in not having forwarded quarterly returns report for the term ending January 31st. The quarterly password circular soon to be issued must be denied them under the law, until such time as the delinquent returns are filed with the G. W. S. The delinquents are Nos: 7, 101, 106, 126, 205, 217, 226, 229, 250, 251, 276, 277, 282, 287, 306, 310, 313, 318, 372, 374, 390, 420, 422, 426, 439, 447, 453 and 457.

AN ACTIVE LODGE.—Bro. Oscar Smith W. S. of Lily Lodge, at Brentwood, Contra Costa Co., writing of his Lodge presents such a good report of progress that is reproduced for the benefit of other Lodges. The brother writes:

In the absence of our L. D. at our last meeting, I read from the RESCUE the circular issued by Bro. John B. Finch, Chairman of the Literature Committee of the R. W. G. L., and Bro. Oscar Smith, Bro. J. R. Byer and Sister S. J. Pearce were appointed a Committee to take charge of the work for Lily Lodge No. 330, I. O. G. T. and I assure you all will be done that lays in our power to advance the cause in this community. I will say further that we have not been idle in the work. About the first of this year we commenced by getting all the subscribers we could for the RESCUE. When we could get no one else to subscribe we advanced money and have the RESCUE sent to nearly every family in this community. We think the idea is a good one, for the cause is advancing here. We have also subscribed for the Youth's Temperance Banner which will go into nearly every family where there is children in this neighborhood. We also have a supply of temperance tracts that we distribute from time to time when we think they will do good for the cause. I know that our efforts are not in vain for a large per cent of the people here are with us and for us. Almost every body here is in favor of enforcing our Sunday Law and the violators are prosecuted when evidence can be secured."

GLEANINGS:—Says Bro. P. W. Cook L. D. of Ceres Lodge Stanislaus Co. "Two initiated last night 4th inst., and others proposed. We now number about 130 members." This is the community that recently purchased the "last groggery," during Sister Stevens visit, and made a strictly tetotal town of Ceres.....Northern Star Lodge of Oroville Butte Co. is in the ascendant. The L. D. Bro. W. S. Read, reports Col. Goulding lectures as being the most successful ever given in that town. Five arrests were made on Monday for violation of the Sunday law.....Ophir Lodge of Placer County is reported by the L. D. Bro. Warren Reed as doing a good work. A Lodge visitation was in prospect, at last report, to Lincoln Lodge.

YOLO District Lodge at Cacheville was a very lively one; 180 delegates present; voted to plant a Home Protection club in every town in Yolo Co.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

J. W. WEBB.

SANTA PAULA. Arrived on time at Baker's Temperance Hotel, a house well worthy of patronage and where the RESCUE is found in the Reading Room. It is expected Mrs. Baker will join the Lodge. Bro. L. S. Snuffin, a former co-worker in Ukiah Lodge, had me spend most of my time under his hospitable roof. Bro. Orne greatly helped in preparing for meetings and taking me from house to house soliciting membership and subscribers to RESCUE, of the former we obtained over a dozen in this way and after lectures and several subscribers, starting a club of 20 to get Mrs. Hayes' portrait as a premium. Am a pretty good pedestrian but Bro. Orne came very near walking me down. After two lectures held a called meeting of Lodge and initiated nine persons, nearly all heads of families and including Rev. H. C. Lawton and wife, by card from Riverside, Rev. J. P. Jones of M. E. Church South and my neighbor at Lompoc but now on a circuit here, and Prof. Drake, a teacher and fine musician. Bro. Jones took me in his buggy to a number of school houses and to lectures at Scienega, Springville and Saticoy making temperance speeches at each. He says I will make a temperance lecturer of him before I am through. No harm done if I should; am sorry I am not to return South and graduate him. As Col. Goulding is to take Southern Cal., next, I commend them each to the other. Am taking in every school house I can find on, or adjacent to, the line of travel, talking against the triple evils of intoxicants, tobacco and profanity and in favor of all that is noble, pure and good. Bro. Lawton also yielded his time at several Sunday appointments and earnestly spoke with me for Gospel Temperance and gave me the use of his buggy. Sisters Faddis and Shore, earnest christian young ladies recently from the East, Members of the Order and teachers in the public school are a great acquisition to the Lodge and to society. They cheerfully and ably gave select readings before the lectures as did sister Meda Granger, Bro. Drake, and young Sister Scott, organist and Sup. of Band of Hope, never failed to furnish good music when called for. Lodge has bought and paid for a $125 organ and necessary furniture; next will be a hall. At my suggestion, it was decided to get up an entertainment for the Home for Orphans, to invite all ministers preaching here to preach steadily on temperance, and for the lodge to hold monthly open meetings. Besides speaking at nights, called at Bro. Drake's school, and at the Santa Clara, West Sespe schools, and held a called meeting of the Band of Hope which is doing well; at all of these I leave temperance papers, tracts and leaflets of song. Had a crowded house on Sunday night of all classes.

Dr. Guiberson is thinking of taking membership with the lodge, hope he will before election times come round. All lodges should make special efforts to get all political workers in active membership in the Order before election, so that they may aid us to discountenance that dangerous, corrupting and unpatriotic system of treating and bribing by means of liquor.

SCIENEGA. Addressed the school and lectured two nights, obtaining some names for lodge. Band of Hope doing well. The excellent choir gave plenty of good and appropiate music, good readings, recitations and songs from lodge and Band of Hope members aged from four to —well say, "sweet sixteen." They have a good Lodge Deputy, Bro. Guiberson Jr., and when the editor sees him at Grand Lodge, he won't think him at all like a young lady, however his given name and handwriting may lean that way. Visited Sister Kitty Conway's school at Camulos, Bro. Jones and I addressing four Spanish and three half Spanish children as earnestly as tho there had been a full house; the older pupils had all gone to mass at the church.

SATICOY gave good audiences and fine attention. Bro. Jones tho heretofore as outhern Democrat, heartily seconds me, (naturally a Republican), in publicly and privately advocating every one putting temperance character and competency above party considerations, and going for home protection and prohibition. Rev. Mr. Bristol at the close of my Sunday-afternoon address voluntarily declared that, old Republican as he was, he would not be held by party ties as against the grand grave question of temperance, the "coming issue," for which he expected to be found voting during his few remaining years. This sentiment is growing. Let us all fan it into a flame.

HUENEME had 99 members; we sought for the hundredth and obtained 24 names. After lecturing twice, Sister Mary Guthrie of Springville, kindly consented to deliver the principal address on the third night, and then helped me canvass the audience for names. She wins golden opinions from those who hear her, and secured the close attention of the crowded house. She has pressing invitations to speak for various lodges and will likely respond to one from Merrill lodge, Los Angeles. May she meet with much encouragement and long be spared, for I believe there is a career of great usefulness before her as a Christian worker with pen and voice, in church and lodge and on the platform.

Hueneme Lodge will soon meet in a fine new Town Hall. As Good Templars started the project, the deed specifies the lodge shall always have the free use of the hall for their meetings so long as they retain their charter. The building, with store and library and reading-room below, will cost $3,000 and will be ready May 1st. Bro. Thos. R. Bard volunteers to fit up the reading and library room with shelves, tables, seats, chandeliers, etc., and give $100 in cash towards buying books and papers. Mr. Salisbury, his partner, gives another $100; Bro. Livingstone, the post-master, $40; Mr. Wolff, merchant, $30, and so on, Hope a good proportion of books and papers will be temperance. Stayed part of the time with L. C. Clark, D. D., who is out-and-out for Prohibition. Stayed over to lodge, initiated 15 and two by card. On Sunday, Bro. Livingstone drove me to New Jerusalem to preach a temperance sermon, back to Hueneme to splendid Band of Hope, most ably conducted by Sister Bard. Thence I went to Sr. Walbridge's, Dist. Sec., a fine worker and planner, who took me to Saticoy, where Bro. Jones was waiting to aid me in another meeting at which were appointed Sisters Fanny Quesnel, Leavitt and Goodenough a committee to revive the Band of Hope and have it meet in connection with the Sunday-school. At Hueneme took up a collection of $28 for Orphans Home, literature and lecture fund.

SPRINGVILLE has a fair lodge and Band of Hope, latter not doing so well as desired. At crowded meetings Sister Guthrie and Bros. Jones and Carter spoke very much to the point. Rev. O. W. Woods, tho a Band of Hope boy, is not in the lodge am sorry to say and, naturally, his family are not. Bro. Carter is an earnest young Christian Templar, recently licensed by the M. E. Church South to preach. As Chaplain of the lodge and every other way he is making himself very useful. He will do much good by his faithful work for temperance. May his brethren in Church and Lodge encourage him in his good efforts. We want a thousand good speakers and workers besides the Grand Lecturers, and I am rejoiced to see them and good readers, declaimers, essayists and singers coming to the front. I always give them part of my time at meetings, advice when it seems appropriate and ever a hearty "God speed." Springville Lodge and Band of Hope do nobly in distributing temperance literature, and contributing to the Orphans' Home. etc.

H. R. HUGHES.

Saturday lectured at Plainsburg to a good audience; met the lodge after the meeting. It is one of our solid lodges. Sunday law enforced at this place.

The 2d and 3d at Cunningham S. H. Organized Golden Rule Lodge, with 25 charter members. Lee Fox L. D. Night of meeting, Saturday. P. O. Plainsburg.

The 5th and 6th on the West Side. Lectured at Central Point; went with the members and the elected delegates to form the D. L. The first time they were ever represented. The lodge turned out in regalia at public meeting and made a fine appearance. Central Point lodge is isolated, but they have good members and are doing a grand work.

The 8th organized Merced D. L. at Merced City. Six Lodges represented all there are in the county excepting Star of Cottonwood, which is published in the RESCUE as being in Stanislaus Co. and I did not notify them. From the report of Com. on State of order I take the following: Merced Lodge 94 members; Central Point 70; Plainsburg 56; Merced Falls 39; Snelling 32; Golden Rule 25. Total 316.

Stirring resolutions were adopted and by vote were ordered read at the public meeting by the L. D. Bro. J. Carley insisting on the enforcement of the Sunday law and denouncing the "League of Freedom," as being in violation of Sec. 182 of the penal code.

The officers elect were installed at the public meeting by Geo. E. Isaacs State Deputy. Merced Falls carried off the prizes. Bro. Brooks being chosen as D. D. and Sister Henry Nelson elected D. V. Templar.

Next meeting to be held in Merced City, Aug. 28, 1882.

In the evening the D. L. Marched in regalia to the C. P. Church, the meeting was presided over by Bro. Isaacs, and a creditable program excellently carried out, and at 10 P. M. the first session of Merced D. L. closed.

It was a good meeting and I hope it is the beginning of a new era of prosperity for our Order and cause.

To-day every store and workshop are closed in Merced in obedience to Section 300 of the penal code, to-day every saloon and bar is in full blast in violation of the laws of our State.

To-day several churches bearing the name of the worlds Redeemer are holding services, I wonder if those pulpits are silent on this commandment of God. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it Holy."

EL PASO, TEXAS, April 4, 1882.

ED RESCUE:—Passing along southward, for the "star of empire" seemed to take that course lately, I here find myself face to face with the customs and habits prevalent among the men of two thousand years ago. Same kind of houses, churches, farming implements, ways of living, and many other things, reminding the stranger of what he may see among the old Romans and Greeks. You have but to cross the Rio Grande here to see this old Mexican city. In the prison I found some four or five of our Americans there for murder when drunk, the old story; one arrested last night. One of the prisoners told me he had not the most distant idea what had happened for many hours afterwards; but he had killed his man. They promised if they could only get their freedom they would live and talk temperance in the future; but it is too late. One has been there for 14 years, and everyone came there thru strong drink; yet, over on this side of the river in this American El Paso, about 45 saloons are trying to bring ruin on other American homes. I propose to move on their works before I leave; no lecture on temperance ever delivered here; the M. E. church minister is anxious to "save the city"; will write again down in Texas. W. O. C.

IN OTHER STATES.

IOWA.—On June 27th the people of Iowa are to vote on a Constitutional Amendment forever prohibiting any more King Antichrist.

"A HINDU sect of Christians called the Bramo Somaj use rice and water for bread and wine in the Communion. It is served in small quantities, the men women and children seated on the floor eat and drink reverently and return thanks to the God of the saints and prophets."

Joseph Livesey, one of the oldest landmarks of the temperance reform, has passed his 88th birthday in Preston, England, and has helped to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the first total abstinence society there, of which he was one of the principal founders. May he complete his century and witness the triumph that shall crown the next twelve years of this war.

A GERMAN WINE MERCHANT has just been sentenced to 60 days in jail and $125 fine for selling wine which he had made from one gallon of real wine to 13 gallons of water, alcohol, potato sugar, wine dregs and salt. Of this mixture he had 115,000 gallons on hand, and as he was making about 400 per cent. profit on his industry, he could stand that fine and come again.

ONE HUTCHENS, of Putney, England, who never in his life tasted any intoxicant, has run 132 yards in 12½ seconds, nearly 32 feet per second. He is 28 years old stands 5ft. 10 in., has beaten every body, trains himself for the race and pocketed nearly $5000; so says the Watchword. That is almost horse speed, at the rate of 1 mile in 2m 47 seconds.

THE Morning and Day of Reform has removed to 150 Madison St. Chicago and sends out 30,000 copies as samples. It is a 4 page monthly at 50 cents a year; the number for March contains portraits of Neal Dow ond J. B. Finch and a pictured illustration of the infernal agency of the bottle. It calls for agents and canvasers; editors H. W. Adams and Mrs. Emma Molly; the latter an eminent worker, orator and organizer.

THE PROPOSITION to unite the Seceders of England with the I. O. G. T. has failed and the discussion has probably created additional ill-feeling. In some quarters it has been claimed by the Seceding party that it was the American Order which seceded, which would be like Siskiyou Co. separating from California and claiming to be the State and the other 51 counties seceders. But the best way is to let it entirely drop and create no enmities by further propositions of compromise.

DANGEROUS even to steal liquor. Two burglars in England having recently made a haul, retired to a wood to divide the spoil. There were four bottles of wine in the plunder, which when divided and imbibed produced naturally a quarrel, and one killed the other; the body found was covered with wounds. That wine must have been like ours in California; about twelve years ago, three Irish laborers in Davisville bot some wine in a bucket on a Sunday afternoon, and retired to an outhouse to enjoy it; in less than two hours two of them were killed and the survivor very dangerously cut up.

IN EDINBURG AND GLASGOW, the two great educational centers of Scotland, in spite of all the religious, educational, philanthropic and temperance agencies at work, drunkenness is largely on the increase. In Edinburg the arrests of drunk and incapable in New Year's week of 1880, 1881 and 1882, were 101, 115 and 124; in addition, for assaults and crime in the same time, 250, 258 and 337. In Glasgow it was worse, the figures for the same offences in the New Year week of these years, were 459, 603 and 668—and 1,173, 1,632 and 1,755. Bailie Lewis thinks when over 2,000 people were arrested for drunkenneas and drunken crime the first week of this year, in two of the most famous and highly privilege cities of Scotland, it is about time for the Scottish churches to begin to do something about it.

IN ATCHISON, KANSAS, a man of business, not a temperance fanatic, has advertized that if any person shall sell liquor again to his aged father, "he will prosecute him as long as he can find him." On this the Champion, a whisky paper, remarks that surely no creature without bristles down his spine or hair on the inside of his hands would for 10 or 15 cents thus push an old stumbling man into the grave and regrets that such a notice should be necessary. But if the Champion man is acquainted with 150 saloon keepers, or 150 beer sellers or 150 wholesale wine or liquor merchants, he knows just that many men who for 10 cents would push that old man not only into the grave but into whatever may be beyond.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

PITCAIRN'S ISLAND.

A TEMPERANCE COLONY.

In the year 1787, two days before Christmas, Captain Wm. Bligh, in command of the British ship-of-war Bounty, sailed from England for Tahiti. In those days, governments did not waste 90 days balloting whether Jones or Bones should be Senator, but when not engaged in firing cannon balls at their neighbors they tried to do something to help the trade and foster the industry and encourage agriculture and protect the interests of their people.

Captain Bligh had been one of the very few men who had sailed round this world with Captain Cook, and his mission to Tahiti, one of the Society Islands about 3,700 miles south 26° west from San Francisco, was to procure a large number of plants of the bread-fruit tree, and to carry them to the West India Islands to be planted there, which was a very excellent and praiseworthy enterprise.

He arrived there in October, 1788, and after six months steady attention to business, he sailed for Jamaica with 1,015 plants on board. The Editor of the RESCUE was not on board, but has heard and read a good deal about the voyage of the Bounty. The Captain was undoutedly one of the most obstinately tyranical men that ever commanded a ship. His subsequent conduct conclusively proved that. After having had a delightful time in Tahiti and reveling in the fruits and flowers and dissipation of that beautiful island, the sailors found the life on board a crowded ship, ill provisioned as they were in those days, and under the harsh treatment of a cruel despot, a very unpleasant contrast with their recent life at the Island. So, 24 days out, on April 28, 1789, a portion of the crew mutinied and forced the captain and 18 men and officers into a boat with very little provisions and water, and no chart or instruments of navigation with which to find their way.

It was a most cruel thing to do, for there was no hope of their ever making land; the mutineers doutless supposed they would all perish miserably in a few days. But the captain tho a tyrant had some famous qualities. He put his boat's crew under good discipline, headed West before the S. E. trade winds and husbanded the provisions, caut a fish or a bird now and then, and finally, after much suffering, landed without the loss of a man on Timor Island, in Torres Strait on the north side of Australia, about 3,600 miles from where he was set adrift.

The Captain returned to England, had a man of war sent to hunt for the mutineers, 14 of whom were found at Tahiti. taken to England and 3 of them hanged. An instance of the hardness of Captain B. occurred in the trial. In the boat with him there was a midshipman who was a favorite with the crew. Before the boat was cast off the mutineers told him he might come on board if he would and stay with them and he did so to save his life, seeing no chance of ever reaching shore or being picked up. The captain did his utmost to get the young fellow hanged for this offense as if it was mutiny and it was said that having wealthy and influential relatives only saved his life.

Capt. Bligh was again sent to make a similar attempt and succeeded in establishing the bread-fruit in the West Indies and there are lots of them in Columbia, South America now, descended from the plants he landed in Jamaica. They call them there "pan del Norte," bread of the north.

Our tyrannical Captain was then put in command of a ship of the line to cruise on the coast of France, but he was so vicious with his crew that they mutinied and ran the ship into a French port. In 1806 he was an Admiral and was made Governor of New South Wales; here he was so tyrannical that after a while the colonists rebelled, deposed him and put him in jail, an awful thing to do there and in those days. They reported particulurs to England and an official was sent out with orders to release Admiral Bligh, proclaim him Governor of the colony, fire a grand salute ete. etc., and after he had been Governor one hour to relieve him and send him to England.

In those days rebellion against an English Governor was considered a woeful crime, but as there was nobody punished and Admiral Bligh the tyrant was removed, the conduct of the people in resorting to such extreme measures was justified; and that indicates as well as the other occurrences detailed that he was one of the most obstinate, selfish, arrogant, conceited, tyrannical, silly men of all history. Silly because his tyranny resulted in disaster to himself in these three instances and must have been utterly unbearable.

Still he evidently had great qualities and was a gallant, brave, capable seaman and navigator and a man of high family, well educated and started in the world under the most favorable circumstances to achieve the fame of a gallant virtuous hero. It has long been my opinion that he must have been a drunkard or a hard drinker and that the Jamaica Rum of those days was the tyrant that caused the mutiny of the Bounty, the mutiny on the other ship resulting in her surrender to an enemy by the crew, and the rebellion in Australia resulting in putting the tyrant in jail for about a year. History dont tell us that he ever drank a glass of liquor, nor did it say that any other man of his day fell into disaster thru drink; but the history of Bligh seems to indicate very plainly that he was a tyrant because he got habitually drunk.

The captain of British ships of war, were then absolute despots; they could order a man or any number of their men to be flogged in the most awfully cruel manner for the slightest offense or for no offense. They might be tried for horrible cruelty but would be tried by a court martial of men like themselves, and acquitted; when the captain ordered a punishment there was no appeal on board his own ship; it was sure to come. Rum was everywhere among officers and men and probably there was always somebody drunk on board and every day somebody flogged for offences committed when drunk.

About every sailor got drunk, and about every sailor got flogged; not whipped; but cruelly and brutally lacerated, and if a mans bare back from shoulders to waist could be seen, the records of his having served on a man of war were very voluminously written there; they looked there the first thing when a man on shore was suspected of being a deserter. And it is fair to presume that rum in the sailor committed about every time the offence that brot the lash, and rum in the captain as often passed sentence on rum in the sailor.

A British man-of-war was an awful purgatory in those days and an American was once not much better. Many years ago an old custom-house officer named Fetherbridge, who was watchman on board foreign ships at Dartmouth, England, told me he had served two years on board a man-of-war, and was discharged because of a broken leg. Two years afterward he saw the Captain of the ship on a wharf and altho he knew the Captain had no power over him whatever now, and tho he had not been ill-treated by him, he was inspired by such a terror that he fled and hid, trembling behind a pile of planks, till the Captain had gone from the wharf.

Now this is a long way from a temperance colony. But we have started about the founding of one, under the most unlikely and unfavorable circumstances that could be imagined, and we have got so far posted in the remote and direct causes which led to one of the oldest temperance societies and temperance colonies that now exists in the world.

Captain Bligh died in 1817, at the age of 64, and that is all we have to do with his history. The mutineers navigated the ship back to Tahiti, after touching at another island, and for a while had a nice time there among the natives with whom they had been acquainted during their former visit.

But after a while they began to fear that their old father Johnny Bull's long arms might be feeling round for them unpleasantly. So Fletcher Christian the leader of the mutineers and 8 of his comrades embarked again on the Bounty taking with them 18 Tahitians, 12 of them women and 6 men. The wind is always southeast there and pretty cunningly to avoid pursuit and capture, they made their way to the southeast, right to windward, till they came to Pitcarin's Island which is 1,170 miles E. S. E. or South 67° east from Tahiti or Otaheite as it is sometimes called.

There they landed and colonized and having removed every thing they could from the Bounty they burned her up, lest some passing vessel should discover their whereabouts. That was in 1790 and they were never discovered or heard of till an American whaler in 1808 passing the island was surprised by some dusky skinned boys in a canoe who asked in the best of English to have a rope thrown to them.

It made a great noise in the world when news came of the discovery of the missing mutineers but they were not visited again till a British ship of war called there in 1814. All about the temperance colony will be told next week.

FREEDOM. LIBERTY.

These are two words which have been much misunderstood in all ages. Liberty has been to mankind thru all history a precious watchword which has called up and intensified the noblest and best emotions of which the human heart is capable. And because it was one of the few sweet words that act as a key to men's hearts, the powers of evil have always used it when they sot to deprive nations and people of their freedom and independence.

Thru all history men have marched and countermarched, and endured toil, and cold, and hunger, and privation, and have fot and poured out their blood like water on a thousand battle fields, imagining that they were making glorious sacrifices for the cause of human liberty, when they were really the dupes of cunning knaves and tyrants, and were periling their lives to rivet the claims of enslaving tyranny upon their own and their children's necks.

Two rival kings or chiefs, or usurpers, or other ambitious thieves have disputed each others claims to wrong, and rob and oppress their fello men; and thousands have rallied to the standard of each, shouting for liberty, to have something, or to do something, or to be something, which turned out in the end to mean their own enslavement.

The ancient Greeks and Romans fot much in the name of liberty and their supremacy went down in the drunkenness and immorality of the criminal license which they mistook for liberty and worshiped in its name.

We hear a good deal lately of liberty, and it is invariably the cry of somebody who wants liberty to do wrong. The people who want only liberty to do right, are not clamoring for their rights; the others are. The liberty of the American citizen to do right is untrammeled and unlimited by law, and is in every respect as free as air, except where the claimant of liberty to do wrong, oppresses and injures, and tyranizes over the well-doer.

Fools often prate of liberty who would allow no one else to have any liberty at all. If there was entire liberty to do wrong and injure our neighbor, there would be no liberty, no law, no peace at all. John could do as he pleased to Tom, and Tom could retaliate as he pleased, and there would be constant rapine, and theft, and violence, and murder, until a law of true liberty was established by some means.

It will be readily understood that the fullest liberty to do right, can interfere with no ones perfect happiness; can wrong or discomfort no one. And the only reasonable protection for our liberty, is to restrict every one's liberty to do that which works wrong, and injury, and injustice to his neighbor, and destroy his neighbors liberty to do right and to be happy and live in peace.

The most common cry of the rumseller when we talk of stopping his thief den is, "my liberty," and the poor degraded lost victims of rum, all of whose liberties he has stolen, except the liberty to be his slaves and to wear rags and eat miserable food and smell bad and look like bewitched scarecrows and to beat their wives and starve their children—these poor wobegone slaves gabble too, about their liberties to be slaves and to sin and suffer and starve and die.

A gang of criminals and law-breakers and perjurers are now banded together under the name of the Leag of Freedom. They are contending for liberty to keep open their vile doggeries of shame and sin on Sunday, when good people rest and go to church and thank God for the blessings of the week and are clean and orderly and kindly in their homes and are FREE. The bobtail liberty brigade of outlaws want liberty, freedom to break up the happy home on Sunday; liberty to coax the father of the family into the grogshop on Sunday; liberty to poison him on Sunday; liberty to steal his money on Sunday, which means the food and clothing and bedding of his wife and children; liberty to craze him on Sunday and make of him a thief or a murderer or a madman and send him to the jail or madhouse or the morgue or the gallows; liberty to turn his children ragged and penniless into the street on Sunday; liberty to blast and blight with the loathing curse of beggary and ruin all our business interests—to destroy every enterprise and to make the white working man unfit to cope or compete with the sober chinaman; liberty to keep our jails and hospitals and police courts full and to empty our schools and homes and libraries and churches; liberty to train the whole community to be beggars and thieves and loafer slaves of the grogshop.

It is too bad to have to mention the name of anything so infamous and malicious and wicked as this outlaw ruffian leag, which hates and curses innocence and virtue; hates and blasphemes God and womanhood and childhood and would for a few dimes sell if it could the whole human race to endless torment. The only true liberty is to be found in living in accord with what the Savior told us was the two great commandments comprising the whole law, viz, "to love God with all thy heart and soul and mind and to love thy neighbor as thyself." Any one who considers those two commands will readily see that if all men obeyed them strictly, we should all enjoy the most absolute freedom from sorrow and suffering and poverty and from all evil. No one can deny that. If they could prove it false, the Christian religion could be proved deficient. Till they do it is beyond assault.

THE SINS OF THE FATHERS.

A London physician of eminence gives it as his opinion that "in no instance is the sin of the father more strikingly visited upon his children than in the matter of tobacco smoking. The enervation, the hypochondriasis, the hysteria, the insanity, the dwarfish deformities, the consumption, the suffering lives and early deaths of the children of inveterate smokers, bear ample testimony to the feebleness and unsoundess of constitutions transmitted by those addicted to this pernicious habit. * * * By this a man injures his own health and that of his children. Ought not this consideration to restrain every wise and good man from contracting or continuing such a senseless and destructive habit of self-indulgence?" Another eminent London physician says: "I have constantly observed that the children of habitual smokers are, with very few exceptions, imperfectly developed in form and size, very ill or plainlooking, and delicate in constitution."—Chuchr and Home.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

TOBACCO.—It is probable that the dear friends of the Juvenile Department may think their Supt. a woman with only one purpose in view, namely, a continual fight against tobacco. But if this is true, the reason for it, is, that tobacco is continually opposing the advancement of the Band of Hope, and, as has been before stated in these columns, is the greatest enemy with which we have to contend. So we must keep up the fight till our opponent is compelled to take to by ways and hedges, and will no more puff his unclean breath in our faces, whenever we walk abroad.

"Down with the enemy! down with the enemy!
Give him no quarter, the worst of foes!"

WHY THEY SMOKE.—In a neat little collection of dialogues called "Rescue the Drunkard" is one for ten boys, entitled "Why They Smoked." Send and get it, boys, it costs but 15 cents; (see ad. of National Temperance House in RESCUE.) And in the meantime let me tell you why they smoked. John smoked for the toothache. Will for dyspepsia. (Tobacco is good for dyspepsia, physicians tell us that it often causes it, and in nearly every case aggravates it, which makes it rather bad for the dyspeptic patient.) Jim smoked for biliousness. Sam for headache; Tom, because he used to have the earache and feared he might have it again; Bob, to keep off the measles, and Dick—well, Dick hardly knew, but at last remembered, he smoked for corns! In a recent lecture delivered here, a companion to Dick was reported, in a man who smoked for an "ingrowing nail, and who had derived much benefit from the remedy." So it is, boys! Men smoke for everything imaginable. A man told me that a Dr. recommended smoking for cramps, some thirty years before, and he had smoked ever since (and still had cramps)! The proposition is absurd!

First; who ever heard of a man taking one medicine several times daily for over thirty years? and second, the fact that the disease still remained after thirty years treatment (?) showed that the remedy had utterly failed to perform its mission. Any medicine taken daily, for a long time, ceases to be a medicine, as the system accommodates itself to the daily dose, and if it was a specific for the complaint when first tried, long use would wear out its beneficial properties.

The man who smokes for dyspepsia, because, ten years ago some one told him smoking would help him, uses the prescription as an excuse to satisfy his conscience and, perhaps, to conciliate his wife; but uses the tobacco because he loves it, and is more or less its slave; and would use it all the same if he knew it caused dyspepsia, which without doubt it often does.

CAN'T QUIT:—I'd like to stop using tobacco, but I can't, the habit is too strong for me." Men, and even beardless boys, often make the above assertion, and there was a time, when my heart was full of pity for these poor enslaved ones, but within the past few months so many men of all ages, temperaments and conditions have broken the chains of habit, that it is now my belief that any man can quit, if he will only give his own consent! The reason that some men try and fail is because they stop, but comfort themselves with the reflection, that if self denial proves too disagreable, they can begin again. So when you hear a man say "I can't quit," know that he realy means "I don't want to quit and I am not going to try." "What man has done man may do." M. E. R.

HEARTH AND HOME.

Hearth and Home! Twin words of beauty,
Sweetest music to the ear,
Gently linking love to duty,
Trusting heart with mutual care.
Brightly in the Hearth-light glowing,
Beam the radiant faces there,
Some with childhood's fair locks flowing,
Some with snow-threads in their hair—

CHORUS:—All untiring, good desiring,
Peace and love with duty meet.
Truth admiring, Heaven aspiring
Virtue crowns our lives complete.

Hearth and Home! Sweet love-notes walking
All the spirit birds of song.
With a heaven of sunlight breaking
Over hills of doubt and wrong.
Here unfold the buds of being,
Fragrant in immortal bloom,
Shedding rich, celestial splendor
'Round the hearts of Hearth and Home!

CHORUS:—All untiring, etc., etc.

Hearth and Home! O fold their meaning
Closer to the life and heart,
Do great deeds no longer DREAM them,
SEE THYSELF OF GOD A PART!
Help uplift a fallen brother,
Bind his wounds and hide the stain,
With his soul, ye shall recover
Bloom of life and joy again.

CHORUS:—All untiring, etc., etc.

DER VISKEY BUSINESS.

CONVINCING REASONS WHY IT SHOULD BE MAINTAINED. HANS SAUERMILCH'S OPINION ON "DER PENLFITS UV TRINKING.

MR. SHENTLEMENS: Py reason of a letter in der newspaper; I haf peen requested to ockspress meinself on der visky question.

As I am der boss poss mit a beer saloon, it was yust right dot I stand oop for dot peezness. Uv a man was got a saloon mit himself, I guess he vas know some things about drinks, ain't it?

I am avare dot lots uv fellers dot vants to save monish vas dryin' to runs down der peezness; der vas Shon B. Go-off, und Suse Anthony, und Parnum's circus, und plenty of unner vellers, but ven I told you some dings, I guess you vould say, "Pully for Sauermilch, his het vas level."

Der ort to pe a rum shop on every corner, in every town, and den peezness vould be goot. Der visky peezness helps enny town. No matter how dull peezness vas, peeples will spend der monish fur trinks. Dis vas broved efry tay. All over Nye York you can find vorking mans dot vos gomplaining apout ter pay, und bromisin' dot dey vould go on some strikes, pecause dey mens vill spend feefty cents efry tay fur visky und bier; dot proves dot der liquor peezness vas helpin' drade, ain't it?

Und dot vas not der only vay; der vas menny unners. Uv it vas not fer trinking, menny public buildings vould not peen built; dese brisons, und shails, und poor poor houses, und inebriate asylums, und such dings; und ef dese houses vas not puilt, vy uv course der meganics vould hafe nodtings to do, ain't it.

Uv you dont got some rum shops in der town, you vont need no shail, und uv course you dont vant no sheriff, und vot vould der boliticians done?

Uv der vas no rum der vould peen no murders, no fites, no stabs, no licking your vife, no nodting fur der newspapers, und vot vould der editors done? Und vot vould der lawyers done?

Ah! mein freunds, pefore you run down der rum, you yust tink uv all dose dings. How menny beeples vould pen out uv work, mitout liquor? Vy ve vould need no bolices, no charity gommissions, no supehauses, no gommunists, no noddings.

Uv you hat no visky-schops, vare vould your poys spend der efenings? Vy! dey vould haf to stay at home, and it vould kill menny uv them to be cast into der same society as der mudders und seesters. Der mudders could not dell dem der same sholly stories vot dey hear mit der saloon; dot vas imbossible. Pesides, der saloon vas uv yuse to der vamiley. Uv you hat a son, und you dont vant him setting around der hause all der efening, you can yust send him to der saloon, und he vould not vorry you some more dot night. In all dese uays a saloon helps a town ferry mooch, ain't it?

Und it helps you socially. It penefits your vamily. It helps your sons to get ockquainted mit beeple dot dey vould not oddervise know mitout der saloon.

Der was nadtings like bier fur sociableness—except visky. Visky vas a little ahed.

Der vos a time ven two freunds vould meet und ockschange der gomplements uv der tay, und den part. But der saloon has done avay mit dot cold vay of acting. Now ven two or dree freunds meet, und schake hands mit demselves, von uv dem vill say: "Let's have some dings?" und dey vill valk into der saloon (der is always von handy) und von veller says, "Vot vill you dake?" Und der unner veller says, "I vill take der same"; und den dey yust douch dose glasses togedder, und say, "Here she goes," und she does go. Den der unner veller vill say, "Now you must dake somedings mit me," und dey go droo der same berformances mit demselves vonce more. Dot was sociapility. Un you dont got some saloons how you vas gone to done dot, eh? Ven you ask a man to dook somedings, you dont vant to dread him to a coat, or a pair of schush, or a loaf uv pread, or no such voolishness; do you? Vhiskey onables a man to pury his dhoughts. He vill forget all about his hard vork somedimes fur more as a veek.

It gifs a man courage in running his haus. Vot vould a man done midout he trinks? I vas so meek as Moses ven I was sober, but ven I vas full mit bier, you yus pet your poots der schildren und der olt voman vas got to shump arount lifely. Mein vife dont dalk pack to me den; uv she vould, I lick her. I let her know I vas so good a man as vot she vas, or some unner vons too.

Visky deaches a man not to pe broud mit himself, Ven a man vas sober he vants glean glose, und a goot ped, und blenty uv unner dings. But ven he vas drunk, he vas not no stoock oop. He dont gare vot kind of glose he vares, und ven it cooms to schleeping, he vould just so soon schleep in der gutter as some unner places, und he dinks der curbstone vas a pillar, dont it?

Efry town likes to haf rich men, und dere vas no peezness in vich a man gould got so rich so soon as in der saloon peezness. Der vas a ferry pig profit in all kinds of trinks. Yust look at some boor yung vellers vot vas tending bar. He starts mit nodtings. und in a few yahrs he vas got schirts mit frills, und a diamond pin, und a gold vatch mit a chain dot veighs den pounds, und monish enuff to start a saloon uv his own.

Look at me. I started a bier saloon after I failed to get rich in der puggy peezness, und now I got no droubles, und not vork, only to tap a new kegs ven der unner von vas dry, und rake in der stamps.

I am a freund do der vorking man pecause dey are a freund to me, und help to support me. Ven der vorking mens vas mat mit ter posses, dey meet at mein saloon, und trink bier, und make speeches, und kurs ter panks, und der rich beeples, und tings like dot. I say so, doo.

Somedimes I vas mat. It vas ven vemmens und children coom here to peg monish to puy pread, und ven I say "No," den dey say der husbands und vaters spend all der monish here. Vot vas dot der peezness? All vimmen tink uv, vas spending monish on dress, und der olt man must vork! vork!! vork!!! und haf no enshoyment.

I stick me to mine saloon. I haf a license, und der government vas packing me; und Murphy, nor der Vimmen's Crusade, nor enny unner man can make me stop. Dots der kind of vellers vot I vas. —Rechabite.

"THE BREWERY and beer dive and grog shop system are not American institutions, not the produet of our liberties, not the offspring of our schools, churches and civilization, but a rotten mushroom from the despotic dunghills of Europe." Says John B. Finch.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

IGNORANCE IN SPOTS.

The Rescue has often alluded to the fact that the men of business and letters and learning who are well read and intelligent upon other subjects are generally very grossly ignorant upon the nature and effects of wine, beer and alcoholic drinks and upon every thing relating to them, beyond the matter of their being in general use. In referring to the letter of "Common Sense" in the Pacific Methodist recently, this ignorance was ascribed to the writer of that article, and it was hastily unobserved that as read, the criticism seemed to make a charge of general ignorance against him, which was by no means intended.

There is only one way for any of these classes or for any one else to learn of these things, viz: to read the books and papers of the temperance press. The information to make them intelligent on this subject is found nowhere else, in the secular or religious press, or in secular or religious text books or other books. So that no matter how learned one may be in other respects, he may be darkly, densely ignorant on this point and may not suspect it.

Hear the evidence of the great Dr. B. W. Richardson, a great M. D., a great scientist, a great chemist, a laborious student, a drinker of alcoholic liquors and a prescriber of them in his medical practice, he made an extended series of experiments on nitrite of amyl, an anesthetic; the results he laid before the Medical Association of England, a society 20,000 strong. They were delighted with the manifest ability of this hero of science, and they entreated him to subject the various alcohols to a similar inquisition, which he set about. Please remember that neither the Medical Society nor Dr. Richardson had the slightest reference to the temperance question or interest in it; they wanted to learn, what so many people think they know, something positive about the nature of alcohol and its effects on the human system; never once thinking of the temperance issue or caring for it at all.

The Doctor commenced his experiments and researches; in everything else of his scientific attainments he occupied the highest round of the ladder of perfection which the patient, plodding climber can reach; no one would dream of him being ignorant; one of the last men in the world to be so; but he says he had not gone far when

"I WAS ASTOUNDED AT MY IGNORANCE."

And he goes on to say that he had in ignorance learned from tradition and custom to use himself and give his patients a thing most positively injurious to them. He found alcohol in itself, in whisky, wine, beer, cider, etc., to be a lie in everything which had been claimed for it, except that it was a poison. Not a thot yet of the temperance question; but he determined in his own mind to drink no more himself except at banquets and dinner parties, for fear of injury to himself. His researches patiently conducted over a term of three years, were published and praised and at last he became an earnest, constant, faithful advocate of temperance. And the Medical Temperance Society of England was formed; it was 80 strong, 120, 150, 220 and last accounts there were 300 of the best and most conscientious doctors of England converted to temperance in their own lives and in their practice.

Cardinal Manning, too, is no ignoramus; no fool, no common man of learning; he has put on record more than once words to this effect, if not exactly these, "I confess that up to the year 1867 I was entirely blinded as to the evils of intemperance until I read the report of a parlimentary commission, etc." Ever since he has been a radical temperance man; his eyes were opened.

Now it is not in the least disrepectful nor intended to be so, to hazard an opinion that not one in one hundred of the bishops, ministers, judges, editors, teachers, doctors of this country can properly describe what fermented wine or beer or other alcoholic liquors are or tell their effects, unless they happen to be of those who have made a special study of the subject; and very few of them desire to do so, because they think it is idle to waste time over it when they know perfectly that too much drink is harmful and there is no more to know.

Most men suppose that wine is the juice of the grape and that barley is the essence or substance of barley and that they both contain strength and nourishment—whereas the only nourishment at all appreciable is in the pure water in the mixture, and in the case of the wine, that is by no means the fruit of the vine; it is only the water which the vine absorbed from the earth; and the nourishment and substance and essence of the grape has all been rotted and destroyed; nothing in the wine but water, mixed with the poison alcohol formed from the decayed, decomposed sugar of the grape and a faint smell of grape skins or grape juice which fermentation was not quite able to destroy.

If all good, honest, intelligent men knew just what these things are they would all unite to drive them out of the world. But as long as statesmen and preachers and christians and editors who mean to be good citizens believe that alcohol or wine or beer was not always under the special ban and curse of God, but was a creation of his and good for medicine or for anything, and as long as Christians largely believe that the cup of devils was ever countenanced by the Savior, all efforts to remove the greatest curse of the ages will be more or less futile. The lesson of the death of President Garfield from the poison of whisky and rotten food administered by his medical attendants in spite of the repeated protests and warnings of more intelligent physicians goes for nothing, because men will not learn the truth of this great ancient fraud alcohol.

THE I. O. G. T. MUTUAL AID.

A Lodge Deputy was asked recently if he had secured any names for the Mutual Aid, he answered, "No, he would be ashamed to ask any one to go into an institution of that kind as it appears now; the Grand Lodge takes no interest in it, is perfectly quiet about it, dont believe they want it to succeed; if they did, it would be pushed ahead, kept before the lodges, advertized in the Rescue and commended to the members. In the extra issue of Feb. 16 nothing was said about it, and they advertize others while they do not this; if they wanted it to succeed they could very soon run up the membership to th required number, etc."

There is no one in California who is more desirous to see this enterprise, so necessary to our Order, become a success than the editor of the Rescue; and it is the fault of no other that it has not been advertized recently. It was very fully done and its claims frequently urged for a long time, when a crowd-out took place and the ad. was temporarily displaced and was intended to be curtailed and replaced next week and next, and has been forgotten or deferred because an idle or leisure moment never comes here.

The officers of the G. L. would probably like to do more for the Mutual Aid and work at various other services which they have to leave out, because there are only 24 hours in a solar day and some of them unluckily have to be wasted in sleep. They seem to have done about all they could. Every Lodge deputy has been furnished with the documents necessary to enable him to push and float the institution in his lodge, and he has been repeatedly urged most earnestly by circular and in the Rescue and in the Grand Lodge to use his efforts to do so.

The Rescue has repeatedly pointed out the fact that it is a perfectly safe institution; that it has not a single danger or objection, unless Lodge Deputies and members should continue to oppose or neglect it and finally wear it out with discouragements. It must if started be run at about half the assessment expense that is paid in societies that accept drinkers, and as there are no charter fees, rents, lodge dues or other expenses, it is puzzling to conceive one single objection to urge against its being run up to 2,000 members next month. No objection that has a straw of force, has ever been offered against it.

If one of the few that have joined it should die this year the investment is a good one; no danger of loss. If 1,000 should join it this month, five or six of them would probably die in the course of a year and their benefit would be $1,000 and the survivors would be assessed about an average of $5 or $6 each in place or $12 to $15 in other societies, besides dues and other expenses amounting to perhaps as much more.

If only 50 to 200 or so should join next year and one of them should chance to die, his friends would get a large return for his outlay but they would regret that he had not embarked in an older society; but every one of the survivors would consider himself fortunate in having come into a society with so few calls on his purse.

If those parties who are going to die before the classes are full could know it, it would be more fortunate for them to go and pay more in another society and draw a larger benefit. But as 993 or 994 of the 1000 will live another year it is to be hoped the classes will be full and that 993 and all who join after will have done the most fortunate thing possible in the line of life assurance.

The Lodge Deputies and members every one of them from the Oregon to the Arizona line may rest perfectly sure that the Grand Lodge officers and all who have an earnest unbiased desire for the welfare of the Order here, and who understand this Mutual Aid system of ours, are intensly anxious for the entire, speedy, instant success of it, and the only thing that delays it or stands in the way, is the lack of about half a dozen spirited, loyal Lodge Deputies who understand this thing and believe in it, and who will start the ball, report their success in the Rescue and set the whole jurisdiction to fill the divisions right up as we ot to do and as there is no possible reason why we should not do, if we desire the best success of our Order.

HOME PROTECTION MEETING.

At Dashaway Hall on Saturday evening there was a large audience altho it was unpleasantly wet and threatening weather.

The Chairman Dr. McDonald said the only cases under the Sunday law that had been before the courts were two of Schetzels, who is a tool of the Leag of Fiendom.

The Rev. Dr. Crary editor of the C. C. Advocate said the leag was as old as Satan and began its work in 1794 in this country when whisky rebelled against the government and was put down. No whisky rebellion had ever triumphed and never would over the government; the whole whisky business had been in a conspiracy a few years ago to swindle the government; they had bribed and corrupted the revenue officers, covered the land with perjury, falshood and theft and had been put down. The Sunday law was passed by a Democratic legislature and when its repeal was demanded two years after by a leag of Fiendom it was refused by a Democratic legislature. And no legislature that can be elected in this State will repeal this law. He said the leag had done more to stir up popular sentiment in favor of law than all the churches, and temperance societies combined. It was a mistake to suppose that the Germans were united against the Sunday law. He knew many Germans and more Scandinavians who are in favor of it."

It was a little singular that the press reports all agreed in suppressing any mention of Col. Babcock who followed in a forcible and pertinent address. Perhaps there were two reasons for this, one, he gave a chapter of statistics which showed the drunken and criminal arrests in San Francisco and the murders and attempts to murder were nearly two to one for those in St Louis in proportion to population and vastly greater than in Chicago and New York and that our number of grogshops bears just about the same proportion to theirs that the crimes and miseries they produce do.

Another reason perhaps was Col. Babcock stated that when the Schetzel arrests were made, the press of this city announced that Schetzel was a Good Templar, and did this to curry favor with the leag, knowing that the Good Templars had nothing to do with him or his work. Perhaps this was not quite correct as to all the press, but the Chronicle did so certainly. And probably none of them corrected the report.

Col Babcock made an appeal to the people to sustain the Home Protection Association in their efforts to enforce and retain the Sunday Law, and promised that if possible branch associations should be formed all over the state. His speech was warmly applauded and was an effective argument.

Col. Long was called and responded reluctantly, owing to the lateness of the hour. The Chronicle says he made a short but forcible and eloquent speech in favor of the maintenance of the law. He said that he was in the vestibule of hell a few nights ago, meaning thereby the Barbary coast, and in one of the lowest dens there he found emblazoned on a mirror which nightly reflects the bloated visages of degraded humanity this sentiment: "No Sunday law here." If the President of the United States could have spent ten minutes with him on that exhibition and seen what he saw, and smelt what he smelt, the speaker said he believed the autograph of Chester A. Arthur would be gracing the Chinese bill.

At the conclusion of the meeting many recruits came forward to sign the pledge and enroll as members of the Association."

A PROPOSITION POLITICAL.

Dr. Samuel McLean, of Modesto, writes to say, that as it will be a serious set back to our cause to have the Sunday law repealed, we must use the most strenuous efforts to see that it is not. He thinks that the third party movement at this juncture, when we have vital work to do would result in a failure. He proposes to issue the subjoined announcement as a heading for a subscribers list, printing say one hundred for each county. For Stanislaus send them to the W. C. T. of Modesto, request him to number them 1 to 100, and furnish each lodge in the county with consecutive numbers and have them returned to him at stated periods, and a copy of the names signed, published by the RESCUE or some journal. When the names are numerous enough, print them on a separate sheet and send to W. C. T. as many copies as he desires. The type once set up could remain and new names be added as they are secured, and at the bottom give a summary of what is going on in other counties in figures.

He thinks every lady member of our Order would canvass for subscribers and would feel that she had an opportunity to render useful aid to the cause. On that plan he thinks we could secure that county and district, and thinks that is our only chance, and if this plan is adopted in other counties, we can save the Sunday law, whereas if only a temperance ticket separate was put up, we should get beaten, and the Sunday law repealed.

The Doctor offers also to back his theory with a liberal donation as a starter to pay the printers bill, and whether there may or not be a better plan to suggest than his, it is very certain that the old plan pursued every time in the past by the advocates of temperance in this State so many times, the plan of doing nothing till long after it is of no use to do anything is the most unsafe way we could possibly adopt.

Some plan of registration of our strength is absolutely necessary, can any one suggest a simpler or better plan?

The following is the form proposed and the earnest consideration of all good citizens is requested to be given to this most important matter.

WHEREAS the Government of the United States and of each of the states of the Union has by law established and set apart Sunday as a National holiday, a day of rest, and

WHEREAS the Legislature of the State of California has passed an Act known as the "Sunday Law," defining what Business Houses or places of Business shall be kept closed on that day. Now therefore we, the undersigned citizens and voters of Stanislaus Co. believing that the aforesaid Sunday Law—giving to all a day of rest—should not be repealed, have solemnly determined that we will disregard all party lines in voting for State Senators and assemblymen if necessary to the end that our votes shall only be cast for such candidates as are opposed to the repeal of the "Sunday Law." Should neither party nominate candidates who are in accord with this resolution, we will then vote for independent candidates who are opposed to the repealing of the Sunday Law.

Name. Occupation.

PERJURY.

A terrible chapter is unfolded of late which shows more than anything else, the appalling extent to which the dramshop degrades and utterly dehumanizes its frequenters. How those who are not common drunkards, but callers and customers and patrons of the bar have become so demoralized, that if one of them gets on a jury where a rumseller is on trial we are pretty sure to find that open perjury has no terror for him. And of course his scruples would be no greater in any other case. When in 1872 they were trying to enforce the license law in Boston, the rum organs in N. Y. and Pa. made open boast that the customers of the bar-rooms would swear falsely every time to screen the thief dens, and they added also that the officers of police could be depended on to say or swear every time of a conviction that it was a first offence when every body knew it was the third or sixth. All who are familiar with the history of trials for violation of prohibitory laws, will have observed that in almost every instance, perhaps 99 times in 100, where men have been called to give evidence that they bot and drank liquor at a bar or store or cellar, they have unhesitatingly committed the boldest perjury, so that scarcely any one would now try on the farce of going to prove the sale of liquor by 20 witnesses tho they were all seen drinking together. The saloon keeper depends on every one of his slaves to thro God and country and Sunday and home overboard every time after he has operated on him a little while.

THE GREENBACKER,

Under its new editorial staff, comes out very strongly against the iniquity of whisky and various other iniquities, among others that of Congress paying $82,000 to the doctors of President Garfield for preventing his recovery by their maltreatment; the chief getting $25,000 for his services in that line. The Greenback Party Convention, wisely put strong prohibition and equal suffrage planks in their platform, and whatever may be their views as to currency and money, allowing them if you please to be radically wrong there, the success of their party, if it would bring prohibition, should be infinitely rather desired than that of any party which either ignores or opposes that all important issue—that of the people versus their principal and most heartless and cruel plunderers, and the most wanton enemies of the public welfare. Mr. R. T. Buell of Los Alamos, the proprietor, whether his theories are right or wrong, deserves the respect of his fellow men for the patriotic, humane and self-sacrificing spirit which has induced him to expend large sums of money in an enterprise, the successful result of which he believes would benefit his country, not himself more than his neighbor. If Mr. Buell has opponents or enemies, they should give him a big broad credit mark every time for that.

THE PLANETS IN APRIL.

Venus is now the bright evening star; on the 19th will appear very close to Saturn both setting about an hour after sunset, Saturn first by a few minutes. On the 24 Venus and Neptune will meet and pass too but whether they will salute or not is not on the bills. Neptune is invisible to the unassisted eye. His Christmas only comes once in 165 of our years and it is a good while there between birthday presents. The Astronomers have so far failed to discover how many of their years the children spend at school and if a courtship ever extends over a period of 15 of their summers.

Jupiter is still large and bright and sets about twenty minutes past 9 on the 15th. Mars is on the Meridian at 6 in the evening and being far north does not set till near 1½ A. M. On the 19th the moon then two days old will be close to Jupiter. What time the various candidates for Governor of Cal. will rise and set (Mr. Boruck excepted) is not stated in the almanac.

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

NEW DIETETIC AND MEDICATED WINES.

BY NORMAN KERR, M. D., F. L. S.

[Read at the quarterly meeting of the British Medical Temperance Association, held Feb. 14, 1882.]

The ripe fruit of the vine possesses cooling, refrigerant, blood-depurant properties. The unfermented juice of the grape is rich in sugar, contains other nutritive constituents, and acts as a gentle diuretic and aperient. So excellent a therapeutic agent is the ripe grape that, in Switzerland and other continental regions, the grape cure (cure de raisins of France) has achieved an acknowledged reputation. From early times to the days of Cullen and Pereira, the virtues of the grape have been highly extolled by the medical faculty.

In fermented intoxicating wines, the most valuable properties of the grape are either absent altogether, or present in greatly diminished quantity, alcohol and other new products being formed at the expense of the saccharine, albuminous, and other useful components of the unfermented juice.

Alcohol is an irritant narcotic poison, and is contra-indicated in many inflamatory conditions where the cooling, refreshing, purifying, and nutritious qualities of the unfermented grape-juice are markedly benificial. Hence we find that, in addition to the fresh grapes, dried grapes or raisins, and the unfermented juice have been a favourite prescription in ancient as well as in modern times. Dodoens ("Herbal," p. 651; Lond., 1578) speaks of the "dryed raysens" as good for "cough and all diseases of the lungs, kidneys, and bladder." Louis Cornaro had his strength renewed at the begining of every vintage by new wine. Cæsar Frederich, in the 16th century (Kerr's Collec. vii: 142; Hakluyt II. 339-375) relates how a friend of his was ordered, in Cochin, to drink new unintoxicating wine night and morning. Dr. Russell, in his "Natural History of Aleppo," says that the juice of ripe grapes inspissated was largely used in the treatment of febrile and inflamatory diseases.

For the last twenty one years I have been in the habit of prescribing the unfermented wine manufactured by Mr. Frank Wright at Kensington. This which is a natural red unintoxicating wine prepared from grapes imported from the Continent, I have found of considerable value—taken either alone, with iced water, or with Apollinaris or other aerated water—in fever and in phthisis (consumption) with hemoptysis (blood spitting). In hemorrages (losses of blood) generally, when alcohol is contra-indicated, this wine has been especially useful. In one severe case of smallpox, where recovery was despaired of, the patient, a woman, aged 23, could swallow nothing for nearly eight days but a half-and-half of this unfermented wine and water.

But the taste of invalids, as of the healthy, is capricious, and I have long endeavored to persuade some enterprising Englishman to supply a variety of unintoxicating wines as articles of medicine and of diet. At length, Mr. Wright has, at my suggestion, imported from abroad several unintoxicating wines, which he now offers, along with the wine he has himself been manufacturing for the past quarter of a century. These newly offered wines are (1) Riessling, (2) Muscat, (3) Lachrymæ Christi, (4) Alto Douro, (5) Bordeaux, (6) Madeira, and (7) Congress.

[Here the Dr. describes the various kinds of pure wine from Germany, France, Spain, Italy and Madeira.]

These wines have considerable dietetic and hygienic merit. While valuable medicinal remedies, they are wholesome and acceptable social beverages, when taken moderately by those with whom they agree. With eight varieties of genuine, pure, unintoxicating wines, there should be little difficulty in suiting almost any palate. It seems to me a favorable omen for the future sobriety of our country that the wine cellar can now be stocked with a varied assortment of good sound unintoxicating wines.

UNFERMENTED PORT WITH BARK.—For the special benefit of invalids Mr. Wright has prepared a medicated wine which will, I think, meet with much favor. All the active properties of the best Calisaya bark are imparted to his Alto Douro wine, the dose being half a wineglassful to a wineglassful. This is an elegant, agreeable, and useful tonic. It may appropiately be called "Invalid Unfermented Port." —The Alliance News.

MAJOR WHITTLE ENDORSED.

"The Good Templars are desirous of shouldering muskets for the abatement of the League, and keeping step with the bloodthirsty preachers. They will shed no blood in the cause; the whole 20,000 haven't a thimbleful of blood among them. Their skins are so full of cold water that their back teeth are afloat.

As illustrating the crankiness of clerical logic, take almost any of last Sunday's sermons on the Sunday law. There is not one of these fellows who has the faintest notion of what is an argument and what is not; not one whose conclusions are disciples of his premises, or whose assertions have a speaking acquaintance with the facts that he calls to their support. No such melancholy disclosure of clerical mental incompetence has ever before been made in this town. The necessity of treating any utterance of this crowd with respect is one from which every man of sense is henceforth and forever freed.

A noble exception should be noted: the Rev. "Major" Whittle, an unpleasant revivalist, has read his co-pulpiteers a profitable lesson. He reminds them that they are ministers of the gospel, not of the law, the enforcement of which is none of their business; that their mixing up in this thing as public prosecutors cannot be otherwise than disastrous to the cause of religion and morals; that a good example is better than warlike words. This is the only instance that we recall of a jump-up-and-come-down-hard revivaler talking a superior quality of frosty sense on any topic whatever. Shake, Major."—Wasp.

The RESCUE was going to criticize the bad taste of the Examiner in decending to the immorality of quoting some of the above paragraphs from such a filthy source as the Wasp, but it has fallen into the same snare for the purpose of doing justice to Major Whittle and giving him the benefit of the endorsement of the organ of the Leag of Fiendom and of the general nastiness of the city. One of the doctrines of the Wasp is that the citizen is perfectly justified and has a perfect right to violate the law as often as he pays the fine of its violation.

THE SUNDAY LAW TYRANNY.

A forcible writer on this subject in the San Francisco Hebrew calls attention to the well-attested fact that one wrong often leads to and seems to necessitate the commission of another, and says: "What the sequence of this gross violation of the religious rights of a large class of citizens will prove, remains for the future to disclose. It is perhaps the first link in the chain of ecclesiastical tyranny forging for this country, and calls for the earnest and untiring opposition of all true lovers of religious liberty." —Chronicle.

The writer above must have an exalted opinion of the intelligence of the respectable people of this country, when it demands that the religious rights and privileges of fifty millions of people must be violently wrested from them to accommodate a few thousand people who have no interest in the country as a home or further than to make all the money they can out of it. Fifty millions must give up their Sunday because a few Jews dont want to stop their trade on that or any other day of the week, and therefore have a right to forge a chain of ecclesiastical tyranny that shall bind the fifty millions! ! ! Cheek!

It is a great mistake of the Hebrew to assist in a movement which would operate here in time as it is doing where it has been successful; a mistake to help bring on a demoralization of drunkenness, Sabbath desecration and godlessness which develops very naturally into stoning and mobbing and robbing the sober Jews that have any money or property. That is what the Leag of Fiendom is doing in Europe where its infidel and devilish doctrines prevail.

We dont want a social system that will make this an unsafe country for either Hebrews or Americans; and it will be made manifest that we can get along, if necessary, much better without the Hebrews and Germans that will not obey American law, than we can without the American sacred Sabbath, that has been until recently and will be again the greatest glory and honor of the country; the best safeguard of the people's liberties and privileges and of all other things the surest guarantee of the people's welfare, prosperity and progress, and of the nation's greatness and perpetuity.

IT SEEMS that Francis Murphy was at one time about as low and lawless and vicious a ruffian as any of our Fiends of the Leag are to-day. He was keeper of a groggery where good men and boys were made thieves and criminals and Murphy was a criminal himself. That is what rum and rumselling did for Francis Murphy. Now he is preaching the gosple of temperance in Great Britain, and has been for years an earnest, active worker, trying his utmost to reclaim wicked men from their evil ways, to make good men better, and to save young people and innocent people from ever getting into the snare of the destroyer and being tempted into the long, dismal procession of the despair and death. That is what temperance did for Francis Murphy. Jerry McAuley was called the wickedest man in New York; he kept about the vilest den of sin in that city. That was what whisky did for him. Now he is an earnest devoted missionary of good will and repentance and peace to the sin sick and drunken and suffering. That is what temperance has done for Jerry. And that is what temperance and the Sunday law want to do with every one of the wretched enslaved members of the Leag of Fiendom—to stop their mad career as criminals, as debauchers and poisoners and murderers of their own and other peoples families and themselves. The severest sentence that any temperance or genuine Sunday Law advocate would pass upon them would be, that they should be miraculously changed into honest, respectable, worthy and prosperous citizens. Could the curse of rum be staid, there would doubtless turn up a good many more reformed Murphys and McAuleys.

WHILE so much is being said about revenue and reduction of the national debt, etc., it may be interesting to give the figures of the revenue of last year, ending June 30, 1881.

Whisky and spirits	$ 67,153,974

The whisky fiends, after all their swindling of the government and the people, now want to get about half their tax removed, and to have the remainder of their blood money used in the public schools; but for once they will be disappointed; it will be about the first rebuff they ever met in congress.

THE Sacramento Bee treats as a slander the statistical fact that Ireland spends about ten million dollars a year more for whisky and beer than the whole rental of the island; but it is true still, as is also the fact that England and Scotland use more liquor per head than Ireland. If the abolition of rents would make Ireland prosperous, the entire abolition of alcoholic liquor and the continuance of the rents would make her much more prosperous. But as it is with England, Germany, Ireland, so it is with every State or territory of the U. S. where liquor is sold, the less rent and the more crops and the higher wages and the richest mines lead to the most drunkenness, crime and poverty; altho many individuals that are sober may prosper more.

PROHIBITION REFORM NATIONAL CONVENTION.

A national convention of delegates of the Prohibition Reform party will be held in the city of Chicago, in the State of Illinois, on Wednesday, the 23rd day of August, 1882, commencing at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of considering such means and adopting measures for the promotion of the great principles and purpose of the party as the convention when assembled may determine.

All citizens of the United States, without regard to former party affiliations, or political differences on other questions, who believe in the main doctrine of the Prohibition Reform party, that the manufacture, importation, sale or supply of alcoholic liquor in any form for use as a beverage, is a high crime against society, and should be prohibited as such in our National and State Constitutions and laws, and who are willing to act with this party in achieving that reform, are invited to assemble in their respective states and territories and in the District of Columbia, to appoint delegates there residing to this national convention equal to the number of Senators and Representatives to which each state is entitled to in the Congress of the United States, and two delegates from each territory and the District of Columbia, with an equal number of alternate delegates from each.

In thus extending this invitation to all citizens, we most earnestly appeal to them to consider—

That the liquor traffic, against which this party has been organized, is the mother and monster crime of our nation, producing more than four-fifths of all other crimes, and far more of public and private evils than all the others combined.

That it poisons the heart of industry and palsies the arm of commerce.

That it robs and enslaves labor, corrupts and bankrupts capital.

That every year in this vaunted free republic it takes a thousand million dollars of their hard earnings from the hand of the toiling masses,and then expends that vast sum in the work of their most terrible destruction.

That every year it murders a hundred thousand of our people, and covers the land with desolate homes and a million wrecks of ruined humanity.

That it is the foul creator and abounding source of pauperism, vice, ignorance, insanity, idiocy, pestilence, disease, physical and mental decrepitude, and death; of all forms and phases of moral and social debasement and domestic misery; of grinding taxation and profligate administrations of the government; of bribery, waste, peculations and abuses without number in public office, mocking at all plans and efforts of civil-service-reform; and of the debauched prostitution of the ballots, of frauds, venality, intimidation and violence at the polls, often making a vile farce of our boasted freedom of elections.

That it fills with perjury and injustice the courts of law and pollutes the sacred days and sanctuaries of religion.

That it conspires in all criminal designs and public disorders, mobs and riots, aiding and exciting them in every breach of the peace, and urging to the entire subversion of law and order.

That the grogshops and saloons are the low nurseries of agrarian and communistic plots and combinations against the rights of industry and for the plunder of property.

That in them are formed and fomented vile and bitter prejudices, passions and conflicts of race against race, class against class, and section against section, of our common country, leading to public outbreaks, cruel outrages and civil war.

That in countless forms and ways it is the fatal foe of our free institutions, and of the virtue, peace, prosperity and happiness of the people.

That like every other crime, it can never be reformed or regulated by law, and can only be subdued by total prohibition.

That it can not be licensed, taxed or treated as a legitimate business without involving the government and people in all its guilt and enormities.

That as an organized potent crime, controlling the government and corrupting all the fountains of political power, it can never be suppressed but by the agency of a political party formed for that purpose, and supremely devoted to its work.

In the present rapid disintegration of the old parties and the absence of all vital issues between them, the people are free to come together and to combine their suffrages for the accomplishment of this most important reform.

The State Committees of the prohibition Reform party, where it is organized, are requested to call conventions for the purpose of appointing such delegates, but where this is omitted by them, or where no active organization of the party exists, any citizens holding this its main doctrine, and willing to co-operate with it may be authorized to call such convention, on application to the undersigned.

The gravity of the questions and movements involved in the present great uprising of the people against the liquor crime thruout our nation and the pressing demand for higher aims, and for more united councils, and plans of action among the friends of the reform, should influence them to send their ablest counselors and foremost workers as delegates to this National Convention. We recognize the entire unity with us of the principles and purposes of the Home Protection and other movements having in view the same methods and objects, and recommend that without respect to any distinction in names or forms of organizations, all meet in the same State and Territorial conventions and unite in appointing delegates to this National Convention. Credentials will be required of the delegates and alternates, signed by the President and Secretary of each convention appointing them.

This call is now issued that it may precede the Spring Conventions of the party, and that ample opportunity may be given to convene and organize the people in all the States and Territories, so as to secure attendance of full delegations from every portion of the Union, that this may be the grandest representative Convention of the cause ever known in its history.

Prominent Prohibitionists of Great Britian, Canada and other countries are expected, and will be welcomed as visitors at the Convention.

By order of National Prohibition Committee.

G. T. Stewart, Chairman, Norwalk, Ohio.

Andrew J. Hanson, President.

Riverside, March 3, 1882.

Ed. Rescue:—Last night a Union Gospel Temperance meeting was held in the pavilion which was built for the late Citrus fair. The ministers closed their churches, and at 7:30 P. M. the different congregations met at the pavilion. The hall was well filled, and would have been crowded but for the dampness of the night. The music was good. The speakers were three of our ministers who are members of our lodge of I. O. G. T. Mr. Cross of the Congregational church, conducted the preliminary services. Mr. Colburn, of the Methodist, and Mr. Button, of the Baptist, delivered the addresses. The former gave, "My three reasons for believing that Christianity is the key-note of future temperance." The latter on "Society; its duties, privileges and responsibilities in relation to temperance." At the beginning ef the exercises a collection was taken to pay for the use of the pavilion, the surplus to be invested in temperance literature. Another meeting is to be held in two months, probably in one of the new churches now being built, as none we have are large enough to accommodate the people.

Retta Wood.

"At the meeting at Young Men's Christian Aasociation Hall Monday, Rev. Mr. Nash and Rev. Dr. Gibson spoke in favor of the enforcement of the Sunday law. But near the close of the meeting Major Whittle, the evangelist, remonstrated with the brethren on the course they were pursuing in this matter, as ministers of the Gospel and not of the law. The Scriptures said those that took the sword should perish by the sword, and he could not help thinking the result of the clergy taking so active a part in spurring on legal prosecutions would react disastrously upon the revival work and the general interests of religion and temperance in the city and State. Let Christians show their regard for the Sabbath more by a better observance of it themselves. A good example was better than warlike words."

March 28, 1882.

My Dear Sir:—I cut the above slip from the Weekly Bulletin of March 22d, and as a pastor protest against the advice of Mr. Whittle which I consider cowardly and of a time-serving character—when at last the Christians of San Francisco show a disposition to back their prayers with deeds, I consider such advice unworthy a "soldier of the cross." Had Mr. W. been present when Christ with holy indignation, drove the defilers of the Temple forth, he would probably have remonstrated with Him for taking a course calculated to arouse the enmity of those thieves. The Lord deliver us from such advisers: they had better keep at home.

I spoke before the Blue Ribbon Club at Guerneville, last Sunday evening, a crowded house and close attention. My exhortations to stand firm on the Sunday law issue were received with hearty demonstrations of approval. May your efforts thru the Rescue meet with the sucess their zeal deserves.

Cordially Yours, E. F. Dinsmore,
Pastor Green Valley Congregational church, Sebastopol, Cal.

WHAT A BARGAIN.

A Mr. S. T. Suit who wants to suit all the customers he can get with suitable material to get drunk on, sent recently to the editor of the Ripon Free Press a circular offering 6 bottles of old rye whisky distilled in 1869! ! ! and 6 bottles of assorted brandy, all for $15 in a box. But it happened that Mr. Stone is a genuine temperance man and recommends him to try the Ripon Commonwealth and the Berlin Journal who are mean enough to advertize such mixtures. What a generous offer; two gallons and two-fifths of these liquids if pure and genuine and of the best possible quality would cost (if they paid revenue tax) just $3.02, bottles included; if they paid no tax they cost 86 cents and if made from brewers drugs still less. Probably the lot had been made less than a month before. But men who drink these poisons can be imposed upon to any extent.

Sunday.—In Germany there is a wide spread movement that asks for a Sunday rest. In Austria a similar movement has secured a governmental decree forbidding public works to be carried on on Sunday. In Switzerland and France earnest desires are manifested for an observance of the Sabbath and England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales are enacting and maintaining Sunday laws. Better for us to court the prosperity of our ancient American system than to follow the ancient course of the rotten civilizations of Europe.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died at Lone Oak March 24, 1882, F. M. Felt, aged 36 years 11 months and 11 days; a most worthy member of Lone Oak Lodge I. O. G. T.

The Lodge passed resolutions which recorded their high regard and tender appreciation of the many noble qualities of their deceased brother and their sympathy for his bereaved family.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G. Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex officio.

LADY MANAGERS OF ORPHANS HOME.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco; Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco; Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. M. A. Mayhew, Red Bluff; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. E. P. Stevens, San Francisco, G. W. V. ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Will practice in all the Courts of this State, and attend to Public Land Claims and Collections.

RENEW! RENEW!! RENEW!!!

GREAT OFFER FOR

Renewals and New Subscribers!

AN OPPORTUNITY TO BOTH

GET GOOD AND DO GOOD

WITHOUT ITS COSTING YOU ANYTHING.

Five of the Revolution "Class Papers" sent free—one each to any five addresses for one year for every cash renewal or cash subscriber sent to the RESCUE with $1.25.

The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, of Chicago, publishes eighteen monthly "class papers," as follows:

No. 1. "Our Young Ladies," especially for young ladies.
No. 2. "Our Young Men," especially for young men.
No. 3. "Our Women," especially for women.
No. 4. "The Christian," for any and every one who acknowledges the claims of God.
No. 5. "The Pastor," especially for pastors urging them to do their duty.
No. 6. "The Sunday-School Superintendent," setting forth the duties of the Sunday-school in relation to temperance, and what the superintendent may do
No. 7. "The Sunday-School Worker," intended to induce all Sunday-school teachers to teach temperance in their classes, and otherwise help the cause.
No. 8. "The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner," containing articles from Catholic divines, etc., intended to influence Catholic families.
No. 9. "The Pledge," for reform work; useful at any time.
No. 10. "The Prohibition Banner, for State or local prohibition work.
No. 11. "The Saloon Curse," a paper antagonizing the saloon on the merits of the question, "Saloons or no Saloons," without regard to temperance; especially suited to local prohibition work.
No. 12. "Home Protection," to help women to the ballot on the temperance question, for local or state home protection work.
No. 13. "The People," gotten up especially for the ordinary classes, mechanics, laboring men, etc.
No. 14. "The Railroad," for railroad employes.
No. 15. "The Anchor," for sailors, steamboat men, etc.
No. 16. "The Soldier," for soldiers.
No. 17. "The American Farmer," for farmers.
No. 18. "The Freeman, for colored people.

These papers are sent out monthly, each paper addressed, wrapped and mailed separately to each individual named. Each person sending $1.25 cash renewal or new subscriber for the RESCUE will be entitled to the privilege of selecting from the above list, five papers, all of one, or of different kinds, and ordering them sent to such parties as he may choose, monthly, for one year, without extra cost to him.

For your cash renewal, five papers.

For your cash renewal and one new subscription, or for two new subscribers, ten papers.

For your cash renewal and two new subscriptions, or for three new subscriptions, fifteen papers, and so on.

The "class papers" are small, four-page, two column papers, intended to take the place of tracts, on which they are certainly a great improvement. Each cantains about 6,000 words in a number, or 70,000 in a year, choice matter, and they can not fail to do good wherever sent.

An arrangement with the "Revolution" makes this offer possible for a limited time only.

Those who avail themselves of this offer must give carefully and plainly the address of the parties to whom the class papers are to be sent, post-office, county and state. And no other premiums or discounts can be made on papers so ordered. There is no weekly temperance paper in the world so cheap as the RESCUE on these terms.

THE LEVER

READ!! READ!!! What people say.

I am glad THE LEVER is doing well. I am its enthusiastic friend. It is bright, radical, and means business, and I like it and rejoice in its prosperity. MARY T. LATHRAP.
Pres. S. W. C. T. U. of Mich.

I consider THE LEVER one of the very best temperance papers published. Its national circulation would do more to benefit the nation than a session of Congress. GEO. W. BAIN.

Its outspoken declarations in favor of temperance and the right are its best commentary. MORREAU B. CROSBY, Lieut.-Gov. Mich.

THE LEVER is clear, strong, fearless and outspoken. It is ably edited, always on the right side: it ought to prosper and will. It should be widely read, and liberally supported. SAMUEL DICKIE, Prof. in Albion College.

It ought to be in every family. I most cordially commend it. J. ESTABROOK, Prin. Nor. Dep't, Olivet College.

IT CONTAINS
1. Number one edit orials.
2. Market Reports.
3. A Weekly News Summary.
4. Stories for the Fireside.
5. The International Sunday-school Lesson, one of the best published.
6. Household hints, family receipts, &c.
7. Stories for the Boys and Girls.
8. Miscellaneous articles from the best writers in the country.
9. Serial articles from Hon. A. B. Richmond, the old lawyer, and others.

THE LEVER is independent in all things but neutral in nothing. It is the aim of the publishers to make it an educator. Believing that the American people are a thinking people they appeal directly to the judgment and good sense of their readers. Their ultimate aim is the BALLOT. They urge men to vote as they pray.

LETTER from Riverside failed to connect in time for this week, but will be continued next and succeeding weeks.

TULARE CITY: "A Subscriber" sends kind wishes for the success of Bro. King in his new field, but ot to have appendod his name or enclosed his card with his letter.

THE Good Templars of Washington Territory have increased 33 per cent in numbers since last session of their Grand Lodge.

HOME PROTECTION meeting at Y. M. C. A. Hall S. F. every Saturday evening.

MODESTO adopts the voters pledge system and has ordered 100 blanks for signature.

Mr. Hoag has engaged special trains for the Annual Temperance Picnic at Tammany Grove on the 20th instant, so there will positively be no chance of detention in returning.

THE Emancipator, devoted to the Greenback question, takes active ground in favor of prohibition and woman suffrage; its managers, T. J. Sutton and Mr. Morse, are sound and radical advocates of temperance. The Greenbackers should see them prosper and whether temperance men agree with the Greenback theories or not they ot to know what is said on both sides. Ot to patronize papers that dont sell themselves to the beer dives. Address, 240 Montgomery St.

Col. Goulding will be present and address the friends of temperance at the Temperance "Pic Nics" to be held at Brentwood Saturday, April 29th and at Atlanta San Joaquin Co. Tuesday May 2d.

There will be an immense gathering no doubt at Davisville on the 29th. Col. Long, Mrs. Stevens, Dr. M. C. Briggs, Mrs. Richardson, the G. W. C. T. and G. W. S. will be present. As the week came in wet and cold it may be expected it will end with fine pleasant weather.

"PROHIBITION only makes more drunkenness." When any poor benighted imbecile tells you that, ask him if he believes that reading the bible and going to church make people lie and steal, for he has just made an exactly parallel declaration.

"Mr. Charles Dudley Warner says, that while the country is filled with people unable to pay for a newspaper, he has never heard of anybody unable to edit one. Is this a compliment to the general intelligence of the country, or is it the other thing to editors?"

ORANGE GROVE. Somebody had better look out soon for that orange grove in Los Angeles county, advertized on page 411. It cannot be had some of these days from the new purchaser for less than $25,000, so you will save $10,000 by going in now. That is good interest. An orange field in full bearing is grand property.

MRS. C. F. YOUNG issues a neat health journal, Life Crystals $1 a year, full of good advice for preserving the health and morals. Address Berkley, Cal. Mrs. Young is a life-long advocate of temperance and many readers of the RESCUE will remember her kindly.

THE few remarks in the RESCUE two weeks ago concerning the management of Col. Long's campaign in San Francisco were considered by some parties as unjust and other parties strongly approved them. The charge that an enterprise has been mismanaged does not at all assault the motives or sincerity of the managers. It seems that every attempt made to create a temperance revival in San Francisco during the last 15 years has been a failure; but to say so does not indicate that the promoters of the various enterprises so intended.

THE Roman Catholic Bishop of Montreal has notified the tenants of church property that they must stop selling liquors there.—Ex. It looks a little odd that a church should have been running rum mills till this day. About 8 or 10 years ago, a large amount of valuable leased property in New York City reverted by expiration of lease to Trinity (Episcopal) church. It was then stated that none of that property should be again leased for the sale of liquor, and that thus a considerable area of the city would be free from that curse. But whether it was carried out or not is not generally known. Can any of our New York readers inform the RESCUE on this point?

A COMPARISON on page 410 is commended to the readers every where. Suppose Marysville, Sacramento and Woodland are examined on that question. Take 10 business men who are in the various lines of honest commerce; foot up their tax list; the number of people to whom they give employment; the value of property they have added to the community in buildings etc.; then take ten saloon keepers and make a fair comparison. Another item might be added; the effect upon employers and customers of each of the two classes for the past 5 or 10 years. All these things can be done without doing an unkind or unjust act or saying an unkind word. It is a matter of adding a few figures together and figures will neither lie nor quarrel if fairly treated. When the liquor traffic shall be finally destroyed from the land and men have ceased to violate the prohibitory law for about 3 years there will be no class of people more truly thankful for the success of the temperance reform than the liquor sellers and their families who will be saved from the direful scourge.

DR. MUNTZ professes to be a scientist, and thinks it possible that he has discovered traces of alcohol in water, to the amount of one ounce in 31 tons, or 260 barrels, and therefore many geese imagine the doctrine of total abstinence is overthrown, and the total abstainer daily breaks his pledge. As about 40 million tons of alcoholic liquors are turned out into the air and water every year, it would not be strange if air and water should contain a fraction. It is suggested as an appropriate reply to the theorists who have built anything on Mr. Muntz, that goose feathers have been found in fresh and sea water and sometimes flying in the air for a long time, and altho it is a self-evident truth that the material of these goose feathers is identically the same as the material of the brain of the writers and critics who champion the use of alcohol as a beverage, still it does not prove that goose feathers are a wholesome beverage or of special value as a brain food. There is a good deal of this Muntz kind of literature that gets into some high up journals, including the London Lancet, which is exactly adapted to the intelligence of the lower classes of barnyard fowls.

SAN JOSE. At the mass meeting at San Jose respecting the Sunday law, the Hon. J. C. Black spoke in favor of the enforcement of the law. Rev. Clarence Fowler, Mr. John E. Richards followed similarly. Prof. H. B. Norton made a redhot temperance speech, and claimed that prohibition was the goal. Judge B. P. Rankin reminded violators of law of a compulsory power behind it, and Judge Moore said he knew of 10,000 Missourians who would leave the Democratic party if this law is not enforced, and he would take the stump in its favor if it is made an issue. Hon. B. D. Murphy advised respect for the law, but don't believe in a Sunday law, because the place to educate people is in the home and in the churches. [But he did not say that if every home and every church is surrounded by a network of schools of vice their teachings are neutralized almost entirely. ED]. Warren Oliver, formerly representative from San Joaquin Co., said that 12 years ago when an attempt was made to repeal the Sunday law, altho the Committee on public morals reported in favor of its repeal, he made a minority report and on the test they did not dare repeal it. He said Judge Moore and C. T. Ryland had helped to defend it. It was a good old Democratic law and he dared the Democratic party to lay hands upon it. Dr. C. C. Stratton defended the leag of F. from the charge of church burning.

The above is gleaned from a clipping from the Headlight found to-day, when and how it came, is not known. By the way, if any Democrats like Warren Oliver are elected to the next legislature, no good interest is likely to suffer from it.

PROHIBITION SONG.

Harken advocates of temperance,
Raise the royal banner high,
Let the watchword prohibition,
Be our conquering battle cry.

CHORUS:—Wave the banner, join the chorus,
As we swiftly march along,
Till the voice of every freeman,
Joins our prohibition song.

Forward march, ye bold and fearless,
Press the conflict, small and great,
Till our watchword, prohibition,
Turns the battle to the gate.

Faith and hope shall be our helmet,
And the Lord shall be our guide,
And the watchword, prohibition,
Yet shall be our nation's pride.

See! the beams begin to brighten,
As they flash athwart the sky,
Sing the song of prohibition,
Till the Demon, Rum, shall die.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

BY B. W. RICHARDSON, M. D., F. R. S.

XV.—ALCOHOL AND HEREDITY.

Another point, and it is a sad and impressive one. We know that twenty years ago we had no kind of knowledge of an exact nature with regard to the effect of heredity in drink. Dr. Connolly, the late Sir John Forbes, and Dr. Carpenter had hinted and pointed out the relationship of drink to certain forms of hereditary disease, but we had no conception of how marked is the influence of alcohol to produce disease by heredity; that is to say, not only in the person directly affected, but in the offspring of that person. We know now as certainly as possible that the thoroly inebriate man or woman having children, impress those children distinctly with the diseases which spring from the use of this particular agent, and here we have Dr. Mason again coming forward and telling us "the inebriety of parents should be regarded as one predisposing cause of insanity in the children. The principal cause is the inebriety in the parents—92 of 116 cases in our asylum have such a parentage." Think of that, and if anything could impress the mind more solemnly than another it is this: think of the future generations in reference to the present. Think of the important, solemn truth that you unwittingly, by indulging in this one particular agent, may be the progenitor of abuse in another generation, which shall be affected in a similar manner, and that that may go on for age upon age always with the still-continued increase of the same form of disease, intensified perchance and multiplied perhaps a thousand and a million fold. I do not know anything more solemn than what I have just said in regard to this great question. Here, like as a forest may begin from the implantation of a single plant, so from the beginning of the taking of this agent the mischief may progress from generation to generation, until at last, if such efforts as ours are not put forth, this world might indeed—I am using the words of truth and soberness—become one gigantic inebriate asylum.

MORE PERUVIAN CLAIMS.

The Examiner lately delivered some very absurd statements respecting the Landrau Peruvian claims. It says a Frenchman in Peru induced a rich brother in New Orleans to fit him out with a $50,000 exploring expedition, between the years 1855 and 1872 to discover guano islands for Peru. That with this expedition he discovered nine islands which had ten million tons of guano, worth 300 million dollars; to one third of which by the laws of Peru he was entitled. But Landrau never could get a dollar, tho the officials at Lima recognized his claim.

Now if the Examiner had enquired at the RESCUE office before that editorial was written, it could have learned that the statements referred to are entirely bottomless. There are a few facts which clearly indicate this as follows: The only islands that could have ever been discovered since the Spanish conquest belonging to Peru are the Lobos Islands. In 1851 or 1852 Mr. Webster, Secretary of State was thotlessly duped by an enterprising American whaler to notify the Peruvian government that he claimed to have discovered the Lobos Islands, one of which is 34 miles distant and can be seen from the shore of Peru. Mr. Webster could never have looked at the map when he suggested such a claim for the Peruvians immediately furnished proof that the natives of the main land had used the guano on the Lobos Islands in the time of the Incas; and Mr. Webster dropped the thing at once and was a good deal laughed at for having been so sold and placed in such an undignified position. That was the only claim which ever received any more notice than a claim would here, for having discovered Alcatraz or Goat Island in 1876 or 1881. There never was any such expedition fitted out for any such purpose. Before 1830 the islands on the coast of Peru were all discovered, close to the main land, surveyed and mapped correctly by Captain Fitz Roy and no one since that time ever dreamed of discovering any more. An expedition to any of the guano islands of Peru during the last 50 years could have been fitted out for a good deal less than $50,000. A native balsa or raft of logs would have conveyed the enterprising imitator of Columbus to any of the guano islands and back for one or at most three bottles of whisky. Guano islands were discovered in the middle of the Pacific by Americans but they never belonged to Peru. It displays an entire unacquaintance with Peru to suppose it is a group of islands or that a single guano island or other island has been discovered there the past 200 years. About 1838 they discovered that guano was a valuable article abroad, but they always knew where it was and knew its uses themselves. That was the only discovery except a deposit on the main land which no Frenchman or American ever claimed. To maintain their credit and to dupe the English capitalists into lending them more money, it was a custom for many years in Peru to report now and then the discovery of new and inexaustible deposits of guano. This was always done when they wanted to borrow thirty million more; and those reports and an inspiration of whisky was the sole foundation of all the Landreau nonsense in the East.

DENS AND DEADFALLS OF HAYWARDS

"The heart of him that hath understanding seeketh knowledge, but the mouth of fools feedeth on foolishness."

Old confirmed drunkards ragged, dirty and boistrous staggering through the streets are very annoying to the dramshops. Temperance people would like to see them seated in the show windows of the groggeries labelled "Our Own Make." Poor old Muller or Muller the shoemaker, as he is called is the last living relative of his class of drunkards. The saloonists hate him as they do a Testament or a Hymn book and whenever he joined the Good Templars their hatred for that order made them anxious to get him to take the first drink, but when he walked the streets swinging his arms declaiming in grand whisky styled oratory, they felt it was an injury to business and planned for his removal.

How an officer of justice could sentence him to ninety days in the County Jail is a mystery to many. It is true he walked the streets and talked to imaginary hearers or to the sky but he was perfectly harmless and drank liquors in accordance with the laws of the state. A large sign is still attached to a building on Castro street "H. Muller Boot and Shoe Maker" but it is extremely doubtful if he will ever use it again. His next move will probably be "over the hills to the Poor House." What a termination of life. Muller was of respectable parentage and until lately was noted for his neatness of dress and quiet disposition. Even after he had felt the drink curse, when he would reform and join the Good Templars, no person in the town dressed neater or was more polite and agreable as long as he kept the pledge. He struggled hard against the temptation but the dramshops were too numerous and his appetite too strong. What a sad wreck! All the bright hopes and prospects of a happy useful life blasted. How sad must be his thoughts. Wife and son gone, home gone, reputation gone, even his last privilege, of mending old boots and shoes for a few dimes, to buy nourishment and whisky, taken from him and the most precious of all blessings, liberty snatched away.

"And carried down to the prison den
To live with drunkards and wicked men
Into the cage with its iron bars
Hid from the street, the sun and stars
Let him sit idly the live long day
To think of his childhood passed away
No one to rescue, no one to love
No one to pity but God above.
Is there a God, and does he see
The depth of the drunkards misery?"

Pope who destroyed the famous name of the "Gum Tree Saloon" sells beer for five cents a glass, and Detmer his neighbor is obliged to follow suit, but neither of them are as smart as the Jew merchant on the opposite corner who knows how to get the largest price for his whisky by pretending to give it away. It is strange that men will be such fools and give two prices for an article after being treated to a glass of whisky.

Wolf boasts that he belongs to the leag of Freedom, that miserable refuge of rats which openly defies the laws of our state. His attack upon Judge Russell showed his ignorance and want of loyalty to his adopted country and the Judge's way of treating his case showed no signs of any Homeopathic preparations.

BEER AND BRAIN WORK.

No. 33.

Men of brains, that know how to use their brains, are the real rulers of the world. So it is very important that we should know what effect beer-drinking has upon brain work. In answer to this I shall surely hear that Germany is famous both for beer and for brain work. But I see something besides beer in Germany.

Germany is a country of schools and of scholars. It has a school system which means universal education. It has grand colleges and universities, the result of long centuries of education. A German count, finding fault with this country, said to me, "You have no great universities with wealthy apparatus and libraries, no great art schools and galleries." But we are a young people; we are laying the foundations of a great country, and have every thing to do and little to do with. As the centuries go by and one wealthy person after another gives money to endow these schools, we will gradually acquire such educational advantages as they have in Germany for the development of brains.

But shall we take the beer with them? Does this help or hinder? Let us inquire into its direct effects on student life. Ex-Governor Dingley, of Maine, writing of student-life at Heidelberg as he saw it, says: "So far as we could judge, these seekers after knowledge spend more time in beer-saloons than they do in study," adding: "Their red and bloated faces, bloodshot eyes, and sleepy manners indicate that beer is slowly brutalizing and stupefying German young men." Dr. Bock, of Leipsic, declares, "Beer is brutalizing. Alcoholic drinks combined with a flesh and fat diet totally subjugate the man, unless their influence be counteracted by violent exercise. But with sedentary habits they produce those unhappy flesh sponges which may be studied in metropolitan bachelor halls, but better yet in wealthy convents." The advancement of learning in Germany may be in spite of beer; this may be one of the hindrances, and who knows how great she might become without it!

So far as we have observed, the great universal education system is the outgrowth, not of beer, but of Protestantism, and Germany, like the United States, is largely Protestant. We must never forget that it was Protestantism (which means religious liberty that settled New England, from which the moulding influence has gone out over the whole continent. And there is one other thing peculiar to Protestantism: it is the parent also of modern temperance reformation. Temperance societies have sprung up and flourished only in Protestant countries, and mostly by the direct favor and help of the Christian churches and ministers, and in this way they are now doing their best work. Are our leading educators beer-drinkers, and do they favor beer-drinking as a means of mental growth and development? True, some of our German professors still continue their beer drinking, and we have had one American professor (the lamented B. T.) who fell into German habits of beer drinking, but his later years were not noted for literary work, and diseases induced by drinking beer carried him to his grave, when with his splendid original physique he ought to have been in his highest vigor. No, no. Beer is no help to brain work either in college or out of college. The American youth or literary man wants none of his ideas drowned in beer.

KANSAS:—"Prohibition has come to stay for all time."

"It is a fixture."

"It is a part of the organic law, and will never be repealed."

"The sentiment in the State in favor of the prohibitory amendment grows stronger every day."

"Prohibition prohibits,"

"Not a Republican newspaper or politician in the State is asking its repeal."

"Immigration is pouring into the State in consequence of prohibition."

"Our taxable valuation has greatly increased since the adoption of the amendment."

These and a hundred other similar statements are published from day to day thruout the State."

UTAH.

A recent visitor in Utah says a good word for the Mormon women. She declares that outside of their religious convictions, the women of Utah are emphatic in their condemnation of wrong, and that their votes had banished the liquor saloons. She saw no drunkenness anywhere, and the poison of tobacco smoke was not all around to vitiate the air of heaven either on the streets or in public assemblies. She found their court room in Salt Lake a model of neatness and order, with plants in the windows and handsome carpets on the floor, "unstained by tobacco juice and unmarred by the bushel-basket spittoon."—Signal.

The reason such a fuss is made about polygamy in Utah and nothing at all said about the infinitely more prevalent and immoral polygamy in all the other states, is that the press and politicians are anxious to make political capital out of something that wont cost them any votes, and the unthinking public always take up the cry and give noisy chase to the unlucky animal that has the kettle in tow for the time. Another reason why Utah is such a general favorite to persecute, is that its morality and good order and good citizenship and sobriety and consequent prosperity, wherever the Gentile agencies have not established their pits of corruption and vice, is so far superior as compared with any of our rum-selling communities. The Mormons never allowed a saloon, a gambling house nor a disreputable house of any kind; what they have were established only under the protection of Federal judges and Federal bayonets. It is not proposed to defend polygamy in the least or apologise for it; but it is in order to protest against commissioning another gang of carpet-baggers to plunder and debauch Utah, to effect no reform of any existing abuse there, but to cover the land with a network of debauchery and fill it with mantraps to extinguish what virtue and morality exists there. What a monstrous farce: A congress of polygamists legislating against polygamy. Satan suggesting reforms in the Church.

LOVE.

Principle should stand above love. I heard a dear, old, white-headed lady say the other day that she liked the smell of a Havana cigar, "all the young gentlemen used to smoke Havanas when she was a girl, and the association was pleasant;" but she added, "Oh! the odious cigars and pipes that are smoked now!"

I frequently see gentlemen and ladies walking or driving, the man puffing the smoke directly in the face of the lady. Is it right to practice such self abnegation at the expense of cultivating selfishness in a companion? "are we not our brother's keeper," in a measure?

Years ago there was a young wife whose husband had had the consideration to hide from her the fact that he smoked before marriage, knowing her dislike to the habit. The first time he came home his breath smelling of tobacco she refused the usual kiss; of course there was a scene but she was as firm as the New England rocks knowing that she held lovable qualities enough to counterbalance the necessity of pandering to any vile habit a companion might desire to retain. The husband never smoked again; and to-day she is the mother of grown boys none of whom have ever used tobacco or liquor in any way, and her home is pure in atmosphere and life.

I watch from my window every morning men leading their children to school and as they reach the door of the class-room they take the cigar from their mouths and kiss the little ones, ugh! the abused. One little girl said to her father at home, "Papa I feel better when you dont smoke," her instinct taught her. BETH.

THE false idea prevails in our homes, and so in the world, in regard to educating our children, that boys and girls must be educated differently, morally and physically. A change in this regard would increase temperance and morality. A boy should be taught—it is no more proper for him to be lounging around saloons than for his sister; the impure, the profane word soils his lips as it would hers; the streets at night are a no fitter resort for him than for her; his associates should be pure and chaste, as hers should be. No company, no place which would bring a blush to her cheek, should be attractive to him. We raise our hands in "holy horror" at the profane word from a woman's lips, and the sight of a drunken woman "makes all the world go mad." It is a sad, a pitiable sight—a woman marring the image of God—lost to all sense of purity, and to all claims of those depending on her for love and help, using the substance of the household for that which shall transform the loving wife and mother into the hateful beast. But is not manhood wrecked as sad a sight? Is not man also made in the image of his Maker? Why not as sad to see him squandering the time and money, which belong to those he has promised to love and protect, for that which shall transform the kind and loving husband and father into the dreaded brute? Are the two pictures unlike? Not long ago, I read of a woman's club in New York, where women might meet to have a good time as the men do, playing billiards, drinking wine and beer, etc., and I said "Eureka." This may be the way out of this difficulty, for should woman drink as man does, he would be interested in temperance as she now is, and as he has the ballot, who can say how soon the world would be revolutionized? Tho God forbid, thru such fiery seas we should be led, before willing as a nation and as individuals, to put away this great evil. —K. D. H. T., in Our Union.

WORK WITH INFLUENTIAL BODIES.

In the "Plan of Work" adopted by the W. N. C. T. U., provision is made for a department charged with the duty of presenting our cause before influential bodies.

The great object is to secure the active interest of these bodies in our work, and especially in that branch of our work in which they are chiefly interested. * * *

As indicating some of the points on which it is desirable these bodies should take action, the following list has been prepared, tho it should always be borne in mind that this is only suggestive.

Religious.—Ministerial Associations should be urged, 1st. To take a definite stand relative to total abstinence. 2d. To enforce the duty of the Christian citizen as to all forms of Temperance legislation. 3d. To use only unfermented wine at sacraments. 4th. To preach temperance sermons and hold temperance prayer meetings. 5th. To enforce church discipline upon offenders against temperance. 6th. To give active aid and encouragement to the W. C. T. U., by forming Local Unions and urging the increased membership of those already formed.

Sunday-schools should be urged—1st. To the use of the temperance lesson once a quarter. 2d. To give other instruction on temperance. 3d. To circulate temperance literature and to place temperance books in their libraries. 4th. To organize auxiliary Temperance societies.

Other Temperance Organizations should be made acquainted with our plans of work, our successes, our defeats, that they may profit by them and sympathize with us. Often the work of these organizations is so different from ours, that their members can actively aid us without interfering with their own efforts. This active support should be secured in such cases.

RELATION OF INTEMPERANCE TO LABOR AND CAPITAL.

DEAR SUPERINTENDENTS—The object of the N. W. C. T. U. in creating this department of work, is to bring before corporations and business firms the subject of Temperance, and to induce them, as far as possible, to use their influence with their employees to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors, for the following reasons:

First—Invested capital is not safe in the hands of men who indulge in the use of strong drink. Recent railroad disasters and destructive fires prove this fact:

Second—Such firms as are known to employ only sober men can furnish better work, and meet orders more promptly, and thus gain the confidence and patronage of the best customers.

Third—Every employer who does not act by this rule, loses money each year by failing to fill orders at the time appointed. He is frequently called upon to assist the families of his employees; also he must pay his share of bad debts, in enhanced prices to the grocer and dry goods' dealer.

Fourth—The employee, by being obliged to abstain from strong drink, reaps a great advantage to himself and family. Few men, if any, will neglect their wives and children except in consequence of this habit.

We think if employers would take this matter into earnest and careful consideration, they could do much to suppress the great evil of intemperance, and thereby bring happiness and comfort to homes now cheerless and sorrowful. We repectfully ask their co-operation.—Our Union.

A. O. U. W.

Grand Master W. H. Barnes, in his report to the Grand Lodge says on temperance:

I believe the A. O. U. W. is as free from drunkards as any association of like character in the world, and yet the general social customs of the day and age, are surely sapping the vitality of many of our membership. Men have turned from stronger liquors to beer, flattering themselves that there is no danger in the cheap and seemingly harmless beverage, yet the fearful increase of kidney and liver diseases, and deaths from seemingly trifling hurts, are directly traceable to cheap beer.

A large proportion of our accidents and suicides, intemperance is directly responsible for, to say nothing of blasted reputations, broken homes, and mourning families. As long as men invite and encourage each other to drink, so long will the curse continue to afflict our race. We are very particular about evidences of consumption, heart disease, what a man's parents died of, how the respiration and pulsation stands, but men propose and Doctors endorse those who are known to be regular drinkers without scarcely a question, and if a man who is in the liquor business has his Beneficiary Certificate declined, because his examination shows that under the instructions to Medical Examiners, he ought to be rejected, a fiery protest is received, or a long argument made, or a numerously signed petition by every member of the Lodge, asking that the decision be rescinded, as the applicant is "such a good man." Altho personally, I wish that no man ever drank a drop of any kind of liquor; altho I know that the death rate among moderate drinkers is largely in excess of that among total abstainers, yet I have never rejected an applicant simply from this cause, unless his Medical Examination showed him to be a dangerous risk, and his habits such as unfitted him for a place among us.

Standing here to-day as your Chief Executive I say to you it is not consumption, heart disease or Bright's disease, that you need spend hours in debating how to guard against, but the great evil overshadowing all of these is Liquor and Beer drinking, which leads not only to all manner of disease, but also to accidents, suicides and murders.

Solve this problem and the rest is easy; I place more faith in the earnest and fraternal efforts of man with man than I do in acts of legislation on this subject. If every Workman will resolve that as far as he is concerned, hereafter, there shall be reform in this particular, and that he will do what he can to aid his brother, at least 15,000 men will be free from this evil, and there will be certainly 15,000 happy homes in California. Is it worth the effort!

ALCOHOL is not properly considered a creature of the Creator. When "in the beginning" he created the heavens and the earth, he did not create alcohol; nor was it evolved from molecules or "star-dust" during the six days or epochs or the Adamic formation. It exists as a constituent element in no vegetable or animal organization. It oozes forth from no bud or blossom, fruit or plant, or natural spring or fountain. It is an enemy, an intruder, like sin, miasma and death, being the product of rot and decay. It is an irritant and a narcotic. It causes heart disease and apoplexy. It weakens the muscles; it produces consumption; it causes paralysis; it hardens the liver; generates ulcers, cancers, dyspepsia and tumors. It is one of the most active of all causes of crime and insanity; shortens life fifty per cent.; annually kills in the United States not less than one hundred and twenty five thousand of our citizens.—Our Union.

And that is what many people use on the Communion table as a substitute for the "Fruit of the Vine," which it dont contain at all:

MR. SCHAEFFER, President of the outlaw leag objects to the decision of the Supreme Court on the Sunday law principally because two of the judges affirming are "religious fanatics." The time is approaching according to his idea when a judge or other official who bears a good moral character and cannot be purchased with the coin of a rumseller will be an impossible candidate for election.

Correction.—In the report of collections received during last month by G. Lec. Bro. Jas. W. Webb, as printed in last week's issue, his collection at Hueneme amounting to $28 was omitted. Whether the fault of omission lies with the copyist of the G. W. S. office, or the compositor, deponent saith not; but the amount was inadvertently omitted in either event, and is herein acknowledged to the credit of the residents of Hueneme who favored Bro. Webb with so liberal a contribution.

Temperance Picnic.—The temperance picnic at Davisville, under the superintendence of Bro. B. H. Hoag, occurs next Saturday. A train will run from Sacramento under the management of Mother Baldwin, for the benefit of the Home for Orphans. Col. J. T. Long and Mrs. Emily P. Stevens will take part in the literary pragram, delivering addresses. Of course everybody is going.

Woodland.—Col. J. T. Long will address the people of Woodland on Saturday and Sunday evenings next.

Official Meeting.—The Executive Committee of the G. L. will meet at Vallejo, on next Monday evening ..... The Boards of Trustees and Lady Managers of the Good Templars Home for Orphans will meet in the Home building, Tuesday next, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Pass-word Circular.—The pass-word circular and quarterly return blank was mailed to every lodge deputy on the 20th, and should now be in their possession. A number of deputies will receive the returns blank and circular with the password coupon detached from the latter. This will indicate that the quarterly returns for the previous quarter have not been filed with the G. W. S., who is not permitted to send the pass-word to deputies who have not properly filed the quarterly returns of their lodges. Send along your delinquent returns, brothers, and receive the pass-word in exchange.

City Lectures.—That great centres of population can be reached and moved to action upon the Temperance question has been demonstrated during the past week, in an experimental way, in the City of Sacramento. But, preparation is necessary, and the way must be paved to success. Lecturers however able and eloquent cannot be expected to make an impression unless they and the people are brought together, Lectures must be well advertised, a good room centrally located secured, music provided, and that done which will inspire the community to believe that the Order has faith in itself. The Grand Lodge has an able corps of lecturers and undertakes to place these where they will do the most good. The Grand Lodge furnishing the lecturers free of expense, communities and Lodges should be ready and willing to furnish hall, lights and music, and this can always and easily be done if properly managed.

During the past week a series of meetings have been held in the City of Sacramento under the auspices of the local Lodges. Col. J. T. Long of Kentucky, delivered lectures during seven consecutive evenings, and delighted his audiences. He is a master hand at temperance oratory and an uncompromising enemy to the traffic in human souls. His convincing and forcible manner of putting things enables him to deal the sturdiest of prohibition blows to an audience which was made thoroughly receptive and appreciative by the unanswerable logic of facts. He must be heard to be appreciated.

Mrs. Emily P. Stevens, G. W. V. T. was also present and lent efficient support and aid speaking at each meeting, directly in the interest of the Order. Her winning ways and strong appeals in pathetic strain to the mothers and fathers could not fail to enlist sympathy for the cause she championed.

The meetings grew in interest from night to night until the subject of Temperance became a matter of "town talk" and a genuine revival was inaugurated. The only regret being, that the meetings could not have been continued throughout the following week. As a direct result of the meetings and agitation over a hundred names were secured of persons who were favorable to and desirous of "uniting their influence with ours to drive intemperance from the land."

On Saturday night, being the regular night of meeting of Siloam Lodge, a joint meeting of Siloam and Capital Lodges was held at which thirty-four candidates were initiated at one time and the same was repeated Tuesday night when another joint meeting of the two Lodges were held.

Col. Long and Mrs. Stevens won golden opinions, were given the kindliest of notices by the local press, and their names will be enshrined in the hearts of many of those who were pointed to and took up a better way, as a result of their earnest endeavors to advance the cause of temperance.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

C. N. GOULDING.

The past week has been devoted under orders of the G. W. C. T. to what might be called "skirmishing" along the line.

Monday 17, International Lodge held open meeting. As it was an extra meeting and not extensively advertized, the audience was not as large as usual, still we had a good meeting.

Wednesday 19, visited Head Light Lodge, found them full of fight and in good condition financially. Thursday evening 20th endeavored to find Valley Lodge, but unfortunately took the wrong car and found myself at a late hour far away from the lodge.

Saturday 22d, it had been arranged that I should address the Home Protection Association in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, I done so, or rather attempted to do so, and made a most complete failure, was conscious of it at the time; the managers will learn in time, how to arrange and carry out a program.

Sunday evening 23, addressed a large audience in the Congregational church in East Berkley—other arrangements and appointments there for the week prevented my continuing the meetings. It has been arranged that I shall visit Humboldt and Mendocino counties early in May. Shall probably leave here May 6th and address the citizens of Eureka on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. 7, 8, and 9th of May.

San Francisco, April 23, 1882.

CONSISTENCY.

ED. RESCUE:—We find in the decision of our Grand Lodge that a young man is debarred the privilege of membership in our Order, if he assists in making wine, even tho he is working by the day, and is perfectly willing to pledge himself never to drink a drop of any intoxicating liquors. At the same time a man may own a newspaper—advertise saloons—sandwich his local columns with pressing invitations to "call at the 'Gem' saloon for choice wines and whiskies," "go to the 'Arcade,' for good old Rock and Rye," "Uncle John of the 'Retreat' has the best Bourbon Brandy," and fill his paper with fancy descriptions of Gov. Stanfords' new thousand acre vineyard in Tehama—and laud the great and growing wine interest of California and picture out the glorious future of our State when our hillsides and valleys shall be covered with vineyards and "wine shall flow like water in a purple stream," and still be an honored member of the I. O. G. T.

The young man who has to assist his father in pressing the grapes to make wine cannot become a Good Templar. A young man in a store cannot draw a bottle of wine without violating his pledge. But the newspaper man can enrich his pockets, invite men to drink thru the colums of his paper, popularize the wine interest and drink traffic and yet; hold membership in our Order. These may be wise decisions, to crowd the weak, and favor the strong, to be strict with the poor and very lenient with the rich.

But for an Order that has raised the standard so high, that has placed principle above price, to make such discriminations seems both faulty and unjust.

These things have been called to my notice in several places, worthy and deserving young men have desired to become members of the Order willing, yea anxious to pledge themselves not to drink nor give to others—and willing to pledge themselves not to manufacture on their own account, but because circumstances compelled them to work for a livelihood, and no other employment offering, they had to be refused, while proprietors of the press, who are members of our Order—do a thousand fold more to increase and popularize our great enemy, are permitted all privileges and hold a potent influence in all our councils. 'Consistency' thou art a jewel !"

Christian and temperance people will take those papers into their homes and seemingly endorse the style of newspaper that puffs the saloon and favors the wine interest. I may be very dull but I fail to see how a man is "discountenancing" the liquor traffic by praising it, and doing "all in his power to promote the cause of temperance," by advertising saloons. Neither can I see how we christian and temperance people can conscientiously support a paper that is known to truckle to the "Liquor Traffic"—praise it—puff it up and the only words of censure it ever receives is some glittering generalities about "Dives and Dead falls," taking good care to state that it is only these low vile places that disgrace the traffic and bring the other honorable men into disrepute. It is sincerely to be hoped that in the course of a thousand years the pulpit and religious press will speak out on these subjects, for just as long as we continue to support papers (whose editors and publishers may be in the church and lodge) yet whose columns are prostituted to building up the enemy they profess and promise to destroy, just so long will be mourning over defeat after defeat, and sorrowing hearts will continue to cry out "How long ! Oh Lord ! how long?" H. R. H.

Modesto, April 20, 1882.

[There dont appear to be any law or decision which permits a Good Templar to do the things named. Ed.]

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

The next meeting of Tulare D.L. will be in Tulare City on May 20, 1882.

Santa Barbara Co. D. L. will be held May 17th and 18th at Goleta. All members cordially invited to attend. Grand Lecturer J. W. Webb will be present.

Amador Co. D. L. meets at Jackson, Friday, May 5th, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Contra Costa D. L. will meet with Brentwood lodge, Sat. May 6th, at 11 A. M. All members in good standing cordially invited.

Sonoma Co. D. L. will meet at Fulton, Friday, May 5th, at 10 o'clock.

Seventh regular session of Calaveras D. L. meets with Lodge No. 348, at Mokelumne Hill, May 6th, at 10 A. M. Delegates from all the lodges earnestly requested.

SOLANO COUNTY DISTRICT LODGE.

Convened April 22nd, at 10 o'clock A. M. Bro. G. W. Frazer D. D. in the Chair—the following Lodges were represented viz: Mount Delight No. 27, Vallejo No. 64, Dixon 364, Alamo 415, Willow Spring 461, Binghampton 488. Those not represented were Phoenix 137, Denverton 239, Pride of the River 318 and Fairfield 320. The increase of membership since last report in the Lodges represented is sixty, and all reported as in a prosperous condition. Rev. Bro. J. L. Trefren offered the following resolutions:

Resolved, That cultivators of wine grapes are indirectly responsible for the manufacture of wine and the evil results of its use in California, and that no one engaged in the business can consistently claim to be a friend to the temperance cause.

Resolved, That the visiting of saloons by Good Templars is inconsistent with their character as such, and gives countenance to the business of selling intoxicating liquors. These resolutions called forth two able and eloquent addresses from Bro. Trefren, and pertinent remarks from Bro. B. H. Hoag, Bro. Frazer, Sisters Stevens and Brown. After a thorough discussion the resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Col. George Babcock who was expected to be present and address the Lodge did not arrive in time to do so, greatly to the disappointment of all. He was, however, announced to speak in the evening, and on Sunday evening. The Lodge adjourned to meet at Birds Landing, Aug. 26th.

ALICE FRAZER, D. S.

Ed. Rescue:—Allow me to add to the foregoing that Col. Babcock addressed a large audience on Saturday evening as announced. On Sunday he addressed a large audience at Binghampton, and in the evening one of the largest audiences ever assembled in Elmira, on a similar occasion. The mere announcement that Col. Babcock will speak, brings together large audiences of our most influential citizens, and he never disappoints our high expectations. The resources of Col. B. seem to be inexhaustible. On Saturday evening the political issues forced upon the people by the League of Freedom, were discussed in a masterly manner, and carried conviction to every mind that the time had arrived for unity and action. On Sunday evening the splendid audience which greeted him had the pleasure of hearing one of the most earnest logical and eloquent addresses ever delivered in Elmira. He is indeed a power in this cause. As a result of his efforts, a large Home Protection Association will be formed here. G. W. FRAZER.

TULARE DISTRICT LODGE

At Porterville in March sent no report to the Rescue unless it was a clipping from the Hanford Journal which has been overlooked and now turns up. Most encouraging reports were presented. Five new lodges since previous session make the present number 19 with a membership of 825. There are only 4 Bands of Hope yet [15 more wanted before next session—Ed. Rescue.] No financial embarrassment but a surplus in the treasuries of the lodges of $245.

Committee commended the reports of good discipline of the lodges and their good influences on the communities, and urged that our work shall be so conducted as to command the respect of the outside world; that more open meetings be held with short, sharp, spicy program; more zealous effort to circulate temperance literature, to rally round and maintain the Rescue and to practice more thoro system in our various workings. Attention is called to the failure of a full attendance of all the members at lodge, but the season past has been one of unusual sickness and very cold, unpleasant weather.

Tulare county is looming up and gives very promising indications of active life in the temperance work. No reason why it should not make a push for the name and fame of "Banner County of Cal." It is desired always to publish concise reports of District lodge meetings immediately after their occurrence, and it will be done if reports are promptly forwarded.

LUGONIA.

The new lodge recently organized as the result of Bro. Webb's visitation, started out with some seventeen charter members and has since constantly added to its members, and we anticipate by the close of the present quarter to have one of the best working lodges in this part of the State. We have a full set of regalias purchased from the G. W. S. and other necessary paraphernalia for lodge work. Our present place of meeting in the district school house is not convenient but the interest has in no way diminished on that account. We confidently hope before the close of the present year to be able to build a hall in connection with a school building that will be both convenient and a credit to this enterprising and growing community. I regret to say we have not had that co-operation from the older members of the community especially those who are members of the church that we had a right to expect. To the young people much credit is due for the earnestness and zeal with which they have entered into the good work. These comprise a very intelligent class of both sexes from Lugonia, Old San Bernardino and Redlands.

To Bros. Wright and Brooks of San Bernardino Lodge many thanks are due for aid and encouragement extended to our young lodge especially to Bro Brooks for the presentation of our charter beautifully formed and containing the names of all the charter members. He seems to extend a fostering care to all sister lodges and verily he will have his reward.

D. A. SHAW.

Lugonia, Cal., April 10, 1882.

GILROY, April 23, 1882

Ed. Rescue:—This afternoon, while reading the Youth's Companion, I came across a little piece which I thought excellent, and knowing that the Rescue is widely circulated and that if published in your paper the piece could be read and appreciated by others. I send it to you: "In Butlerville, Ind., some time ago, a man got a license and opened a saloon. The people of the village met and resolved not to have anything to do with him. They would sell him nothing. They would not notice him on the street, in fact they ignored him in every way. When he went to the store, the merchant would ask 'Are you the man that keeps liquor in our town?' 'Yes sir.' 'Well then sir, I cannot sell any goods.' He could not get mail at the post office for any one but himself without a written order. He cursed, raved but closed his saloon and went into something better than that of making drunkards, and is now an honored citizen. Another man opened a saloon there and the people treated him in the same way. He closed and we don't think there will ever be another attempt made to start a saloon in Butlerville, for, law or no law, no saloonatic can live under such pressure.' If this plan were carried out in every town it would be delightful, it is such a peaceful easy way of overcoming the wrong but in places where it cannot be done, Lompoc plan, of blowing up saloons, could be adopted and we should soon have no saloons at all. What a glorious world we should have. Oh! let every one who is working in the cause of temperance, work harder than before and those who are not, wake up and help those who are going down to eternity through drink. Root out the evil and the rumseller. Oh! I beg God's blessing on those who are helping the cause, and I feel sure they will be rewarded and reap a rich harvest in the "Sweet Bye and Bye."

Yours truly, EMILY WEBB.

Editor Rescue:—Has a saloon-keeper, or any business man, who keeps open on Sundays thus violating the laws of this State, as also of the United States a right to vote at our elections?

Can their votes not be challenged at any of our civic elections, on the ground that they are not law-abiding citizens, and are not supporting the Constitution of the United States which every citizen is under obligation, or sworn to defend?

Have you any knowledge of such a case ever having been tested in any of our courts?

It seems to me it would be well to challenge every such voter. Please give us an explanation of your view thru columns of Rescue on the subject. Respectfully, VACA VALLEY.

Some of the legal members of the order must answer: it is certain that law, State or National, that will turn a decent citizen inside out and upside down, and fine him $272,000, and send another to the penitentiary for ten years, don't hurt a liquor seller in rebellion a particle. The Hon. W. E. Dodge, a Christian gentleman, was fined $272.000 because his clerks made some mistakes which gave the Government $240 too little and $1200 too much duties and about the same time there was a conspiracy of 3,500 whisky thieves convicted of stealing many millions and bribing U. S. officers, and committing perjury by the cart-load, and they were all pardoned out, and not one of them has paid a cent of his fine yet. It seems to be now so arranged between the Republican administration and the rum seller that the latter is above arrest and law, like the royal families of Europe.

The report of the Juvenile Temples in England under the Grand Lodge (seceded) gives 727 Temples, 49,488 Juvenile, and 6,910 Honorary members. How long will it take Sister Richardson to get ahead of that? The difference in population is against her, but as it is within the possibilities, let us give her just 2 years.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

COMMUNION WINE.

Our young people frequently hear that the Bible says thus and so of wine. There can be nothing safer than to be guided by what the Bible says about wine and about all other things. And it is very safe for the children and the young people to know just what the Bible says about communion wine. They will not be told in the RESCUE that we can improve on the instructions of the Bible, or that the Savior or apostles ever gave any advice or set any example which needs to be amended now.

The communion was instituted at the feast of

THE PASSOVER.

Feast, does not mean there a hearty feed or big dinner, but a solem, sacred festival which was observed by the Hebrews to commemorate their deliverance from slavery. During the Passover week, nothing leavened or fermented was to be eaten and all leaven or fermented substance was to be put out of their houses. When the Passover was instituted, the Hebrews had no wine, but when they had lived in a grape country and the fresh, pure juice of the grape became an important part of the food of the people, it was used pure and unfermented at the Passover, but it would have been the grossest violation of the Mosaic law to have used any fermented or leavened wine.

In the sacrifices everything unsound, unclean, deformed or unsavory was strictly forbidden; the first fruits of the harvest were presented to the Lord, and do you suppose any Hebrew would have dared to offer a sacrifice of grape juice that had rotted and seethed and emitted the filthiest odors and had become poison? or would he have dared to partake at the Passover of anything leavened or fermented or that had been in contact with filth or rottenness; much less a drink that was made and used in those days not for food, nor for medicine, but for iniquitous, gluttonous banquets and drunken debauches.

The profaning of the passover with ferment was denounced by the prophets as a peculiar enormity and few things were more frequently and emphatically condemned by them than the violation of the Sabbath, the drinking of fermented wine, the profaning of the Passover or the Sacrifices with any thing fermented, unclean or abominable. Now the was instituted during the Passover. The Savior and his disciples strictly obeyed the law. The priests and scribes tried to accuse them of breaking the law when the Savior healed the blind on the Sabbath and when the disciples pulled a few heads of wheat or barley as they passed thru the field on that day. And if they could have proved them guilty of violating the law, the penalties which were very severe would have been inflicted.

At the time of this Passover they were very desirous of getting evidence that the Savior had said or done something contrary to law and the worst thing they could make up was that he had said, "destroy this temple and I will build it up in three days." They wanted him crucified for that. Do you suppose they would have caut at such a flimsy charge as that, if they could have said "we found this man defiling the Passover with fermented drink and corrupting his followers with the forbidden abomination, this venom of asps, this poison of dragons, this sacrifice to idols?

The Passover was provided at the house of a Jew and assuredly a worthy law abiding and God fearing Jew. There was no ferment nor wine accursed in his house. There was none to be had at the houses of the neighbors; there was no grogshop open during the Passover to get liquor in; and if it could have been procured the getting of it would have created a public commotion; a terrible violation of the law of God which was the law of the land, would have been perpetrated. And you know very well there could have been nothing of this kind done. It would have been unlawful, unnatural and entirely unlike the Savior.

About 40 years after this the Jewish nation was broken up and they were scattered; the christian religion was chased into caves and hiding places for 300 years and since then, centuries of darkness and corruption have passed over it. The wine of God's wrath, the cup of devils came in ignorance to be considered a gift of God, and was confounded with the cup of blessing, the fruit of the vine and used on the Communion table till its disguise was penetrated by Christian people, its mask torn off and its true character declared. This is a long enough lesson; next week it will be continued.

SOME CRUSADES.

The word "Crusade" was the term applied to ancient wars against the Turks to secure possession of the Holy Sepulcher in Jerusalem. The soldiers engaged in these enterprises wore a conspicuous red cross as a badge on the right shoulder. Cruz, was the Spanish for cross, and cruzada was Spanish for our word crusade.

After the time of the occurences described in our gospels, Jerusalem and its surroundings was for many years a desperate battle-field. The Christians all fled from the city, we are told, before the final disaster of its siege and capture. Vast armies were encamped time and again around Jerusalem, and trenches and embankments were made and camps were established and fortified. Captives were crucified and buried by thousands, and hundreds of thousands of those who fell in the various sallies and assaults and battles were buried in the vicinity of Jerusalem.

It is not in the least probable that any one who may have happened to know where the Holy Sepulcher was before the siege, ever returned to find it or could have discovered the least clue to it if he had. It is very doutful if the Christians who lived at the time of the crucifixion attached any sacred character to the locality, to the actual cross or to the sepulcher. If they did, no one else regarded any of these things as any more important than we regard the circumstances of the execution of any common criminal.

But tradition—and very unreliable tradition—tells us that Helena, mother of Constantine, the first Emperor that became a Christian, induced her son to search out the Holy places and preserve them. The tradition of the monks says that Helena was ordered by an angel to go to Jerusalem and find the true cross; she went; guided by the angel she ordered her servants to dig in a certain place and there, sure enough, they found three crosses in perfect preservation after a burial of nearly 300 years. Now they were at a loss to find out which was the Holy Cross, and they either could not find the angel any more or he could not tell. Somebody suggested then that a few sick or blind people should be brot and let them touch the crosses. Tried it. First cross touched, no sign; next, no sign; third—Hoop!! up jumped the patient perfectly cured and then they knew that was what they wanted; and it is said, a great many shiploads of pieces of that cross have been sold around the world and how many shiploads are still left of it nobody knows.

Naturally, pagans newly converted to Christianity, many of them adopting the new religion because the Emporer favored it, and because it was fashionable and paid the best, were very superstitious and it seems their successors for ages and centuries became even more so. It is uncertain whether Constantine or Helena ever did any of these things, and it is very uncertain if the sepulcher or any thing else was where it is represented; the probability is strong that not one of these places shown is genuine.

But it became a favorite religious exercise to make a pilgrimage to the Holy Sepulcher and see the "holy places" which for convenience had been all located or moved into one little space. Every body believed all the rubbish the monks told them, and bot what they had to sell, and paid them tribute and returned home, booked safe for heaven by express ever after, passage paid.

When somebody was not besieging Jerusalem the pilgrims were generally allowed to visit the tomb and holy places and to pay a revenue to the Government up to the year 1076 when the city was taken by a set of fanatical ruffians called the Seljuk Turks. These fellows were recently converted Mahometans and were so extremely jealous in their religious performances that they delighted in butchery, slautered some of their own sects at times and inflicted barbarous cruelties upon the pilgrims even putting them to death.

One Peter the Hermit who had a much stronger love for old bogus relics and bones of dead saints than he had for live men and women, made a pilgrimage to Jerusalem about the year 1095 and having seen the cruelties practiced upon the poor idiots who tried to save their souls by visiting a holy place, he returned and preached over France and Italy, calling the people to arms to go and expel the Infidel Turk from the holy city. He fired the people with his zeal and eloquence. Pope Urban second, called a big council of bishops, monks and people and declared to them that "it was every one's duty to deny himself and take up the cross, that he might win Christ," and the people shouted and enlisted with alacrity. The Pope generously forgave the sins of all who enlisted and gave them a free pass to a heavenly reward thru all eternity after death, which if it was genuine currency where they went to, was better than 160 acres of the best grape land in full bearing.

Under these pious influences and under the leadership of the crank "Peter the Hermit" and the rascal "Walter the penniless," a large gang of thieves set out to "win Christ" by fighting to get possession of the city of Jerusalem. These rascals set out for the holy land and being now sure of heaven they committed such robberies and outrages in the countries thru which they passed, that the people of Servia and Bulgaria went for them and nearly exterminated them. But Peter and Walter and a few more ruffians reached Constantinople and waited there for something to turn up. Other bands of pious robbers insured for Heaven, set out for Palestine and felt so good that they butchered Jews and every body whose creed they did not approve of on the way, and they too were nearly all destroyed by the people they plundered.

It is said that 300,000 crusaders had thus perished, when Godfrey de Bouillon (which means Godfrey of soup) set out with a large army of soldiers and with many brave English, Norman and French Warrior Knights. When they got into Asia the army was 300,000 infantry and 100,000 cavalry. They captured Nice and then besieged and captured Antioch, and in the kind and Christian spirit of their time they butchered the inhabitants after capture with the utmost liberality and impartiality. Then they were attacked by 300,000 Turks whom they defeated with a most enjoyable and consoling slauter. They marched then for Jerusalem; glorified God and wept when they saw it; took it by storm in July 1099 after a six months seige. They shed tears of joy as they affectionately butchered 70,000 people inside, all the Jews and Mahomedans they could find and then were in a most happy frame of mind to go to what they believed was the Hill of Calvary, kissed the stone of the holy sepulcher and sang hyms and gave thanks to the God of peace.

The crusaders held the Kingdom of Jerusalem till 1187. Godfrey was the first ruler and was succeeded by his brother Baldwin (of soup) in 1100. Then were founded the two orders of Knights of St. John and Knights Templars.

That was the first crusade and there are quite a number more to tell you of.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

A circular is shortly to be mailed, from this office, to every Lodge and Band of Hope in the State, calling the attention of all friends of Temperance, to the importance of work among the children, and the necessity of making the press a factor in the juvenile departments as well as among adults.

The value of the Temperance press cannot be overestimated; and the growth and prosperity of our cause, will be in direct proportion to the circulation and study of temperance literature among us. This fact is strikingly illustrated in our Order. Whenever and wherever we find a Lodge, that takes no Temperance paper, and whose copy of the RESCUE is unread, (and there are a few such), then and there we find a Lodge, just dragging out a miserable existence; knowing and caring nothing for the great work that is in progress elsewhere; wholly wrapped up in, and satisfied with, the doings of its own little circle; a cipher to all intents and purposes, as far as the great work of reform is concerned.

It has been said in these columns, "If you want your Lodge to grow, get up a club for the RESCUE, and I heartily endorse the advice, and will add from my own experience, if you want any intelligent person thoroughly converted to our cause, put a live Temperance paper into his hands, and you will accomplish your object. If this is true with adults it is also true with children.

The Nat. Temp. Publishing House is issuing the Youth's Temperance Banner, as a weekly, and it ought to be read by every child on the Pacific Coast.

John B. Finch, the Chairman of Literature Com. of the R. W. G. L., has issued a circular, asking that the first week in May be set apart as "Banner Week," and that, in that week funds shall be raised, by collection, or entertainment, for supplying as many children as possible with this beautiful periodical. It is a charming paper, "clean and fair as a May morning," just the one whose weekly visits will be hailed with joy, and whose contents will be eagerly read, thus becoming a powerful educational factor among the young.

Now, dear friends, will you not take this matter up in earnest? It will take some hard work no doubt, but will richly repay you for your toil. Let us all take hold together and send a subscription list worthy of California Good Templars.

DR. TALMAGE ON TOBACCO.

In the course of a recent sermon, the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage said: You all know what the botanists describe as nicotina. You know it as the inspiring, elevating, nerve-shattering, dyspepsia-breeding, health-destroying tobacco. I shall not be offensively personal on this subject, for you nearly all use it. You say that God made it, and it is good. Yes it is good to kill moths, to kill ticks on sheep, and strangle all kinds of vermin, to fumigate pestiferous places. You say God created it for some particular purpose. Yes, so he did henbane and nux vomica and copperas and bella donna, and all those poisons. You say men live to be old who use it. Yes, in the sense that the man lasted well who was pickled. Smokers are turned into smoke livers. You should advise your children to abstain from it, because the whole medical fraternity of the United States and Great Britain pronounce it the cause of wide-spread ill-health. Drs. Agnew, Hamilton, Woodward—the whole medical fraternity; and allopathic, homœopathic, hydropathic, and eclectic denounce it. It creates unnatural thirst. The way that leads down to a drunkard's grave and a drunkard's hell is strewn thick with tobacco leaves. Ben Franklin said he never saw a well man in the exercise of common sense who would say that tobacco did him any good. Thomas Jefferson argued against the culture of tobacco. Horace Greely said: "It is a burning stench." Daniel Webster said: "Let those men who smoke go to the horse-shed." I can name three eminent clergymen who died of cancer in the mouth, an evil caused by their tobacco. There has been many a clergyman whose tombstone was all covered up with eulogy who ought to have had an inscription. "Killed by too much Cavendish." Some smoke until the room is blue, their spirits are blue, the world is blue. My experience was that is took ten cigars to make a sermon. A generous tobacconist of Philadelphia once offered to keep me in cigars if I would settle in Philadelphia. But I said to myself, "If I smoke more than I ought to now, how much more would I smoke if I had an unlimited supply! That was twenty years ago. I quit then once and forever. If you smoke cheap tobacco, I want to tell you why it is cheap. It is a mixture of burdock, lampblack, sawdust, colt's foot, plantain leaves, fuller's earth, lime, salt and a little tobacco.

THE FIRST FRUIT.

A little girl was once made the owner of the grapes upon a large vine in her father's yard. Very anxious was she that they should ripen and be fit to eat. The time came.

"Now for a feast," said her brother to her one morning, as he pulled some beautiful ones for her to eat. "Yes," said she, "but they are the first ripe fruit."

"Well, what of that?"

"Dear father told me that he use to give God the first out of all the money he made, and that then he always felt happier in spending the rest; and I wish to give the first of my grapes to God too."

"Ah, but." said her brother, "how can you give your grapes to God?" And even if you were able to do such a thing He would not care for them."

"Oh, I have found out the way," she said. "Jesus said, 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me': and I mean to go with them to Mrs. Martin's sick child, who never sees grapes because her mother is too poor to buy them."

And away ran this little girl with a large basket of the "first fruit" of the vine, and other good things, all beautifully arranged, to the couch of the sick child.

"I have brought Mary some ripe fruit," she said to Mrs. Martin.

"Dearest child, may God bless you a thousand fold for your loving gift! Here, Mary, see what a basket of good things has been brought you?"

The sick one was almost overcome with emotion as she clasped the hand of her young benefactress and expressed her sincere thanks.—Temperance Record.

NEW NATIONAL SONG.

[Tennyson the Poet lately composed a drinking song in honor of the Queen's escape from assassination. The following is a parody in the Alliance News.]

First pledge old Bass this solemn night,
Then drink to Watney every guest;
That man's most certain to be right
Who loves his native liquids best.
May British Beer fill bowl and pot
With fuller tide from day to day;
That man's the truest patriot
Who drinks, and drinks without a stay.
Drinks all round! Heaven the temperate ass confound!
To the great cause of Liquor, drink, my friends,
And the great name of Bacchus, round and round.

To all those thirsty souls who long
To keep King Beer upon his throne;
To every tapster stout and strong,
And all the Victuallers we have known;
To all those rowdies whom one meets,
Those prisoners under lock and key;
To all those beggars in the streets,
Those murderers at the gallows' tree—
Drinks all round! those temperance orators confound!
To the great cause of Ruin, drink, my friends,
And the great Lords of Liquor round and round.

To all our statesmen, so they be,
On Liquor question sound and clear:
To both our Houses while they see
Due suit and service paid to Beer.
We've drunk for ages British ale,
Seas over in that flood we've sunk;
Pray Heaven our drinking may not fail
Thru craven fear of being drunk.
Drinks all round! Lawson and his crew confound!
Of the deep tide of Liquor drink, my friends,
Until yonr heads go round, and round, and round!

"The drink-den accomplishes wonderful transformations in society.

It takes a boy of beauty and promise, teaches him to carouse with gay associates, and makes him a bloated, loathsome, worthless man.

It takes a young girl, loved and lovable, and manufactures her into a miserable, bloated woman, at whom passers-by point with fingers of scorn.

It wrecks lives that might but for it be grand; hearts, that might otherwise be happy; homes that in its absence might blossom into Edens.

Why does Christian society license and protect this social pestilence?"

"Dont, oh, dont sell him any more liquor! Have pity upon us," cried a poor, heart-broken wife to a rum-seller. "You have got nearly all we ever had in the world—my poor husband's character, health and reason are nearly gone. For the sake of his poor, unhappy family, dont let him have any more liquor." "Get out of my place or I'll turn you out; dont come here with your noise; I am licensed to sell," was the response.—Saloon Curse.

In the Methodist Sabbath school, at Flesherton, Canada, the following pledge has been introduced to protect the pupils and secure their future against the greatest of perils:

Motto:—"Wherefore. therefore, whether ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." 1 Cor., 10, 31.

"We, the undersigned, do solemnly pledge ourselves to abstain from using, in any form, tobacco, or alcoholic beverages; and further to do all in our power to prevent others from using the same.

The best feature in that pledge is it precludes the use of alcohol internally under any and all circumstances."

A Rev. Mr. Battisby, in Canada, has preached a sermon in favor of using fermented wine at the communion, and the liquor sellers have published the sermon. Another minister Rev. A. M. Philips preached a sermon in reply urging the use of unfermented wine which is the only "fruit of the vine" as was commanded. But the liquor sellers wont publish that. When there is a dispute about what is the proper communion wine and the liquor sellers are very much interested in it and take all one side, it is not likely they would at all be on the right side. For of all people on the earth they are all and always on the devils side.

"Saint Augustine, speaking of the bad effects of wine-drinking, declares it to be the mother of all mischief, the root of all evil, the mother of crime, the spring of vices, the whirlwind of the brain, the overflow of the senses, the tempest of the tongue, the ruin of the body, the wreck of chastity, a loss of time, a voluntary rage, a shameful weakness, the shame of life, the stain of honesty, and the plague and corruption of the soul." That was what he wrote more than 1,200 years ago. Is it at all likely he used that kind at Communion?

TRIP TO NEHALEM.

We are off on the return to Astoria. We pause here and there on our way, and question about that safe full of gold that the pirates buried between two spruce trees when their ship was wrecked. The story must be true, you know, for "the oldest indian," tells it, and, tho she has lost the precise spot during the 80 years that have stretched their weary length between that day and the present, yet she assures the dwellers on Nehalem that the treasure is somewhere along the base of Carney Mountain. We pleasantly pass another night in Mr. Cromwell's Christian home and in the early morning, with little Mamie's good-by kiss still sweet upon our lips, are again on the ever wondrous ocean beach, carried rapidly along with the driving storm of rain and wind.

How furiously the waves leap, as if determined in their madness to roll over us and then drag us out to sea. But let them howl, and even lave our bare feet, or reach for the top of our rubber boots; but we'll keep a little too high up the beach for them to get away with us. Oh, my! how the wind carries us along! just as if to hurry us on to pass the point before the rising tide cuts us off. There is Arch Cape. See how wildly the surges leap on the bold rocks. Blow, wind, blow, and hurry us on, and possibly we may be in time to make our way thru the cave or "arch," and thus save a toilsome climb over the headland. Into the cave we rush—hold, hold—fall back, a heavy swell is coming meeting us from the other side—fall back—run! Hold! stop! climb! Its coming in on us from both sides, climb! cling to the highest rocks. Higher, higher it foams around us, and higher, higher we climb.

I guess we are safe; let it bellow its wildest. Now it recedes, and we watch our opportunity, lower and lower it falls leaving the rocks bare ahead of us. Now's our time, and leaping from rock to rock, we reach the sand beach on the other side. But hold there; go slow now, and let the surf clear away a little that we may see our way; for if we get swamped in quicksands the next surge will get us. Safe again. Even old ocean's mad fury cant get away with Good Templars. And on, on the storm rushes us towards "Hug Point," which is the last difficult cape on our route. The tide is well up, and from the white spray flying high about that frowning headland, we fear it will be rather a cold "hug" for us. But here we are standing as near as we dare, watching for an opportunity, and lower it falls, and there's no big swell in sight. Now's our time—hold—wait there,—look out now—no miss steps—quick—hold, hold pull back! run! jump! Ha, ha, ha! well we are safe at present, but old ocean has got our party divided, and here we are part of us on the shore and part perched upon a rock in mid ocean. One good thing about it, the rock is high, and we can climb up above the highest tides and swells, and so we'll make the best of it, and sit down on our island home.

How they laugh at us over there on the shore, and ask if we're going to run a light house on our island. There, there jump, now's our time! Ah! joined our company again, and rather than take any more risks, we climb over the point, down upon the clean beach again and almost fly before the gale. Elk Creek! Booming full! Can all swim? Let's go up the stream a piece, and see if we can find a log or some driftwood. There's a box — a watering trof. Will it bear us? bring it into shallow water and we'll try what it will do. Not sufficient. There, bring two of those light cedar posts—place one on each side of our grand boat. Now, down on our knees with hands holding firmly on to the posts. All right—but who is to paddle us over? There, you man with the long rubber boots on. That's the plan—astride of the after end of our craft, with feet hanging in the water. Off we go paddling our own canoe and safely we land. But our several delays have made it impossible for us to reach our hotel at "the sea-side;" and now as the gleams from the light house on Tillamook Rock reminds us that night is near, let us ask for hospitality at that cabin close by the shore. Mr. States grants our request and we are seated by the big fireplace, talking over the adventures of the day. Those noisy sea-lions, (O, how they howl!) had their headquarters on Tillamook Rock, but when Government built the lighthouse there they moved in nearer shore.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

THE LAST DITCH. THE CUP.

There is only one way the question of communion wine can be settled and that is not by the prejudices or preferences of either side of the argument, but by the consciencious reference of the matter to the Scriptures, interpreted by consciencious and capable but at the same time unprejudiced men. And still adhering strenuously to the solemn belief that we should not swerve in the slightest degree from the spirit and letter and precise form of the commandment and example of the initial Supper—and that if even pure alcohol had been then enjoined it would be a sinful sacrilege to substitute any thing else, when alcohol could be had—it is confidently promised that the decision will be finally unanimous and speedily so, that the fruit of the vine, so carefully called in every instance by a name never once used to designate fermented wine, means nothing but the pure juice of the grape and that the bread was unleavened too, and should be now.

The conservatives are reminded that not a single claim, made by the advocates of temperance the past fifty years, was ever admitted without the most stubborn contest. The first claim, that men could live without using strong spirits, was resisted and ridiculed. But it was true. Next a stubborn battle was fot over the question whether a person could be healthy and be a total abstainer; and rum lost. That total abstinence is not a slander upon the holy Scriptures, but is consistent with a Christian walk, has been decided in a thousand Waterloos on this continent and in England and rum has been demolished every time; but the old flag with the Bible and beer inscribed on it is hoisted yet every little while by some bishop or rector or doctor of medicine in England or on the continent who has never before heard of the war and even sometimes by a leading American religious journal who has been in a trance for 30 or 40 years, and has not yet heard of the late civil unpleasantness.

"Men can work as well without liquor as with," was an assertion which sorely afflicted the lovers of old fashions; falsehood, mischief, ignorance, impudence, fanaticism, infidelity, radicalism, one idea, were attributed to us, but rum went down before the truth again, and had not one of its tail feathers left.

"Liquor dont warm you when cold and keep out cold," was such a blasphemy and desecration of Scripture that words failed to paint the agony of the old-timers; but rum was unhorsed again and his enemy unscratched thru all this.

"Not necessary in cholera and to keep cholera away" was another outrage which called for vengeance, but the cholera answered it by sweeping away its victims by thousands among the drinkers, and passing the abstainers by; or to be strictly accurate, taking 1 in 30 to 40 of the former for 1 in 500 to 800 of the latter.

Not good as a medicine by the year and ten years; not necessary for women, for nurses, for children, for old men, at dinner, after dinner, after goose, not good for worms, for rumatism, for dyspepsia, at weddings, at funerals, at parties, for consumptives; for fever, for pleurisy, for a wounded President; all these things were the subjects of furious contests; but rum went down every time.

It was a heresy to assail the Christian consistency of a deacon, who took the homesteads and farms of half a dozen of his neighbors to pay for the rum he sold them; to claim that retailing liquor was a sin was next to treason; then came the well cursed fanaticism and ungodliness and bigotry of cross-examining the character of the wholesaler and finally the innocency of the rich distiller was defended in a thousand skirmishes and pitched battles; but rum went down every time.

Alcohol as a beverage, as a medicine, utterly exploded and not a feather left. Alcohol blown out of the Bible where unholy hands had tried to place it. Now at every step from the first movement when little knots of a dozen people began to meet in school-houses and farm-houses, to talk this matter over, be it remembered, the scholar and the doctor and very often the preacher and church member assailed us with the Bible and with history and with science and with tradition and with the doctor's decrees and fiats; they obstinately denied, ridiculed, opposed and fot every step taken, every argument advanced, every sentence uttered, every proof presented, and they never have for a moment ceased for fifty years to declare that we are fanatics, we are mistaken and we exaggerate—and never in one single instance, never in one jot or tittle, never as much as in the dot of an i or the cross of a t have they caut us mistaken, fanatical or exaggerating. We have never failed to prove up to the last fraction. But our opponents have been proved wrong and fanatical and mistaken in at least 99 counts or every single one they have taken up save one. There is one more not fot out: sacramental wine. On that we are firmer and surer and more positive than we were on any other point; for we have Bible, Gospel, science, reason, history, and dont lack one thread of a complete web of evidence most conclusive. And we believe everybody, including the whole M. E. Church, and every Church and individual that has given the subject a fair, full and impartial consideration, are entirely convinced that the old Romish substitution is a grievous error. General Lee made a resistance as brave and obstinate as any hero of history, but when every last fortress was taken and every refuge cut off, he was a braver and wiser and better man to own his position untenable and his cause hopeless.

FOR VOTERS TO CONSIDER.

There are a great many worthy people who sincerely desire that their votes may be cast in such a manner as to be instrumental in securing the enactment of some legislation, or the adoption of some public policy which shall tend to the removal of some abuse or prove an antidote to some wrong, which seems to them to be the most serious present impediment to the public welfare.

One class of thinkers are determined that the most important and pressing need of the day is the exclusion of the pagan, heathen degraded labor of China. To another the reduction of railroad and corporation exactions so as to afford legitimate dividends of 6 to 10 per cent a year in place of 35 to 50 per cent on their investment, is what the country chiefly needs. The Greenbacker sees relief from impending ruin in an overturn of the monetary systems. Another thinks ruin is coming from land monopoly and so on.

If there are politicians and sharpers playing on these issues with sinister and treacherous aims, we must still believe that the main body of them are sincere and have good ground for their proposed modes of action. To each and all of them the following considerations are presented.

The most united, compact and determined vote in this country and in England is the vote controlled by the saloon and liquor traffic. There are at least 10,000 dramshops in this state and 175,000 in the United States, and the interests of this body of men are in direct hostility to the interests financial and political of every honest and worthy member of society. Any act of legislation that is good for the grangers and workingmen and farmers and the people who have homes and families, is bad for the dramshop; and any possible thing good for the dramshop is bad for all the rest.

Now it isfair to believe that any one of these saloons can influence two votes and some of them twenty; of the hopeless, helpless slaves who are the daily victims of these dens. It seems quite likely that on an average 4 dramshop wrecks at least who all have votes and use them, can be depended on for every saloon in the United States, to give a solid vote at every election. That would make 40,000 votes in Cal. and 700,000 in the republic, enough to decide the elections generally when public opinion is anything like equally divided.

The only condition on which the beer and whisky vote is cast, is that no interference with the operation of the traffic on Sunday or on any other day or in any form shall be attempted; and that vote will of necessity go for the most godless, most unprincipled, most unpatriotic, most immoral candidate or party, because that is the surest dependence of the dramshop.

If a railroad company wants to be protected in grasping the public domain from the people and the people's children—if it wants to continue to exact a triple freight and fare tarif and reduce the farmer and mechanic by slow and sure degrees to serfdom, it interviews the saloon interest and finding their mutual ends equally hostile to the people and both imperiled, they "pool their issues" as Kearney said; each binds itself to a compact of mutual aid and sympathy and when the votes are counted after election, the granger and greenbacker and anti-monopolist and anti-chinamen find they might as well have staid home on election day.

The water company and gas company and steamboat company and land company and National Bank Company and every company that wants to oppress and wrong the people, cluster around this solid vote. All the program of this most godless is, free rum and free Sunday and solid support of every candidate or party that will join in that chorus.

The Democratic Party has made a bid for that solid vote in this State and pretty generally elsewhere. The Republican Party has done so in Ohio and in most other States and probably will here. In all such cases the solid vote of the saloon if it splits on the candidate of the German Republican and the Irish Democrat never splits on the free whisky, free beer, free Sunday, free crime, free railroad, free monopoly, free chinamen, free murder and free oppression and outrage of the people all round, which the election of either candidate ensures.

Gentlemen Greenbackers, Anti-coolie men, Anti-monopoly men, Anti-railroad men, Anti-land grant men, Anti-rum men, and Anti-beer men; as long as the Front street leag of outlaws here can send out a circular order that will command 40,000 votes in this State to be cast just as they choose to designate—just that long you will continue to vote up chimney and to find yourselves joining hands with the worst enemies of your country and yourselves, or else entirely kept under a yoke of helpless bondage by them.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company well understands this matter; its leaders cannot help despising and being ashamed of the 750 or more dens of infamy and filthiness which they run at their own depots; they are not captured solely by the $5 or $10 or $20 a week or month of rent which they bring in; but they want the votes these groggeries can bring them so surely every time, and the votes of the dramshops all over the State which their close partnership in the traffic assures to them. The most patriotic motive that actuates either of the old parties now is to secure this solid vote of the malefactors of the country.

THE WAY TWO DOCTORS DIFFER.

Please read on page 402 what the magnificent Dr. Richardson says, has been learned with regard to the causes of insanity and compare that with the following presentation to the Medical Society of Cal. last week as reported in the Chronicle: "At the evening session Dr. Wilkins, Medical Superintendent of the Napa Insane Asylum, read a paper on mental diseases, setting forth the proportions of insane to the sane at different periods, and showing that insanity is on the increase. He argued that the increase can be stopped, not by curing the insane, but by prevention. One method, he claims, should be the prevention of marriages of weak-minded or insane people. He complained that the asylums of California are over-crowded, and still on an average, two insane persons per day are received, owing to looseness of examinations in the counties, and urged the necessity of additional legislation, especially for the provision of an institution, as recommended by President Tyrrell, for the confinement of the criminally insane."

There can be no doubt that the off-spring of weak-minded or insane people are apt to be insane, very apt indeed and that if such people could be prevented from adding to the population, there would be less insanity. But if the doctor is perfectly sane himself and has been at all an observer of the occurrences which it is his special business to notice as a physician and guardian of the insane, he must know as well as any ordinary citizen who is not an M. D. that in California a great many more people go crazy thru drink than from the hereditary tendencies he refers to, unless "weak-minded and insane people" includes drinking people who become so thru drink.

The doctor's innocent notion of prevention by law or otherwise of such marriages is certainly refreshing and novel; other people know that legal or suasive prevention would be just as possible and would be as readily attempted, if it were proposed to prevent the Irish or Germans or Catholics, or Presbyterians or Italians from marrying in this country. It is singular indeed that we should have had recently a week's conference on prison reform, and by common consent ministers, judges, lawyers, prison guardians and police officers and several lady speakers too, carefully omitted all allusion to the one principal and most thoroly well understood cause of crime. And when a Good Templar introduced on the last evening a resolution specifying that drink was the cause of ⅓ or ¾ of all crime it was adopted unanimously or by a large majority; which was a general confession that the whole week's work had been a farce and a suppression of the truth to which not one of them had the courage to give expression.

If holding a political office as Medical Sup. of a State lunatic asylum does not dim the perceptions of an M. D., he must know that a prohibitory law is practicable and would prevent three-fourths at least of the insanity that sends him two crazed people a day, and that he might as well recommend a balloon excursion to the planet Mars as the motion he has offered, which could not find a second among sane men in this State.

COL. BABCOCK'S CASE.

The public has been recently puzzled with a report circulated by the anti-law conpiracy to the effect that some one had tried to sell out the Home Protection Association to it. The name of the accused was demanded by the officers to be published as the charge had been. The accuser refused this but offered if the Ex-Com. of the H. P. A. would call a meeting, call in the reporters and notify him, he would then and there give the name and circumstances.

Mr. Shaeffer is said to be Grand Lecturer of the Masonic Order, and professes to be a man of commercial probity, but none of these things lends dignity to the office of president of a gang of openly professed outlaws in rebellion and defiance of the State and its legal authority. Mr. S. is reported by the Oakland Mirror as stating that the decision of the Supreme Court as to the Sunday Law was worthless because two of the Judges are religious men. Now if he had stated that one of the Judges of that court had offered to sell the Sunday law to the leag for coin, it is not at all likely that the court would have consented to call a special session and call in the reporters of the press and honor Mr. S. with an invitation to appear and make his pleasure known to his servants; no sooner than if such a claim had been made by an outlaw who is in the penitentiary for outlawry. Nor did the Ex-Com. elevate Mr. S. to the dignity of a recognized lawful citizen representing a lawful organization.

Their failure to obey the lordly will of Mr. S. was judged by inconsiderate people to indicate weakness or fear of developments, .but surely no one weighing the circumstances properly, will fail to approve their decision.

At last, Mr. Shaeffer unbottles himself and accuses Col. Geo. Babcock of having offered to sell out; of abusing Dr. Mc.Donald and the temperance people as humbugs etc., and says he declined to buy what the Col. had to sell.

On the other hand Col. Babcock produces the affidavit of a third party who by a fourth and fifth was deputed to make overtures to the Col. which he did and brot Mr. Shaeffer to the office of the Col. neither knowing that he was to meet the other at that hour till they met—and Col. B. before Mr. Shaeffer's story came out attributed to him the exact language respecting Dr. McDonald that Mr. S. has charged on the Col.

It is now a question of veracity between two men; probably the men who hate Sunday and curse a judge as a fool because he respects religion and morality—who live by destroying their fellow men, who sell poison beer, poison rum, poison tobacco and poison blasphemy to little boys and women and men—will all firmly believe Mr. Shaeffer.

The other class will believe that Col. B. is a pretty able lawyer; knew that he could offer nothing for sale that could be sold; was sure that if he made overtures they would be exposed, and is not a likely man to sell himself out to universal contempt. Seeing that the leag set Schetzel to spy out violations of the Sunday law and complain of them and then caused the press to say that he was a Good Templar, a friend of the RESCUE and lived at 1008 Market street, all of which they knew was not so; they will see no reason to dout Col. Babcock's word. And when active men in protecting the homes of the people from the ravaging assaults of the ginmill, have been beaten by hired bullies, slain by hired assassins, have had their barns and houses and cattle burned time and again; it will not seem strange nor at all out of the ordinary course, for the liquor traffic and the lawbreaker to single out a prominent temperance advocate and try to weaken his influence by blasting his character.

JUVENILE LITERATURE.

Mrs. Richardson very properly commends in the Juvenile Dep't the making of an effort to get the Youths' Temperance Banner well circulated among the Bands of Hope. One of the most promising features of the temperance work of to-day is the increased attention to the spread of temperance literature, and the best part of that feature is its spread more especially among the young.

If anybody must be neglected, let it not be the children; let them be instructed whoever is left out. The shepherd who has fine sheep is the one who took the best care of the lambs and paid them the most attention. The wisest guide to consult on any subject of enquiry tells us that all the laws and instructions given to God's ancient people were to be particularly and emphatically taut to their children and their children's children.

The temperance army of to-day are working for a good future for this country and for the world; it would be hard to define the patriotism of our neighbors who are opposed to temperance, or who profess to be neutral in the matter. But the patriotic citizen of to-day desires a good citizenship in the coming and all future generations. There is no interest so supremely important to this end as that of the instruction of the young of to-day in the truths of temperance, and the Band of Hope ot to be made the source of the highest and best instruction which it is possible to impart to the children. There is little dout that the proper management and direction of our Bands of Hope is the most important of all the interests that affect the future welfare of this country. Therefore, all good and true men and women should give it the liberal support of their labor and counsel and their dollars whenever needed.

CITADELS OF RUM.

Doctor J. Ritchie said recently in a large public meeting in England that there were many forts for the temperance army to storm; chief of which were the medical, ecclesiastical, social and legal forts. He considered the medical the most formidable of all; people had been taut by medical authority to believe that alcoholic drinks gave strength and health, but now he said that all the statistics and all the experience which medical men have, prove that they shorten life, decrease the power for work and increase the liability to disease and the people are paying more for this instrument of death than for all the bread, coffee and rice used in the country."

It is very sad to know that there is still so much darkness on this question in America that the President of this republic should have been slowly and deliberately drugged to death with poison drink and rotten poisonous food and this intelligent nation stood calmly by with but few protests, and a congress now proposes a monstrous perversion of public funds to pay for a bogus treatment, which would in all probalility kill any strong man in 79 days who had no wound at the outset. It is sad to know that millions of people are shortening their lives 10 and 20 and 40 years and debauching body and intellect and morals with poisonous beer and wine, daily swallowing moral and physical disease and moral and physical death, under the wretched and fatal delusion that these horrible quackeries are wholesome.

Then there is the ecclesiastical fort or the stronghold of old superstitions and delusions that cling to religious forms and fashions. Because people who professed christianity 300 years ago could purchase an indulgence or permission to commit a crime, and believed it was right to do so, some people continue to believe that same thing to-day—some others do not. Because 300 years ago and up to 50 years ago people had been innocently accustomed to see the cup of Satan occupying a highest place of honor in the ceremonials of the church, many people persist in adhering to the ancient custom right or wrong, while many have abandoned it and are horrified at such a desecration of the table of the Lord.

Tho it may not seem so at first thot, it is a fact that these defences of the dramshops are most formidable ones. If alcohol is wholesome and useful as a beverage the whole system of total abstinence is a failure and all effort to stop the traffic in drunkenness will be futile as long as people think so.

As long as a majority of people believe that the Savior of the world ever used or countenanced the use of alcoholic liquors of any kind and that God created alcohol, that majority are under the alternative of believing that either the total abstinence and prohibition movement is ungodly and unchristian or of rejecting the Christian system as a lamentably imperfect and unreliable one; men cannot hold to two entirely antoganistic creeds.

SUNDAY LAW.

It is understood that the saloons and gambling dives of Visalia were all open last Sabbath. It is to be hoped that this is a mistake, but if it is true we would ask the questions; whese is the County Attorney? and where are the peace officers, and what disposition have they made of their oath of office? The people look to them to have the law enforced as they have sworn and are bound to do, and should they fail, the people who elected them, have a right to know the reason why. What has become of the moral and religious part of the community in and around Visalia? Have they no sons to be debauched? are the preachers and laymen of the various churches all sleeping on their rights? What are the Good Templars of Visalia doing? Look to San Francisco and be inspired by the noble example of the good people there. If this is the law of the land (and certainly it is now) no lover of his country should be satisfied while such men are defying us.—Hanford Journal, 24th March.

The Hanford Journal is one of the few secular papers that dare to range themselves on the side of the mothers, wives, sisters, daughters, children, sons, brothers, fathers, husbands of the American home, against the enemies and robbers and defilers of the homes of the people. Good Templars and good citizens of all kinds should wisely choose between the patronage of the friends of our civilization and our worst and most treacherous enemies, the advocates of the foreign grogshop and thief den.

BEATTY'S ORGANS.

Mr. Beatty writes that the Butte Co. organs were shipped, but that a fire which destroyed his factory entirely last fall caused delay in shipments; if there was any delay beyond that, it must have been an oversight, which is liable to happen as an exception anywhere. He adds that his factory has been rebuilt and now he is shipping 1,000 organs a month; so it is presumed there was no ground for any suspicion of wrong intended. An apology would be rendered by the RESCUE, but it will be seen that no damage has been done to Mr. Beatty by the publication of this case.

No WINE at Riverside Citrus Fair, none invited; none offered; main cause, a growing temperance sentiment. Wine made from oranges will be the next evil use of God's gifts, we fear. How much better to use the orange in its pure unadulterated state.

METHODIST BOOK DEPOSITORY,
JOHN B. HILL, Agent,
1041 Market Street, San Francisco.

SECULAR PRESS.

PLYMOUTH, March 29, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—The treason leaguers in this place say that the reason that they resist the law is, that it is unpopular; when asked what they base their opinion on they say the whole or nearly the whole press of the State is opposed to the Sunday law, which is equivalent to its being unpopular; now please give us a list of those journals in the State that dare stand up for the right; also those that do not and their motives for not doing so and especially the Sacramento Union. J. F. G.

The outlaws are right in claiming that a large number ot the secular papers are on their side, for they have not said a word in favor of the protection of the home from the infernal tyranny and cruelty of the grogshop, nor in favor of making rumsellers obey the law even on Sunday.

The Yolo Mail, Eureka Democratic Standard Lodi Sentinel, Santa Cruz Transcript, Lompoc Record, Los Angeles Mirror, Hanford Journal, have had the courage and honesty to declare that the law defiers should be made to obey the law and have manfully upheld the Sunday Law in the interests of good order, peace and decency. No doubt many more jonrnals have done so in the State, which do not come to this office, but if they are reported they will be added to the list.

The leading papers in circulation, the Chronicle, Call, Bulletin, Examiner, Atla and Record Union, either believe that the American people have no rights which the leag of foreign outlaws are bound to respect, and can make no law which the rumsellers are bound to obey—or they have not had courage to say they dont. But nobody ot to blame them for that lack of manliness, for they were all very brave and outspoken against the Chinese, who dont subscribe fifteen cents a week and on Denis Kearney who only subscribes fifteen cents a week; they expressed a courageous opinion on the crime of Guiteau, condemd Conkling and the British policy in Ireland and opium in China and Pres. Arthur's veto and were patriotic in publishing the cruelties on board of the Gatherer and about the fire escape from Dr. Kallock's church and they were humane as to the survivors of the Jeannette and have not lost a subcriber by it. It is too much therefore to expect them to be patriotic in a case of this kind between outlaw rumsellers and gamblers all the way from Germany and Ireland on the one side, and American homes and American women and children and schools and churches and institutions and laws, on the other.

They believe that if they take the side of the manslayers and children starvers and woman beaters and jury bribers, the Christian and temperance people and the respectable business men and thei families will subscribe for their papers just the same, for they must read the papers anyway and the anti-Sunday people will also. But if they take the decent side the rumsellers will stop their 15 cents a week because they dont want to read any way and can do just as well without the papers. Somebody said the other day that the cowardice which licks the dust for fear of personal violence from a prize-fighting bully is respectable compared with that which licks the feet of the pirates of the gutter for fear of losing a few dollars a month share of their blood money.

A COMPARISON.

A most salutary and timely example has been set by some people in Chicago, which ot to be put in practice in every town in California and its results published next month and every month in the county papers of the State even if it has to be paid for as an advertizement.

The duplicate tax list in the county auditors office was examined and it was found that ten business houses, dry goods, grocers, hardware, etc., paid $30,666 taxes last year and employed in various ways 5,500 men and women. Beside this personal tax their real estate taxes amounted to a still larger sum and individual partners paid a large amount of taxes on both real and personal property.

Then they selected ten saloon keepers at random from the city directory without any knowledge of their financial standing and they were found to foot up in the tax list $57.76 and employ 35 men. Only two of them paid tax on real estate and four paid no tax at all.

That is just what would appear all over this State; these outlaws only live by destroying all honest business, by loading taxes upon honest industry and lawful trade, by robbing and pauperizing good people's customers and by filling our jails and grave yards, employ no labor but kill a great deal, pay no taxes, but qurdruple other peoples'; but they must make laws for honest people and have Sunday abolished to enable them to rob and kill more victims.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The Home Protection Association of California was incorporated February 2, 1882, under the following Declaration of Principles:

The objects of this association are to obtain and organize means for the rigid enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors, particularly the Sunday laws; to secure the enactment of such other laws relating to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as may tend to render existing laws more effective; to obtain such additional legislation as may seem to be most expedient and effectual to protect our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of this traffic, and to diminish the burdens of taxation by further restricting this, the chief cause of idleness, crime, pauperism and insanity; to create by the distribution of temperance literature and public addresses, an intelligent, just and merciful public sentiment, which shall give practical force to temperance principles, and all other things suitable and proper to fully carry out and accomplish the objects and purposes hereinbefore set forth.

One object of the Association is to charter Auxiliary Associations in every town in California. The plan is simple and as follows:

MODE OF PROCEDURE.

Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may sign a request or application addressed to the Home Protection Association of California, for a charter to form an Auxiliary Association in (name of place), agreeing to sign the Register when received, which Register has a printed heading stating the object of the Association as above set forth. All are to pay $1.00 each yearly so long as a member. Five dollars are to be forwarded with the application for a Charter, for which a Charter and a complete set of books with Register sufficient for 600 names will be immediately sent, together with copies of the constitution and all necessary papers. Upon receipt of the charter and books, a meeting should be called, when all the applicants should sign the Register and any others who may so desire, when officers are to be elected and proceed in accordance with the constitution. Of the $1.00 paid by each member, 50 cents of the same is to be paid to the State Association for the payment of Lecturers and Organizers, and the distribution of temperance literature, and all other things which may forward the objects of the Association. The remaining 50 cents is to be used by the Auxiliary Association for expenses etc. The plan is simple and easy. If you feel the necessity for action the thing is quickly done. In half a day 10 or more names can be secured, the $1.00 paid in and the $5.00 sent to the State Secretary for the Charter and books.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; A. K. Stevens, Sec., 1907 Bush St., S. F.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R. Thompson, George Babcock, A. K. Stevens, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

OUR MUTUAL AID.

SOULSBYVILLE CAL.

About our Mutual Aid noticed in RESCUE of the 13th. I would say that during this quarter, I have sent two names from our Lodge, besides my own; making a start with three from our lodge; and I hope soon to get more to join. I think if our Grand Lodge could devise some means to give it a good start, or to insure the amount in case of death, many more would take hold of it. I consider it one of the best insurance systems in existence and think by a little special effort among the G. L. officers and RESCUE to be read in open Lodge, it can be easily set booming. One reason members are holding back is because it looks too cheap, to be safe; but we must use some means by writing or thinking it up, to get them out of that notion.

Fraternally Yours. W. H. BARRON, L. D.

That is just what we want; lots of L. Ds. and Good Templars to do as Bro. Barron has done. It dont need an inspired prophet to assure people that it is a safe institution. There are at least 1000 people in this state who, if there was any lame or unsafe or fraudulent possibilities about the enterprise, any false or mistaken principle in it, would immediately attack it, some to amend and improve, some to destroy it, and the RESCUE would be the first one to caution people against a wrong to befall them. But there is not a clause in it that is unsafe; if anything is capable of improvement it is always in Order to improve as experience may dictate. It may appear necessary and proper to extend the privilege of membership to worthy total abstainers and friends of temperance outside of the Order, who are just as safe risks as Good Templars. It may have been unwise to exclude them, that is a matter of opinion on which people honestly differ, but it matters little at present.

There is no need of any guarantee of any thing by the Grand Lodge, for every guarantee is already given that all losses will be promptly paid. And we know that we must have the cheapest insurance to be found anywhere. "It looks too cheap" Bro. Barron says; that is because our Grand Lodge is going to do most of the work; there is no President with a big salary and a marble palace to provide for; nothing at all of any amount but the death assessment.

The matter is perfectly simple; all we want is to feel a little pride in our Order, in having the best managed and safest and most economical mutual insurance in the world. No reason why we should not have two full classes by October. Of every 1000 of those who may join there will be probably 6 or 7 to die the first year; it is admitted that any of them who die before the class is full will leave so much less of a death benefit, but that can happen to but those few and cannot occur again. If any one is sure of dying within a year, he had better go somewhere else, to a concern that has all its classes full. But all who expect to live longer than a year can do better with us than anywhere else. Let us hear from 300 more like Bro. Barron, and then there will be no more hesitation.

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED—In Modoc Co., March 13, 1882, James Griffin a highly esteemed and worthy member of Live Oak Lodge, No. 297, of Plymouth, Amador Co. The Lodge passed the usual memorial resolutions and ceremonials.

Cedarville Lodge, No. 232 Modoc Co., on April 14, passed resolutions in memory of Mrs. Caroline Hironymous a worthy and esteemed member of that Lodge.

NEW SUBCRIBERS IN WOODLAND.

Mr F J Freeman, Hardware;
Mr John M Rhodes;
Messrs Charmak & Levi, Farmers and Genl Mdze;
Mr F W Whitmore, Druggist, Main St;
Miss M E Alexander, Milliner, College Block;
Mr A D Porter, Grocer, Main St;
Geo St Louis, Candy Store, opposite P. O.
James A Barclay, Jeweler and Watchmaker, Main St.;
J H Smith;
W W Keller, Furniture;

In the North American Review for May, Carl Schurz, treating of "Party Schisms and Future Problems", presents many well-considered observations which cannot fail to interest in the highest degree that large and growing class of citizens who refuse to be influenced by obsolete party cries. "Days with Longfellow", by Samuel Ward, contains personal reminiscences of the beloved poet just deceased, extending over a period of 45 years. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, in an article entitled "What does Revelation Reveal?" seeks to prove that the objections brot against the Bible by modern unbelievers are based upon a misconception of the true intent and scope of the sacred volume. Lieutenant-Commander Gorringe writes of "The Navy", with abundant knowledge of its needs, and with a degree of frankness almost, if not quite, unprecedented in the naval service. W. H. Mallock, the well-known English essayist, in the first of a series of "Conversations with a Solitary", very ingeniously contrives to put the advocates of democracy and modern progress on the defensive. Finally, Gail Hamilton contributes a paper, "The Spent Bullet", in which science, the pulpit and the law are with exquisite wit taken to task for the part they respectively played in the Guiteau-Garfield tragedy.

IN MEMORIAM.—Notices have been given at various times that In Memoriam resolutions will not be published in the RESCUE, but still they continue to be sent regularly, without date or place of death, with no intimation whether the age was 13 or 81, and constructed in language and pattern that have been worn out a thousand times and are obsolete. The organ of the order should register the date and place of death, the name, age, sex, standing, record and qualities of every member that is called home from our circle. And the memorial notice should be in decorous terms and shape, and should be respectful to the memory of the deceased, satisfactory to the bereaved and creditable to the Order. It is a very simple affair to write an appropriate memorial notice, but it is impossible to frame one in this office from the material presented in the resolutions that generally come to hand. Therefore, be it understood, memorial notices will be readily inserted; but resolutions that contain no particulars from which a respectful notice can be framed, will in the future receive no attention. Twice during the past year the name of the deceased was omitted in the resolutions sent for publication beside many other irregularities and it is time this matter should receive decorous attention.

MUTUAL AID ASSOCIATION.

I. O. G. T. OF CAL.

Every Good Templar between ages of 20 and 60 eligible if medical examination passed.

Two DIVISIONS, A and B. Benefits in A, $1.000; in B. $2.000. Entrance fee in A. $4; in B. $5. A member of one joining the other pays half fee; under 49 eligible to both.

Classes: 1st. 20 to 29 yrs; 2d. 30 to 39; 3d, 40 to 48; 4th, 49 to 56; 5th. 56 and upwards.

Assessments. On the death of a member each member of his division shall be assessed, 1st class, 75c; 2d. 90c; 3d, $1.15; 4th. $1.40; 5th, $1.70.

Notice of assessment payable in 30 days.

Benefits payable within 60 days, 1st class, 60c; 2d, 75c; 3d, $1; 4th, $1.25; 5th, $1.60.

For further particulars apply to G. W. S., Sacramento.

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

LAW AND LIQUOR.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

Now that the battle has begun in earnest, this little pamphlet ought to be in the hands of every man in the State. It is clear-cut and forcible in an eminent degree, is well calculated to arouse the conscience and carry conviction home to the heart.

Every Good Templars' Lodge in the State should send for at least 100 copies for gratuitous distribution, as one has said:

"It will be hard to find 12 pages in any modern publication that will do better work in the cause of temperance, and temperance societies and temperance people will do well to circulate the pamphlet by thousands and tens of thousands."

In view of the great interests now at stake, and with an earnest desire to do good, we have reduced the price to $3 per hundred, postage included.

Send your orders to me at 25 Russ street, San Francisco, J. C. SIMMONS, or to RESCUE OFFICE.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

E. H. BOSCHER, DRUGGIST,
169 Main Street,
jan1-82-1yr Stockton, Cal.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

50 Birds, Roses, Scenery, Landscape, Marine Views, Juvenile Scenes, etc., Chromo, 10 cents; 25 Transparent, 10 cents. Live Agents wanted. Agents' outfit, samples, etc., 10 cents. MILNES BROS., Bloomfield, Sonoma Co., Cal.

WHEN you order goods from San Francisco cash grocery 519 Post St. say whether to be sent by freight or express. Make checks or P. O. orders payable to H. A. Smith. Full particulars about ordering and general price list sent on application.

A few National Temperance Almanacs can be supplied at the RESCUE office; a 10 cent stamp will get one, and that is the cheapest way of remittance. The volume for 1882 is, as usual, full of good matter.

Plum butter, quince butter, apple butter or pear butter at 50c per 5 lb. tin, or $5,50 per dozen at 519 Post St.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G.Clark, Napa City; Dr. B. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

RENEW! RENEW!! RENEW!!!
GREAT OFFER FOR
Renewals and New Subscribers!

AN OPPORTUNITY TO BOTH
GET GOOD AND DO GOOD
WITHOUT ITS COSTING YOU ANYTHING.

Five of the Revolution "Class Papers" sent free—one each to any five addresses for one year for every cash renewal or cash subscriber sent to the RESCUE with $1.25.

The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, of Chicago, publishes eighteen monthly "class papers," as follows:

No. 1. "Our Young Ladies," especially for young ladies.
No. 2. "Our Young Men," especially for young men.
No. 3. "Our Women," especially for women.
No. 4. "The Christian," for any and every one who acknowledges the claims of God.
No. 5. "The Pastor," especially for pastors urging them to do their duty.
No. 6. "The Sunday-School Superintendent," setting forth the duties of the Sunday-school in relation to temperance, and what the superintendent may do
No. 7. "The Sunday-School Worker," intended to induce all Sunday-school teachers to teach temperance in their classes, and otherwise help the cause.
No. 8. "The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner," containing articles from Catholic divines, etc., intended to influence Catholic families.
No. 9. "The Pledge," for reform work; useful at any time.
No. 10. "The Prohibition Banner, for State or local prohibition work.
No. 11. "The Saloon Curse," a paper antagonizing the saloon on the merits of the question, "Saloons or no Saloons," without regard to temperance; especially suited to local prohibition work.
No. 12. "Home Protection," to help women to the ballot on the temperance question, for local or state home protection work.
No. 13. "The People," gotten up especially for the ordinary classes, mechanics, laboring men, etc.
No. 14. "The Railroad," for railroad employes.
No. 15. "The Anchor," for sailors, steamboat men, etc.
No. 16. "The Soldier," for soldiers.
No. 17. "The American Farmer," for farmers.
No. 18. "The Freeman, for colored people.

These papers are sent out monthly, each paper addressed, wrapped and mailed separately to each individual named. Each person sending $1.25 cash renewal or new subscriber for the RESCUE will be entitled to the privilege of selecting from the above list, five papers, all of one, or of different kinds, and ordering them sent to such parties as he may choose, monthly, for one year, without extra cost to him.

For your cash renewal, five papers.
For your cash renewal and one new subscription, or for two new subscribers, ten papers.
For your cash renewal and two new subscriptions, or for three new subscriptions, fifteen papers, and so on.

The "class papers" are small, four-page, two column papers, intended to take the place of tracts, on which they are certainly a great improvement. Each contains about 6,000 words in a number, or 70,000 in a year, choice matter, and they can not fail to do good wherever sent.

An arrangement with the "Revolution" makes this offer possible for a limited time only.

Those who avail themselves of this offer must give carefully and plainly the address of the parties to whom the class papers are to be sent, post-office, county and state. And no other premiums or discounts can be made on papers so ordered. There is no weekly temperance paper in the world so cheap as the RESCUE on these terms.

READ!! READ!!! What people say.

I am glad THE LEVER is doing well, I am its enthusiastic friend. It is bright, radical, and means business, and I like it and rejoice in its prosperity. MARY T. LATHRAP, Pres. S. W. C. T. U. of Mich.

I consider THE LEVER one of the very best temperance papers published. Its national circulation would do more to benefit the nation than a session of Congress. GEO. W. BAIN.

Its outspoken declarations in favor of temperance and the right are its best commentary. MOREAU S. CROSBY, Lieut. Gov. Mich.

THE LEVER is clear, strong, fearless and outspoken. It is ably edited, always on the right side; it ought to prosper and will. It should be widely read, and liberally supported. SAMUEL DICKIE, Prof in Albion College.

It ought to be in every family. I most cordially commend it. J. ESTABROOK, Supt. Franklin, Nor. Dep't., Olivet College.

The gross earnings of the C. P. R. R. for the first 10 months of 1881 were $19,684,790 an increase of 3 millions on the same period of 1880 and 5 million over 1879.

Did'n Regret. Bro. Webb sending more names for the Rescue mentions that Bro. Dunn, of Saticoy, says you persuaded me to take that paper before I knew anything about it. I want you to know that I never regretted it and when my time is up I want it to be renewed."

The Nebraska Liberator comes to hand temperance armor plated and L. C. Pace heading the articles as captain. It is presumed that is Col. Pace formerly of the Western World, a temperance paper that went down immediately after he left it. The hulk was raised several times with the help of divers and engineers, a new name painted on it, a new pilot engaged, steam put on, etc., but it would not float. The present venture to have an official State Temperance organ with the old and tried head and hand at the helm will stand a good chance of success; $1.25 a year. Lincoln, Neb.

A reader wants to hear some more about Riverside; has a feeling that he would like to live there and go into the raisin business. No dout a good many more will be heard from that way.

Rev. J. C. Simmons stands a lively chance of being arrested by the Leag of Schetzel Schaffer & Co., for selling liquor without license. He advertises to sell "Law and Liquor" for $3 a hundred. Pretty thing for a minister to do.

The Church and Home, illustrated, weekly, 8 page, is a very choice family journal, edited by a staff of very able writers, $1.25 a year. Send to David C. Cook, 148 Madison St., Chicago; only 50 cts. a year in clubs of 5 to schools, or 13 cts. per quarter.

Every doctor should have Dr. Richardson's "Medical Profession and Alcohol," and every minister, Dr. Kerr's "Unfermented Wine a Fact." Only 10 cents each.

Mrs. Stow publishes a bright, lively paper "Woman's Herald of Industry," devoted to woman's interests and woman's duties. $1 a year, monthly, 304 Stockton St., S. F.

The Organ of the Beer Poisoners in New York is well supported at $3,00 a year—one half of it is a patent outside and the other is made up of lies chiefly. Surely the Rescue at $1,25 a year ot to get 10,000 subscribers in this state.

Mrs. M. E. Richardson has been at Davisville and Woodland two or three days; arrived in San Francisco Tuesday evening loaded with trophies of success in her mission of good and with fifty subscriptions for the Rescue.

The Association of thieves who sell poison drinks in Canada have applied for a grant of land in the Northwest territory on which to plant a colony of drunkards (presumably) or law-breakers and the prime minister (who sold out the people to the railroad Syndicate) is glad they have applied in time.

Don't get his paper. If ever the Rescue fails to reach its readers at the proper time and at the same time punctually every week, please report at once. It is never late here, and no precaution is neglected to make it as punctual as sunrise; always mailed here at least an hour before noon of Thursday.

Subscribers this week. Modesto 1; Volney Taylor (Byron and Contra Costa) 7; Colusa (W. C. King) 11; Little River 1; Oregon 2; Mrs. M. E. Richardson 50 (Davisville 2; S. F. 1. Dixon 1; Grafton 1; Madison 3; Winters 3; Sacramento 1; Woodland 31; Yolo 5; Blacks Station 2.) In all 72.

The Rev. Henry Wheeler, of Plymouth, G. W. Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of England (seceded branch), died on the 14th of February. He was a gallant defender of the faith, an untiring worker in the cause of temperance, a consistent minister of the gospel and a man whom all good men and all good women in every clime and country could affectionately and admiringly claim as a brother and friend. It is hoped the Good Templars of England will generously repay to his widow a portion of the services he so unselfishly gave to the Order.

Read Hammond on Tobacco in this number and think of having such a mountebank of quackery filling the responsible position of Surgeon General. He may be a first class operator with the knife, but his acquaintance with the workings of the machinery of the human system is on a par with that of the old time fetish oracles, who prescribed as a certain cure for warts, to rub them with a pea, walk backwards nine steps, and then thro the pea over your head backward into the well.

John Northrup offers in the Mariposa Gazette to present to any State or the United States the law of God which he has in manuscript direct from the Great Spirit, on condition that the State or States so blessed will publish it. That word of God he says will settle the Chinese difficulty. He seems to hint that the Chinese race are just about numerous enough to last out the excavation and completion of the Panama canal. Mr. Northrup is a valuable man to have up in Mariposa so handy.

The Leag of Schetzel and Shaeffer all over the country must be adding new refinements to the depraving qualities of the liquors which they furnish their victims. Every few weeks a new crime is invented; the latest or one of the latest is that of a tramp who robs a house when the parents are out, and piles the children over some powder which he exploded, and thus burned them horribly. Some new ingredient in the beer must have come into fashion.

"In England, some years since, a number of saloon keepers got up a Life Insurance Co., to demonstrate the fallacy of temperance statistics as applied to insurance and the mortality of liquor-sellers. In 5 or 6 years it became insolvent. From Government official books from 1851 to 1860 it has been shown that out of carpenters, bricklayers and ordinary mechanics and laborers, 17 out of every 2000 die; if they take saloon keepers 40 out of every 1000 die per year." Look up the Mutual Aid circular and read.

Crimes that used to be heard of once or twice in a century and whose mention made strong men stand appalled with horror are getting to be frequent occurrences. People have continued to vote for old whisky parties and the leag of free rum and cared nothing that the first born of every family has been slain and that the country is going headlong to moral ruin. Now, however, when a seven year old girl cannot be trusted out of sight for fear of being outraged and murdered by the crazed victims of the beer shop, perhaps an awakening may take place, especially as we hear more than once a week of a lynching of some poor devil that the Leag of Fiendom has manufactured and put on the market.

The N. Y. Tribune says despondingly that the Democrats have carried Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Toledo, Dayton, Chicago, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Dubuque, Minneapolis. It thinks the Pond liquor bill issued in Ohio had something to do with it, but appeals to President Arthur to ask if he don't see that there is a lack of leadership. If the Republican party is going to look to him or the Tribune for leadership it may as well save any further expense for medicine and have the most economical funeral possible. It wants a few leaders to compel it to divorce itself from its alliance with the cutthroat beer and whisky interest, which is disposing of the Republican party just as it has always done with its individual victims, sending it to the poor house and the potters field. The party thinks it can balance its losses thru beer by corruption in the South.

Jesse James.—The Rescue is offered a copy of the life of this hero if it will insert an advt. calling for agents to sell it on commission. It shall have a free advertizement and the readers of this paper are earnestly urged to avoid it as they would poison. If that most cruel murderous villain led a life of adventure and had thrilling escapes and the boys of America read the stories of them as they will doutless be presented as heroic deeds, lots of men will some day say on the gallows that they were started in a career of crime by reading the life of Jesse James. It ought to be denied passage thru the mails and to be seized and burned up in a bonfire of whisky. There was a noted thief, Jack Shepherd in England, who was hung like a dog and the buzzards of literature and of the theater made a hero of him and called the villainous play, "the moral drama of Jack Shepherd." And it poisoned thousands. Dont read the nasty book here alluded to; it is rotten with sin and crime and its only result can be to deprave and demoralize.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD.

The Christian Commonwealth, London, an excellent journal contained recently two pages of communications from clergymen of various denominations on the subject of non attendance at the churches. One of the replies is as follows.

"But is there not another cause? Look at the worldliness of the churches. Instead of being the lights of the world, the various denominations vie with one another who shall be the greatest, by building large and costly buildings to satisfy pride and please the world. If the one will have its Zion, the other must have its sanctuary, no matter whether they have the means to do so or not; and in order to raise funds and pay off their debts, they must resort to all manner of worldly means, so that the world is converting the churches instead of the churches converting the world. I must say no more, but ask your readers if the following poem does not give us a true picture of what the nominal Church has come to—"

"The Church and the World walked far apart,
On the changing shores of time,
The World was singing a giddy song,
And the Church a hymn sublime.
'Come, give me your hand,' said the merry World,
'And walk with me this way;'
But the good Church hid her snowy hand,
And solemnly answered, 'Nay,
I will not give you my hand at all,
And I will not walk with you.
Your way is the way that leads to death;
Your words are all untrue.'

'Nay, walk with me but a little space,'
Said the World, with a kindly air;
The road I walk is a pleasant road,
And the sun shines always there;
Your path is thorny, and rough, and rude,
But mine is broad and plain.
My way is paved with flowers and dews,
And yours in tears and pain.
The sky to me is always blue;
No want, no toil I know
The sky above you is always dark,
Your lot is a lot of woe?
There's room enough for you and for me
To travel side by side.'

Half shyly the Church approached the World
And gave him her hand of snow;
And the old World grasped it, and walked along,
Saying in accents low;
'Your dress is too simple to please my taste.
I will give you pearls to wear,
Rich velvets and silks for your graceful form,
And diamonds to deck your hair.'
The Church looked down at her plain, white robes,
And then at the dazzling World,
And blushed as she saw his handsome lip
With a smile contemptuous curled.
'I will change my dress for a costlier one,'
Said the Church with a smile of grace;
Then her pure white garments drifted away.
And the World gave in their place
Beautiful satins, and shining silks,
Roses and gems, and costly pearls;
While over her forehead her bright hair fell
Crisped in a thousand curls.

'Your house is too plain,' said the proud old World
'I'll build you one like mine;
Carpets of brussels and curtains of lace,
And furniture ever so fine.'
So he built her a costly and beautiful house,
Most splendid it was to behold;
Her sons and her beautiful daughters dwelt there,
Gleaming in purple and gold.
Rich fairs and shows in the halls were held,
And the World and his children were there.
Laughter and music and feasts were heard
In the place that was meant for prayer.
There were cushioned pews for the rich and the gay
To sit in their pomp and pride;
But the poor clad in shabby array
Sat meekly down outside.

'You give too much to the poor,' said the World,
'Far more than you ought to do;
If they are in need of shelter and food,
Why need it trouble you?
Go, take your money and buy rich robes;
Buy horses and carriages fine,
Buy pearls, and jewels, and dainty food;
Buy the rarest and costliest wine.
My children they dote on all these things,
And if you their love would win,
You must do as they do, and walk in the way
That they are walking in.'

Then the Church held fast the strings of her purse,
And modestly lowered her head,
And simpered, 'Without doubt you are right, sir,
Henceforth I will do as you have said.'
So the poor were turned from her door in scorn,
And she heard not the orphan's cry,
But she drew her beautiful robes aside,
As the widows went weeping by.
Then the sons of the World and the sons of the Church
Walked closely hand and heart;
And only the Master, who knoweth all,
Could tell the two apart.

Then the church sat down at her ease and said,
'I am rich, and my goods increase;
I have need of nothing, nor aught to do.
But to laugh, and dance, and feast.'
The sly World heard, and he laughed in his sleeve,
And mockingly said aside;
'The Church is fallen, the beautiful Church,
And her shame is her boast and her pride.'
The angel drew near to the mercy seat,
And whispered in sighs her name.
Then the loud anthems of rapture were hushed,
And heads were crowned with shame.
And a voice was heard at last by the Church,
From Him who sat on the throne;
'I know thy works, and how thou hast said,
I am rich: and hast not known
That thou art naked, and poor, and blind,
And wretched before My face;
Therefore, from My presence I cast thee out,
And blot thy name from its place."

Yours faithfully,
M. P. Davis,

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

BY B. W. RICHARDSON, M. D., F. R. S.

XVI.—ALCOHOL AND CRIME.

Again, we have had brought out before us in a manner never before the relationship of alcohol to crime. Our judges now are alive to this subject. Some have said that 90 per cent of the cases come from this cause, and this very day the papers contain a charge by Mr. Justice Kay, in which he says judicially—"I know by my experience that 50 per cent of the crime of the kingdom springs from this cause." We have come down to individual forms of moral offence. Just think of this. I am president of a society called "The Medical Temperance Association." There are 300 of us banded together as Total Abstainers—physicians and surgeons in large practice—not to make a propaganda of Total Abstinence, but to meet amongst ourselves (strangers are welcomed), and discuss the points relating to Total Abstinence which are most interesting to us in the treatment of disease. A little while ago the question came up as to the treatment of dipsomania. That being a public question we opened our doors generally. We had a very remarkable discussion on this subject, and what struck me as I was presiding was that everybody who spoke dealt with one moral aspect of the question. We speak when talking of a disease of its "diagnosis"—in other words, an explanation of the disease from its symptoms. We were all of this mind, that one of the most diagnostic marks of drink-craving, that which distinguishes it as a mental characteristic from all other things is, that the drink-craver is always a falsehood teller, that there is no actual case where a person affected with the drink craving has been known to speak the truth, that we can never believe a word they say, and many of us are of opinion that the tendency to untruthfulness descends to the children of those people. See how solemnly strange it is that a physical agent should be taken into the body which should after a time so destroy all moral sense of right and thot of responsibility, that the very foundation of morality is actually so changed that the person becomes as it were naturally and habitually the child and representative of falsehood. These are facts which were not known twenty years ago, and which must in the end tell largely as they are made known in the promotion of our cause.

RIVERSIDE.

BY ELDER M. V. WRIGHT, NUMBER TWO.

Ed. Rescue:—Perhaps a few words in respect to the origin of the above colony would not be without interest to your many readers in the East. I shall aim to imagine myself in their stead, and write just such facts as I think I should wish to know. And I would state right here, that I write these communications disinterestedly so far as pecuniary benefit is concerned. I have no land to sell, am in no way connected with the Riverside Land and Irrigating Co., and have not the remotest connection with any scheme of speculation whatever, directly nor indirectly. I say this much because often what is written about this coast, as well as other portions of our country, is nothing more nor less than an advertisement of the personal interests of the writer, or the base misrepresentations or bare-faced lies of the paid agent of some corporation.

This colony was organized in 1870 under the name of the "Southern California Colony Association." The Hon. J. W. North, now agent of the Washington Irrigated Colony, of Fresno Co., was chosen President, and James P. Greves, late P. M. of Riverside, Sec. Both of these gentlemen were exceedingly kind and lenient to the settlers, selling the water to them at a merely nominal rate, and never urging them for their indebtedness to the Co. so that in three or four years from the date of settlement, they were indebted to the said Co. several thousand dollars for water alone. Hon. C. N. Felton of your city, owned four-sevenths of the capital stock. The company having spent over $50,000 in the construction of ditches and flumes, and Mr. Felton seeing very little prospect of realizing anything for a long time on his investment, became dissatisfied and wanted to get out of it. At this point the prospects of the colony began to look rather gloomy; but our salvation was near at hand, for just about this time the present Riverside Land and Irrigating Co. was organized, for the purpose of developing certain lands adjoining those of the Southern Cal. Colony Association. In a short time the former company bought out all the interests of the latter and ever since that event the colony has wonderfully prospered and progressed beyond the highest anticipations of the most enthusiastic. Mr S. C. Evans of Ft. Wayne, Indiana, is President of the present Co., and Mr. D. W. McLeod, Sec'y., both of whom are very genial, kind, and obliging gentlemen, and have shown their faith in the enterprise by their works. The company which has a large capital, went immediately to work to enlarge and lengthen the canal of the former Co., and at the same time to construct a second and much larger canal, so that while under the former Co. our canals had a capacity of perhaps 1,000 or 1,500 inches, under the latter, they will carry from 6,000 to 8,000 inches; and what is better we have the water to fill them. Under the former company we had about 10 miles of canal, under the latter over 30.

The above comparisons are not drawn to reflect upon the original Co., for the greatest praise and honor is due these noble pioneers whose brains conceived, and whose energy, toil, and perseverance inaugurated this, doubtless the most successful colony in the United States. In it they have a prouder, more beautiful, and more enduring monument to their memories, than the grandest artmaster of the world ever chiseled from the finest marble, or fashioned from the purest gold.

The present Co., owns some ten or twelve thousand acres of irrigable land. There are at present, perhaps, over 4,000 acres under cultivation, and when their contemplated system of reservoirs is completed, that, together with the saving of water, by means of sub-irrigation, (irrigation thru underground pipes) will no doubt furnish water enough for all of their lands. I think that during the past three or four years the population has fully doubled. Real estate, both improved and unimproved has also within that time, advanced over a huudred per cent. Eight years ago when I came here, the company were selling their unimproved lands at from $20 to $40 (dollars) per acre. And now they are selling at from $125 to $250, per acre, and bearing orchards that have perhaps cost their owners up to date from $200 to $300 per acre, are now selling at from $800 to $1,000 per acre, and in one instance at $1,600 per acre. And the end is not yet, for this colony is no longer an experiment, but a fixed fact. One of the institutions of the world. It is here to stay, whether the Chinese are or not. "Yes, (says some poor trembing nerve-shattered Yankee) provided one of your all-fired earthquakes dont shake yer bones out of ye." Well, as Rev. Howaid Crosby, the saloon keepers friend would say, "You ranting, rearing, raving fanatic, be calm, be temperate, dont get excited," yes my brother, keep your coat on until your six months winter is over, or until you get to Southern Cal. where it is pleasant enough for nine months in the year to go without it. But, purposing in a future article to do up a sample or two of our earthquakes and send them to your readers, I will only add for the present, that they are not among the native products of our soil nor the result of our "glorious climate," notwithstanding we can raise almost everything in this state from a horned toad to a sand storm, and from a vile, peace-disturbing, mischief-making temperance fanatic, to that poor innocent, harmless, persecuted down-trodden, widow-pitying and orphan-loving public benefactor, and people's pet, the noble saloon-keeper, "God bless him,"—by converting him from his hellish and soul daming work.

A good Temperance Hotel, Ventura. Mr. Albert Ayers, County Treasurer, keeps a good quiet hotel, spreads an excellent table, furnishes comfortable rooms and has no bar in or adjoining the house. There is a large reading room with a great variety of papers among them the Rescue for which he subscribes. The Stages stop at the Ayers Hotel, going both north and south and passengers will do well to stop there, especially should temperance people patronize a temperance hotel.

SANCTIFICATION.

A lady in Oregon asks for an opinion on the nature of the "sanctification" which when people profess to get, they withdraw from the Good Templars Lodge and abandon temperance work least their personal qualities should suffer in such worldly pursuits. It is a fact that some people who have professed entire sinlessness and were sincere in it, have exhibited the most touchy tendencies of temper and have exercised the most inveterate continued unforgiving malice against their neighbor and claimed it was a holy anger. But that dont prove very much, for some people have professed temperance and kept drinking on the sly.

But here is what a Rev. Editor in Kentucky says: "A whisky dealer, a member of the Methodist Church in this city, discussed with us the doctrine of sanctification and claimed that he was in a state incapable of sinning, complete holiness. If he could separate his business from his life, his claims would have more foundation. He is a child of God doing the devil's work. His very prosperity adds woe and misery to humanity. Such sanctification fills hell and robs heaven, making demons to rejoice and angels to weep."

It is not to be supposed that satan wastes time fooling with a bar keeper or people who would do his work any way. If he is as cunning as we are told, his best business is to disguise himself and get into the Christian workshop wherever he can and into the lodge room and editorial room, etc. It must be a grim triumph for him to turn a sanctified Christian into a crank. But a sanctified whisky dealer must be one of his most priceless bonanzas of good fortune.

A REFORM PARTY.

ED. RESCUE:—In your article on "Who killed the Democratic Robin" in last issue, you seem to be oblivious of the fact that there is any other political party in the country except the Democratic and Republican parties for at the close you say "It is time we had one or two parties which would range the gentleman and patriot on the opposite side to the jail bird and the human vulture." Now we want but just one such party as you ask for, and that we have in the National Greenback Labor party, (should be called Reform party) for the "gentlemen and patriots" should be all united if they desire to accomplish any great reforms. The National Greenback Labor party is as truly a reform party as the Prohibition party. It was primarily organized to bring about a reform in the financial affairs of the country; but has by degrees grappled with other abuses that have crept into the affairs of government, till now it is fearlessly espousing the cause of Temperance and Woman Suffrage.

Its leaders are not broken down, disappointed, chronic office seekers and politicians, but as a general thing are pure patriots and philanthropists, who had at heart only the best interests of the people, most conspicuous among whom are ministers of the gospel and farmers; and I cannot recall to mind a single prominent man who belongs to the party but is a good temperance man. And this is but natural. Men of ability do not often leave their old party especially if it be a dominant party and join a new one while in its swaddling clothes except from principle. They stand a better show to reap a share of the spoils by remaining with the old party.

A man who is not seeking his own aggrandizement or personal gain, and has become disgusted with the corruption of his party, and discouraged about its ever reforming, is a man of pure motives and patriotic feelings; and you will almost universally find him to be ready and willing and anxious to grapple with any and all resorm measures.

It is not policy that has induced several State conventions of the N. G. L. party to adopt Prohibition and Woman Suffrage planks, for that would be the greatest stupidity as a catching dodge; but it was the natural off-shoot of pure minds seeking to build up a great and glorious reform party. They don't expect to ride into power in a day but they wish to lay a foundation so strong and so impregnable that all the thunderbolts of the old corrupt parties when unitedly hurled against it will utterly fail to shiver a single plank. As I said before, we want but one National Reform party; and now let all reformers, Greenbackers, Anti-monopolists, Prohibitionists, Home Protectionists etc., unite under one glorious banner and the fight will be short and decisive.

There never was a more favorable time to build up a reform party than the present, for there is not a single issue dividing the old parties, (excepting always the spoils of office) and all good and patriotic men are yearning to see a new craft heave in sight that has the promise of safety, so that they can flee from the old rotten sinking ship they are on.

W. C. T. U. LITERATURE.

EXTRACT FROM MISS JULIA COLMAN'S REPORT.

We ask, also, at this point for your special co-operation in the Course of Reading planned for the Local Unions. One of these on Beer will be ready in December, and a little later one on Wine, and another on cider. Please look at circulars and announcements, and take up whichever best suits your locality. One point of special advantage is that it provides for the distribution of cheap tracts in connection with the reading, thus making it a theme of general interest, which the ladies can promote, and so the tracts become much more effective, and the entire community more intelligent. We have had nothing like it before, and it invites your special attention. Each course will be issued in a fine octavo pamphlet, of forty-eight pages, which will cover a period of about ten months, thus allowing for interruptions which will be likely to come in most Unions. Please send for a copy at once, with a view to introducing it in your Union. This is cheap literature, which will prove self-sustaining with your co-operation, and yet it is most of it original in matter and in method of use.

And now, dear sisters, have you not abundant reason to sustain your own Literature Department, which has pioneered and planned and systematized for you with an effectiveness that has excited the commendation not only of our own workers, but of outsiders. One gentleman, more than forty years an effective worker for Temperance, said, when he learned about the Beer Crusade, that he thot the women were inspired, this seemed to be so exactly what was needed. A lady, prominent in the management of one of the grand Foreign Missionary Societies, said she was constantly amazed at the amount of brain work demonstrated in the work of the W. C. T. U., and especially in the Literature Department. But still more do we cherish the appreciation of our owu sister workers, and we have larger plans for the future in the same line, which cannot be developed without your assistance. It remains for you dear friends, to cheer and help, and we shall look hopefully for prompt responses. Direct to

A FAIR QUESTION.

INTEMPERATE IN TOBACCO.

We wonder if it can be true that abstinence in drink has a tendency to cause and justify intemperance in tobacco? We think this is a fair question; we cannot but help ask it. The present week has seen a great number of temperance people in Des moines—mostly strong and radical temperance people. The Register office had visits from several of them, which was very complimentary to it. But we noticed, as one particular fact, that the most radical men on the temperance question were not only immoderate but extremely intemperate in the use of tobacco. The stronger the advocate of prohibition, as it seemed, the stronger was the cigar, the smoke of which he could coolly puff into any one's face, or the larger the cud in his mouth, and the nastier the drool of tobacco juice on his lips. Some of the good people nearly choked us to death with their clouds of tobacco smoke while telling us of the terrible and degrading use of drink, and others in telling the same story of pathos, could hardly work their tongues for the dirty cuds they had in their mouths, and for having to stop so frequently to make a sewer of their lips. It may have been very wicked—we suppose it was—but while we were being suffocated in the smoke of those poor cigars, and being made to wonder how so much disgusting fluid could be issued from the human mouth, we found ourselves sighing for some wicked man to come in who had nothing in him more nasty than good whisky. We wanted a change. But seriously, why is it that there is a larger percentage of tobacco-burners and eaters among temperance workers than among any other set of men, and why on earth is it that so many of them use such poor tobacco to smoke, and that they never learn to spit without spitting all over a room and without any regard for decency? Can it be that they are filthier in the use of tobacco than other people are? Or is it because such depravity looks worse in reformers than in ordinary mortals?—Iowa State Register.

Harper's Weekly fearlessly speaks the truth in the following paragraph.

"In Boston a century ago, Samuel Adams, James Otis, and the Sons of Liberty insisted with eloquent urgency that taxation without representation is tyranny. When the British Ministry replied that they were virtually represented, the Bostonians retorted that they would have actual representation, and they shook off the British connection to obtain it.

"There are to-day in Boston according to the statement of a Massachusetts Senator, 8,500 women who hold property valued at $75,000,000, upon which they pay an annual tax of more than $1,000,000. They are told by the sons of Adams and Otis that they are virtually represented. Yet there is not one of those sons who would submit in his own case to virtual representation any more than their fathers submitted. Now if it was right or expedient that the colonies should tax themselves, why is it not equally right and expedient that women should have a voice in levying and expending the taxes upon their own property?"

But even progressive Harper's Weekly does not carry the comparison to its logical result. Why should tardy justice stop at giving woman a voice in the disposal of the tax levy which she helps to pay, and not give her a voice in deciding other matters which affect her welfare and happiness still more closely? Is her pocket-book of so much greater value to her than her children, that her right to a voice in the disposal of its contents should be recognized, while she is denied the privilege of voting upon matters which will affect for good or ill, the whole future of her children's lives? She has an equal right with men to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, as well as of wealth. Why recognize her right to representation in the last instance, and leave the first ones entirely to the generosity of her masculine friends? She has an equal or a greater interest in the home than in the public treasury. Why give her a voice in the disposal of the public funds, and leave her powerless to protect her private interests or to guard her children from temptations with which wicked men have surrounded them. Evidently the protection of her pocket-book is not the ultimate object for which woman should contend, nor the greatest concession which justice should acknowledge as her due.—Signal.

THOSE men who question the financial shrewdness and ability of women, careful observation should convince that as a general thing good wives are ever more prudent, thrifty and economical financiers than men. Put money in your wife's purse and send her out shopping, and she will, nine times out of ten, make $1 go as far again as you will. Hundreds of prosperous men to-day owe their success to the counsel and advice of their wives, to whom they have confided: nor are they ashamed to acknowledge it. Many are the bankrupts who would have continued in prosperity had they but followed the advice of their wives. Let every husband consider his wife entitled to a fair share of his income for personal and family expenses, avoid meddling with the interior details of the home, trusting implicitly to the judgment and management of the wife, and the cases will be rare where the result will not be greater domestic happiness, as well as pecuniary advant age.—Globe Democrat.

It used to be a delightful manly amusement to attribute all the blame of hard times, drunken husbands, short crops, war, grasshoppers, chilblains, tornadoes, divorces, steamboat accidents, bankruptcy decline in real estate and increase in suicide and insanity—to the extravagance and loquacity of women and the shocking depravity of mothers-in-law. To have to give up that large resource of journalistic enterprise will necessitate the opening of new fields to cultivate. When the women and mothers-in-law have votes, the independent, manly, secular press and the honest politician will treat them with tender respect.

To tax saloon-keepers for the coffins in which their victims are buried would relieve many a family, and often a county, from an unjust expenditure. In fact five coffins should go to every barrel of whisky. This would enable young men to stare at the awful fate of drunkards.—Prohibitionist.

D. G. W. C. T.'s COMMISSIONED.—The following commissions have been issued and forwarded from the Grand Worthy Secretary's office during the past week:

LODGE DEPUTIES.

Miss F. M. Haden, for No. 346, Bodie.
John Chestnutwood, for 253, Linden.
M. A. Yarnall, for No. 246, Orange.
Alice Boynton, for No. 320, Fairfield.
D. K. Zumualt, for No. 48, Visalia.

THE RESULT.—The week's labors of Col. J. T. Long and Mrs. E. P. Stevens in Sacramento as mentioned last week, resulted in securing 118 names to a union with the cause and Order. Thirty-four were initiated at a meeting of Siloam Lodge on Saturday evening and 26 at the meeting of Capital Lodge on the following Tuesday.

HOME PROTECTION.—Rev. Dr. M. C. Briggs of Alameda, and Col. Geo. Babcock of San Francisco, addressed the people of Sacramento upon the question of Home Protection, on Friday evening last. At the close of the meeting a Home Protection club was formed and placed in good hands for a successful and vigorous work.

BANNER WEEK —This is "Banner week" and what are you doing about it? The last R. W. G. L. requested the National Temperance Society to publish the Youth's Temperance Banner weekly instead of monthly, the request being made at the urgent solicitation of the Grand Lodge of California. The request was complied with, and the Banner is now being published weekly at a large expense. Lodges and Bands of Hope have been appealed to by the G. S. J. W. in the matter. Let all take hold and make this special effort a successful one. Send large subscription lists accompanied with the cash, at the rate of 50 cts a year per copy to Bro. J. N. Stearns, 58 Reade street New York City, and prove that so far as California is concerned, at any rate, the necessity for a weekly juvenile temperance paper really exists and that the effort to supply it is appreciated.

The Temperance picnic.—The Temperance picnic held at Dansville on Saturday last proved a decided success in every respect. Amusements were plenty and suited to the tastes and enjoyment of all.

The programme of literary exercises was varied and interesting. The crowning of the May Queen and braiding of the May-pole was successfully rendered by the sisters of Chrysopolis Lodge at Woodland. No incident occurred to mar the happiness and enjoyment of all—save the detention of the Sacramento excursionists who were detained upon the grounds until eight o'clock when they were promised to return at six. The manager was severely and justly censured for this, as the many ladies and children were not prepared for such an emergency. The attendance from the surrounding country was large fully 2,000 persons being present during the day.

Facts from the returns.—For the term ending January 31st. 351 lodges filed quarterly returns showing a bona fide reported membership of 18,249. A number of lodges neglected to file their returns; these are not counted in at all, but are placed upon the delinquent list and held in suspense. It will be seen that the 351 lodges report an average membership of 52 per Lodge, which is an unusually high per centage. In fact it would be interesting to know if there is another jurisdiction of equal size which attains as high an average. There are 26 lodges representing a membership exceeding 100, three of them having a membership exceeding 200 and up to 258.

The 26 lodges mentioned hold an aggregate membership of 3717 or an average of 143 per lodge. The proportion of Good Templars to population (exclusive of wild Indians, Chinese and Japanese) in this state is one to every fifty inhabitants. It will at once be recognized that the Order has been making rapid progress in this state. At the session of the Grand Lodge held in October last the membership was reported as 17241. Including the charter membership of new Lodges organized since February 1st and the showing above, the new membership of the Order in this State to-day is very nearly 19,000.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

W. C. KING.

My last was written at Arbuckle—a place that has had a lodge at least twice in the near past. This fact added much to the difficulties of the work and made it a question with me as to duty. On Sat. eve, however, 27 persons signified their willingness to try again and were organized into a lodge. Those acquainted with the village assured me that the best element in the place was found among the number and I feel sure good work will be done by the lodge.

From Arbuckle went to College City where the attendance was large and the interest excellent. I never before spoke to audiences that were made up as entirely of young people. This was due to two causes, 1st the college, 2d the unpardonable lethargy of the citizens of the community on this question. They abstain and would not wish a saloon in the village but leave the lodge and all temperance work to the youth. This is wrong. Bro. Hewitt and Walker did much to make my stay pleasant and for the same have sincere thanks. I also remember Professor Durham and his hearty greeting and cordial assistance with much pleasure. The college located here, is so far as my short visit to it gave me opportunity to judge, doing excellent work. President Keith and his assistants did all in their power to give me an insight into its efficiency and impressed me as eminently fitted for their work. It certainly ought to be noted by parents when selecting a school for their children that there is no saloon nearer than three miles to College City.

On Wednesday April 19th, Bro. Langenour, (can you come any nearer spelling by sound than I did?) took me to Sycamore, a distance of 12 miles. This lodge has done excellent work and nearly starved out the one saloon that curses the quiet little hamlet. May it soon be not almost but altogether. Altho they already generously subscribe for the RESCUE yet I secured a few names. Bro. Liening the D. C. T. met me here and took me to Colusa and to his elegant home. Early the following day we started for a trip to the Mountains. That evening a few assembled at the small hall in Leesville but no effort was made to accomplish anything definite. Saturday A. M. we found after facing some difficulties Sulpher Creek and as Bro. L—— expressed it "If it is not 'Old Nicks' home one would judge he was not far away." The small village is in a narrow canyon and from the many hot sulpher springs a steam heavily laden with the smell of sulphur ascends until the air is stifling and heavy. Where the people came from I could not see but I had large and attentive hearings and received thirty names to paper asking for a charter but local reasons gave me cause to think it not wise to press an organization.

On Monday, we returned to Colusa and visited the lodge the same evening and on Tuesday went to Grimes Landing. The last lodge organized here never held one meeting; further comment is unnecessary. We returned to Colusa the same evening and Thursday eve I began my work here. The attendance has been all I could expect and I have fifty-seven names as favorable to a lodge and have set aside this evening to be devoted to organizing work and hope in my next to report a good lodge and large list for the RESCUE. Bros. Liening and McNary were over last evening rendering assistance. I can not speak too warmly of the zeal and and self-sacrificing devotion to our cause of the D. C. T., Bro. J. H. Liening and he is doing all in his power to aid me—which is not a little.

Williams, April 27, 1882.

H. R. HUGHES.

The 16, met a few people at Rincharts S. H. who desired to have me return Friday and try to organize a lodge. On the afternoon at Waterford had a small meeting. It was a very cold windy day, and they did not expect me to come. The 18, at Salida, —a small meeting—the temperance discouraged and have given up all hope of starting up their lodge again. But I think every lecturer that goes thru should lecture there, and peg away until the lodge is re-organized.

The 20, at Bel Pasi made arrangements to organize a Band of Hope,—the next afternoon which we did with 23 members. Miss Ida Henderson Supt. I am indebted to Sister Ida Henderson for this Band, as she worked it up—and it was at her request that I held meetings there. As the District intend building a new S. H. soon, this Band has a prospect of being the forerunner of a lodge. A happier lot of children it has not been my fortune to see as they had no S. S. nor meeting of any kind. The 21 and 22 at Rhineharts got 12 names for a lodge—which I have sent to Bro. Gage D. D. and as he is to preach there I expect he can easily get enough to organize. The weather has been windy and very cold and the people have long distances to come out.

The 23 at Cometa, but parties there had failed to receive notices on time—and as some one had an appointment to preach in the neighboring S. H., no arrangements were made for me, and I returned and went to church at Burneyville—a treat not often enjoyed while Grand Lecturing. This week I have been at Wildwood, Atlanta and Ripon. Wildwood Lodge now hold their meetings at Atlanta—the L. D. Bro. Moore, is D. S. of the county and an active worker—did all he could to make my meeting a success. Much sickness prevails in the community and my meetings were consequently small. At Ripon the Lodge is holding out bravely against many discouragements, They expect Col. Goulding to attend their picnic next Monday, and are in hopes of an increased interest as a result.

Ripon April 28, 1882.

C. N. GOULDING.

During the past week I have visited International, Head Light, Constitution and Orion Lodges and on the 29th addressed a large audience at Brentwood or near there in the grove, the occasion being a May Day "Picnic" also held an evening meeting in the school house which was largely attended and I trust some good was accomplished, to-day (May 1st) am attending another picnic on the banks of the Stanislaus, and here as at Brentwood a large audience has assembled, I shall ("after lunch") when I think they well be able to bear it, inflict a speech on them, Bro. Hughes has been thru this part of the country, and I was in hopes to have met him here. My trip north has been extended into Del Norte County, I understand, if so it will of necessity cause a change in my Humboldt County, appointments I suppose as I am on the "skirmish line" it was thot best to keep me moving.

Ripon, May 1, 1882.

J. W. WEBB.

By restraining my pen for two weeks I have not been guilty of taking more than my fair share of space for lecture reports.

VENTURA has now two lodges both manifesting interest in the cause and by fraternal visits showing a friendly feeling. The old lodge has very comfortable quarters in the ample parlors of Sister Reilly, well furnished and with piano, etc. The new one meets in a neat little hall well supplied with requisites. I instituted a Degree Temple, officers and members selected from both lodges. Band of Hope with Sister Bard Supt. and Mr. Hare Assistant does well and numbers over 100. Visited and addressed seven schools urging abstinence from the triple evils. We missed Bro. Seward, Pastor of Presbyterian Church but he was attending the Presbytery at San Diego during the sessions of which I hear they had a warm, lively temperance meeting, one of the preachers just from Kansas giving them gratifying news from that young Prohibition State, declaring there was no fear that it would recede from its noble advanced position—too many mothers, fathers, Christian women and preachers working heart and soul for it. At Ventura we had some excellent meetings tho like most county seats it is difficult to get many out on ordinary occasions. I think they will soon secure Sister May Guthries valuable services for a lecture. To hear her, all the lawyers even and others will turn out. On Sunday morning lectured at the Avenue School House. The District Lodge at Mound was a grand success, a full house of delegates and visitors at the six sessions during two days and nights. It was decided to initiate Santa Barbara and Yolo counties and institute Home Protection Clubs.

Sister Guthrie was elected fraternal delegate to Santa Barbara Co. Lodge, and so the residents of Goleta will have an opportunity of hearing her lecture on the last night, Thursday, 18th of May, as she has promsied me to occupy the time with me then. I think arrangements will be also made to have her speak at Seaside Open Lodge on the 16th of May, at Santa Barbara Open Lodge 19th of May, and afterwards at Lompoc, Montecito and Carpinteria, thus keeping the interest well alive till Col. Goulding gets round.

Visited Nordhoff again, addressed school and started Band of Hope. Miss Barrows, Supt., and lecturer also spoke at the Upper Ojai school to a full and most appreciative house.

Carpinteria Lodge holds its own, tho not strong in members; fair attendance at lecture and at lodge. Preached a temperance sermon in M. E. Church South, on Sunday morning to a good and intelligent congregation. Spoke to Band of Hope in afternoon. Miss Wheelock, teacher, and Miss Gracie Barnard conducting it well. Attendance small on account of weather.

Montecito Lodge is doing very well. Preached a temperance discourse at night, lectured on Wednesday, obtained a number of names for Lodge and instituted Band of Hope, Sister Doulton, Supt. Thursday met with Lodge and initiated six ladies and gentlemen. They are doing good work and the outlook is hopeful.

LOS ANGELES.

TO THE CLERGYMEN OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY:—You are respectfully requested by Merrill Lodge, No. 299, Independent Order of Good Templars, to immediately call union mass meetings in your respective communities to consider and adopt ways and means for the enforcement of the Sunday Law, and to awaken an active public sentiment in favor of the total suppression of the liquor traffic.

The blight and curse of drunkenness is on every hand; and is more deadly than war, or pestilence, or famine.

We appeal to you to call the people together, give the alarm, and arouse them to the necessity of home protection.

A band of conspirators are now organized in this County for the avowed purpose of obstructing and resisting the enforcement of the law requiring the nurseries of crime to be closed on Sunday and to break down the business of every man who shall be active in the enforcement of the law, and to elect men to the next Legislature who will remove every barrier against debauchery and drunkenness in this State.

Our Courts, at this time especially, need the moral support of every patriotic and law-abiding citizen. We earnestly invite your leadership and co-operation.

Signed by the Committee of 11 Members.

LOS ANGELES, April 20. 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—The Press of California, with a few noble exceptions, take great delight in publishing any verdict that is favorable to the mob of law assassins but are careful not to inform the public about the blows this monster is receiving between its two eyes by the law keepers of our country. In view of this fact would it not be well for every lodge in the state to inform the people thru the RESCUE once a week, "how our cause speeds on its way." It is an old and trite saying that "nothing succeeds like success." There is much to be said on this thought, but "a word to the wise is sufficient."

SAM MCCURDY.

SPRINGVILLE.

At an open lodge held here last Saturday, (22nd inst.,) Sister Mary Guthrie, of Springville Lodge, delivered a very interesting and talented lecture to a crowded house of attentive listeners.

This with readings, recitations, etc., made the occasion instructive and entertaining.

It is thot sister Guthrie is to become a very talented lecturer, and the lecture field can be recruited with valuable material from Ventura County's young ladies. So think those who have heard Miss Guthrie's splendid efforts.

We are to have open lodge once a month and endeavor to draw the attention of the people more earnestly towards the interest of temperance; last Saturday was our first attempt, and all were pleased with the results; the fruits of our labor were three more names to our roll of membership, which paid well.

L. P. G.

RESOLUTIONS

Adopted by Sierra City Lodge No. 359 I. O. G. T.

WHEREAS, Bro. Thomas Wright on account of failing health is obliged to remove from our midst and sever his connection with this his mother lodge in which he has so long and faithfulfully labored as Lodge Deputy and proved himself a worthy officer and faithful member.

Resolved, That we deeply regret his departure from our Lodge and fervently wish him a happy future of active usefulness in his new field of associations and interests; and while our kindest wishes shall follow him, we shall remember that we owe him a debt of gratitude which can never be repaid. We also earnestly commend him to any Lodge or Lodges of our Order which he may have the opportunity to visit, as one worthy their highest esteem and confidence.

Resolved, That these resolutions be placed on the records of this Lodge and their publication requested in the RESCUE.

T. J. PERRYMAN, W. S.

April 15, 1882.

[The above was sent with the hope that it would "surely be published and the bill would be cheerfully paid." There is no charge for such items; when a worthy member removes to another residence and the lodge gives him a kindly Good Templars send off like that, it will find a welcome place in the RESCUE every time. Our Lodges ot to do a good deal more of that kind of work, and follow their traveling or moving brethren with a Good Templars shield all round and all over them. Dont let them forget their old life boat home in a hurry.]

OREGON.

OFFICE OF GRAND SECRETARY, I. O. G. T.,
EUGENE CITY, Or., April 24, 1882.

TO SUBORDINATE LODGES.

The G. L. of Oregon will meet at The Dalles on Tuesday, June 20th, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

O. & C. R.R.Co. will sell round trip tickets to Delegates on presenting their credentials at their home stations, at a reduction of 40 per cent., good from June 17th to 24 inclusive.

Oregon Railway and Navigation Co. will return delegates who paid full fare going at a reduction of 80 per cent on presenting my certificate at "The Dalles" ticket office.

Remember to purchase tickets for round trip at home for Portland, at all O. & C. R. R. Stations. Ask for return tickets for Grand Lodge, and start Saturday, the 17th to be on time.

Representatives to G.L. must be chosen at the first regular meeting in May, and the basis of representation is one for the Charter, and one for every 40 members or fraction thereof when it exceeds twenty, based on the returns for quarter just ending, and it is hoped that each lodge in the jurisdiction will be represented, as we are assured the citizens of The Dalles will give us a warm welcome and aid us to make this session one of the most pleasant in our annals.

The R. W. G. T. has designated the first week in May as "Banner Week," and requests that every Lodge on the continent of America make a special effort during this week, in Sunday-schools, day-schools, lodge rooms and personal canvassing, to increase the circulation of the "Youth's Temperance Banner," published by National Temperance Society, at 58 Reade St., New York City.

Returns.—Do not fail to send in the returns early in the term, in fact, as soon as your officers are installed, that I may have time to make out my yearly report in due time for Grand Lodge session.

Anticipating a hearty compliance in the matter of returns, and congratulating you all on the continued prosperity of the Order in our own State, I am faithfully and fraternally yours,

J. E. HOUSTON, G. Sec'y.

PASKENTA.—The Secretary and Assistant Secretary, Mr. T. D. Dollings and Miss Mary Shults were united in the holy bonds of wedlock on the 2d inst. Both were members of Paskenta Lodge, No. 309, also on the 13th inst, John Fossen to Miss Bertha Olsen also members of the same lodge. That is the way our sparking societies ruin the community.

April 1882. Yours etc., PEN.

Soulsbyville Lodge lately voted $10 for temperance literature, reorganized Blanket Creek Lodge, and handsomely frames the picture of the R. W. G. T., so writes Bro. Barron, L. D.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

COMMUNION WINE.

We find that so early as in the time of Paul, abuses were creeping into the churches and they were disorderly on the communion occasions. Men have always had a tendency to go astray, and almost anything of which they tell you everybody always did it or always does it in matters of morals or religion is wrong. (That does not apply to eating and drinking wholesomely, walking, sleeping, working.) So if the churches, composed of converts from heathenism had not slid off into bad habits, it could only have been by the miraculous present interference of God.

Churches and Christians are always accusing each other of failings and confessing that they are faulty and imperfect themselves. Temperance organizations are more or less unfaithful and imperfect, and they frequently have members who don't care a rap for the cause and who seek to lead their lodge or band or their friends or themselves into forbidden and improper paths. So the life of a Christian, a Good Templar, a member of the Band of Hope, a good citizen, if it is not a constant resistance to temptation and a constant careful watch against various enemies that find a harbour and resting place in our own hearts is sure to be an imperfect and crooked affair, and as it is with you or me personally, so it is with a Society of any kind.

In the time of John, the churches had gone far astray in various matters, and were cautioned to repent and threatened with grievous ills if their ways were not improved. St. Paul said about disorderly communion "One is hungry, and another is filled or satisfied," and that word filled which had also come to mean drunken, like our words "full," "happy," "jolly," etc., when applied to certain cases, was innocently mistranslated by the scholars of King James time. If Paul had said "one is thirsty and the other filled," it would have been correct to translate the word "drunken," altho it was used to mean satisfied, satiated with food and good things. Paul in reproving the Corinthians talked of their eating irregularly, and wound up his talk by advising them to wait one for the other, and if any one is hungry let him eat at home.

Now in the time of King James, and from that to the time that the writer can remember, it was considered very harmless for a minister or a Christian to drink and to get pretty drunk at times. The translators of the Bible knew nothing about wine at all, except that "too much of it" would make men drunk. It never had occurred to them to suppose it was anything but a most kind and fitting gift of an allwise and loving God, to be used by us for our health and comfort, and to cheer our hearts, etc., and they supposed God expected us to know when we had enough and not abuse his bounty.

They were perfectly innocent in translating that word "drunken" and in using the wine of drunkenness at communion. It never occurred to them to dout its propriety. Fifty years ago when drunkenness had aroused people to rise and speak against strong spirits, many conscientious, honest Christian people bitterly assailed the new doctrine as pretending to know better than the Creator, flying in the face of Scripture, assailing God's wisdom in making rum etc. and the world has fot us step by step and inch by inch till to-day, and has called us right along from the first fanatics and radicals as it does now—and everybody knows that our enemies never were once right or partly right or anywhere near right in the past 50 years.

Temperance men studied out all about this thing; their enemies never would; we analysed wine and the whole family of criminals and found they were all one thing, water with more or less of the same identical poison. All the same devil of alcohol disguised in water, to look like a drink and all an accursed, villainous, crazing, debauching and utterly useless and forbidden abomination.

How then was it spoken of as a blessing in the Bible? How did Christ make and use it? etc., for that was once as innocently believed as they believed there was a Creator. So the scholars examined the Bible and other ancient history; not in one evening or in two or three lessons, but in long weary years. You know cunning men have several times found out the Bible was all a mistake, by astronomy, by geology, by Pagan history, by science etc., but when scholarship examined the Bible and the evidences, they always found the writers of the Bible had seemed to expect just that thing and were exactly right on it.

So they found wine first mentioned in Noah's family history. Was it good there? There was enough to condemn it forever. A grand prophet and father of the race, selected by the Almighty from all living men as the worthiest specimen to save—drunk at the door of his tent like the meanest digger Indian or lowest tramp. If wine had never been mentioned again in the Bible that was enough; its use that once brot a terrible shame and a terrible curse. Next Lot used wine and was drunk. Evidently he and his dauters learned to drink in Sodom and the vice that destroyed those cities of the plains, was very probably due to the use of wine.

And so thru the Bible, wine was emphatically denounced as a mocker, a perverter, a deceiver, a polluter and its use forbidden, and its users held up to utmost contempt. And wine was also alluded to in our Bible as a good and wholesome food. How was that? Our scholars soon learned that about a dozen words in Hebrew had been translated wine in our language whereas many times it ot to have been grapes, grapesyrup, the grape crop, grape juice etc., all of which were of the most wholesome, kind and precious gifts of God. And the mistake occurred because at the time of the translation and until the temperance reform had made considerable progress, everybody supposed that fermented wine was the real grape juice, the natural fruit of the grape Not one in ten thousand knew it was a poison product of the filthy offal of the rotted, ruined, dead body of the grape. Next week to be continued.

SOME CRUSADES.

The crusading spirit had some good influences without dout. The motive of labor and self-sacrifice for any purpose believed to be good, was one which tends to make men better and nobler. There was a warlike and chivalrous spirit aroused among the peoples of Europe who professed the veiled and muffled and much-distorted tenets of the Christianity of that day of darkness. The crusades made men travel and learn something of the world and of each other; and the curiosity of those who stayed at home was excited, and more or less gratified.

But a blind fanaticism prevailed as to the duty of nation to nation; of Christian to Jew, or pagan, or heretic; of man to man. The free passes to eternal happiness in a heaven of bliss, granted by the popes to any who "took up their cross" and joined the armies of fanatics, gave a monstrous license to the vices and villainies of the ruffians and outlaws and robbers and youthful adventurers who set out thus in a career of crime. They had no object in reality but the exciting life and adventures of a crusading soldier, the hopeful chances of a rich plunder; they were insured for heaven and had never been subjected to any moral or religious training beyond that of being taut to reel off a few Latin prayers and listen to a Latin mass which they understood about as well as if it had been a Chinese drama; so it was not strange that the Crusades all in all, giving them credit for what infinitesimal good they developed, had the demoralizing effect of all wars, to the full, and led to a vast accumulation of human crime, with its inevitable accompaniment of corresponding human woe.

It is not by any means intended to countenance or confirm in the Rescue the doctrine invented and asserted by a certain class of men—unfortunate men, if you please to assent to that term—that all accounts are square in this world and all sins and crimes punished evenly here, so that no after settlement can come in a future world. But it is particularly desired to impress upon all who read this journal, especially the juveniles, that sin and vice practiced in this world are the surest of all crops and their fruit is sorrow and suffering every time somewhere. Altho A. may sin and seem to escape all evil consequences in this world, that sin brings sorrow to some one, perhaps to B., C. and half a dozen more who may be innocent. So the iniquities of the Crusades, undertaken for an utterly worthless purpose, entailed an infinite amount of crime and suffering upon men.

Nearly fifty years after the events of last number, the turbulent and warlike Turks had captured various forts of Palestine and kept it pretty warm for the Crusaders. In 1146, St. Bernard, of Clairvaux, an eloquent and fiery monk, set out to preach a new crusade thru France and Germany. This preacher was evidently a magnificently noble Christian man. He was called the "mellifluous doctor," and his writings were styled, "a river of paradise." He used his power to repress the persecutions of the Jews by the Catholic monks, and utterly rejected a silly doctrine of the Romish Church which is now one of its most cherished ones. There are still 439 epistles, 340 sermons and 12 theological treatises of his in existence. He founded 160 monasteries (they say); was charged by the pope with the mission of stirring up France and Germany for a second crusade. He did this with such effect that many towns and cities and farms were almost deserted by their adult males, who went by thousands to be slain and starved and to perish of disease in Eastern lands, and not one-tenth of them ever returned to their home or country.

Bernard died in 1153, and was cononized in 1174 by Pope Alexrnder III. That was 21 years after his death. He was lucky, for they have to serve 100 years now after death, before they can take out their saints' papers on earth, in the Church of Rome.

Conrad III, of Germany, marched with a numerous host to Constantinople and thence to Asia Minor where he was treacherously led into a forlorn desert and his army cut to pieces by the Turkish cavalry, only a few scattered refugees getting back to Constantinople. The French King led his circus along the coast and famine, disease and the sword of the enemy used up all but a miserable remnant. With the shattered few that were left, they went thru the formality of besieging Damascus for a little while, then petered out and the Second Crusade ended; it was a useless out-pouring of human life. A delusion, a disaster and a failure from first to last and in all probability its success would have resulted in no advantage to the world or to any nation.

It was a wild sacrifice of human life, caused by the ignorant fanaticism of a Pope and a monk, one of them certainly and perhaps the other equally, was an eminent scholar, a sincere Christian and a man of the noblest impulses; yet in the weakness of human nature both were victims of ignorance and fanaticism on certain points, and they occasioned vast disaster and untimely death to many thousands of their fellow men.

THE THIRD CRUSADE.

The disasters of the second crusade weakened the power and prestige of the worshipers of the cross in the East. Their fortunes became imperiled. About the year 1170 Saladin, the great chivalrous captain of the Moslems began to be famous in his contests with the crusaders. After ten or more years of wars and sieges, Saladin granted them a truce which he kept faithfully. But a rich caravan of the Moslems was on its pilgrimage to Mecca; Saladin's mother and friends were in it. The wealth of the caravan was tempting and a Christian knight attacked it, robbed it, robbed Saladin's mother and murdered her attendants.

This reopened war; Saladin was victorious over the Christians in a terrible battle at Tiberias on the 4th July 1187; the King of Jerusalem, the two Grand Masters and many knights were taken captive. On the 2nd Oct. Jerusalem was taken by assault and soon after nearly every fortified place in Palestine was captured. The Christians in those days generally butchered all their vanquished enemies but the Turks under Saladin were humane and chivalrous in comparison. Saladin did nothing more severe after the capture than to destroy the crosses and furniture of the churches.

In Europe this news created alarm; a new crusade was started. Frederic Barbarossa of Germany, Philip Augustus of France and Richard I. of England led powerful armies of devotees to Palestine. Frederic defeated the Turks at Iconium but was drowned crossing a river near there. His son assisted the Kings of England and France at the siege of Acre which held out two years and was then captured. Nine terrible battles were fot near the city during the siege.

The Kings then quarreled as usual; Richard was a bully. He butchered 3,500 prisoners because their ransom did not come up to time. He saw a German flag flying at Acre, and had it torn down and trampled under foot; then he had a row with the French King who took the sulks and went home with his army. Richard had another great victory over Saladin and returning to England by sea was driven to the coast of Italy. He then tried to make his way overland but passing thru Germany he was arrested by order of the Emperor and put in prison where he remained a good while, till he had been well punished for the insult to the German flag and till the English people paid a much larger ransom for him than a king was worth. So he paid dearly for his hoggish behavior and the people of England had to pay dearly for it too. That ended the third crusade and there was a rest for about ten years. What next will appear next week.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

Clouds.—It is not always, and everywhere sunshine in this world of ours, and so we cannot expect that every report from Bands of Hope will be as encouraging as could be desired. As the advice given to one Band may be applicable to more than one, it will, perhaps, be useful to chronicle here some of the most common complaints and the proposed remedy.

A Supt. writes, "The children come, but they wiggle and giggle, and squirm, and do not manifest the interest they should." Now, as children can not always sit still and be proper, it is necessary to give them a chance for legitimate exercise, even in the meetings of the Band. Teach them some of the beautiful songs in march-time, and whenever the restless fit comes on, or at a regular time in the exercises, let them march round the hall and sing. Five or ten minutes of this pastime will rest them, and they will be ready to sit down and listen quietly to the instructions given them. I can well remember what a charm, marching and singing had for me, when a child, and I believe all young people enjoy it.

We, old folks, are too apt to forget that we are no longer young; or rather, too apt to forget that the children are not old, and quiet as we are. Let us bear in mind, that "boys will be boys," and if we do not find a safe and proper outlet for their superfluous vitality, they will find it themselves, and will, no doubt disturb the harmony of our meeting in so doing.

Average Attendance.—A brother not long since, wrote me, wishing to know, how many of the Bands whose membership was over 100, had an average attendance of that number. Am sorry to say that one Band has since reported a membership of 250 and an average attendance of 50. It is to be hoped that no other Band has so small a percentage of active members. My experience has shown, that children will attend regularly, if the right course is taken to interest them. We cannot expect children to follow the right course for the pleasure of doing right, but must make virtue attractive. If the adults are interested in the welfare of the children, then the children themselves will feel and know it, and will be stimulated to greater efforts; but, on the other hand, if those of mature age are indifferent to the work, the young people will soon lose their interest, and perhaps the Band of Hope die a natural death. It depends largely, then, upon the adult members as to the success or failure of the juvenile work.

O, that the ability and eloquence of some of our workers were mine, that I could address all Good Templars upon the duty they owe to the young around them, in words so vivid and forcible, that they must be aroused to action, by listening.

This sitting idly by, while the fields are white for harvest on every side, knowing little, and caring less, for the great work in hand, is beneath the dignity of rational men and women, and a blot upon the fair fame of our Order. To the work, my brothers and sisters! Labor for this great cause! Train the children in the paths of temperance and virtue.

M. E. Richardson.

YOU CAN NOT PASS THIS WAY AGAIN.

Breakfast was not quite ready, and while waiting, Mary took up a paper for a minute, and her eye fell upon these words:

"A good Quaker was won't to say, 'I expect to pass this world but once. If, therefore there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do to my fellow-beings, let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

Mary read the paragraph twice over, and it made a deep impression on her heart. She took her seat at the table thoughtfully, and she wondered as she glanced up at the already wearied face of her mother, whether she had not let many golden opportunities slip, never to return. She could not go that way again. But here was a long, bright holiday she had proposed to spend in self-amusement; indeed she had kept herself awake for an hour or more in planning the day's enjoyment, intending to fill it as full as she could.

Now these words, "I shall not pass this way again," haunted her mind, and awakened quite a new train of thought. What if that mother's cheek should grow paler and paler, her cough deeper, and her thin hands be finally folded away forever on her silent heart? The thought was startling and terrible. Oh, what bitterness of regret she would feel that she had lightened her burdens so little? For this day, at least, she would do what she could.

"Mother," she said, when breakfast was over, "you have been looking for a spare day to run over to Grafton and see Aunt Mabel, and now is your time. I mean to do all your work to-day," she continued, pleasantly.

"Not to-day, Mary, of all days, when there is so much to be done."

"Yes, mother, this is just the day. I have nothing else to do but to take your place. You shall see to-night how well I have filled it."

Mary's persuasions prevailed, and the mother spent a long, bright summer day visiting with a beloved invalid sister, to whom her visit was indeed a joyful surprise. It did "good like a medicine" to both mother and sister, while the gain to Mary herself was a hundredfold greater.—The Children's Friend.

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

Stand nobly up and face life's work,
With brave and honest soul,
Let no mistaken foolish pride,
Your manly heart control;
Stand firm, be upright, be thyself,
A worker and a man,
Be something useful in this world;
Obey your Maker's plan.

Be sure you keep your morals pure,
With care improve your mind,
Stand ever on the side of right,
And live as God designed;
Then, sure, you'll need not bend the knee,
To banks, or stocks, or gold,
For there is wealth of higher worth
Than figures ever told.

Ashamed of labor! No, not you,
Since that was God's decree.
For honest and industrious toil
Brings glad prosperity;
It frames and builds up all the good
A nation's life can know,
Science, and art, and fame, and wealth
From work and effort grow.

Spurn indolence, whose weakening grasp,
Blights manliness and worth,
Be something to yourself and friends,
Be useful to the earth;
Make labor noble in itself
By being nobly done,
And make fair Nature's heart rejoice
To own you as her son.

ALL THINGS ARE NEW.

"There's nothing new within the world."
Go to! all things are fresh and new;
Say, rather, there is nothing old
Unto the thotful soul and true.

The world is new. Lo, every morn
Fresh sunlight glints on field and stream,
Fresh sunsets blush athwart the lawn,
New beauties on the hill-side gleam.

And life is new. Who has not known
The dawn of powers unfelt before,
And stood, as children stand alone,
Beside some newly opened door.

With eager heart, still half-afraid
To try the realm but now unseald?
O hidden stair-ways open laid!
O sacred rooms to us reveald!

And love, new born each day and hour—
No weight of years can make it old—
To dim its light time hath no power
To turn to dross its living gold.

It walks the earth as glad as when
Our parents roamed fair Eden thru,
O call it darkest treason then
To name love old, the ever new.

BAND OF HOPE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON SECOND

Subject:—How liquor sellers lead people to drink.

1. If there were none who learned to drink intoxicating liquors, those who sell them would in a few years have to stop in want of customers.

2. For this reason liquor-sellers are anxious to have as many learn to drink as possible, so that they may continue to make money.

3. In order to get people to learn to drink, liquor-sellers tempt them in various ways to enter their saloons.

4. They provide games, and sometimes music and entertainments, in order to lead people to visit their places.

5. When people once commence to visit saloons they are sure to learn to drink whether they go there to drink or not.

6. Such customs have been established in saloons that those who go there and do not drink or treat others are made to feel that they are stingy.

7. Those who visit saloons are sure to be asked to drink, and if they refuse intoxicating drinks they are offered those which are not intoxicating.

8. They soon become ashamed to take these when others are taking stronger drinks, and so they take the same drinks as the rest.

9. Those who go to saloons learn false ideas of right and wrong, and are led to think it is manly to drink, and in this way they become easy victims to intemperance.

QUESTIONS.

1. What would happen to the liquor business if none learned to drink intoxicating liquors?

2. About what does this make liquor dealers anxious?

3. How do liquor-sellers get people to learn to drink?

4. How do they get people to enter their saloons?

5. What happens to people who commence to visit saloons?

6. What can you say about saloon customs?

7. What is done when people refuse intoxicating drinks?

8. Why do those who at first refuse, soon begin to take their intoxicating drinks?

9. What do those who go to saloons soon learn.

Truth.—Liquor-sellers are anxious to have people learn to drink.

Golden Text.—Thru covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you—2 Pet. 2: 3.

LESSON NOTES.

1, 2. If no one learned to drink liquors, the trade would soon stop.—If no one learned to drink intoxicating liquor, of course in one generation the business would die out of itself. But since drinking people die much more rapidly than other people, the saloon customers would diminish every year, and the business would soon become unprofitable. When a young man of twenty learns to drink, the chances are that he will live only fifteen years, while older people who become drinkers are likely to live a still shorter period.—Neb. Liberator.

ATTRACTED THE RIGHT MAN.

David C. Cook, among many good things, publishes placards on temperance. I pasted one in the post-office of a southern county-seat, shortly before the mail came in. It is headed, "Licensed Saloon," and is a sarcastic burlesque on a liquor seller's advertisement, telling the whole truth. In the center is a wood-cut of a drunken man in the snow, with the words, "Specimen of my work." A crowd gathered and a preacher called to two saloon men to come and read. One of them read aloud half of it before discovering its intent, but when he saw, "Specimen of my work," he edged out of the crowd as soon as he could, disgusted, and, let us hope, conscience smitten.

WHY.

It is time that the labor interests of the country should receive some consideration at the hands of Congress. We have been entertained now year after year, during these eight years, with cheap talk about cheaper transportation, and lower taxation, and higher prices for labor; but it has all been talk—talk and bluster and pretense. Is it not time that something were done? For six years the Democrats had control of the House and they talked and resolved for a tariff for "revenue only," and that ended it with them, and the Republicans had the control before and since and they promised to reduce taxation, and still discriminate in favor of protection to American labor and so make wages higher and subsistence lower.

But the taxes of the poor remained the same right along during the whole eight years, and the great railway monopolies have been let alone to tax the bread of the laborer by their high rates of freight, and the dear tax-ridden people have gone right straight to the polls at the behest of these same monopolists and whisky men and voted to re-elect these same men who have fooled them every time. Now, why? Why? We will tell you one reason! These men have drugged them with whisky at election times and obtained their votes by stealth—Anvil.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

MODERN SCIENCE OR WHISKY.

The Monitor is supposed to be a religious paper, and a religious paper is supposed to point and guide and advise its readers to take the road to heaven. Two pages of the Monitor have been handed in to this office. On one side we are reminded by "an English Catholic" that "the Catholic church must, as a matter of life and death, resist the progress of science and modern civilization, which are simply the descent into Avernus." That last is a more polite word than Hades but means the same.

On the other page it has a 12x9 inch advertizement of an infernal den of whisky and perdition, a trade mark of one of the largest contractors for the wholesale delivery of human souls to Avernus and one of the most extensive manufactories of pauperism, crime, social impurity, sin of every kind and human misery of every possible type and degree.

A cut of the hell where this horrible poison is stored and probably made, occupies more than half the space. It calls the agent "the prince of good fellows and the King Bee of the traveling community;" probably the last expression refers to the sting of his blood poison and the title of prince to a future distinction in store for him and the "good fellows" who are ensnared in his net. The religious journal says the prince's word is taken as gospel by all who know him; it accords him and his devilish iniquitous, foul compound of villainous poisons the most fulsom eulogies and winds up with the same terms of adoration to the soulkiller, the Devils lieutenant and his vice and pestilence breeding abomination of desolation, that are applied to the Virgin Mary by her worshippers.

Certainly the Monitor is to be commended for its effective action in this particular if its mission is to resist the progress of science and modern civilization; for nothing so arrests both and reduces a people to barbarism like the sale and use of whisky and its approval by people who represent the church and call themselves Christians. It has been a favorite theme of Protestant controversialists to point to the poverty of Catholic countries as compared with their Protestant neighbors. And there has been very plausible ground. Where the Catholic church has had it all her own way and no opposition to contend with, there is most ignorance, most poverty and generally most crime and absence of morality. In Canada, Ireland, and Switzerland there is a marked difference in the appearance of the Protestant and Catholic sections, the latter distinguished by their poverty and backwardness.

People have attributed that to the influences of their religion—but there is a good deal more reason to charge it to the whisky and wine which the Catholic church has so little discountenanced. Catholics in Protestant communities are as prosperous as anybody, if they let drink alone, and Protestants make exactly the same kind of beggars, tramps, thieves, criminals and paupers that Catholics or Pagans do—when they use wine or beer or whisky.

Spain, Italy, Portugal, Ireland, Mexico, prospered once under the Catholic faith, and would all have prospered to-day if the Catholic church had stamped the wine plague under its feet. Protestant and Catholic countries and people are going down to the Gehenna of wicked nations as fast as any that ever went there—in as far as they permit the sale of alcohol to poison and pauperise their people. And but for that one department of modern science and civilization which might properly be called "the dawn of common intelligence" and is exemplified in the temperance reform, Catholic and Protestant and all other systems that would have made peace with the Anti-Christ and robber, and murderer alcohol, would have gone down and out into the common sink of shame and destruction that have engulfed the drunken effete nations of antiquity, who worshipped the devil in the cup. Nothing ever made the descent into Avernus so easy as the devil of alcohol. The Monitor harnessed to the car that leads millions to hell and singing hymns to Satan, cuts a sorry spectacle.

A DARK CORNER TO LOOK INTO.

"A high Churchman" in the Temperance Record heads an article "Ignorance of the Educated." and in it complains of the unfairness and ignorance of the Church Times the organ of his own church, in its criticisms of Dr. Norman Kerr's book on Wines. This book has had a shower of commendations rained down upon it for its learning, accuracy, fairness and the marked moderation of its tone. But the Times at once trips up Dr. Kerr on his ignorance, and displays its own by talking of unfermented wine as "grape juice which has been deprived of its alcohol by artificial means"!!! a mistake which few Band of Hope children would be so ignorant as to make. The Times accuses Dr. Kerr of having strong prejudices too, whereas the Dr. is a most conservative man and never started out of an old rut in his life till he had proved his old position entirely untenable. He says he cares nothing about the communion wine question, save as concerning those whom he and other medicos must prohibit from alcoholic communion. He has not abandoned it himself but is very desirous that the truth should be known that the use of the pure fruit of the vine at communion has never been abandoned altogether from the earliest days.

The Churchman says Dr. Kerr's book and lectures have had a marvelous effect upon the opinion and procedure of both churchmen and non-churchmen and compares the attack of the Times on the Dr. with the action of the attorney, who having a case which admitted of no defence, whispered to his counsel, "no case, abuse the plaintiff."

Dr. Kerr is not an old temperance advocate, not long before the public in that line. First time we heard of him so far away as this, was a few years ago, when he set out to refute by collected statistics the "exaggeration," that 60,000 people a year in England perished thru drink; but he found it much under the facts.

The ignorance of this subject exhibited by the men who defend the one kind of scriptural wine theory, is wonderful at first sight. But when we consider it fairly, it is no stranger than their ignorance of how to play the violin or speak Spanish. And there are eminent men who are as ignorant on one of these things as the other, simply because they never gave either the slightest attention, nor dreamed there was any duty or necessity to do so. Therefore, when a scholarly man like themselves, scholarly and intelligent on all other topics, tells them as Dr. Crosby and the Boston Congregationalist have done, that the first scholars and lingnists and scientists in the world, Dr. Kerr, Dr. Lees, Dr. Richardson, and many others, who have with the best lights and most abundant opportunities and largest abilities studied these special questions for ten to forty years, are fools and third-rate scholars and fanatics, it is quite natural for them to accept their ipse dixit and never look at the other side for themselves.

WHISKY FRAUDS AGAIN.

The Examiner tells of the discovery of another grand whisky fraud. A deceptive stamp has been used for some time and whisky has been sold under it in immense quantities without paying a cent of revenue. Col. Goulding thinks it is the "Nabob Whisky," which he caused to be analyzed. It is estimated by some experts that in the past year the government has been swindled out of $100,000 on this coast; others put it up to $500,000.

It is extremely probable that the whisky ring never has ceased its systematic frauds since the exposé of 1875; but has only changed its mode of operations. There were from 1875 to 1880 about 7,700 captures made of violators of the revenue law, many of them convicted of the most enormous frauds and crimes of perjury and bribery of revenue officials, etc.; some of them were senteneed to terms of imprisonment and heavy fines. The imprisoned were all pardoned out by Gen'l Grant who on the last afternoon of his second term set free about 300 or 400 of them, and cleared the last one of those arrested during his term. He said, "Let no guilty man escape," and he did not allow one guilty one to escape a free pardon or a free license to go and do it again.

In the term of President Hayes there were about 3,300 captures of illicit distillers and revenue swindlers, but it is believed not a single one of them was put on trial or subjected to the least personal inconvenience beyond signing some straw bail documents. And up to a year or two ago not one dollar of the fines inflicted upon the condemd and sentenced whisky perjurers and revenue defrauders had been collected or asked for by the Republican administration, and it is believed that not a cent of their fines has been paid.

Therefore, if those who manufacture and sell whisky can in eight years commit a train of serious crimes that lead to 7,700 arrests and not one of them in the slightest degree punished, there is the strongest inducement for them to continue in an utter disregard of all law.

The result of this new discovery will no dout be the seizure of one or two thousand barrels of whisky, a good deal of noise about it, a delay of two or three months; then it will be reported that a settlement has been made; the whisky will be delivered up to the owners without collecting a cent of fine or damage from them, and the revenue collector will get a private admonition that he is too meddlesome when an election is not far in the future. And the whisky frauds will have another five or six years to run undisturbed.

That item was crowded out last week, and already the prediction is verified. The Revenue Collector here has received a telegram from Commissioner Raum, manager at Washington of the partnership between the U. S. Government and the U. S. Drunkard-makers. It orders the immediate release of the smuggled whisky.

Such an act by a government official is a monstrous abuse of office; a monstrous official corruption. Mr. Raum has always been a pliant tool of the rum interest and now hopes to be elected governor of his state by an open indulgence to the whisky thieves of all kinds that they are released from any obligation to obey or respect any law.

This is an infamy that calls for a unanimous protest from every honest citizen. What right has any one to seize opium or cigars or tobacco or to lay hands on any honest merchandise that fails to pay lawful duty, when the poisoners leag is entirely exempt from any fine or disturbance or inconvenience in every case in which they openly violate the law even with added perjury, bribery of officials and aggravated thievery.

But the Independent, Honest, Manly Secular Press, the friend of the people, guardians of the people's rights, dare not open their mouths on the subject.

THE ENGLISH CHAMPION.

Oh that we had a duplicate of Sir Wilfrid Lawson in this country. We have lots of men like him in some respects; some his equals in wit or talent or piety or fidelity or honesty or patriotism or oratory, but we have not one who is his equal in all these things and is also a member of Congress and can and does give $5,000 a year in money to the cause of temperance and works for it all the time in the legislature and addresses immense public meetings all over the country all the year round, canvassing the people to vote for prohibition. He is doing more of the best work for Christianity and temperance and morality and virtue and for the social and financial welfare of England and its people than any other living man, seeing that he is rich and influential and talented and truly humane, benevolent and patriotic. We have perhaps a thousand men and women who could do as much as he if they would, but those who could will not. The highest place in the American heroism of the 19th century, as it will be seen from the middle and end of the 20th, is open for somebody that can get ahead of Miss Francis E. Willard and Wiliam E. Dodge.

Every week we hear of Sir Lawson hammering away some place, the principal figure on the platform with Cardinal Manning, Canon Wilberforce or Farrar, Dr. Richardson, Samuel Pope, Queen's Counsel, J. H. Raper, Rev. Dawson Burns, and other grand men. He has a fund of wit in which he dresses up many a wholesome lesson.

In a speech made Feb. 15 he alluded to a book published by the liquor sellers in which they claim that they are "trying to diminish drunkenness and in so doing to aid religion and virtue and they have made many sacrifices in the interests of the public well being;" he said: "I think we are all thoroly convinced now you can't find a finer set of men anywhere than the licensed victuallers. And then, in this report in which they have given themselves an excellent character, they say that it is a most terrible thing for people to go on attacking them like the United Kingdom Alliance, which they call "a fountain of fanatical activity." Well, I am speaking on behalf of the United Kingdom Alliance, and it is my duty to give what reasons I can why we do attack not these excellent men,—we love them,—but the abominable trade which they are carrying on. I will quote what a late judge said to explain this matter. This judge was trying a man for some offence, and the evidence against him seemed perfectly clear, but towards the conclusion of the trial a great number of witnesses were brot to give evidence as to his character and the multitude of his virtues. So the judge summed it up this way; 'Gentlemen of the jury, it is perfectly clear that the prisoner at the bar is of excellent character and he has stolen a broom.' Well, we say it is perfectly clear that the licensed victuallers are of most excellent character, and they have filled the country with mourning, lamentation and woe. That is the reason we oppose the trade in which they are engaged," And alluding to the delay of Mr. Gladstone in bringing up the local option bill which Parliament declared two years ago and last year should be attended to at once, he said: "if my friend will allow me two minutes more, I will ask you this question: Is there any just reason that can be given why we should wait any longer before this power is given to the people? No, there is not, but the painful thing—and it is inexpressibly painful I confess very often I think of it—about British politics is that it seems almost impossible to get the House of Commons of Parliament to do what is right,—except thru fear. We never could get the Reform Bill till Bristol and Nottingham were in flames. We could not get Free Trade until the potato famine came and decimated the Irish population; and we should never have got the Irish Land Bill until Parliament was horrified and startled by the outrages occurring in Ireland. It is too bad that we should always wait till we are frightened out of our wits before we do anything. I believe we could have got Local Option before now if I had gone out behind a hedge and shot Mr. Bass, the great brewer. (Laughter.) The day after I had committed that outrage, you would have had Mr. Gladstone coming down post haste to the House of Commons and saying that 'the question of Local Option has now come within the range of practical politics.' (Great laughter.) Now let us each and all try and get this measure of justice passed by the pure force of public opinion and of rational and peaceful agitation."

WINE.

Mean Yearly Productions of Wines in Europe.

	Imperial Gallons.
France	1,130,401,252
Italy	597,238,547
Austria-Hungary	498,298,883
Spain	461,465,518
German Empire	143,084,852
Portugal	88,038,672
Russia and European Turkey	46,968,631
Greece	27,747,039
Suisse	19,808,702
Roumania	14,567,650
Yearly Total	3,027,620,746

The above table published in the Temperance Record by M. de Colville D. D., seems to be authenic; it is the mean production of the past 10 years. He also claims that France imports from Italy an immense quantity of wine increasing every year. In 1881 it was put at 44 million gallons and the import from Spain was three times that amount.

Now France is credited with the export of about 45 million dollars worth a year in wine and brandy. Here we see the enriching process of wine making. France wastes 3¼ per cent of her soil in vineyards which yield 1,130 million gallons of wine; let us value it at 25 cents a gallon, making 282 million dollars of value. Then France imports from Spain and Italy 170 million gallons at an average of 21 cents a gallon making 36 million dollars which deducted from the export leaves a balance of profit of 9 million dollars. But France after consuming 1,200 million gallons wine for which it gets no return whatever but idleness, crime, pauperism and insanity, has to use a much larger sum than 9 millions a year in the purchase of rivers of English beer and gin and whisky, potato whisky from Germany, Holland and Belgium and vast quantities of rum from the West Indies. And then France has to import now over 200 million dollars worth of bread every year which could as well be raised on the land wasted on grapes prostituted to wine. And a large part of this has to be paid in coin, because the balance of trade is turning against France and every year there is a greater scarcity of bread and an increased consumption of alcohol and tobacco.

Of all the wretched frauds and swindles and follies and double distilled delusions that have ever been practiced upon peoples of imbecile judgment and virgin experience, none so hollow and groundless and transparent and idiotic as to compare with the monstrous folly of the proposition that any trade in drunkard making could ever help the prosperity of a country, much less the most horribly corrupting, the most universally debauching and the most heartlessly criminal one of prostituting the generous God-given bounty of the grape production of this State to the purposes of general drunkenness, debauchery and crime. A villainous business that has utterly debased, debauched, unmanned, pauperized and reduced to savage barbarism or utterly destroyed every nation that has ever given itself up to the degrading, infamous and ruinous business.

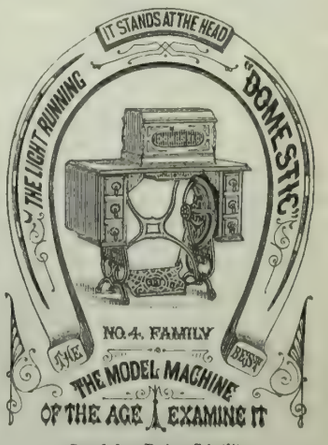
The Canton of Berne Switzerland with a population of 532,564 not much more than half as many as this State has beside its wine 9,000 distilleries to fill its demand for spirits; a distillery for every 57 people; most of them of course very small; they make yearly 1,320,500 gallons of Schnapps or gin; but it is not enough, they have to import 330,000 gallons more of potato and other kinds of fiery whisky. Drunkenness, crime, disease and pauperism are rampant, increasing every year and active efforts are being made to restrict drunkenness, most of them of course too silly and superficial to be of any use.

TOO RADICAL.

From the time of the issue of the first few numbers of the RESCUE in its present form (Nov. 1880) till the present a great many letters of the kindest approval and encouragement and good cheer have continued to be received from the best of people and warmest friends of temperance in this State and elsewhere. Many of those who have proved beyond a dout their most sincere desire for the success of the paper and our cause and the welfare of the Order, have continued right along to express their approval of its management and tone. While now and then a very few people who place a great many things a long way ahead of the temperance reform in importance, have secretly or openly tried to injure its reputation and prevent its circulation on the pretense of its being "too radical." That expression "too radical" has always for 1800 years meant not sufficiently tolerant of vice and sin; not polite enough to wrong and falsehood; not pliant enough to the money or some other god.

The people who subscribe for the paper and read it seem, so far as heard from, to be very well satisfied, tho none of them probably would have it in all respects precisely as it is; the most dissatisfied are those who have never read or subscribed for it or helped it or wished it to suit any body, and there are some parties no dout who honestly think its policy mistaken altogether. Christ was crucified because He was too radical, and said it out and spoke the truth; He might have lived as radical 1,000 years and never opened His mouth about it and no one would have desired to harm a hair of His head. The old prophets were stoned and slain for telling the truth; not one of them was ever punished by men for telling lies. The apostles and disciples of the truth were martyred at the stake and on the block and on the rack and with every conceivable cruelty for about 1800 years, and are still persecuted for being too radical, for telling the truth every time; they could have lied knee deep to the people and no one would have molested them for that. With all the laws that have been enacted against lying and false witness and fraud, it is a question if one man has been punished for falsehood and hypocrisy where a hundred have suffered for speaking the truth.

If anyone who is uneasy about the RESCUE will point out an instance of a line of departure from the truth and the right, or a word of evil counsel to old or young, a shirking of a duty or responsibility commended, or injustice done to any interest or individual or class, friend or enemy, there will be an alarm and an examination at once. But if it is a question of speaking the solem holy truth and too much of it, those whom the truth distresses are wasting their breath. It is a matter of thankfulness that about every paper that goes out to a constituency of Anglo Saxon Christian temperance people anywhere is fully as open and plain spoken and as truthful (and as radical) as the RESCUE.



THE BABCOCK CASE.

The charges made by Mr. Shaeffer against the Home Protection party in general thru Col. Babcock, and in the interest of the conspiracy of rumsellers and tobacco poisoners have not been a success, but it has been as well got up as most of the schemes of the branches of the leag elsewhere during the last forty years. When the leag has gone into house-burning, barn-burning, beating and shooting the advocates of sobriety, they have often succeeded better. But in the assault on the character of temperance men they have always failed to establish anything but their own depravity and utter abandonment of all principle and honesty, exhibiting plainly to the world the intense malignity which they bear to the honest and decent portion of humanity. The destroyers of the people, the despoilers of the home, the robbers of the poor, the starvers of the hungry, the grinders and polishers of the bones of the pauper and maniac and suicide are naturally actuated by the instincts of the tiger towards its victims.

The assault on Col. Babcock was in perfect keeping with the tactics of the leag. It was consistent to try first the well accustomed trick of bribery, and that failing, to destroy the character of their resisting victim. It was a consistent sequel to the treachery of the leag to its own dupes in setting Schetzel to make 100 complaints and then reporting to them and the public the atrocious calumny that Schetzel, their wretched tool, one of their finished tools, was a Good Templar and employed by the Home Protection Association. That trick by the officers of the leag was a viler treachery and falsehood than Col. Babcock would have committed, if he had sold out his own services to the leag, which was all he could have sold.

If Col. Babcock had made offers to Shaeffer and the latter went to Col Babcock to make or receive overtures, the act of Shaeffer was as vile as that of Babcock. We know that Shaeffer committed that act; as to the other we only have the declaration of an equal partner in the asserted guilt on one side, against Col. Babcocks and Johnson's testimony on the other. And the fact that Col. Babcock mentioned to three separate parties that certain hints and overtures were being made to him towards buying him over, long before Mr. Shaeffers changes were made, should close up all dout where any exists, for no man is fool enough to notify his friends in advance of an intent to sell them out or play an infamous part.

The press deserves credit for its readiness to expose villainy and treachery among temperance people; the latter will always be most sincerely thankful to the press for showing up any wolf that may creep into our folds in woolly garments; we never desire to have one such shielded if guilty. Same time one is apt to speculate a little as to whether the Examiner and Chronicle and other dailies would have lent themselves or ten lines of their space to Col. Babcock or to Dr. McDonald, had either of them asked the publication of defamatory charges against Shaeffer or any of his fellow criminals of the grogshop and tobacco shambles.

A TEMPERANCE PARTY.

Shall we have one. Let us see. Parties are not spontaneous productions but are the outgrowth of principles, and while no party can come into existence without being founded upon a principle, the anomaly sometimes exists of a party continuing after the principle has ceased. Under our form of government force can be given to public opinion only thru organized parties. Political parties are composed of those only whose views and interests of public matters harmonize and whether great or small their power and influence is felt only in proportion to the harmony and energy with which the principles they advocate are placed before the public. Let us examine briefly the two prominent parties and see what there is in them to inspire the hopes and enlist enthusiasm of those who labor to prohibit the liquor traffic. The vital germ that originated the Democratic party was the opposition of Gen. Jackson to the charter of the U. S. Bank and opposition to banks is to-day the crystalizing principles of the democracy. It however fell into the meshes of the slave power and became a hissing and a scorn to the American people and it lives in name and like the orbit of a comet, it wanders in all directions seeking some gust of public favor to waft it into power from which it has been excluded for a quarter of a century. There is nothing in its history to show that its leaders desire or would allow a measure to prevail so fraught with good to all the people as the suppression of the liquor traffic, thru its agency. Time and again they have denounced such laws as sumptuary and opposed their enactment and any one who imagines prohibition can be accomplished thru the Democratic party has more credulity than good sense.

The Whig party first antagonized the Democratic party in favor of the U. S. bank but the leaders could not all be whipped into the party traces and it went to pieces on the slavery question and was supplanted by the Republican party, which sprang from its ashes, and gathered into its folds all that were opposed to the "Twin relics of barbarism, Polygamy and Slavery." Slavery it abolished by the criminal folly of the slave holders; Polygamy still defies its mandates tho it has had the unlimited resources of fifty millions of people at command for more than twenty years. A party so great, that in twenty years has accomplished so little can hardly be relied upon to crush a foe whose revenues are counted by the billion and whose emissaries are scattering poison in all the avenues of life.

From the very nature of things the diverse interests of the Republican and Democratic parties would not permit them to accomplish this great work. Eliminate the Irishman and his whisky from the one, and the German and his beer from the other and you ring their death knell and nothing could remain except the performance of the funeral obsequies. Parties are made up of the united opinion of the multitude. as a consequence individualism is completely lost and as that opinion of the prominent parties ignores or opposes the introduction of the temperance question, individuals are helpless to make a change however much they may desire it. No Mr. Editor as the solution of the Gordian knot was only thru the sword of Alexander, so the solution of the temperance question can only come thru the ballot box and that at the hands of a temperance party. There is no other solution and the sooner the work is begun the better. Time will vindicate the prediction. Let us then gird up our loins for the contest and go forth to the mighty conflict. In the harmony of opinion that we fight the greatest curse of mankind, there will ever come renewed strength and zeal and if we are only true to our own convictions of duty and true to humanity, time will give us the grandest victory of right over wrong ever won since the morning stars sang together.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The Home Protection Association of California was incorporated February 2, 1882, under the following Declaration of Principles:

The objects of this association are to obtain and organize means for the rigid enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors, particularly the Sunday laws; to secure the enactment of such other laws relating to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as may tend to render existing laws more effective; to obtain such additional legislation as may seem to be most expedient and effectual to protect our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of this traffic, and to diminish the burdens of taxation by further restricting this, the chief cause of idleness, crime, pauperism and insanity; to create by the distribution of temperance literature and public addresses, an intelligent, just and merciful public sentiment, which shall give practical force to temperance principles, and all other things suitable and proper to fully carry out and accomplish the objects and purposes hereinbefore set forth.

One object of the Association is to charter Auxiliary Associations in every town in California. The plan is simple and as follows:

MODE OF PROCEDURE.

Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may sign a request or application addressed to the Home Protection Association of California, for a charter to form an Auxiliary Association in (name of place), agreeing to sign the Register when received, which Register has a printed heading stating the object of the Association as above set forth. All are to pay $1.00 each yearly so long as a member. Five dollars are to be forwarded with the application for a Charter, for which a Charter and a complete set of books with Register sufficient for 600 names will be immediately sent, together with copies of the constitution and all necessary papers. Upon receipt of the charter and books, a meeting should be called, when all the applicants should sign the Register and any others who may so desire, when officers are to be elected and proceed in accordance with the constitution. Of the $1.00 paid by each member, 50 cents of the same is to be paid to the State Association for the payment of Lecturers and Organizers, and the distribution of temperance literature, and all other things which may forward the objects of the Association. The remaining 50 cents is to be used by the Auxiliary Association for expenses etc. The plan is simple and easy. If you feel the necessity for action the thing is quickly done. In half a day 10 or more names can be secured, the $1.00 paid in and the $5.00 sent to the State Secretary for the Charter and books.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R. Thompson, George Babcock, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

FREEDOM TO DRINK BEER.

No. 34.

"Isn't this a free country?"

"Yes; we mean it shall be so, and we believe it is so in many ways."

"Well, then, can't a man do as he pleases?"

"That depends on what he pleases to do. If he pleases to throw a stone thru your window, or to break your head, or to stick a knife into you, I say, no, he has not a right to do as he pleases."

"Of course he must not interfere with me; true, and I must not interfere with him, I see; but then, things that do not concern others; for example, to drink beer, that is for myself, I may do as I please. I may drink all the beer I like if this is a free country."

"Yes, and your neighbor may drink all the beer he likes. But if the beer-drinking puts him beside himself so that he does not know what he is about, and then he does these bad things to you, what is to be done about it? It is plain that he must be shut up so that he can not harm you. Then he loses his freedom. The same might happen to others; in fact, it often happens, so often that we see it is much wiser to step in with the law before the man has made a fool of himself and hurt others also. Still it is a free country, tho nobody has the freedom to hurt others. If a man wants that sort of freedom he must go to the wild woods where there are no other people. There he may drink what he pleases and tear around, and the law will not touch him."

"But I do not care to go to the wild woods. I thot this was a free country here."

"So it is if you give the right meaning of words. FREEDOM is the liberty to do right. Liberty to do wrong is license; and so men get a license to sell the liquor that does so much mischief. But that does not make it right. It only says we will let you do wrong if you will pay for the privilege. But none of our laws say to a man, you shall not drink. At most they only say that you shall not tempt nor help your neighbor to do that which wastes his money and makes him a fool.

"But it is only when men drink too much that they do these violent things. Let them not drink too much."

"But would not that interfere with their freedom? I see no difference, only it would be worse to set a watch over every man to see how much he drinks and stop him at the right moment. Here is a man, and a German at that, who can not drink more than three glasses of lager without "getting fool," as he says, and he does fearful things and gets locked up. Loses his freedom, you see. There are plenty more who lose their freedom in another way, for lager-beer is a stupefier. Hear what one observer says: 'The votaries of lager become sluggish, hard to stir up, distrustful of their own strength, and thereby very apt to be led and influenced by others thru lack of mental energy, subject to others and slaves of beer, standing up for beer, fighting for beer.' That is the worst kind of slavery, and it is entailed also upon the children of beer drinkers.

Now, true American liberty means freedom from all that sort of thing. It means the quickness and clearness of thot and readiness of action suited to leadership. And much of this we have gained thru abstinence from German lager and English ale and Irish whisky. Will you share this freedom with us and help to make a glorious future for this rfee country?

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

LAW AND LIQUOR.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

Now that the battle has begun in earnest, this little pamphlet ought to be in the hands of every man in the State. It is clear-cut and forcible in an eminent degree, is well calculated to arouse the conscience and carry conviction home to the heart.

Every Good Templars' Lodge in the State should send for at least 100 copies for gratuitous distribution, as one has said:

"It will be hard to find 12 pages in any modern publication that will do better work in the cause of temperance, and temperance societies and temperance people will do well to circulate the pamphlet by thousands and tens of thousands."

In view of the great interests now at stake, and with an earnest desire to do good, we have reduced the price to $3 per hundred, postage included.

Send your orders to me at 25 Russ street, San Francisco, J. C. SIMMONS, or to RESCUE OFFICE.

IN OTHER STATES.

THE Anvil says only about 10 per cent of the 400 members of both Houses of Congress are total abstainers. The drunkenness of the United States has then a most unjustly large representation at the Capital. It is time the morality of the country should make an endeavor to be fairly represented in the political and legislative departments and cease voting for the nominees of the grogshop.

Iowa—Active work has commenced for and against the amendment election of June 27th. All the regular Christian churches in Iowa have pronounced warmly in its favor. The Catholic church announces it will take no part in the temperance movement and the Episcopal church is not heard from at all. Neutral as usual on religious and moral questions.

Maryland—Mrs. McLeod of Baltimore, says in the Signal that 7 counties there have local option and many localities have prohibition. Violations of local option law are fined $50 to $300 or 30 days jail or both, first offence; $200 to $500 for second, seller and purchaser alike. Doctors are subject to precisely the same fines for giving bogus prescriptions for liquor; all of which is very good, a prescription for liquor at all as a beverage or medicine ot to be considered bogus and fined severely.

Arkansas—In many places the prohibitory law is enforced. No whisky sold in Johnson Co. In Nov. and Dec. last year there were 27 criminal cases in Clarksville; the new law took effect Jan. 1. Only one misdemeanor since. The city Marshall has resigned as he has nothing to do and dont want a sinecure.

St. John, N. B., had a tie vote reported at the recent local option election; under strong supicion of fraud a scrutiny was demanded. Just as the ballots were about to be opened in the proper court a few days ago, an injunction granted by Judge J. W. Weldon of the Supreme Court was sprung by the drunkard makers and the scrutiny has to be deferred till August, after a hearing before the Supreme Court. Judge Weldon has acquired one kind of fame as a tool for the drunkard makers the last 30 years, to assist them in violating and defeating law and robbing their victims without hindrance. He recently reversed the sentence of conviction in a lower court for selling rum contrary to law, on the ground that it was a conviction for a fourth offence and the law had not specified a punishment for more than first, second and third. It is a calamity there that such judges hold office for life—and are appointed to office thru the same political influences that nominate and elect our judges. It is perhaps the first time a scrutiny was ever prevented thus. It has been called a mean trick, but that is a mistake. It did its authors the drunkard makers and Judge Weldon as much honor and credit as any other act they ever did in their history.

St Johns Episcopal church of Detroit has banished fermented wine from its communion table. Alcohol is being counted out of all respectable society at a rapid rate now-a-days. Soon it will only be allowed in the lowest dens of infamy, and we hope to see the day when it will be banished from these places as it is now being banished frem the churches. —Lever.

Indiana.—Both Republicans and Democrats are notifying their parties that if either oppose the prohibitory amendment they will vote no longer with them.

President Arthurs reign will be called the "Renaissance of drunkenness at the White House." That of Mr. and Mrs. Hayes will perhaps be styled the "Virtuous Interlude."

Kansas:—Gath says, in the Enquirer that he was informed by Mr. Patterson a great railroad contractor who has just returned from there, that the roads leading to Kansas are crowded with immigrants of the better class, Eastern and Middle State people with some Canadians and English, all seeming to be possessed of means to make a start with. And this has been so all winter. Wonder if that kind of immigration is as good as infidel debauching European beer drunkards. As a pure financial question, apart from all moral considerations, it would be a silly bargain for Kansas to sell out her prohibitory law for the next 20 years, if she could do so now for three billions of gold dollars. It is worth all the money in the world if it keeps out the groggery and the Satanic brewer.

Nebraska:—An even 200 ministers have signed a call for a convention of the ministers of the State at Lincoln May 12th, to unite the religious interests and systematize the temperance work with a view to securing favorable legislation next winter. Those men intend to be christians, patriots and useful citizens.

IT IS reported that some of the newspapers in Iowa have been miraculously converted to prohibition since the amendment has passed the legislature; such men deserve their reward; who rat over after the battle is won or certain to be won. What a sudden decrease of pagan newspapers we should observe in California if a prohibitory law was an assured success.

PROHIBITION prevails in three-fourths of Arkansas, under the new law which permits a town to rid itself of the dramshop leprosy when a majority of the men and WOMEN so petition. And it prohibits there, too.

NEAL DOW, whose head has always been remarkably clear on the temperance question, advises the W.C.T. U. of Illinois, "Keep to womans suffrage, as the short cut to prohibition." But perhaps he is wrong; may be the Lord would rather not have prohibition for 30 or 40 years yet, and dont want women to vote. It is dangerous not to go slow, very slow, and be sure to go slow enuf.

THE WHISKY Leader complains that fanaticism is excluding liquor dealers from the Grand Army of the Republic. The Grand Army of the penitentiary, however, is always open to them for consolation.

THE MAYOR of Philadelphia refuses to license any place of amusement which has a bar attached or sells liquor.

THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U. have committees on 34 departments of work.

TEXAS has a glorious law which taxes a farmer who makes and sells his own wine $600 a year. That will save the state from becoming a nest of nasty, crazy pauperism and debauchery. Such a law in California would be a blessing if the state had to pay a hundred million dollars to get it.

HEALTHY ABSTAINERS.

At Exeter Hall, March 24th, an assembly of prominently excellent citizens, ministers, Christians and men of secular callings met to honor and congratulate Mr. Samuel Bowly, President of the National Temperance Leag of England, on the occasion of his reaching the age of 80. Letters were received from other juveniles who had been his comrades of long ago in the temperance warfare regretting their inability to be present; Joseph Livesey 88 years of age; Canon Babington 90, Sir Edward Baines 80; Rev. J. C. Clutterbuck 81, and others whose years are not given. A few days before at Gloucester 5,000 working men had presented Mr. Bowly and his aged wife with two beautiful armchairs in token of their respect and affection. The longevity of the old war horses of temperance has been remarkable and the probability is strong that the triumph of the temperance reform with all its other glories will extend the years of man's average life to nearly double their present length.

THE DUTY OF GOOD CITIZENS.

I cannot refrain from thanking you for your bold and outspoken defense of the Sunday Law, and condemnation of the League of Conspirators who could tear down and trample under foot the most sacred and time-honored law and custom of all civilized nations; and from a conviction of duty; not for the purpose of establishing a principle of justice; not from any motive to advance the cause of humanity or the onward march of civilization—but the very reverse of all these; to tear down and destroy every hallowed institution, every bulwark of defense for society and home; to cast to the winds the last vestige of all the good that has been accomplished in the past by the untiring labors and unselfish devotion to principle, to justice and humanity, of the wise, the good and the philanthropic. And for what? Simply and only for the sordid purpose of putting into their coffers a few more blood-stained dollars, snatched as it were from the trembling fingers of the poorly fed and half-clad wife and children of the laboring man whom they have lured into their gilded hells to while away his day of rest in stupifying draughts of poisonous liquors, and vile fumes of filthy tobacco.

The newspaper press wields a powerful influence in moulding public opinion and in moving men to action, and should always throw its influence on the side of right and humanity; but it is a well-known and lamentable fact that on the question of temperance the secular press is, as a rule, either silent or non-commital. Hence, when we do find one taking the noble stand of boldly defending the right, as the Record has ever done, it deserves our commendation.

This League of Outlaws threatens to force an issue upon the people this fall that no patriotic citizen can ignore. However much we may differ on the question of temperance or of perserving the sanctity of the Sabbath, if we have a spark of patriotism left within our bosoms, we cannot be silent when we see an organized band of conspirators—and they mostly foreigners, and engaged in a crime breeding business, openly defying a law of the land, even after the highest court has decided that law is constitutional. This bold affront of these foreign outlaws must be avenged at the polls this fall; and all good citizens should for once throw party aside and unite their forces this fall to send only staunch temperance men to the Legislature.

I see by the last RESCUE (April 9th) that a State "Home Protection Association" has been organized and chartered, and that it has adopted the policy of the "League of Fiendom," of raising a fund to carry on the warfare. This looks like business. And now, let the bugle blast be sounded all along the line. Let all the loyal citizens in every voting precinct open a recruiting office, and organize their forces. Recruiting officers have long since been appointed thruout this county, and have been patiently waiting for instructions from headquarters. I expect now they will open their rolls. They can get full instructions by writing to A. K. Stevens, 1907, Bush street, San Francisco.—James Morse in Lompoc Record.

[Write to Geo. Babcock 40 Merchants Exchange for the present. ED.]

In the Encinal a correspondent criticizing the wretched farce of a Sunday law malefactor being whitewashed by a judge and jury concludes thus:

"A time-serving and incompetent magistrate is a dangerous misfit in the machinery of justice. A weak and ignorant juror is a menace to every right of every citizen. A drunken juror is a madman bearing a torch into a magazine. A venal or perjured juror is all villains in one, the synthesis of crimes, the embodiment of degradations. Compared with such a wretch, the sheep-thief is a gentleman, the incendiary a saint, and the highway robber a paragon of honor. 'Infamous' is a feeble word to apply to such a caricature of manhood. And next to him in this competitive harlotry of shame is the wretch who seeks an acquittal thru the debauched conscience and perjured soul of the false juror. And next to him is the timid or politically ambitious magistrate whose maundering intellect or craven heart emboldens the villainy of the jury-box. And fourth in the list is the thing with a coat on who, after the trial, threatens a juror with a withdrawal of patronage because he did not vote to acquit an arraigned party whom said creature and all men know have been guilty of the whole substance and intent of the offense charged. If none of these 'Ifs' fit, then none have I offended. If any man has been guilty of any of the counts hypothetically charged in the bill, and for that reason thinks me personal, you are at liberty to give him my address. I will argue the question with him. LEX STAT."

The RESCUE regrets that such strong language should be used; the way to begin that was mildly thus! Entertaining the highest respect for all Magistrates and with a profound conviction of their unerring perfection both in public and private life, the remark is ventured that Aristotle might have hinted that in his day, a Magistrate that did not possess thevery highest qualifications and requisits of a most austerely virtuous life, together with the most profound capacity, should be retired from active public service after he reaches the age of 72, in the supreme interest of the public safety and welfare etc., etc.

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED.—At Piety Hill, Shasta Co. April 19th, Lillie May, daughter of N. A. and R. Beeves, aged 12 years, 11 months and 7 days.

She was a bright and earnest youthful member of much promise, beloved of all and a blessing to the lodge and all who knew her. The lodge gave expression to its poignent regret and passed the usual mourning ceremonies.

Linden Lodge April 14th passed resolutions of regret and condolence on the death of sister Lucy A. Ferguson, an active member of the lodge.

DEGREES.

A report comes that two lodges in Oakland have received copies of the RESCUE of April 20th with a paster on the title page, purporting to come from the Grand Lodge or some lodge of Pennsylvania, and asking them to elect delegates to Grand Lodge who are in favor of abolishing the degrees. It seems scarcely necessary to say that such pasters did not come from Pennsylvania; they can only be the work of some mischief-making rascal or idiot who ot to be drummed out of the Order to the tune of the "Rogue's March."

ANALYSIS.—Col. Goulding in Butte Co. had a flask of whisky given to him for analysis to prove that he was mistaken in saying there was no pure whisky for sale in the county. He sent it to a chemist in San Francisco whose name and address can be had at the RESCUE office, and this is his report: "The liquid possessed a dark color (unnaturally so) and an unmistakable pungent and fiery taste, leaving a peculiar hot and burning aftertaste on the lips and tongue. It was found to possess a markedly acid reaction. It contained 41 per cent by volume of alcohol, (48 to 53 being considered standard amounts.) The following adulterants and poisons were sought for and found: Potato oil, Fusel oil, Aromatic flavors, Astringents, Red Pepper, Sulphuric Acid, Glycerine, Artificial oil of Bourbon, Caramel Coloring, Sugar.

Creosote, Cocculus Indicus, Strychnine, Muriatic Acid were not found. Conclusions—The article in question proves to be a factitious whisky and a poor imitation of the genuine article."

HAMMOND ON TOBACCO.

One of the most conspicuous humbugs of the nineteenth century is Wm. A. Hammond, late Surgeon-General. He is continually making important discoveries and setting them forth to the world with a degree of assurance that puts to blush the impositions of the quacks who infest the ordinary newspaper with their brilliant promises and audacious lying. Hammond proved, a few years ago, to his own satisfaction, but to the contempt of all reasoning men, that alcohol is food, that it takes the place of food; or, if not food, it takes the place of food; that it prevents the waste of tissues. Of course nobody seriously believes Hammond's assertions, and we are very confident that he does not believe them himself. As the tide of his popularity in this respect has been for some time on the wane, it is to be expected that other important discoveries shall resuscitate his dying fame. He has just made the important discovery that tobacco is a great aid to digestion. He has proved, to his own satisfaction, that it causes an increased secretion of the gastric juice, so that an after-dinner smoke is a great aid to digestion. Hammond's fact may be all right, but his reasoning is dreadfully awry. Whisky does preserve tissues, but it is not therefore food. No doubt, also, tobacco may cause an increased flow of the gastric juice, just as it causes an increase of saliva, but who will tell us that such flow is permanent, or how long before it will cease, and a greatly reduced flow follow. Is Hammond aware of the fact that a tonic will make a man apparently stronger by permanently weakening him? that whisky tends to make one brilliant by correspondingly destroying the intellect? that scores of other drugs, as well as tobacco, will cause increased activity of the stomach with corresponding increase in the flow of the gastric fluid, while, nevertheless, the powers of the stomach are being correspondingly destroyed?

Pistols and bowie-knives introduced into a crowd will frequently cause marked activity therein, but it does not follow that anybody is greatly strengthened or benefited thereby. Burglars frequently make householders decidedly active, but we have yet to learn that they make them either richer or stronger. So the poison, tobacco, will produce excitement and violent expenditure of the vital resources, but this is no evidence that it is recuperative. We advise Hammond and all his tribe to throw away science such as he is in the habit of studying, and indulge for the nonce in a little common-sense.—Health.

ITEMS FROM THE "C. C. ADVOCATE."

In the atrocious bill for President Garfield's funeral expenses, after paying Dr. Bliss more than he will be worth for all eternity, they also pay a whisky bill of $1,800 which the congressional mourners contracted.

Ohio has a law now which requires all saloons to close up on Sunday. The saloon keepers threaten to unite with the Democratic party in a body. They ought to unite with that party that ran into the sea and were choked.

It is not certain that the temperance cause will win its great battle in California in a year or two, but its ultimate success can scarcely be douted by reasonable men. It will unite the honest, virtuous, intelligent, law-abiding citizens in one strong party. The rum traffic and other dishohorable interests, all criminals and vagabonds will naturally coalesce. There will be two political parties divided by the line of honesty, sobriety and order.

We have seen the Journal of Freedom and Rights to sell whisky, fill jails, penitentiaries, alms-houses, and keep the police courts employed, and make honest men pay all their bills. If the League of Freedom were in the penitentiary and their victims out, it would be an improvement. The whisky organ of the League of Freedom quotes with approval its ally the Monitor.

Mrs. S. J. Gray, a colored woman of Cincinnati, who sued the Cincinnati Southern Railroad for refusing her admittance to the ladies' car on a first-class ticket last August, has been awarded $1,000 by a United States court.

Robert Collyer on Atheism.—In a recent discourse on Atheism, Robert Collyer commented on Robert Ingersoll "roystering around the country at $25,000 a year," and among other things said: I can agree in nothing with the faith of a man who tells me that his mission is to destroy men's faith in their God. I have no stones to throw at Atheism, any more than at a blind man. It can never be an institution; it can never be more than a destitution. As it was well said recently, Atheism is a plant which wont grow in our hardy Anglo-Saxon soil. One thing is certain, however, those who believe in God and not in some mere surmise about God, have got to stand firmly together, as the heroes of twenty years ago did for the solidity of the Union. I'll wade chin deep into the fight by the side of the shouting Methodist or watery Baptist, tho he baptize me twice a year, under the old flag of the Almighty. All minor issues must be cast aside till this question is settled for all time.

MORE KANSAS.

The papers of the Netherlands contain an appeal issued by the "Afschaffing Genootschappen" of that kingdom, directing the attention of Hollanders to the fact that emigrants from that country to America will find in the State of Kansas all that honest, sober, law-loving men can desire. The appeal closes as follows:

"Hollanders who wish to exchange the tri-color for a flag which floats over a sober republic are earnestly advised to disregard any and all inducements, and settle in the State of Kansas in the United States, where their children will not be surrounded by the drunkenness and its associated crimes and miseries of their neighbors. If you have to leave the Fatherland, carry the sobriety, industry and perseverance left to you by your forefathers to a country where they are the rule and not the exception of the inhabitants."

The New Rotterdam Courant a prominent Holland newspaper, in its issue of Tuesday, February 21; 1882, stated that this appeal would be read on Sunday the 26th of February from every Protestant pulpit in the provinces of North and South Holland, Utrecht, North Braband, Gelderland. Overyssel. —N. Western News.

That is what is happening to Kansas; it is going to be rapidly filled up with clean, honest, sober, virtuous people from Holland and the same class of people from Germany and other places. And Kansas will go ahead of California in wealth and prosperity like an express train passing an ox team; whereas if we had the Kansas Amendment and Kansas had our rum mills and breweries and gamblers and schools of vice, we would have ten sober, industrious immigrants for one that goes to Kansas. Were both states entirely prohibitory, our climate and resources and natural advantages would bring us two or three settlers for one that would go to Kansas.

DRINK AND THE RELIGIOUS CENSUS QUESTION.

It is a singular fact that one of the most palpable and powerful causes of the irreligiousness of the people has been overlooked by nearly all who have tried to account for the widespread neglect of public worship. We refer to the pernicious drinking habits which are so common. How the case really stands is clearly shown by a remarkable census which was taken on a recent Saturday evening in Bristol, to which we have before called attention. On January 7th, account was taken of all persons who entered the public-houses of that town between the hours of seven and eleven o'clock at night. The total population is 206,000. Of these 105,000, or more than half of the entire number, entered the drink-shops within those four hours. Men were slightly in the majority, their number being 54,074, whilst 36,802 women and 13,415 children went into the liquor-dens on that one evening. Temperance men have long contended that the drinking habits of the people form the chief barrier to the forces which are employed to Christianize them. That their view is correct seems now to be demonstrated by facts.

In order to realize the true state of the case, we must compare the figures just given with those of the religious census of Bristol. At both services on Sunday 109,452 persons attended. Two things must be borne in mind in comparing these figures; first, that the attendants at two religious services were counted, whereas the frequenters of public-houses were counted on a part of one evening only; secondly that the majority of church-goers must have been counted twice over, which could hardly have been the case to any material extent with the other class. So that whilst rather more than half the people of Bristol are found in the public-houses on Saturday evening, considerably less than half are found in churches and chapels on the Sunday. No doubt some people will be ready to exclaim that Bristol is an exceptional town. But of this there is no evidence. On the contrary, some of our towns are notoriously much worse than Bristol for drinking and drunkenness. Probably, therefore, we shall be pretty safe in taking this as a fair average case. There is only too much reason to fear that the state of things thus revealed in Bristol exists in all the large towns—and in not a few small towns of the country.

Is it not perfectly obvious that these two sets of facts have a very close connection with each other? May we not find a true explanation of the moral callousness of the people in the fact that they are so largely addicted to drinking? People who spend the Saturday evening in the public-house are not likely to to spend Sunday in church. To serve God and Bacchus is impossible. And to do the worshippers of the drink-god justice, very few of them make any pretence to worship or serve the Lord Jehovah. He "is not in all their thots."

What is the moral of all this? Why, that Christian men and women must add to their ordinary preaching and evangelizing agencies some means of rescuing the masses from the thraldom of the drink curse. In this matter the churches might well take a leaf out of the book of their new rival—the Salvation Army. Mr. Booth owes much of his success to the fact that he compels his converts to sign the Temperance pledge. If the churches cannot go so far as this, they ot at least to strive to prevent another generation of drinkers growing up, and to educate the conscience of the nation on the iniquity of the drink traffic. The case may be briefly summed up thus: the deplorable moral condition of the country is mainly owing to drink, and drink has been allowed to acquire the enormous and destructive power which it wields thru sinful and scandalous indifference of the Christian church. — Christian Commonwealth.

A YEAR IN NEW YORK.

During 1881, 38,624 deaths occurred in New York city, and 35,000 births were reported.

For the education of children some $4,000,000 was expended, while the drinking places, of which there are 9,215, absorbed, it is estimated, the enormous sum of $60,000,000.

Of the army of wine bibbers who cast their substance into this pool 32,391 were committed to the Tombs.

The amount expended in amusements of all sorts amounted to $7,000,000.

In the police station 120,084 asked for and were furnished with lodgings, and 24,000 outdoor poor were relieved.

In the police courts 67,235 persons were arraigned.

Crimes of violence were committed by 5,819 persons.

Charity sent to the alms-house, hospitals, nurseries, schools and asylums 131,765 persons.

Of our immense population of nearly a million and a half, 172,777 are females between the ages of 15 and 30 years; 30,000 of whom are domestic help. —New York Sun.

SAILORS AND CLERGYMEN.

A Sailors' Home was lately established in Portsmouth, a great naval station of England. Some of the prominent directors, among them naval officers and clergymen, were determined to have a liquor bar in the Home for the convenience of the sailors. They were not going to deprive Jack of comforts. The temperance fanatics proposed that the sailors of the ships in port should be consulted. A committee attended from each ship on invitation, and on their representations the design was promptly abandoned. That scores a good mark for the sailors.

GOOD OF ORDER.

There are more things included under this head than occur to us at the first glance. Many members claim that we do not need much for good of order—but that is just what we do need. Every living, growing lodge, which shows that it is a power at home and has influence abroad, makes the 16th order of business an important part of every meeting. These remarks do not apply to lodges of this kind but to those that appoint a committee, then sit back, metaphorically speaking, and fold their hands as much as to say, "we've done our duty and that is all one can expect of us." But have they? No. What can a committee do if every member does not stand ready to add his or her mite to the general good? If this one stands back because of age? that one, because of youth? another, for want of education? a fourth, because "it always was an impossibility to speak in public?" and the thousand and one other excuses we hear every night we come together? People are not usually afraid to speak and to do in their own families, and what is this but one large family where we should dwell together in peace and unity, each one striving to help some other. We dont want quarrels over trifles, nor worse yet, utter indifference; but good debates, not on a set question, but on the questions which occur at every meeting and which should receive the attention of every member. Many claim that they are too busy—well, we are all busy and should be; when we come into this Order as members, each and every part of it becomes our business and should receive its due amount of attention, as well as the house, the store, the farm, or the newspaper. There are three things at least which every member can do and should do. Make no nominations for fun but for the good of the lodge. Refuse no office unless positively unable to attend, because everyone who can read and write can fill each and everyone, and there are always plenty who will lend a helping hand if necessary, and the least that anyone can do is to vote on every question that concerns the welfare of the lodge. We are sorry to say that we've visited lodges, which held a membership of one hundred and fifty, where not a single ballot during the whole evening was cast by a woman and half the men sat around the room like so many statues. A few words will suffice for what people usually call the "Good of the Order"—recesses, music, etc. The first are excellent as they give an opportunity to become better acquainted with the new and visiting members, and to speak a word of encouragement to those who falter by the way. But dont make them too long, "all work and no play, makes Jack a dull boy" but the reverse makes him an idle one. We are not children and have work to do. Let us do it—after 5 or 10 minutes of restful, pleasant conversation. Of the music, recitations, readings, etc., every lodge has more or less. We dont want long programs, for it is as easy to go to one extreme as another, but we do want every one to respond promptly when called upon. It is our duty to protect the young, aid the weak, and reclaim the fallen. After they join us we must entertain them so that they will feel at home, wish to remain with us, and soon enter into the spirit and work with us. Let us have Faith in the good work, Hope for the weak, and Charity for all mankind.

RETTA WOOD.

Riverside, April 24, 1882.

A HINT FROM OREGON.

The following call was widely issued in our sister State:

"A call for a Temperance Alliance for Polk county is hereby made, to meet at Dallas on Wednesday, March 8th, at 10 A. M., and continue in session till Thursday noon. All temperance organizations, churches and Sunday-schools are requested to send delegates to this Alliance at the rate of one delegate for every 20 members or fraction of 20 greater than 10. Important business for temperance people is on hand and there should be a full attendance.

D. T. STANLEY,

Vice Pres. Oregon State Temperance Alliance."

I have just had the pleasure of reading an account of this eleventh Alliance meeting, as reported in the Temperance Department of Bro. Stanley's Christian Herald. The address of the President, Dr. J. W. Watts, one of the State Lecturers and State Supt. of Petitions, is exceedingly good and shows a great amount of good work done with encouraging results and still wider work wisely planned. But that the RESCUE is always so crowded for space I would give some extracts. It does us all good to hear the ringing war cry and reports of progress from other States. Then there are so many former residents of Oregon in Cal. But I know there is not room and so restrain my scissors and pen. Nor must I venture to name the societies, churches and Sunday-schools of all denominations, Good Templar Lodges, Good Samaritans and Bands of Hope, represented by delegates. As briefly as possible I summarise the Resolutions:

1. By rising vote, approving Executive's action in circulating petitions for Prohibitory Constitutional Amendment and pledge hearty co-operation.

2. Appointing Supt. of Petitions in each county; State Supt. to present to Legislature, Alliance Executive Committee to assist.

3. The Resolution pledging voters to "use utmost endeavors to prevent nomination and election of any and all persons as members of approaching Legislature who favor the use or sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage" evoked much discussion but was ultimately laid on table.

4. Adopting a petition from Alliance to Legislature. President to present it and use every legitimate means to constrain legislature to attend to said request to submit Prohibitory Amendment to vote of people.

5. Recommending wide-spread circulation of literature such as D. C. Cook's and Nat. Temp. Society's publications and Christian Herald, Monmouth, Or., the organ of the Alliance.

6. That each church and temperance organization in this state be requested to hold meetings to agitate in favor of constitutional amendment; resolving to do all in their power to discountenance and suppress the twin-sister of alcohol, tobacco; denouncing the Logan Bill and all senators and representatives who support it.

7. Concerning raising necessary and liberal funds for carrying on the war. Public meetings—with speeches, reports from the field, and band and other music—were held. Adjourned to meet at Albany.

And should not California temperance workers of all lodges, churches, societies, etc., have once a year such a general open meeting for conference and co-operation? Why not during Grand Lodge week in October, at San Francisco, or at the 4th of July camp meeting at Guerneville, delegates be sent and the cream of our temperance talent, experience, wisdom and enthusiasm be gathered for a rich feast. Much encouragement and a fresh impetus would be given, and a more general organized effort made. It would not be antagonistic but helpful to Good Templars, Sons of Temperance, W. C. T. Union or any other effort. Brethren, what say you? Speak out.

J. W. WEBB.

HALSEY, OREGON.

The temperance cause is moving along with a slow but sure success in old Linn Co.

Last February there was a call sent out for a temperance convention which was responded to with the utmost zeal by the different temperance organizations and they effected a permanent society to be known as the Linn Co., Temperance Alliance. Its object is political, to select strictly temperance men for the different offices in this Co. It created quite a buzz among the wire workers to see the temperance men get to work and pass resolutions declaring they would support none but known temperance men in the coming June election. The Republicans held their County Convention on the 12th inst., and what has never been known in Linn Co. before, nominated a county ticket of the best temperance men in the county. Such a ticket would have been completely ignored six years ago. We await with anxiety to see what measure the Democrats will propose on the temperance question; if they have any idea of success in this county they must give us strictly temperance men or we will vote for the others; for we will not vote nor support but will cast in our mite against any and all whisky men that are brot to the front. We (the temperance people) hold the balance of power in this county and are going to use it on the first Monday in June next. The Democrats held their State convention on the 5th inst.; and there is not a word on temperance in their platform nor was temperance mentioned by any of the different eloquent speakers at their convention. Now if the Republicans want to elect their men without a dout, all they have got to do is give us good temperance men to vote for and a strong temperance platform, and we will throw our Democracy, Greenbackism, Anti-monopoly and all overboard and vote for temperance men first, last and all the time. WHAT IT DID FOR HIM.

"Come in here! come in!—— ——" (The dashes indicate a horrible string of oaths.)

Thus shouted a young man scarcely twenty-one years old, from a railway train to some one on the outside while he knocked so hard upon the window that I expected to see it smashed to pieces. One of his companions whispered to him that the car was full of ladies, when he, still in an elevated voice shouted.

"I know what I'm about. I paid my fare." So he went on to the disgust of every one in the car. He was so drunk that he could scarcely sit on his seat. His companions tho somewhat under the influence of liquor were ashamed of him, and proposed to go into the smoking car. All arose and started. It was humiliating to see this young man, well dressed and evidently capable of doing well in the world, go staggering up the aisle, every few steps he would lurch up against the end of a car seat making the ladies cringe in very fear of having him tumble over them. Why all this? Whisky, whisky. It had taken all the decency out of him, all the self-respect, and so it will for any body who uses it. S.

THE CIRCULARS.

I think the idea of issuing circulars to get signatures to elect men for office who will stand firm and true to Temperance and especially the Sunday law, a good one, and I am pleased to see you have commenced to bring this matter before the people, at so early a date. W. H. Barron.

PENNINGTON, Sutter Co., April 17, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—I got home the next day after seeing you at S. F.; found all well; was glad to get back where I could find the RESCUE and so many other temperance friends. Friday night attended Marysville Lodge; found many new faces there that had come in since I was last there; found I had missed much by not being here to attend District Lodge at Wheatland; just my luck. They all speak in the highest terms of the Wheatland brothers and sisters and how generously they entertained the whole lodge. They had one of the best District Lodges ever held in this District. On Sunday, our lodge day, I was called to the chair and we initiated 3 brothers and 2 sisters; felt much encouraged having 5 proposed for our next meeting. The good work goes on and we hope it ever may.

H. S. GRAVES.

IN MEMORIAM.—Notices have been given at various times that In Memoriam resolutions will not be published in the RESCUE, but still they continue to be sent regularly, without date or place of death, with no intimation whether the age was 13 or 81, and constructed in language and pattern that have been worn out a thousand times and are obsolete. The organ of the order should register the date and place of death, the name, age, sex, standing, record and qualities of every member that is called home from our circle. And the memorial notice should be in decorous terms and shape, and should be respectful to the memory of the deceased, satisfactory to the bereaved and creditable to the Order. It is a very simple affair to write an appropriate memorial notice, but it is impossible to frame one in this office from the material presented in the resolutions that generally come to hand. Therefore, be it understood, memorial notices will be readily inserted, but resolutions that contain no particulars from which a respectful notice can be framed, will in the future receive no attention. Twice during the past year the name of the deceased was omitted in the resolutions sent for publication beside many other irregularities and it is time this matter should receive decorous attention.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street. San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

RENEW! RENEW!! RENEW!!!
GREAT OFFER FOR
Renewals and New Subscribers!

AN OPPORTUNITY TO BOTH
GET GOOD AND DO GOOD
WITHOUT ITS COSTING YOU ANYTHING.

Five of the Revolution "Class Papers" sent free—one each to any five addresses for one year for every cash renewal or cash subscriber sent to the RESCUE with $1.25.

The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, of Chicago, publishes eighteen monthly "class papers," as follows:

No. 1. "Our Young Ladies," especially for young ladies.
No. 2. "Our Young Men," especially for young men.
No. 3. "Our Women," especially for women.
No. 4. "The Christian," for any and every one who acknowledges the claims of God.
No. 5. "The Pastor," especially for pastors urging them to do their duty.
No. 6. "The Sunday-School Superintendent," setting forth the duties of the Sunday-school in relation to temperance, and what the superintendent may do
No. 7. "The Sunday-School Worker," intended to induce all Sunday-school teachers to teach temperance in their classes, and otherwise help the cause.
No. 8. "The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner," containing articles from Catholic divines, etc., intended to influence Catholic families.
No. 9. "The Pledge," for reform work; useful at any time.
No. 10. "The Prohibition Banner, for State or local prohibition work.
No. 11. "The Saloon Curse," a paper antagonizing the saloon on the merits of the question, "Saloons or no Saloons," without regard to temperance; especially suited to local prohibition work.
No. 12. "Home Protection," to help women to the ballot on the temperance question, for local or state home protection work.
No. 13. "The People," gotten up especially for the ordinary classes, mechanics, laboring men, etc.
No. 14. "The Railroad," for railroad employes.
No. 15. "The Anchor," for sailors, steamboat men, etc.
No. 16. "The Soldier," for soldiers.
No. 17. "The American Farmer," for farmers.
No. 18. "The Freeman, for colored people.

These papers are sent out monthly, each paper addressed, wrapped and mailed separately to each individual named. Each person sending $1.25 cash renewal or new subscriber for the RESCUE will be entitled to the privilege of selecting from the above list, five papers, all of one, or of different kinds, and ordering them sent to such parties as he may choose, monthly, for one year, without extra cost to him.

For your cash renewal, five papers.
For your cash renewal and one new subscription, or for two new subscribers, ten papers
For your cash renewal and two new subscriptions, or for three new subscriptions, fifteen papers, and so on.

The "class papers" are small, four-page, two column papers, intended to take the place of tracts, on which they are certainly a great improvement. Each contains about 6,000 words in a number, or 70,000 in a year, choice matter, and they can not fail to do good wherever sent.

An arrangement with the "Revolution" makes this offer possible for a limited time only.

Those who avail themselves of this offer must give carefully and plainly the address of the parties to whom the class papers are to be sent, post-office, county and state. And no other premiums or discounts can be made on papers so ordered. There is no weekly temperance paper in the world so cheap as the RESCUE on these terms.

READ!! READ!!! What people say.

I am glad The Lever is doing well, I am its enthusiastic friend. It is bright, racy, and means business, and I like it and rejoice in its prosperity. MARY T. LATHRAP, Pres. S. W. C. T. U. of Mich.

IT CONTAINS

1. Numerous editorials.
2. Market Reports.
3. A Weekly News Summary.
4. Stories for the Fireside.
5. The International Sunday-school Lesson.
6. Household hints, family receipts, &c.
7. Stories for the Boys and Girls.
8. Miscellaneous articles from the best writers in the country.
9. Serial articles from Hon. A. B. Richmond, the old lawyer and others.

I consider The Lever one of the very best temperance papers published. Its national circulation would do more to benefit the nation than a session of congress. GEO. W. BAIN.

Its outspoken declarations in favor of temperance and the right are its best commentary. MOREAU S. CROSBY, Lieut. Gov. Mich.

The Lever is clear, strong, fearless and outspoken. It is ably edited, always on the right side: it ought to prosper and will. It should be widely read, and liberally supported. SAMUEL DICKIE, Prof. in Albion College.

It ought to be in every family. I most cordially commend it. J. EDWARD BROOK., Prin. Nor. Dep't., Olivet College.

The Lever is independent in all things but neutral in nothing. It is the aim of the publishers to make it an educator. Believing that the American people are a thinking people, they appeal directly to the judgment and good sense of their readers. Their ultimate aim is the BALLOT. They urge men to vote as they pray.

The Lever is the Organ of the N.C.T.U.

THE CASH GROCERY 519 Post St. will have next week a new program to offer—was too late this week.

REPORT of the Lady Managers of the O. H., of the Sacramento Y. M. C. A., and various communications etc. crowded out this week.

THE alarming intelligence comes that Ayers pills contain no croton oil nor calomel. Can any one believe the compounder made such a wretched oversight as that?

IN LIVERMORE on Monday the Temperance ticket elected 2 of the 5 Trustees and the Marshal and Assessor. A heavy vote was polled and there was much excitement. Good for Livermore.

HOME PROTECTION will protect the bar-tenders more than any other class of people. The death rate among them is double the rate of matchmakers and whitelead grinders, two of the most fatal occupations.

THE Wasp advertises a gold watch to be sent for $19.65 from Philadelphia; it is sold at about half the cost in Geneva and is as good as a $150 gold watch. If the Wasp don't know that advertiser to be a fraud, any of its readers who sends money for it will find it out.

COL. C. N. GOULDING left on yesterday's steamer for Cresent City and will make an extended tour of Del Norte, Humbolt and Mendocino counties before returning to the city.

THE Home Protection Association has districted the City and has appointed canvassers who will call upon all our citizens and give them an opportunity to identify themselves with the Association in its efforts to maintain law and order.

OREGON.—Bro. Z. T. Wright sending down a club for RESCUE from Portland reports flourishing times there. Prohibition Lodge No. 373 recently dedicated a new hall and cleared $70 and 8 new members on the occasion. No. 373 is aspiring to be the Banner Lodge and as it goes in for Temperance literature it stands a chance.

SUBSCRIBERS and renewals this week, Stockton (Wm. Jones) 1, (H. R. Hughes) 1; Blacks Station (Mrs. Stevens) 1; Lemore (Fairfield Lodge) 20; Alameda (Mrs Richardson) 1; Sacramento (G. B. K.) 1; W. C. King (Colusa 12; Little Stony 5; Elk Creek 3) 20; J. W. Webb (Santa Barbara 5; Lompoc 1; Carpenteria 1;) 7, in all 52.

THE most important and valuable piece of property owned by the State of Iowa from now till 27th June is its Temperance paper the Northwestern News. If the amendment should happen to carry by one vote or a few votes, that vote or those few votes will be worth to the State 100 million a year for every year that Prohibition has been hastened.

THE BROADEST, longest, widest, deepest, highest, most expansive, most elastic and most comprehensive joke of the year 1882, if not of the 19th century, is the nomination in an exchange of Jim Farley of Cal., for next President of the U. S. in 1884. He would get the vote of the San Francisco Leag of Fiendom, but whether that would quite overcome the decent vote of this and 37 other States is as yet slightly uncertain.

THE EXECUTIVE Committee met at Vallejo Monday evening May 1st. Bro. Gould was present and every body was glad to meet him. Bro. Graves was absent and every body was sorry not to meet him. The other members as usual were at the post of duty and had an interesting session, particulars of which will appear next week.

"KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS that we the undersigned do hereby pledge ourselves to each other that we will not patronize any persons, firms or business establishments that keep open their place or places of business on Sunday, contrary to law." That is copy of a subscription list which is being circulated in San Francisco and ot to be every where. The Leag of Fiendom have been practicing that line of tactics for 8 years against those who voted for local option in 1874.

DR. COGSWELL is busily prosecuting his scheme of fountains; has one in progress for placing at the Market Street ferry depot, and about ten in preparation for various cities in the East. Each one of them is to stand and preach a practical lesson of temperance and cleanliness and virtue and benevolence to thousands of people every day for many many generations and ages. The Dr. is a kind friend to humanity.

THE Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors have issued circulars advising the relinquishment of all attempts to enforce the Sunday Law, on the ground that the prosecutions are going to run the county into ruinous debt. It is a sweet condition of things for a ring of rumselling outlaws to own the County Supervisors, but it is not only so in Los Angeles. That is a nice story to go East to decent people there who have some idea of coming to California. That is a far more damaging report than that of 90,000 more Chinese coming.

DOMESTIC INFELICITY may be avoided or much mitigated by calling on J. W. Evans, 29 Post Street, San Francisco, and getting a light running Domestic Sewing Machine to lighten the domestic worries and labors of the household, to mend up the domestic tears and splits and make the Domestic machine run smoothly and lightly in every way. Look at the Horseshoe on page 441. Don't buy any more quartz mills and piledrivers to sew with. Our Good Templars and readers of the RESCUE want at least 200 of the very best sewing machines this summer. Let us go for the Horseshoe every time and save $10 apiece.

ILLINOIS has 24 counties without a licensed tramp mill or thief factory in them. In the first week of January there were but 13 persons in the county jails of these 24 counties. The other 78 counties had 4012 prisoners in jail or 51 to each county. Is that an item of any account for people to think about? But the secular press, the watchful guardians of the interests of the dear people, dare not publish any such facts as this, lest the grog-shop across the way should stop its 12 cents a week subscription.

MRS. PINKHAM'S picture is doutless good for worms and corns; the various pictures of the Doctor Browns and Smiths so prevalent in the illustrated newspapers are perhaps good applications for various cutaneous diseases; But the best patent medicine to give an Oscar Wildic tone to the advertising pages of a modern journal would be a salve or pill that would restore the bloom of youth and health to a second hand pair of boots or an old coat. That would draw with an editorial puff like this. "Dear Mrs. Pinkham—I had been meditating for over two weeks on the uncertainty of leather and expecting in a few days to be called on to confer a pair of venerable antique boots upon my butler who is a man of the most rigid morality and a regular attendant at the United Brethren Church, when I saw your advertizement and sent to New York for a dozen bottles of your Miraculous Madagascar Boot and Shoe Rejuvenator. By the time I had taken one of your small bottles at 75 cts. (3 shillings sterling) one of the boots had entirely healed up at the toe and assumed a beautiful polish and half a bottle more made a truly miraculous change in the other. Yours affectionately, W. E. Gladstone. Sworn to before me etc., Albert Edward. P. S. my chief steward asks if you have any pills that will mend umbrellas.

ANOTHER MINISTER SCANDAL.—About 3 months ago, a remarkable Sunday cockfight was celebrated in San Francisco. One of the swindling fraternity here had heard of a very cute sharper in Detroit, a famous artist in the cockpit, wrote to him and the two put up a game on their stealing brethren here. At the Sunday worship referred to, the Detroit artist first appeared. He was a perfect stranger, wore an air of meekness, suavity, and seriousness as well as a garb that could belong of right to none but a clergyman. The betters and sharpers were overcome with delight at the prospect of easily plucking a man who could be so little of an expert as the innocent and unpractical parson, but they were undeceived to the extent of $1.500 which created a general facial elongation and a remarkably fertile crop of suppressed profanity. Since then the man of solem air has been engaged in Alameda County, training roosters and other bipeds for the Sunday cockpit. One of the peculiarities of the saintly man was that of being always "just broke," and founding a small loan from a friend thereon. And two weeks ago he suddenly decamped without leaving address or clue or photograph. Now as this member of the Detroit Leag of Freedom looked very much like a preacher, the Sunday gamblers think the San Francisco ministers ot to make their losses good, if they desire to retain the reverence and respect of the Sunday sporting fraternity of San Francisco. Of course they will, and there will oe an assessment on the Ministerial Union next week to preserve the good name of the profession; probably.

THE NATION'S DEAD.

BY J. A. MC MILLAN.

Honor the nation's dead!
Honor each lowly bed
  Unrecognized by friend!
Nobly they fought and well—
Heroes who bravely fell—
  The Union to defend.
Fierce was the foe and strong,
Bitter the war and long,
Righteous our cause and true,
  To liberate the slave.
Brave were the coats of blue,
  Yes! decorate each grave.

Comrades, reverse your arms!
No foe with dread alarms
  We go to meet to-day;
We go to greet the brave
Who sleep within the grave,
  Our comrades in the fray.
With garlands freshly wove,
And bathed in tears of love,
We march with mournful pace,
  A nation's tears are shed
These unknown graves to grace,
  Honor the nation's dead!

But other dead have we;
What shall their honors be?
  Not martyrs, victims these,
Died for their country's sake,
Its revenue to make,
  Sold for ambition's ease;
O, for an unknown name,
To hide their guilty shame!
Shame not all their own,
  'Tis by the nation bred.
Since licensed death is sown
  We reap the nation's dead.

Dead! Yes, and more than dead,
Dishonor crowns each head,
  And doom to endless hell,
Slain by no alien foe
"We, the people," dealt the blow
  By which these victims fell.
The nation's dead indeed,
Fruits of the nation's greed!
Not in freedom's holy cause
  This human blood was shed;
Victims of unrighteous laws
  Are these, our nation's dead.

Our dead by legal powers,
The crime, the guilt is ours;
  Slain by the people's will,
Full sixty thousand souls,
The yearly list enrolls,
  That "we, the people," kill.
The work of our own hands,
To meet the law's demands,
And O, the helpless cry!
  What bitter tears are shed,
By hosts that fain would die
  To swell the nation's dead!

What praise can we devise
For men whom we despise,
  Debauching manhood's pride?
What tho in lawful trade
This wreck and shame were made,
  Their name we still deride.
Yet as these pass away,
The victims of to-day,
Still other thousands wait—
  In bondage worse than slaves—
The same dishonored fate,
  To fill the drunkards graves.

How shall we clear our skirts
While licensed death begirts
  Our land from east to west?
For God will surely call
For vengence for the fall
  Of every soul distressed.
Is it a matter small,
That by our will they fall?
O man, let conscience reign!
  Let head be ruled by heart!
Let not this curse remain,
  Arise! bid it depart!

Honor the nation's dead,
Who for their country bled,
  Who died for freedom's sake!
But think of living death
That's haunting every path
  These hapless victims take.
In palaces or dives
The lawful traffic thrives
And shall we still sustain,
  This worse than rebel foe,
Whose countless thousands slain
  Are sunk to endless woe?

O, wretched people, we!
Who! who shall set us free
  From this accursed blight?
Let every patriot rise,
And burst the "party" ties
  That bind him in the fight.
Our nation's honor save,
And cheat the drunkard's grave,
'Twas ballots made the law
  That dares the curse of Heaven;
'Tis ballots must withdraw
  The legal sanction given.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

BY B. W. RICHARDSON, M. D., F. R. S.

XVII.—ALCOHOL AND PAUPERISM.

We have declared that alcohol prepared and taken on a large scale is a source of starvation—that to take large quantities of this is to starve. We have known that all thru our history. Our painters have shown that. Our Hogarths and Cruikshanks have sketched it. All who have depicted drunkenness have connected it wilh want and penury. We get beyond that. We see that nations that are going to suffer severely are nations that destroy the produce which is given to them for the supply of their natural wants, by appropriating it to unnatural productions. For instance, in Ireland—one of my friends has brought me a book on the culture of land in Ireland, and has shown that 75 per cent. of the cereal produce of the country goes for the production of one grain—barley, which goes in its turn for the production of one destructive drink—whisky. Let us take that to our minds; and that is only one illustration of which many more could be given; but we have here this broad fact before us, that directly we begin to take food for a false purpose, we take from ourselves that which nature wished us to have, and starvation, misery, and penury are the natural results. Perhaps some one will say, "We can get corn and food elsewhere." But we can only do it by the extension of our principles elsewhere, because if the opposite were to prevail then those countries sinking into the same abyss would perform the same act, and the whole world might in course of time be brought into one gigantic famine.

GENTLEMEN.—RESPECTABLE.

The News Letter complains "before the Supreme Court of the Public" of the Fountain saloon and Concert Hall, Sutter and Kearney. Two "gentlemen" were there recently enjoying the "performance and their beer," when one of the lady performers came and took a seat with them, was treated etc. She suggested that as it did not look well for her to be there they had better come into a side room; here was some more company; introductions, good time and three bottles of Harazsthy Champagne, which was on the bills $2 a bottle, but the gentlemen had to pay $15 for the three. They applied for redress at the police office and finding that that institution was not a court to judge between idiots who treat seductive sirens to ten cent champagn at $5.00 they appealed to the News Letter who puts the case between the "gentlemen" and the "respectable" "Concert Hall." Respectable all round.

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

The liquor traffic is making war upon the nation. It is infecting the national life with incurable disease. The whole body politic, from the legally qualified elector to the Representative in Congress, is sickening with the fatal plague. This is a matter of great moment. We are face to face with an immense peril. A national sin is a national peril, and one of the deadliest and least reparable. Read all history and it is only a commentary on the axiom of the wise king, that "righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." There is not a single instance in all history of any nation, conscious of its vice, clinging to its vice, refusing to give up its vice, that has not at last perished of its vice. Gibbon says, "Rome fell because she was honeycombed with corruption." Egypt worshipped beasts and became the basest of kingdoms. The Reign of Terror in France was the legitmate outbreak of social corruption. "The burden of Tyre," "the burden of Babylon," the burden of Nineveh," may be written against all the fallen nations, only changing the names. Many a nation has fallen unwept, but none without a crime. Our nation clung to the sin of slavery in spite of the warnings of Providence, and the baptism of blood in the Great Rebellion followed. Now if there is any one thing more clear than another it is that the sin, the besetting sin, the curse, the deadliest curse, of our nation to-day is drunkenness and drink. * * *

The family is the corner-stone of the State. The story will never cease to be told of how the warriors of Greece fot on the plains of Troy for ten weary years to vindicate and preserve the sanctity of the family. The ruin of the "Eternal City," whos proud boast it once was to be mistress of the world, but who now sits "childless and crownless here in voiceless woe," was caused by her failure to protect the family. In America the liquor traffic is smiting the family with a pestilential blast. It is encircling the home like the serpents of Laocoon, and crushing in its folds the spirit of patriotism and virtue. No wonder the prophet said: "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that putteth the bottle to his lips!" It is a crime to manufacture or sell intoxicating drinks. Our brewers, distillers, and saloon keepers are criminals. Lord Chesterfield that cool headed statesman, called them "artists in human slauter." Christ said to his disciples just before raising Lazarus, "Roll away the stone." So He says to the State, "Roll away the stone of temptation from before the drunkard." In the name of general benevolence, in the name of social self-interest, in the name of enlightened patriotism, and in the name of Christian civilization, we demand the suppression of the liquor traffic.—J. M. Foster, in Christian Statesman.

CAN THE LAW MAKE IT RIGHT?

No. 35.

MEN who sell beer justify themselves because the law permits them to sell; but does that make it right or prevent the criminal results that follow beer-drinking? Let us see. The beer traffic was made legal in Massachusetts in 1870. In Boston, the first year after the passage of the bill, 2,433 more persons were committed to the city prison than during the previous year. In New Bedford, a city of 22,000 persons, in eight months under free beer, crime increased 68 per cent. Letters were addressed to Chiefs of Police, District Attorneys, and Judges of Supreme Courts throughout the State with regard to beer. The testimony in the responses was almost invariably, "beer excites men to acts of violence, desperation, and crime."

England in 1830 legalized the beer trade. In four years, 50,000 new beer-shops were opened and not one whisky-shop was closed. Before the passage of this act the increase of crime was 12 per cent. For ten years after it was 31 per cent. Thirty-nine years after this, all the chief constables and superintendents of police throughout Great Britain were asked how to prevent crime? Almost without exception, the reply was, "Shut up the beer-houses."

Many cases of crime directly resulting from beer-drinking have come to our knowledge. The dreadful murder in New York where a man killed his friend (both drunk over the beer they had used that night together), cut his body in pieces, putting the head in a lumber pile, where it was found by school-children; the two recent cases in Ohio, when two men shot each other over a keg of beer, and another killed his companion and has gone to prison for life, both drunk on beer.

There is literally no end to the cases that might be given to show that the law can not make beer-drinking harmless nor beer-selling innocent. But the very men who are most ready to claim the protection of the law for their beer-selling, are the most unwilling to obey the law when it does not permit them to sell. The enforcement of such laws is often resisted with violence, and men who engage in the prosecutions often have their property destroyed and their lives threatened. In a notable recent case in Nebraska, Col., Watson B. Smith. of Omaha, who had done good service in that line, received many threatening letters from brewers and saloon-keepers, and at last was brutally murdered, probably by some of those who had threatened him. These are the legitimate results of beer-drinking and beer-selling, and no amount of law can make them right or harmless.

AN APOSTLE.

It is a pity that Mr. Hallenbeck dont approve of temperance societies. A sad draw back to his usefulness. One might if so disposed raise an objection on equal grounds against religious societies. One of the best disinfectants for any such disease of the imagination is found in the work of one of God's noblest modern prophets and apostles,

MISS WESTON,

the apostle to the British seamen. In Exeter Hall on the 30th March this heroine gave her annual report of the progress and prospects of temperance in the navy, before a large audience; the Rt. Hon. Lord Claud Hamilton presiding (which indicates that his Lordship honored himself and his rank on that occasion.)

She said the seed had been sown for years by the National Temperance Leag and now is bearing good fruit. Twelve years ago there were some total abstainers here and there in the Navy; the Reindeer was sent to the Pacific on a 4 years cruise. She had some good officers and seamen and a temperance society was started on the ship. Many men were reformed on board and when the crew were at last paid off, the sober ones had a grand tea celebration and when about to part, one of the boys said "if this has been good for the Reindeer it ot to be good for other ships, let us all pledge ourselves to start the same thing wherever we go in other ships." They did so and the work has been carried on ever since with the assistance of the National Leag who with admirable good judgment if not under a Divine inspiration detailed Miss Weston to undertake the lead in the work.

There are generally 220 to 230 British ships of war in commission with about 57,000 officers, seamen and boys. They are commissioned for about 4 years. Some are always returning and are laid up till wanted again; their crews paid off, and drafted again into other ships which are commissioned. Miss Weston is enabled to get a pretty accurate record of the work accomplished, but there is a constant breaking up of the ships society and a constant remodeling the nucleus of another. It is a serious difficulty to contend against but they keep manfully or womanfully at it. Miss Weston says "I am satisfied that where temperance work is carried on upon the right lines in simple faith and trust in God it will bring an abundant and glorious harvest. * * * I must say after working among seamen for 15 years that you have not on shore such a band of temperance workers as I could show you in the Navy; * * * just as they have been determined and out and out for drink and evil, so when they become changed men of God they are out and out on the right side and their energy goes into right channels."

In the Navy and at foreign ports which these ships visit she has over 1000 helpers, nearly all of them sailors, officers and marines; and they have secured one-sixth of the service (about 10000) already for temperance; the best and cleanest and healthiest and handsomest of all the force. These men are always selected by their officers when a responsible or dangerous service is demanded (and so it is everywhere.) The officers in such cases call on the men who have clear heads and who are strong and well and courageous.

When a ship goes into commission Miss Weston endeavors to get a branch of the Temperance Leag on board, and it seems she generally if not always succeeds. She has Sailors' Homes at all the great government ports thru which she can get at every ship that prepares for sea. The captain's consent has to be first obtained; this was at first a difficulty, for the officers feared temperance would affect a sailor harmfully, and to have a woman come round talking temperance was an awful thing too, (altho it was always in order for women to go among sailors to peddle tobacco and oranges and a little gin and cheese and eggs, etc., for food, and kittens and pups and canary birds for pets. That was a good woman's normal sphere, but talking temperance and godliness to sailors was unsexing herself in a manner shocking to tender sensibilities). But these objections to her work are wearing out, and she is generally warmly welcomed both by officers and seamen.

She describes a recent instance of how she succeeds. On her first visit on board at the dinner hour, one of the men asked if she had her pocket-pistol (pledge book), and desired her to "spin a yarn" to 200 or 300 of the crew who were ready to listen. A number took the pledge after the talk, and an under officer became their leader. When the ship left, there was a machine for a coffee canteen on board, a temperance library, Sankey's Song Books and a Bible class, and they were to hold a temperance meeting as often as possible.

The ship called at Madeira; a Christian friend of Miss Weston was there ready to meet them. Several tea meetings and parties were arranged on shore; first night 80, and second, 90 of the crew had liberty and attended; and a prayer meeting was added to the exercises. Next they went to St. Vincent (West Indies) and coaled there. More meetings on shore with good results; while some of the rummy sailors got into a row on shore and were hurt and put to simmer down in jail. Last news they were at the Cape of Good Hope having a good time there. They are fitted out with all the requisites of a temperance society, and when they return at the end of a four years' cruise, they expect, as in former instances, a grand result of reformed, respectable, worthy seamen and many of them members of the Christian fold.

There are 2000 boys on the training ships at Devonport and many more elsewhere. Miss W. addresses them all once or twice a year, and has fully half of them on her plede book. Many boys when they get entitled to their grog ration at twenty years of age (that thousand times infamous custom) are tempted to break their pledge, but a great many resist, and those who do are presented at the end of the year with a silver medal; 1000 boys took the pledge on the training ships last year.

Miss Weston has succeeded in enlisting friendly agents in nearly all the ports visited by British Naval vessels all round the world, who board the ships on arrival, look up the temperance seamen, invite them to good, pleasant quarters, and to happy gatherings, and temperance reunions on shore.

It is a sad reflection that the Chaplains seem to have been very shy of this temperance movement, not the first to help it; but it is cheering to hear that last year a good many had joined it. Miss Weston says it is a grand thing when the Chaplain takes an interest in the cause. "The other day the Chaplain of the Indus came to the meeting and heard the men speak, sing, recite, etc., and he was so struck by what he saw that he said, I have taken my last glass of wine in moderation all my life, but from to-night will do so no more. I won't be led by my men, but by God's help I will lead them," and to their great delight he is now their president.

Another chaplain (in the Bodicea) left England undecided, but she heard from Madeira that the ship sailed from there with 80 temperance men headed by the chaplain, after some successful meetings. The Diamond sailed from Australia with 60. The Druid on the North American station has one quarter of her crew tetotallers under the lead of her first lieutenant, son of Sir Wm. King Hall. He "testifies to the tremendous advantages that temperance gives to every sailor and the mark these men make on board their ship." The Superb in the Mediterranean has 60 abstainers under the chaplain. The Magpie, a little vessel has 20 under the lead of an officer.

In 1881 Miss W. issued 230 "cards of honor" for periods of 1 to 5 years of total abstinence, 21 silver medals for 5 years and 2 silver medals for 10 years adherence to the pledge, and sent 20,000 little blue books into the Navy which are "little gospel letters" and once a quarter pledge papers are distributed, many of which are signed and returned to her. They have an organ, the Naval Brigade News which is self-sustaining and 50,000 copies were issued last year; circulation increasing fast too. And this work costs $5,000 a year, of which the leag pays part and Miss W. has to find the rest.

These items have been gleaned from the Temperance Record and will be continued in next number.

WANTED, A NEW PARTY.

If there were no other reason for the existence of a prohibition party than that temperance men might have some way of expressing their opinions on election days, it were sufficient reason for the organization of such party. As the case now stands, such voters must either accept the candidates of the present anti-temperance political parties, or vote blanks. Sufficient time has certainly been given the two great political organizations of our country to show us what they will do for temperance. And we have all had abundant opportunity to learn their purposes in regard to this question. The fact is known by every body, that both of them believe temperance legislation to be hurtful to them as parties. Hence, there is nothing to be expected from them in favor of temperance, and, therefore, no reason why conscientious Christian men should vote for either of them. But many such men do vote for the candidates of these parties. They protest against this unscrupulous spoils seeking. They know that neither is in favor of the legislation they want, and yet comparing one with another perhaps, and influenced by that miserable old adage, "Of two evils choose the less," they will still vote for the party they supported years ago, and congratulate themselves they have done perfectly right and the best thing possible.

Of course that is all either party wants. It cares little if its adherents, while supporting it, must make the humiliating acknowledgement that it is a less evil than its rival. It cares not whether the argument be wrong and mischievous,—as the adage referred to certainly is,—just so the voter be retained. Power, not character and welfare of constituents, is its object.

We ask, therefore, for the organization of a party that will seek the total suppression and prohibition of the liquor traffic. We do not want a party, speaking smooth words of "sympathy," with our cause, and yet refusing us even the little right to petition, as the Republican party does, to say nothing about granting us any of the proposed laws for the suppression of intemperance. Such "sympathy," though possibly a less evil than Democratic indifference, is too pharisaical to hold the affection of conscientious people any longer. We must have something more than meaningless and deceptive professions, if we are to continue to choose it at the polls.

Besides, it is not a question with us which evil we will choose. As Christians we may submit to the evil, but choose it never. If, therefore, the Republican and the Democratic parties will not champion the cause of temperance,—and it is evident they will not,—as temperance voters we have no further use for them. We choose principle rather than party,—the cause of humanity rather than that of office seekers.

And in withdrawing allegiance from this party, so chivalrous in years gone by, but so abject and servile to whisky and spoils in these years, we must then work for the organization of a party committed to prohibition and all its accessories, promising to vote for it, work for it, and pray for it, as consistent temperance men who have the interests of their fellows and of their government at heart.

Shall we have such a party?—Signal.

FOREIGN MISSIONS PAY.

They pay financially, as the old wheel-wright found, who gave one dollar to missions in the Sandwich Islands, feeling as if he had dropped it into the sea, but was amazed to receive, not long after, an order for twenty carts, at ninety dollars each. They pay scientifically, as the sixty languages reduced by missionaries to grammatical form, attest. They pay restoratively, as the Papuan and the Maori of the day bear witness; and Africaner; and Vara, a Sandwich Islander, who, born a heathen, on his death-bed said to friends about him, that his canoe was ready, its sail was spread, and his pilot on board; and a certain Brahmin, who, when converted, besides being invicible in argument possessed such eloquence as to bring tears to Brahmin eyes —a feat as difficult as to wring moisture from the pebbles of the brook. That they have restored society and whole nations, let the disappearance of Suttee, of Juggernaut, and of drowning in the Ganges declare, and Madagascar and Polynesia, and Fiji, with her eight hundred churches, swell the testimony. If, after reflecting on facts like these, a preacher should have no zeal for missions, what a "narrow-chested, spindle-legged" character he must be!—Dr. Scudder.

But it is of no use to tell people these things; just as they do about prohibitory laws they will keep on saying that the missionary never civilized anybody, only went to live easy and make money selling beads to the savages; and they will prove conclusively that it was the rumseller with his barrels of whisky who built the 800 churches in Fiji, taut the natives to read and converted the Islands of the Sea.

IN ST. GEORGE'S hospital, London, the drink bill for employees was in 1880, $2,656, and for patients as medicine, $3.884. Must be a heavy mortality there; what a boon to those poor people it would be to have intelligent physicians.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

GRAND LODGE I. O. G. T. OF CALIFORNIA.

BERNARD HOUSE, VALLEJO, May 1, 1882.

Pursuant to call of the G. W. C. T. the Executive Committee convened and was called to order at eight o'clock P. M.

Upon calling the roll there were found to be present G. W. C. T. Robert Thompson of San Francisco, G. W. V. T., Mrs. E. P. Stevens of San Francisco, P. G. W. C. T., Will D. Gould of Los Angeles, G. W. T. Dr. I. S. Halsey of Vallejo, and G. W. S., Geo. B. Katzenstein of Sacramento. Absent H. S. Graves of Yuba City.

The minutes of the previous meeting held February 6 were read and duly approved.

The G. W. S. presented the usual quarterly report as follows.

QUARTERLY RETURNS AND MEMBERSHIP.

I am gratified at being able to report a continued advance all along the line, the files of quarterly returns increasing at each report. For the quarter ending January 31st last 352 lodges filed returns showing a membership of 18,277. This is exclusive of delinquent lodges which do not enter into the calculation. 652 members have been added also by the charter membership of new lodges, so that the bona fide reported membership is 18,929.

The delinquent lodges, those failing so far to file quarterly returns for the term ending January 31st last, are 20 in number as follows. Nos. 7, 101, 106, 226, 229, 250, 276, 277, 282, 287, 306, 372, 374, 426, 439, 447. 453, 457, A. T. 1. S. I. 1.

The lodges becoming extinct by surrender of charter etc. since last report are Nos. 147, 149, 240, 251, 289 and 347—in all 6. Three of these were merged into other lodges.

Crystal Fount Lodge No. 240 of Gridley Butte County was reorganized as a new lodge under the name of Gridley Lodge No. 240, by Col. C. N. Goulding by my advice and consent, securing many of the best citizens of that community as charter members. The old lodge having forfeited its charter by reason of failure to hold regular meetings during three quarters. The new lodge was organized with 81 charter members and renews the work under most favorable auspices. I recommend that the property and effects of Crystal Fount Lodge be transferred and donated to the new Gridley Lodge.

NEW LODGES.

Since the last meeting of this Committee 23 new lodges have been organized, and it is gratifying to note that at least six of these were organized by District Deputies as the result of local effect. Our Grand Lecturers organized 14 of the new lodges as follows, King 6; Goulding 5; Hughes 2; Webb 1. The remaining lodges were organized, 2 by Bro. Charles J. Covillaud and one each by Bro. G. M. McWaine; H. C. Brooke; G. W. Frazier, J. H. Liening, J. D. McLeod, M. D. Gage and Sister Myra Walbridge.

The following exhibit shows the location, date of organization, number of charter members, and the organization of each lodge reported:

AMENDMENTS APPROVED.

The following amendments have been approved to Bylaws of Lodges as follows.

Feb. 14, Prohibition Lodge No. 412, repealing previous enactment requiring a deposit of one half the amount of initiation fee with propositions for membership.

March 6, Virginia Lodge No. 124 changing night of meeting to Saturday.

March 9, Mission Star Lodge No. 160, changing night of meeting to Saturday. Fixing dues for all male members under 15 years of age at 50 cts. per quarter. Fixing regular initiation fee for males at $3, females $1. Fixing degree fees for males at $1, for each degree, females 50 cts. each. Disapproved the reduction of initiation and degree fees for minor males to 75cts. and 50 cts respectively, because in conflict with Act V. Section 1 and 2 of Subordinate constitution which fixes a minimum regardless of age.

March 31st, Antelope Lodge No. 145, change of night of meeting to Sunday.

April 1st Mission Star Lodge No. 160, fixing initiation fee of males under 16 years of age at $2.

April 1st Aqua Pura Lodge No. 111, changing night of meeting to Monday.

April 1st Red Bluff Lodge No. 192, permitting all members irrespective of age to vote upon all questions before the Lodge.

April 3, Columbia Lodge No. 128, changing night of meeting to Saturday.

April 7th Kern Island Lodge No. 495, fixing night of meeting as Monday; the hour 7-30 P. M from Oct. to April and 8 P. M. the balance of the year. Permitting all members to vote upon all questions that may occur, without restrictions as to age. Making dues of members uniform without reference to adult or minor.

April 8th San Louis Obispo No. 444, providing for the initiation of candidates only on the second and fourth meetings of each month.

April 14th Volcano Lodge No. 281, changing night of meeting to Friday.

April 15th Success Lodge No. 366, fixing dues of male members from 12 to 16 years at 75 cents, 16 to 20 years at $1,00 and over 20 years $1,50 per quarter. Dues of females 25 cents per quarter.

April 19th Welcome Lodge No. 104, fixing dues of female members at 25 cts. per quarter.

April 17th Greenwood Lodge No. 450, permitting members under 16 years of age to vote upon all questions.

April 19th Ventura Lodge No. 489, changing night of meeting to Wednesday.

April 22d San Luis Obispo Lodge 444, Providing for the initiation and conferring degrees upon candidates only upon the second and fourth meeting nights of each month. The remaining meetings to be devoted to business and open meetings.

April 26, Chapel Lodge No. 191, permitting minor members who are full degree members to vote upon all questions before the Lodge.

April 26, Declined approval to amendment from Vesper Lodge No. 268 which permitted the Trustees of the hall to rent the hall upon any night at any time. Holding that the meeting night of the Lodge should be reserved for lodge purposes and no other, which the amendment did not contemplate.

The report of the G. W. S. was considered seriatim and its several parts approved and adopted.

The G. S., J. W. presented her quarterly report as follows:

Since last report Feb. 1st, there have been 41 Bands organized, and several others partially organized, have been furnished supplies and will doubtless soon report.

In Feb. mailed 158 packages, 66 letters and 63 postal cards. In Mar. mailed 103 packages, 119 letters, and 46 postal cards. In Apr., up to the 26th, mailed 67 packages, 63 letters, 17 postals. Total, 248 letters, 126 postals and 328 packages.

Geo. B. Katzenstein, Sec'y.

Abolished.—The Socialistic Labor Party, whoever she is, advises to abolish the Presidency and the Senate on account of the recent veto. That is the kind we want; if we would go to work and systematically abolish everything that don't suit, we should have everything abolished by and by except the grog-shop and the socialists. And then "that would be joyful."

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

COMMUNION WINE.

In the olden time the preservation of the grape for food purposes was a very important matter. While wine was allowed to ferment to get drunk on and to use in feasts and banquets in honor of idols and devils, there is no evidence that the ancients believed the wine of intoxication and lying and filthiness was good for either food or medicine. But they had what they called "tirosh," which was both food for people in health and strengthening for invalids. This was never condemd in the Scripture, altho once it was referred to with the bad wine as "taking away the heart," whatever that may mean. One time it is spoken of without being commended. There was another word, "yayin," used many times and never commended, generally condemd and often denounced; emphatically forbidden to the priests during their terms of service in the temple; forbidden at sacrifices and often denounced with terrible threatenings of woe and misery.

But these two words and some others were innocently translated wine by the Christian scholars of near three centuries ago, because they knew nothing of wine. All the wine they had seen or tasted was fermented and intoxicating and they supposed it was the natural product of the grape, knowing of no other. And so did all men till scholars and scientists of an age of temperance found it was not so. Men believed too that the fiery brandy was the juice of the grape, and the satanic whisky, that burns like coal oil, was the juice of the barley, and corn and rye. Till temperance men found that these things were all merely alcohol and water, and the alcohol was not in the juice of anything, but a poison evolved from the dead corpse of the sugar that is found in all fruit and grain and which has been decomposed by the rotting of fermentation. Fermentation is an active rotting, decomposing, decaying process, and if allowed to go right on, ends with the complete destruction of the thing fermented. In the case of a liquid, nothing is left but pure water, a dirty sediment and the poison gases have escaped into the atmosphere.

There are lots of temperance people and members of the church who, having never read the RESCUE or any tenperance literature, still believe that whisky is the juice of corn, and beer is the essence of barley, and wine is the juice of the grape or something the grape contains, all of which is folly.

When we think of the ignorance that prevailed as to what wine and strong drink really were and what were their effects, it is not strange that the translators and the readers of the Bible all believed that the wine condemd was wine in excess and that which was commended as a blessing was the same wine in moderation.

When the Protestant reformation occurred it was the custom in the Catholic church and had been for more than a century, for the people at communion to take the bread, and for the priest alone to take the wine and that was fermented wine. Then the Protestants restored the cup to the people but the fermented wine was in use and its propriety was never questioned, till thotful people among abstaining Christians began to wonder how it could be that the Savior of the world had used and so honored above all other things in the world, an unnatural poison which all thru the Bible history had been a symbol of lewdness and vice and sin and vomiting and all thru the Bible precepts had been most abundantly and emphatically denounced and accursed.

As soon as they examined the sacred and profane historical records, the matter was instantly made plain as day, as noon-day. The fruit of the vine of the communion was found to be the wholesome delicious grape juice, a blessing entirely distinct from and in every respect unlike the cup of devils. But because people had been accustomed to see the wine of drunkenness and crime and misery placed upon the table of the Lord and had innocently learned to venerate it there, they opposed and still oppose the change to-day, altho their number is always decreasing and the young folks who are less saddled with ancient prejudices and superstitions readily accept the rational interpretation of the Bible on the subject.

Those who cling to the old idea, have to make the Savior and his disciples and the Christian of to-day very inconsistent and they have a great many difficulties to patch up, while we have none at all. We discuss the subject, they dont like to; and when they have to, they repeat old fallacies that have been exploded a thousand times. But we dont insinuate that they are insincere. At first, men would not believe or assent to one single assertion or doctrine of the temperance reform; except the single one that too much drunkenness was wrong. That was the only thing they did not fight with intense determination and persistence; lots of people who wont read or never read anything about temperance, deny every thing we say now, because they know no better.

It was the custom not many years ago in India when a man died, to burn his live widow with the dead body. When English law forbade the practice there, it was considered a great hardship; lots of conservatives opposed and condemd the innovation and many a suttee or widow burning took place on the sly. The Chinese cripple the feet of female children and used to drown female infants by the dozen every morning; and men and women, old fogy-like stood up manfully for the old customs; but the young people get over them. If it had been the law and custom for 200 years past that all American and European women on arriving at the age of 50 should be poisoned mercifully and put out of the way, there would be lots of people now, who would resist an attempted change of the good old custom; would declare it unscriptural, unchristian and radical to make any change, and some of them would denounce it as an injustice to our dear, good mothers, to deprive them of the comfort of a nice funeral when they were by long usage entitled to it.

Up to about the year 300 it was the custom for the whole family, children included, to partake of the bread and wine and if any were sick at home or unable to attend, some was carried home to them. Not likely that that was intoxicating poison. In a very few years it will be conceded, as Gov. St John says, that alcohol in any place is just the same as alcohol at the whisky bar.

SOME CRUSADES.

There was an old story or two connected with the captivity of Richard the first in Germany. His people knew not where he was, as there was no telegraph, railway or other regular international communication in those days. A traveling musician who used to play the flute or banjo or something with Richard in his young days, was cruising round in Germany, and happened to play "Shoo-fly" or the "Wearing of the Green" or some other popular melody, near the dungeon in which the hospitable German monarch was entertaining his brother king.

Richard heard and recognized the player and responded by playing or singing or whistling the same air, and the player knew it was Richard, and went back to England and they took up a collection there and bot him off. The story does not say whether Richard would have expended 25 cents to get the musician out of jail had he found or heard of him being there. It cost a million dollars to buy off Richard. Kings can be had cheaper now.

THE FOURTH CRUSADE.

Pope Innocent III. in 1202 persuaded another set of French and Italian cranks to attempt to propagate Christianity with fire and sword and plunder. That was not at all in obedience to any precept taut or sanctioned in any Christian faith, but the undeveloped people of those days believed they were serving God and humanity by these deeds of violence, and if we should feel disposed to judge them harshly we should do them the justice to believe that mistaken as they were, cruel as they were, barbarous as they were, they were less cruel and barbarous than the very large majority of the rest of their fellow-men of that day.
